TERRIBLE INFANT MORTALITY IN ENGLAND AND WALES

No Fewer Than 120,000 Babes Said to Die Annually in Those Two Countries Alone---John Burns Takes Matter Into Consideration.

London, Dec. 22.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman received a deputation from the National Conference on Infant Mortality at 10 Downing street yesterday. With the Premier was Mr. John Burns, President of the Local Government Board, who is also President of the Conference. The deputation was representative of the principal cities and local authorities throughout Great Britain.

Evans Spicer, chairman of the London County Council, introduced the deputation, and called on Bailie Anderson, of Glasgow, to submit the views of the conference. These had been placed in a resolution carried at the conference.

The Bailie said that the conference was absolutely non-political. They desired legislation, which would put an end to the frightful mortality. Thousands of lives which might be spared were ruthlessly wasted each year. Twice as many illegitimate babies died as legitimate.

Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman, in reply, said he was not qualified, from his own knowledge or experience, to enter upon details of any of the remedies they suggested, but he had next him, a man, who not only had a profound sympathy with them, but who also had the knowledge necessary to deal with the question. The evil, he admitted, was simply appalling, as it was astounding to think that last year, at any rate, 120,000 babies died in England and Wales alone. It was no question of politics, it was one on which they were all agreed, and he trusted they should not be found to fail them in the efforts they might be called upon to make to face and overcome this monstrous evil.

Mr. Burns, who followed the Premier, said that the recommendations made by the deputation, relating to the teaching in schools of hygiene and dietary, he would convey to Mr. Birrell, who was in cordial agreement with the utility of their objections. The supply of milk by sanitary authorities met with the approval of his own department. He also magnified his approval of the recommendations that all birth should be notified within 48 hours to the medical officer of health for the district. He would call the attention of the Home Secretary to their proposal to inquire into the question of the insurance of infant life. The question of infant feeding he would personally inquire into and deal with by a departmental order, or by legislation if necessary. Generally speaking, on behalf of his colleagues, they were prepared to accept the recommendations of the deputation generally. In conclusion, Mr. Burns said that two of the chief contributing factors to the hight mortality rates in certain insanitary districts were dirt and drink. People spent money on drink which ought to be spent on food.

Great Opportunity for Good Investment

Canada's Vast Opportunities for Canned Beef Industry

The "Western Canneries" organized and incorporated in 1906, under title of Malcolm's Western Canneries, with a capital of $1,000,000 in shares of $100 each, is now fast disposing of their recently issued eastern $60,000 block of stock. This is being rapidly taken up, the sales averaging over $3,000 daily. The Western block was at once over-subscribed for and is now all taken up.

To instance the immense profits company are absolutely sure to make, and thereby pay proportionate dividends, it might be noted that the price of live cattle in Western Canada is from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb with unlimited supplies available, against higher prices in the United States when in the can this beef is worth from 16c. to 20c per lb. and the cost of canning is comparitively trifling. The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of four dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef in each can. Each of the Western Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day. The profits and consequent dividends can thus easily be judged. The company will operate canneries in six cattle centers of Western Canada, and will buy large sections of land in the vicinity of the various canneries, which will greatly advance in value.

Preference shares in the company may still be obtained at $100 each, payable in $10 calls every two months. The prospectus or application forms can be had at any branch of the Traders' bank in Canada or from the Peterborough Brokerage Company, local fiscal agents.

INFANT'S HEAD IN ATTIC

Discovery Made by Manchester Workmen Engaged on Repairs.

Manchester, N.H., Dec. 22.—An infant's head was found in an attic at 2 Langdon Corporation building by two corporation employes, Edward Carroll and Thomas Casey, who were doing some repairing on the building. The head was wrapped in a man's shirt and a woman's underskirt and put inside a can. The flesh had dried to the skull.

Mrs. Harriet Heywood is the tenant and conducts a boarding house, and during the time she has been in charge there have been many changes in the boarders and lodgers.

Peeress Joins the "Riding Astriders"

Duchess of Westminster Gives Up the Side Saddle and Trots Like a Man.

London, Dec. 22.—Riding astride will soon have ousted the old side-saddle seat for ladies, which will in a few years be the exception among the horsewomen in Rotten Row.

The movement in favor of the masculine seat is led, among other prominent society women, by Viscountess Castlereagh, the Duchess of Westminster, the three Misses Fetherstonhaugh, the three Misses Heathcote-Drummond-Willoughby, Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson, the intrepid sportswoman better known in the United States as Lady Constance Mackenzie.

The side saddle is denounced as tiring both for rider and horse, while it is not so safe as the newseat. Girls learning to ride—nearly all being taught to ride astride—find it much easier, and feel more at home in the saddle.

Ladies riding astride appear to ride more neatly than in the old way, while the divided skirt does not look such a great difference from the ordinary habit as to excite remark.

From a health point of view, a leading London doctor says that riding astride certainly involves "some grave dangers to women, but they can be easily avoided. I think it is quite as safe as the side-saddle method and less liable to serious accident. A woman will not use the new method any more than she would the side saddle when she knows it would do her harm."

FREED AFTER 39 YEARS

Berezowsky, Who Shot at Czar Alexander II. in Paris, to Leave New Caledonia.

Paris, Dec. 22.—France has just pardoned a criminal who enjoyed a moment of notoriety thirty-nine years ago, but who has since been practically forgotten. He is a Berezowsky, who in 1867 fired a pistol at the Czar Alexander II., as he was reviewing the French troops in the Bois de Boulogne.

The shot missed the emperor. It struck a woman among the spectators, but she was only slightly wounded. The would-be assassin was a Polish workingman. He was sentenced to deportation and life imprisonment and was shipped to New Caledonia in short order. He was really insane. The fact was recognized by the jailers. He has grown worse as the years passed. His delusions took the form of inventions, one of which was a perpetual motion machine, and he used to try to bargain with the governor of the penal colony for freedom in exchange for the secret.

For some years he has enjoyed relative freedom on the island. On reaching his seventieth year he was allowed to live in a little cottage outside of the prison and to dispose of his own time. The government still provided for his support, and he amused himself cultivating his garden and dreaming of his wonderful mechanical projects. Lately his case was taken up by the Humanitarian League and his complete pardon was the result. The papers here speak of it as a doubtful mercy. It is hard to see what shelter he can find in France now, except in an insane asylum.

Board of Trade Formed in Madoc

The Madoc Review is naturally proud of the village of that name forming a Board of Trade, and has the following regarding the same, viz.,

A number of our business men have been discussing the question of organizing a Board of Trade for our town, and a mining association for the furthering of the mining interests in this locality. This is a very appropriate period for such a movement as we have on all sides of us mines of untold wealth, which only need developing. We also have right here a town that is very prominent in the eyes of the business world today. Here we have, so to speak, the metropolis of North Hastings, which must be kept abreast of the times as to manufacturing interests, etc. What we need, and what will prove a great benefit at this particular period, when we are looking forward to the G.T.R. extending its line northward, and the C.P.R. running its main line through, and having industries locate here, is a good, live Board—one that will encourage in every way the locating of such industries and furthering the welfare of the town generally.

The building lately occupied by the Dominion Bank has been leased and a meeting is called for Monday night next, Dec. 24th.

KING'S PALACE HAS ELEVATORS NOW

Buckingham Actually Get an Installation of Electric Light Service

THERE ARE TELEPHONES

Royal Residence in London Actually Secures Most of the Modern Improvements.

London, Dec. 22.—Buckingham Palace is now efficiently protected from fire the King having ordered that the antiquated fire and salvage apparatus cpt on the premises should be modernized.

A staff of three professional firemen, chosen from the metropolitan brigade, has been engaged, and they will be reinforced by the existing palace private fire company manned by the royal servants.

The improvements include an increased number of hydrants in and about the palace, hand pumps placed on every corridor, and 300 waterproof sheets distributed in different parts of the building. Until King Edward ordered these reforms the royal residence in London was hopelessly out of date in its fire equipment.

The King himself has had experience in fighting the flames. On one occasion when fire broke out at Marlborough House—his residence when he was Prince of Wales—he took off his coat and worked strenuously to save is furniture and valuables.

Buckingham Palace has been modernized generally. There is now a complete installation of electric light and elevator service. The King himself does not use the new elevators, as his bedroom is on the second floor, but he makes much use of the telephone, which is now in every room, and conducts with it much of his private and personal business.

Wm. Hamilton Co. to Be Wound Up

An official notice is now issued advising creditors of the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co. to send in their accounts to the executors of the estate. Judging by the well known standing of this company, those who have accounts against them, need not have any serious fears as this company is one of the most progressive in the Dominion of Canada. That this trouble has arisen is easily explained and is due to no lack of orders or inefficient management. It was simply a matter of financing easily explained and more easily understood by those acquainted with current events.

More Grand Gifts by Nicholls' Estate

That Messrs. Rich. Hall and Chas. McGill, trustees of the Charlotte J. Nicholls estate are acting up to their duties in every particular and complying with the wishes of Peterborough's noble benefactress, is once more in evidence.

It will be remembered that recently the trustees of this estate, in addition to other gifts, gave that fine property to the south of the Y.M.C.A. to that most admirable institution. Now these gentlemen, whose power in this matter practically depends upon their own volition, have decided to give $30,000 from the residue of the estate for park purposes for the city of Peterborough.

In connection with the expenditure of this money, Messrs. S. H. D. Hall city solicitor, and Mr. John Crane manager of the local branch of the Dominion Bank, will be associated with the trustees of the Nicholls estate as park trustees.

At the time of Mrs. Nicholls death the trustees made an appropriation of $60,000 for the purchase, care and maintenance of parks for the city. Inverlea and the Oval, as well as Jackson Park were acquired, and have since been kept up and beautified without any outlay on the part of the city.

The further donation of $30,000 for park purposes, comes as a most agreeable and welcome surprise, and the trustees of the Nicholls Park trust will doubtless expend the sum in a manner that will materially add to the picturesqueness and beauty of this city.

RUSSIAN ATROCITIES

Terrible Stories of the Conduct of Jailers Toward Political Prisoners.

London, Dec 22.—Terrible charges against Russian jailers are brought in a letter which was found outside the Riskunie Otdelenie Prison of Riga signed by twenty inmates. It was found by a revolutionist who, as is the practice, want to drop through the windows news of the latest developments of the revolutionary movement.

It must be remembered that many of the occupants of the prison are probably Lettish peasants, who were guilty of all sorts of barbarieties in their late rising, while others are very likely Socialist revolutionaries who have kept Riga in a ferment and done many persons to death.

Many of the alleged cruelties are too gruesome for repetition, but the letter asserts, among other things, that it is a common practice in the prison to hit the prisoners, especially on the head, in order to cause some mental disturbance, which might lead the victim to give incriminating evidence.

"A revolutionary soldier of the infantry regiment was brought into our midst the other day," continues the letter, "and while we were forced to witness the scene he was stripped and knouted. His wounds were then rubbed with salt, and the flogging continued on exactly the same spots.

"The police try first to obtain a confession by means of kind words, promise of freedom and even money being made to them. If they will betray their friends and fellow-fighters. Before prisoners had been compelled to go for two or three days without food they place a sumptuous supper, with wine, etc., in order to open their mouths.

"In our company is also a young workman who is growing insane gradually, thanks to his ill-treatment. He has been in prison for nine months, although he proves his innocence after the first few weeks, his employer having established an alibi.

"I have still to relate the story of Lettish peasant, a co-prisoner of mine. He is rather a weak-mined fellow. In January last he was arrested as an agitator by Orloff's men. Without trial he was sentenced to death, and led out into the field, where five soldiers fired a volley at him. He fell, and the 'pufficra' left him in a pool of blood. However, he was not dead, and under the care of a friendly family of revolutionists, who took him home, he recovered.

"Towards the middle of March it leaked out that he was still alive, and he was again arrested. In court he was told; 'If bullets did not kill you, the rope may finish the job.'"

Laid at Rest.

The remains of Mrs. Thos. Armstrong were interred yesterday in the Little Lake cemetery. The funeral was largely attended, testifying to the high regard in which she was held. Services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Mr. Davidson, rector of St. John's church, of which the deceased lady was a life-long and consistent member. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. A. P. Poussette, K.C., J. D. Collins, T. A. S. Hay, Adam Hall, S. Savigny, and J. Walton. The floral tributes were very beautiful, completely covering the casket. Of Mrs. Armstrong it can be said that her life was devoted to her family and to her friends; her desire ever was to do all the good she could. She was loved by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, and her demise will be deeply regretted.

When it happens that the body is loaded with wastes and poisons which it can't eliminate, fermentation, decay, and germ life run riot through the blood.

Serious illness is the result, unless nature is assisted by a cleansing tonic like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are purely vegetable, contain no mercury, no bismuth, no injurious metallic ingredient of any kind.

ROME STILL HOLDS OUT OFFER OF A COMPROMISE

Might Abandon Claim to Temporal Power and Admit Principle of Separation of Church and the State.

Rome, Dec. 22.—The following is a detailed summary of the note issued by the Vatican as a protest against the course of the French Government, and forwarded to all the Papal representatives abroad;

The note protests primarily that the rights of religion have been outraged by the French Government's action in preventing the head of the Church from communicating with the French hierarchy, by the expulsion from France of Mgr. Montagnini, secretary of the Papal Nunciature at Paris. The question of the inviolability of the archives of the Nunciature is not touched upon, it being pointed out that the authorities on international law do not agree on what constitutes the duty of a State in the matter of documents left behind by the representative of a foreign power with which relations had been broken, with the interests of this power had not been entrusted to a third friendly power.

Continuing, the note says:

"The representatives of the Holy See abroad have also received a circular, in which are set forth the motives for the action of the Vatican regarding the application of the Church and State separation law of 1905. These motives are so grave that it is evidently impossible to accuse the Holy See of intransigeance or of unjust hostility to the French Government in condemning the cultural associations which disregarded the essential rights which the Church derived from her constitution, such as maintaining an ecclesiastical hierarchy established by her divine founder as the basis of the organization of the Church. In fact the law conferred on the cultural association rights which not only belong exclusively to the ecclesiastical authorities in the practice of worship and in possessing and administering ecclesiastical property, but the same associations were rendered independent of the ecclesiastical hierarchy, and, instead, were placed under the jurisdiction of the lay authorities. The Pontiff could not approve of such associations without being lax in his duty as head of the Church, and without trampling upon the fundamental domestic principles of the Church.

"The same can be said of M. Briand's circular. The Holy See could not admit the unjust and intolerable conditions which the circular imposed upon the clergy in the exercise of their duties. All this evidently shows that the Holy See merely did its duty strictly in giving instructions to the French clergy.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

A LONG WAR

A little cable despatch of not more than fifty words from The Hague, in Holland tells in matter-of-fact fashion of the ending of a war which has lasted 348 years, probably the longest in the history of the world, waged ceaselessly, decade after decade, by the stout-hearted, dogged Dutch against the savage Macassare for the possession of the diamond-dusted, gold-crusted island of Celebes, in the East Indies.

This war was begun when New York had been settled by these same Dutchmen only thirty years before. Peter Stuyvesant was then stumping about its half dozen streets edging the bay on his wooden leg, lording it over the handful of people who, before the war was ended, were to become the 4,000,000 of the great metropolis of the West.

The Pilgrims had been in Massachusetts only forty years. A locomotive was as unknown as a flying machine or an automobile, electricity was not dreamed of, and steam was not driving a single wheel anywhere. The world has awakened from a great sleep and girded itself with the myriad modern devices while the Dutch have been subjugating these far Eastern Macassars.

Charles II. the profligate, was rioting on the throne of England in the beginning of the Restoration; Napoleon, who was to change the map of Europe as only Julius Caesar had before him, was not to be born on the little Isle of Corsica for another hundred years; England was only beginning to realize that Shakespeare had just completed the greatest literary work in the language; Rembrandt, Murillo, and Velasquez were painting their masterpieces in different parts of Europe, and Queen Victoria, still to be born, might have been a little, insignificant German princess, instead of "Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, by the grace of God, Defender of the Faith and Empress of India," if William Henry, the Stadtholder of Holland, who began this war against the Macassare, had not become William III of England.

The last thousand of the dusky Malay tribe, driven back foot by foot from the southern coast of the island, made their final stand in a wild fastness on the top-most crag of the crater of one of Celebes' extinct volcanoes. With its natural battlements of solid rock and up on "the roof of the world," it was more like an eagle's eyrie than a fortress.

But the Dutch soldiers, trained to meet their enemy by the lessons of the almost interminable war, pushed their way up the mountain side, through the tangled tropical forest, and ringed themselves around the crater.

At last the natives surrendered, ending a war of more than two centuries.

Zion City to Be Sold by Creditors

Chicago, Dec. 21.—At a meeting of creditors of Zion City estate last night, Receiver John C. Hateley announced that conditions demanded that immediate arrangements be made for selling the entire property.

Many of the creditors, he says, are in absolutely poverty. Others are borowing to meet living expenses and are approaching financial ruin. The fact that winter has arrived makes the crisis sharper.

Many Charges Against Her.

Sarnia, Dec. 21.—Agnes Laeg, aged 19, forfeited her bail after stealing. It is alleged $65 from her father, and failed to appear on Monday for trial on charges of forgery and shoplifting. She was arrested in Port Huron yestery, while boarding a train for Detroit. She displayed the utmost coolness for one of her years. She will be brought back here for trial.

A Proud Old Steed.

Fred Fish of Southington, Conn., recently decided to sell his old mare and buy a younger horse, so he sold it for $15 to a peddler. No sooner had the money been paid than the old mare fell down dead. The previous owner says that she was always a proud old steed and that he is sure that she died rather than belong to a peddler, and so as he always admired the mare he is going to erect a monument to her with the $15 he received.—Boston Globe.

A Land of Contrasts.

Just now China is a land of contrasts so wide, so sharp and so forcible that the dullest observer can hardly fail to observe them. She is going straight from wheelbarrows and springless carts, or sedan chairs, to express trains; in place of special messengers she adopts the telegraph; from rush lights she goes to electricity, and from the extreme of antimilitarism she is developing a taste for patriotic volunteering.—Shanghai Celestial Empire.

Chirography's Flaws.

Alfred Binet, director of the psychological laboratory at the Sorbonne, Paris, has been investigating the value of handwriting experts. An expert who was given a specimen of Ernest Renan's chirography said the writer was a person of only moderate intelligence, credulous and garrulous. Vital, a criminal who murdered several women with revolting barbarity, appeared to another expert as "a timid girl, distinguished by moderation."

An Invigorating Drink.

"Pusky" is a new soda water fountain drink at Eufala, Okla. Pusky was invented by the Creek Indians. Corn that is just hard enough to shell is heated in a pot until it is brown. Then it is broken in a mortar into a fine powder. "Mixed with sweet milk or with carbonated water and sirups, pusky," says an enthusiastic local paper, "is a drink that makes a man carry his wife around in his arms just for the exercise."

A Cat With Wings.

The boatswain of the Caspian, an English schooner, brought with him from India on a recent trip a strange animal-bird, which he always referred to as his 'Tabby.' It certainly looked more like a cat than anything else, but it was probably some freak of the animal world. It had two pairs of wings, but could fly only with difficulty, like a tame duck.

The American Magazine for January

The new editors of The American Magazine are making good. Their periodical grows better every month. The January number is excellent. Ray Stannard Baker leads off with a description of an extraordinary experiment in brotherhood now being conducted in America—The Theosophical Institution at Point Loma, Cal. Katherine Tingley, the power in the organization, is a wonderful leader, reminding one of Mary Baker G. Eddy in the ability she has exhibited. William Allen White, the famous Emporia (Kansas) editor and novelist, compares Emporia and New York City. Of course the article is compact of wit and wisdom. Ida M. Tarbell, proceeding with her story "The Tariff in our Times" tells about the outbreak of protectionism that followed the Civil war. Washington Gladden, writing of "The Negro Crisis," suggests that the separation of the whites from blacks may become necessary.

F. Marion Crawford begins a new serial, "Arethusa, a Princess in Slavery," being a love story of old Constantinople.

Two editorial announcements of importance are made. One is of a series of articles "We and Our Servants" by Josephine Daskam Bacon, and the other is of a new series on the negro problem by Ray Stannard Baker, both to begin in February.

David Grayson, in his autobiographical serial, "Adventures in Contentment," tells the best story he has yet related—the story of his conversion of a book agent. George Madden Martin, Marion Hill and Lily A Long contribute short stories.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.

"I Attribute my Extreme Old Age to the Use of Pe-ru-na."

Mr. Isaac Brock, 117 Years Old Last Birthday.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 117 years. For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

Some time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture, holding in his hand a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson. Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude. His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 117 years ago.

Born before the United States were formed.
Saw 22 Presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years.
Believes Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal troubles.

IN speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 117 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but, of course, subject to the affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds and diarrhoea.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it keeps me in good appetite; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes:

"I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. The only thing that bothers me is my sight. If I could see better I could walk all over the farm, and it would do me good. I would not be without Peruna."

Yours truly,

Isaac Brock,

When old age comes, it brings with it catarrhal diseases. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people. This explains why Peruna has become so indispensable to many old people.

Splendid Progress of Bank of Ottawa

Thirty-Second Annual Meeting Shows Great Strength and Progress.

In the financial circles of Canada there is no institution that bears a name for solidity, strength and progress better or more well-founded than the Bank of Ottawa. During the thirty-two years since the inception of this bank its history has been marked by capable management, conservative system.

At the thirty-second annual meeting of the shareholders of this bank, attended by many men of international repute, Mr. Geo. Hay, the president, on motion of Mr George Burn, the capable general manager, took the chair. The directors report was most gratifying to all concerned, showing that on the year ending November 30th, 1906, the bank had a balance at credit of profit and loss account of $114,-826.97, with net profits, after deducting expenses of management, interest to depositors, unearned interest on current loans, and all bad or doubtful debts, of $475,238.36. Dividends at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, were paid on June 1st, $145,599.42, and on December 1st, $119,811.75; $33,475.42 was applied towards reducing account against bank premises and furniture, and $5,000 placed to the credit of officers pension fund. The rest account on November 30th, 1905, was $2,[illegible] to which this year was added premium on new stock amounting to $50[illegible].

The directors recommended that hereafter the bank should pay its dividends quarterly, and that interest due on interest bearing deposits be credited quarterly, [illegible] that will be hailed with satisfaction by those concerned.

The speech made by the president, general manager and Mr Denis Murphy, for the directors, were most optimistic and congratulatory. The bank having, during 1906, not only retained its former high standing but greatly increased its business and general business Mr. Burn the general manager, is one of the leading financiers of the world and has nobly filled the important trust involved in the responsible position.

The local branch of the Bank of Ottawa, under the management of Mr. A. A. Hollingshead, although only open a little over a year, has already risen to a foremost position in banking circles here, and has some of the largest and best accounts in this city. Mr. Hollingshead has won the trust and appreciation of many of our leading citizens, who consequently carry their accounts at the Bank of Ottawa.

Winnipeg, Dec. 21.—The Hebrew residents of Winnipeg have remitted to their old homes in Europe during the past year the sum of $500,000.

Watford's Wordsworth.

Watford, the prettiest village of the Western Ontario plains, domiciles a poet, not unknown to local fame, but until now unscanned by metropolitan eyes, says The Toronto World. His name, in the language of the good folk of his particular bailiewick, is Dad Williams, but, with a winning modesty, he merges his rugged personality in the Co. part of Harris & Co., the publishers of that compendium of household rural knowledge, ycleept Watford Guide-Advocate.

Dad Williams is a remote Gadsby, or Billee Glynn, or The Khan. Like his city prototypes, he writes things now and again that won't scan, but they, nevertheless, see the light of printers' ink. Take, for example, the following, dedicated to "Pippins," much sought after in Watford:

He sat down be-cider
As they went to press,
She slipped on the peelings
And the evapor-ator.

Purely bucolic, and somewhat strained, but bearing the marks of native talent untrained. The pun on the last word is atrocious, as all puns should be, but it fetches the public.

Then, what a picture of domestic gaiety is brought to mind by

"True to the core."
The maiden said,
And swung the peeling
Around her head.
It lit and formed the letter Q.
He called next day,
But 'twas skidoo.

Disfigured by a taint of slang in the concluding foot, but otherwise a rural gem. The word "skidoo" is an Americanism, and is accounted for by the fact that Dad once wrote copy for The Brooklyn Eagle.

$75,000,000 IN COPPER DIVIDENDS

This stupendous sum will be paid to the lucky holders of Copper Stocks during 1907---so say the world's highest authorities.

Lluvia de Cobre Stockholders will Soon Share in These Profits

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM THE COPPER BELT OF SONORA.

A New Copper Mine that is Destined to Rank Among Mexico's Greatest.

Hermosillo, Mexico, November 20.—Local investors are showing unusual interest in copper stocks—particularly in the stocks of Sonora properties that have passed beyond the stage of mere prospects.

The property that is the strongest in public favor is the Lluvia de Cobre, located about 45 miles north from Hermosillo and about 70 miles west from Carbo on the Sonora Railway. This is considered one of the most valuable copper properties in the state, and much of the stock is held by the most conservative local investors. Business, banking and mining men of Hermosillo look with much favor upon this property, and the general prediction is that the Lluvia will very soon develop into one of the state's laggest producers.

The property has been examined and reported on by some of the best known copper experts and engineers in the South-West—among the most prominent being Messrs. J. J. Wood and Thomas Bentley, well known as expert assayers through their work in this line for the Banco de Sonora, one of the largest banking institutions of Mexico. Exhaustive reports are also made by D. J. Thompson, L. H. Jansen, and others. The verdict of all is that this is a property of great value, and that from every indication it is soon to become another Greene Consolidated. Those familiar with the great Greene property say that no two properties in America are so nearly alike in every way as are these two kings of Sonora.

During the past month sensational developments have been made almost daily. The big strike of sulphide ore which was made in the Josephine shaft some weeks ago was one of unusual richness. The ore was encountered near the 250-foot level and penetrated for something near 70 feet, averaging from 7 1-2 per cent. to 25 per cent. in copper, and is one of the very best smelting ores, as it carries its own fluxes.

Following this rich strike the shaft penetrated an excellent deposit of iron sprinkled throughout with native copper, and just a few days ago went into the second layer of sulphides and with every indication present that the permanent sulphide bed will be reached at almost any moment. When that is accomplished the stock of this company should, and no doubt will, advance to far above its par value of, $1.00 per share.

The company has been selling some of its stock for development purposes during the past two months, and the first block, offered at 25 cents, was quickly taken up and the price was just recently advanced to 35 cents per share. Conservative investors are taking up this second offering very rapidly, confident that this price will be more than doubled at a very early date.

The president vice-president and other officers and directors of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co., of Kansas City, Mo., recently spent several days at Camp Lluvia, and were more than gratified with the progress that is being made. Mr. W. T. Lake is in charge of the office at Hermosillo, and Mr. J. C. Worthington, General Manager, is directing the work at the mine.

The property is well equipped for present needs with steam hoist and other modern machinery. The assay office, tool house, shaft house, store house, and the homes for the workers are all well built and in first class condition. A full crew of men is working in two shifts, and the work of sinking the Josephine shaft on through to the permanent sulphide bed is being rushed with all possible speed. The miners are of the better class of Mexican laborers, are trained workmen, well paid and well satisfied with the treatment they are receiving from Manager Worthington. In this section of Mexico labor troubles are unknown.

The original holdings of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. consisted of about 163 acres, but 130 acres of valuable adjoining property was added by the officers on their recent visit, making the present holdings 293 acres. This additional territory will mean much to the future of this already valuable property. Before the present offering of stock was placed on the market the officers of the company had already been developing the property for two years and had spent thousands of dollars of their own money in carrying the work to its present stage. The company needs larger equipment to carry on the larger work outlined, and for that purpose stock is now being sold.

A smelter will probably be a proposition of the early future; but for the present, Green's big custom smelter at Guaymas will handle all the ore when shipments begin. The ore can be milled at a very small cost, owing to its unusually fine smelting qualities. Good wagon roads lead direct from the mine to Carbo, and the ore can be transported at a very reasonable cost.

Timber, fuel and water are near at hand and can be had at very small cost. In fact, everything is present in the Lluvia for the making of a very great mine—and that it will become such in the very early days of the future is the prediction of men in a position to know—the best and most expert mining engineers of Mexico.

LLUVIA DE COBRE HAS HIGH VALUE ORES.

The average of the many assays made on ores taken from all parts of the Lluvia de Cobre property, show an unusually high value.

Some of the most capable and experienced mining engineers in this country and Mexico have examined the Lluvia de Cobre property, and it is the general opinion of all that Lluvia de Cobre ores will run probably higher in value than the ores from many of the world's other greatest copper mines.

Following is a list of some of the world's greatest copper producers and the average value of the ores handled:

Anaconda	2.25
Calumet & Hecla	3.5
Greene Consolidated	7.3
Quincy	1.5
Rio Tinto	2.19
United Verde	7.
Osceola	1.
Parrot	3.

When it is remembered that all these properties are valued at millions of dollars and have paid dividends of many millions more, and that the average valuation of the ores produced by these eight big properties is less than 3.5 per cent., it will readily be seen what a valuable property we have in the Lluvia de Cobre, with the possibility of opening up an enormous body of ore averaging probably double this amount.

A BIG NEW SMELTER CLOSE AT HAND.

Colonel Greene is now building a large custom smelter at Guaymas on the coast of the Gulf of California. This will be one of the largest and most modern smelters in the State of Sonora, and as it is directly south of our property and at the terminus of the Sonora Railway, it will give us excellent smelting facilities until such time as we have our own smelter in operation.

MINING ACTIVITY IN MEXICO.

MEXICO—The Republic of Mexico has made relatively greater strides in copper production during the past five years than any other country in the world. Not only has there been a most remarkable relative gain, but the actual gain in output puts Mexico an exceedingly close second to the United States in point of increase. That Mexico will soon lead Spain, and rank second only to the United States, seems assured. The Boleo has long been an important mine, but the copper production of all other Mexican mines was but 1,300 tons so recently as 1895. Since that time the Greene, Inguarran, Dandela, Mocteruma and other great properties have been developed. Those interested in copper will do well to keep an eye on Mexico for the next two years.

Mexico has upwards of 300 smelters of all sorts, mostly very crude, but with a few of the most modern type and of immense size, notable among the latter being the fine plants of the American Smelting and Refining Co. at Aguascalientes, Monterey and San Luis Potosi. There are also fine reduction plants of the Boleo, Green Consolidated, Descubridora and other copper mines of the country.

WATER AND FUEL.

In the development of the Greene property one of the most serious problems that presented itself was the water supply.

No such difficulties are encountered at the Lluvia de Cobre. The property is located in a draw, and water can be secured in sufficient quantities to supply all possible needs at any time in the future.

Fuel timber grows in abundance in the immediate neighborhood and can be cut and prepared for use at a very small cost.

Expert Testimony as to the Lluvia de Cobre Mine

FROM A PROMINENT MINING ENGINEER.

"I have visited the Lluvia de Cobre property various times. My opinion has always been that it was valuable mineral ground. Subsequent development work has proven this opinion to be correct."

H. H. LIGHT, E. M.,
Hermosillo, Mex.

FROM THE MANAGER OF WELLS-FARGO EXPRESS CO. FOR THE STATE OF SONORA.

"I have been to the Lluvia de Cobre properties and can say that in my opinion they have a fine future, with very little development work. I have talked the matter over with expert mining men and find that my opinion is well based and would not be surprised to see this property rise to be among the biggest in the state."

L. P. GAXIOLA,
Hermosillo, Mex.

FROM THE HERMOSILLO MANAGER OF THE LLUVIA DE COBRE MINE.

"I had one of the most beautiful homes in this city, and exchanged it for a block of Lluvia de Cobre stock before there was any amount of work done, and can now get my home back in exchange for ONE-FIFTH of the same stock that I received for the property, so you see that our people here think well of the Lluvia's future."

W. T. LAKE.

The Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. is really a close corporation, the controlling interest being held by well known Kansas City business men. As to the business standing and integrity of the Officers and Directors of this Company we refer by special permission to The Fidelity Trust Company or The Union Avenue Bank of Commerce, both of Kansas City, Mo.

LLUVIA DE COBRE Stock now 35 Cents a Share - - Par Value $1.00

The original incorporators of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Company have already expended thousands of dollars of their own money in the purchase and development of the property to its present stage.

These developments prove that the Lluvia de Cobre is destined to become one of the world's leading copper producers, and that it justifies much more extensive and more rapid development than it is now receiving. We want money in order that we may greatly increase the working force, purchase more machinery and equipment of all kinds. We want to rush the work of sinking the Josephine shaft (which at this time has reached a depth of 350 feet) just as rapidly as possible. We want to thoroughly open up this big property and then install mills, smelters, additional work houses, store houses—everything necessary to make this the really big mine that it can surely be made with the necessary capital behind it.

Only 400,000 shares are to be sold for this purpose, as this will secure sufficient money to meet all requirements. 180,000 shares of this stock will be sold at 35 cents per share. It is no reflection upon the value of this great property to admit that we must seek outside financial assistance. The great Greene Consolidated would not be the immense property it is today had it not been for the aid of the investing public. The Calumet and Hecla, Anaconda, Boston and Montana—these and all other big mining properties owe their present greatness to the co-operation and assistance of the "outside investor."

COPPER IS THE WORLD'S GREATEST FORTUNE MAKER.

Every argument that could be desired points to copper as the king of all mining investments.

Electricity, the one great factor in the modernization of the world, is believed to be only in its infancy—and even now the world's supply of copper is not sufficient to supply the demand for this one industry alone.

"Never in memory has copper mining been as profitable as it is today. Not only has the increasing consumption and high market prices initiated prosperity, but the improvements in mining methods have made it possible to handle all grades of ore economically."—The Mining World, March 31, 1906.

"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world today."—Thomas W. Lawson.

"Lawson, we have verified your conclusions as to the value of copper stocks as an investment."—H. H. Rogers.

No investment is so safe, so permanent, so profitable, so sure and sain, as copper!

My Personal Guarantee to Investors

I have told you just what must necessarily be done before this property can be made the big producer that I feel it is destined to become.

I have told you that this Company needs more money to obtain these results and why you are given the opportunity to assist in furnishing it.

I believe this proposition offers far greater returns per dollar invested than any other investment proposition on the market.

So confident am I of the future of this great property that I have this proposition to make to you:

Subscribe at once for as much of this stock as you feel that you can carry. Investigate the mine and the men behind it in any and every way you please for thirty days. If you are not entirely satisfied with your investment at the end of that time, you have but to write me to that effect and I will return every cent of your money.

I want you to feel that you positively cannot go wrong by making an investment in Lluvia de Cobre stock. I want you to decide the question of making this investment, and I want you to give me your order at the earliest possible moment.

Weigh this proposition in the balance—let the facts in the case, as they impress you, decide its true worth. I leave it to your good judgment as to whether you shall be one of the chosen few who shall make of the Lluvia de Cobre another Greene Consolidated.

Officers and Directors

The success of any mining company depends first, of course, upon the property itself, but next, and of almost equal importance, is the personnel of the men back of the whole proposition.

We publish herewith a complete list of the officers and directors of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. We do not believe a more trustworthy or more efficient organization was ever effected. Each and every man has made a pronounced and unusual success in some one particular line of business endeavor and is exceptionally well suited to the duties required by his connection with this company.

Investigate this proposition and the men behind it in any and every way you please—and let the verdict of those who know assist you in deciding whether or not these gentlemen are worthy of your trust and confidence.

PROPERTY AND LOCATION

The property consists of forty acres being the south-west quarter of the north half of lot 6 in concession 1 Township of Bucke. The property of this Company lies about three-quarters of a mile north-west from the celebrated Trethewey mine and is identically of the same formation. Vein matter was found in this property right from the surface and subsequent prospecting has revealed several well defined veins. On the main vein several nuggets of native silver were found. A shaft had been sunk to a depth of fourteen feet, when the property was taken over by this Company.

WORK ON THE PROPERTY

At present a camp is being built and active development work is being proceeded with. One half of the Company's property is still unprospected.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Of all Cobalt Mining Companies none can show a sounder business basis than this. The organizers had such confidence in the property that they have taken their entire interest in stock and have pooled same for six months, evidencing the fact of their absolute confidence in the value of the Company's property at the par value of $1.00 per share. ONLY 250000 shares are being issued at the present time for active development work. It is confidently expected that this will be sufficient to make this property a shipper, and if so the public can at a glance see what the values of these shares will be, having regard to the fact that only 75,000 shares of the Company will have been issued. The stock is not being offered outside of Ottawa as the Directors feel confident this small amount will be oversubscribed here. Address

HOW TO KEEP YOUNG.

Be Hopeful, Avoid Worry and See the Amusing Side of Life.

Women more than men are possessed with a dread of growing old, not realising that maturity has its charms and compensations. We wish young people oftener had it impressed upon them that they may provide for a happy old age by laying up a reserve of sound health and a store of happy memories as well as by cultivating tastes and resources which will outlast youth. As for those who are already approaching middle age, there is no surer way to grow old prematurely than to dread the future. It is essential, if we wish to keep young, to cultivate that hopeful habit of mind so characteristic of youth—the hope which makes one able to say with Browning, "The best is yet to come," and with Lucy Larcum, "Every year life is larger and deeper and more beautiful in its possibilities." Allied with this attitude of expectancy must be the ability to see the amusing side of life. Worry and vexation over what would better be laughed at result in disfiguring wrinkles. Above all, if the years bring us, as they should, a better understanding of ourselves, a broadening of active human sympathies, a firmer faith in Providence, we shall find life abundantly worth the living, no matter what may be the number of our birthdays.

The Heart of a Child.

That which disparages us and quickens revolt is no less a factor in a child's emotional life. But there is this difference—we have the better opportunity to defend ourselves and to obtain reparation. So there is a certain pathetic pleasure in standing with humanity where its joys, its longings, its embarrassments and its disappointments are simplest and newest, and, perforce, where impotency is absolute. Give me this most uncommercial, this divinest of enterprises for my own! Give me a child to be at home with, to be in absolute confidence with! If I cannot refashion my warped, wrinkled and discolored old soul into the unbiased graces and the ethereal purity of the spirit of the child, let me now and again open that little door and shut myself in that little heart, just for the sheer delight of it.—Patterson Du Bois in Success Magazine.

Bad For Tall Hats.

New Year's eve, which is sacred to St. Sylvester, is celebrated in Berlin by the blowing of tin horns, the ringing of bells and all other devices for making a noise. The only horse play indulged in is at the expense of the wearer of the silk tile. Any one on the street is privileged to bring his cane down on the crown of the offending headgear as hard and as often as he can. When the man with the dilapidated hat complains to the police the only consolation he gets is, "It serves you right for wearing it on Sylvester night."

Low Down.

"You are anæmic," says the physician after thumping and prodding. "You should practice deep breathing."

"Deep breathing!" retorts the patient. "Why, doctor, that is just what I do all the time. I work in a subway cellar sixty feet below the street level."—Judge.

Insincerity.

Be honest with yourself, whatever the temptations. Say nothing to others that you do not think and play no tricks with your own mind. Of all the evil spirits abroad at this hour of the world insincerity is the most dangerous.—J. A. Froude.

One Kind of Teaching.

"Pop!"

"Yes, my son."

"What kind of wood do they use most in tanning?"

"Well, when I went to school, my boy, they used birch."

Do not borrow trouble. The interest is too high.—Dallas News.

Making It Plain.

In the lower Amazon country the temperature ranges about 87 degrees in the shade all the year round, says the author of "Ten Thousand Miles In a Yacht." At Manaos, 1,000 miles up the river, the temperature is six or eight degrees higher. Thermometers are little used in that country and little understood. So when a yachtsman returned down river and was asked by an official at Para, "How is the temperature at Manaos?" his reply, "Eight degrees hotter than here," elicited a stare of noncomprehension.

"At Manaos," said the yachtsman in explanation, "I used to wilt six collars a day; here in Para I only need three a day."

This was perfectly clear to the Brazilian, whose face lighted with understanding.

THE FUNNY FROG.

How Would You Like to Be in His Bed All Winter Long?

Among the many creatures that sleep in the winter are the frogs, with their very long hindlegs, short forelegs and with big black eyes on each side of their very big mouths.

When the cold days come and the water begins to freeze in the pond the frogs know that it is time to go to bed for the winter. Down they go and their families with them to the bottom. Then they begin to dig with their long hind feet into the soft mud. They work themselves down into their beds backward until at last they are covered under the mud, all except the tips of their noses.

There they go to sleep. After awhile they have an ice spread over them, and they can sleep safely all winter. They do not get hungry all this time.

When spring comes and the sun grows bright and warm and Jack Frost carries away their covering, old father frog begins to push his nose up out of the mud until his ears are uncovered. Then he nudges mother frog. "Wake up!" he says. "Don't you hear everybody busy up there?" And, oh, how sleepy she is, poor thing! But he had tried the water and found it warm, and they must not rest any longer.

Conundrums.

What is it that has neither flesh nor blood, yet has four fingers and a thumb? A glove.

What is it that no one wishes to have and yet when he has it does not wish to lose it? A bald head.

Why is a historical event like a parcel untied and tied again? Because it is recorded.

A Spoiled Story.

Young Tommy was a reckless chap
As ever you did spy.
He crept into the pantry once
And ate a pot of lye—
No, no; I mean a lot of pie!

The pie did not agree with Tom.
So very large a piece.
He felt so ill he hastened off
To find a pot of grease—
Dear me, I mean a grot of peace!

He wept with pain and doubled up
As tight as any clam
"Oh, dear I feel as bad as when
I ate that pot of lamb—
No, no; I mean that lot of jam!"

This story gets so mixed at times
Under my very eyes.
I'll stop. So for what I have said
Seems like a lack of pies—
Dear me, I mean a pack of lies!
—J. D. Benedict in St. Nicholas.

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER,

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

sound of the clocks, like footsteps of a passing caravan, some slow and heavy, some quick, as if impatient to be gone.

"Ye speeding seconds!" said Darrel as he crossed to the bench. "Still thy noisy feet!"

Then he walked up and down, thinking.

The friend of Sidney Trove put on his hat and stood by the door.

"Don't forget," said he; "you have many friends or I should not be able to tell you these things. Keep them to yourself and go to work. Of course you will be able to prove your innocence."

"I thank you with all my heart," said Trove.

"Aye; 'twas friendly," the old man remarked, taking the boy's hand.

"I have to put my trust in Tunk, the poor liar!" said Trove when they were alone.

"No," Darrel answered quickly. "Were ye drowning ye might as well lay hold of a straw. Trust in thy honor; it is enough."

"Let's go and see Polly," said the young man.

"Aye, she o' the sweet heart," said the tinker. "We'll go at once."

They left the shop, and on every street they traveled there were groups of men gossiping. Some nodded, others turned away, as the two passed. Dick Roberts met them at the door of the house where Polly boarded.

"I wish to see Miss Vaughn," said Trove coolly.

"She is ill," said Roberts.

"Could I not see her for a moment?" Trove inquired.

"No."

"Is she very sick?"

"Very."

Darrel came close to Roberts. He looked sternly at the young man.

"Boy," said he, with great dignity, his long forefinger raised, "within a day ye shall be clothed with shame."

"They were strange words," Trove thought, as they walked away in silence, and when they had come to the little shop it was growing dusk.

"What have I done to bring this upon me and my friends?" said Trove, sinking into a chair.

"It is what I have done," said Darrel, "an' now I take the mantle o' thy shame. Rise, boy, an' hold up thy head."

The old man stood erect by the side of the young man.

"See, I am as tall an' broad as thou art."

He went to an old chest and got a cap and drew it down upon his head, pushing his gray hair under it. Then he took from his pocket a red bandanna handkerchief, figured with a cabin, tying it over his face. He turned, looking at Trove through two square holes in the handkerchief.

"Come in"

"Behold the robber!" said he.

"You know who is the robber?" Trove inquired.

Darrel raised the handkerchief and flung it back upon his head.

"'Tis Roderick Darrel," said he, his hand now on the shoulder of the young man.

For a moment both stood looking into each other's eyes.

"What joke is this, my friend?" Trove whispered.

"I speak not lightly, boy. If where ye thought were honor an' good faith there be only guilt an' shame, can ye believe in goodness?"

For his answer there were silence and the ticking of the clocks.

"Surely ye can an' will," said the old man, "for there is the goodness o' thy own heart. Ah, boy, though I have it not, remember that I lived here an' have sought to fill thee with it. This night I go where ye cannot follow."

The tinker turned, halting a pendulum.

Trove groaned as he spoke. "O man, tell me, quickly, what do you mean?"

"That God hath laid his hand upon me," said Darrel sternly. "I cannot see thee suffer, boy, when I am the guilty one. O Redeemer o' the world, haste me, haste me, now to punishment!"

The young man staggered, like one dazed by the shock of a blow, stepped backward and partly fell on a lounge.

"You, you will confess and go to prison!" he whispered.

"Fair soul," said the old man, striking the boy's head, "thing ne'er o' me. Where I go there be flowers—lovely flowers—an' music an' the lards an' prophets. Though I go to punishment, still am I in the Blessed Isles."

"You are doing it to save me," Trove whispered, taking the hand of the old man. "I'll not permit it. I'll go to prison first."

"Am I so great a fool, think ye, as to claim an evil that is not mine? An' would ye keep on me the [illegible] of some one with a [illegible] I warn thee, meddle not [illegible] ness o' me soul. That [illegible] great God an' me."

Darrel stood to [illegible] the red handkerchief covering his head and fallen on his [illegible] He began with a tone of contempt that changed quickly into one of sharp command. There was a little silence, then a quick rap.

"Come in," Darrel shouted as he let the handkerchief fall upon his face again.

"He's [illegible]" said Trove [illegible]

"I [illegible] boy, he [illegible] [illegible]

"Yes," the clock answered, with [illegible] looking from hand to handkerchief, then, turning to the lawyer, he added, "This is the man."

"Now," Darrel continued, rolling up his sleeve, "I'll show where thy bullet struck me in the left arm. See; there it seared the flesh!"

They saw a scar, quite an inch long, passing from hand to elbow.

"Are you ready to say that you are guilty of this crime?" the attorney asked.

"I am guilty and ready for punishment," Darrel answered. "Now, arrest the boy."

"Tomorrow," said the attorney. "That is for the court to do."

Darrel went to Trove, who now sat weeping, his face upon his hands.

"Oh, the great rivers of tears!" said Darrel, touching the boy's head. "Beyond it are the green shores of happiness, an' I have crossed, an' soon shalt thou. Stop, boy; it all becomes thee. There is a dear, dear child whose heart is breaking. Go an' comfort her."

Trove sat as if he had not heard. The tinker went to his table and hurriedly wrote a line, folding and directing it.

"Quickly, boy, an' tell her an' then take this to Riley Brooke for me."

The young man struggled a moment for self mastery, rose, with a sigh and a stern look, and put on his hat.

"It is a [illegible] he said, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] which Polly [illegible]

"Is she better?" Trove asked.

"Yes, but has asked me to say that she does not wish to see you."

Bribing Georgie

By JOHN J. O'CONNOR

Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Sutcliffe

"I think I had better take you to the train," said Ethel coldly. "I do not care to advertise to the whole family the fact that my affections were bestowed upon a man so utterly unworthy of them."

"You will have to announce the breaking of the engagement some time," suggested Castron, "but I guess it's better this way. We'll talk it over on the way into town. You have not given me a chance to defend myself yet. It will be all right when I get a chance to talk to you quietly."

Ethel smiled. That was precisely what she wished to avoid. She would take the dog cart and have the little groom go along. Castron noticed the smile and guessed her thoughts. When the cart was brought around the back seat was unoccupied.

"I'LL MAKE IT FIVE," HE OFFERED.

"James said he had to send the boy to town," was the explanation. "He will be waiting for you at the station."

Ethel frowned and turned and walked to where her small brother was trying to coax the goldfish from the fountain basin with a bent pin and a bit of bread. He looked up guiltily at her approach, but was visibly relieved when he saw who it was.

"Don't you want to ride into town with Mr. Castron and me?" she said.

"Nope," he said decidedly.

"I'll give you that air gun if you will," she bribed.

"It costs $2," he warned.

"I know," she agreed. "Harry, or Mr. Castron will miss his train."

Georgie raced across the lawn and climbed into the back seat. "I'm going, too," he announced gleefully. Frank Castron said something beneath the cover of his mustache and scowled as he helped Ethel into her seat on the box.

It was apparent that Ethel was determined not to afford him any opportunity for a tete-a-tete. He thought that he had frustrated her design when he had bribed the head coachman to send the tiger to town, but he had not counted on Georgie. He settled himself in his seat, and Ethel took up the lines.

They covered the first half mile in silence. Then he broke the quiet. "I want to tell you," he began, "that that locket was"—

"Georgie will hear," she whispered. "Please spare me the annoyance of having the wretched story spread all over the house."

"But if only you would listen for a moment," he pleaded. "Let Georgie drop off and walk back. He won't mind."

"I do," she said severely. "Do not make me think any worse of you than I do already."

"But it is all such a miserable mistake," he pleaded, "and you have not given me a chance for a single word since it happened."

For answer Ethel turned to speak to the boy, and Castron gritted his teeth. Just five minutes and the whole miserable mistake would be explained. If he could not get this chance, there was no hope. She would return his letters unread, just as she had sent back the note he had written last night. A bit of paper blowing across the road frightened the horses and demanded her attention. Castron leaned over the back of the seat.

"I'll give you a dollar to fall off and go back to the house," he offered.

"Sis is going to give me two," he explained.

"I'll make it five," he offered.

Georgie was resolute. "I made a bargain," he declared. "Twouldn't be fair."

Castron faced the front again. Everything seemed to be against him.

"I congratulate you upon your forethought in bribing Georgie," he said bitterly. "You seem determined to allow me no opportunity to explain."

"There is no possible explanation," she said decidedly. "The least you can do is to keep silent for the few minutes longer that you are to be burdened with my company."

"Very well," he said shortly. "If you are determined, I suppose there is no use in trying to prove you wrong."

She averted her head, and as they bowled along through the leafy avenue Castron, all unconscious of the tumult in her mind, wherein pride and affection waged war, sat in silent anger reviewing the events of the past twenty-four hours.

At Christmas Edith had given him a locket inclosing her picture. Yesterday she had opened the case and had found therein another picture and a lock of hair that in no way suggested her own chestnut curls.

Before he could explain she had run into the house, and no amount of entreaty could induce her to listen to his explanation.

For two miles no one spoke. Georgie wriggled uneasily on the back seat from time to time, while the horse's hoofs beating on the smooth road seemed to Castron to count the lost seconds.

At last, in desperation, he felt in his pocket. There was a bill he had slipped into his change pocket to avoid the trouble of taking out his pocketbook in the station. Gently he withdrew the bill and for an instant held it behind his back; then, certain that Georgie had seen it, he released his hold and let it flutter to the road.

Quickly the boy slipped off the tailboard and scrambled in the dust. Castron turned to Ethel.

"We are almost in town," he said. "I insist upon being given the right to explain."

"Hush!" she warned. "Georgie will hear."

"Not unless he has exceptional ears," he smiled. "Georgie is about half a mile back."

Ethel half turned in her seat to convince herself, then turned to him again.

"I suppose you bought him off," she said scornfully. "You told me you were aware of his price. I suppose I shall have to listen since I cannot drive and stop up my ears too."

"I'll drive," he volunteered, "if you want to stop up your ears."

"What is it you wish to say?" she demanded, ignoring his generous offer.

"Just this," he said eagerly. "That is not my locket at all."

"As though I did not recognise it!" she scoffed.

"It fooled me," he argued. "You see, I haven't looked inside since I've been up here because I've had the original of the picture to look at. I never noticed that I picked up Frank Compton's locket by mistake. You were so proud of the uniqueness of the locket that I hated to tell you that my roommate had one just like it. From the similarity of the engraving I fancy it came from the same store.

"When I picked up the chain I got Frank's and never found it out until you opened it. That girl in this locket is Frank's fiancee."

For a moment the horses trotted along in silence broken only by their hoof beats; then she turned to him with moist eyes.

"What can you think of me?" she cried penitently.

"That you are the dearest little woman in the world," he said promptly. Her hand stole into his.

"I'll never be so foolish again," she said. "I'm so glad you persisted, dear."

"Me, too," he agreed.

A couple of days later Castron was smiling over a scrawly letter that had just come. It read:

Dear Fred—Here's your $5. It ain't fair to take it, because I didn't drop off that wagon because of the five, but because I want you to be my brother-in-law some day. I heard what she said. I guess she wanted me to, too, because she gave me the gun and cried over me. It's funny to have a girl cry over you. Did you ever have one cry over you? Come up soon. Yer brother-in-law to be, GEORGIE.

Castron smiled reminiscently, recalling the last ride to town.

Weighed Upon His Father.

When Mr. Finnerty returned after a day's outing with Michael, the only son, his face was long and doleful and quickly drew inquiries from the mother.

"I misthrust Micky is not long for this world," said Mr. Finnerty, with a deep sigh. "I misthrust there's a spell over him already, and he'll not be long wid us."

"Arrah, what are you talkin' about?" demanded his wife as she removed some light brown sticky decorations from the countenance of the sleepy Michael. "He's one o' the long, thin kind, but he's got his good health and a fine pair o' loongs in him."

Mr. Finnerty shook his head with stubborn conviction.

"You can say what plases you," he remarked sepulchrally, "but I've got this to tell you, woman: On the platform o' the station there was a large, big scales, an' I stepped on, holdin' Micky by the hand. They tipped an' balanced at wan hundred siventy-two pounds. Thin I lifted Micky up an' hild him in the air—all free of the platform, mind ye—and, woman, thim scales niver dthropped a pound. There was only a bit of a trimble. I'd hardly the atringth in me legs to walk home."

—At the Sunday afternoon children's service in All Saints' church next Sunday, Mr. J. H. Burnham will give an address, the subject of which will be, "The Story of a Child's Life."

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary:—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the prices of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 1-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 200,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), the Company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold; the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so (in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid may into 10 fully paid $100 Share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions ($20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100 Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions. Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors (the first one of the Company being present): The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs. J. A. Banfield, F. B. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the first call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building will provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In consequence of the great inquiry at the Company's Offices for Prospectus and Forms of Application for Shares, the Company begs to notify that Prospectus and Application Forms can be obtained upon Request at any branch of "THE TRADERS' BANK OF CANADA" throughout the Dominion. Also requests for same by letter or postcard will be at once despatched to applicants from the Company's Offices in Winnipeg.

TOO EAGER TO HELP

Funny Incident at a Church Service in Peterborough.

There is such a thing as being too eager to help. A Peterborough lady had a rather embarrassing experience in a church recently. She accidentally let her handkerchief fall. By repeatedly stooping to reach it furtively she attracted the attention of the gentleman in the pew behind, who thought she was about to faint. With the best of motives, therefore, he took her gently under the arms and raised her up, greatly to her surprise. As she tried to release herself another gentleman went to her assistance and before the lady knew what was the matter they were moving her out into the aisle, and, indeed, carried her into the vestibule before she could recover sufficiently from her astonishment to find words for protest.

To Fight Consumption.

London, Dec. 22.—At a meeting of the Dublin Corporation it was resolved to levy a penny in the pound rate towards the establishment of a sanitarium for consumptives of Dublin city and county. In the course of the discussion it was stated that the death rate from consumption in Dublin, Ireland, was abnormally high, and on the increase.

King's Daughter Relieving Want.

The King's Daughters of the city are doing a noble work as usual, this Christmas. Some forty local families have already cause to thank this most commendable association for relieving want and assuring a well fed Christmas this year alone.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above Symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, acute dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

The Chairman then asked the Secretary to read the REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

The Directors beg leave to submit to the Shareholders the Thirty-second Annual Report, showing the result of the Bank's business for the year ended 30th November, 1906, together with the Balance Sheet at that date.

To which has been Added. Premiums on new stock issued		500,000.00
Making the present balance		3,000,000.00

In addition to the branches which your Directors contemplated opening as indicated in the last Annual Report, offices of the Bank have been established during the year at Beachburg, Haileybury, Perth and Westcombe, in the Province of Ontario, and a sub-office to the Fort Coulonge Branch at Campbell's Bay, Quebec. Arrangements are nearly completed for the opening of offices at Tisdale, in the northern part of Saskatchewan, and on the corner of Fourth Avenue and Bank Street, in the City of Ottawa.

The extension of the Main Office on Wellington Street, Ottawa, has been completed during the year, and it was also found necessary to enlarge the premises at Renfrew.

Buildings owned by the Bank are in the course of erection for the occupation of the Branches at Prince Albert, Kemptville, Tisdale, and at the corner of Bank and Gloucester Streets, Ottawa.

Your Directors recommend that in future the dividends paid by the Bank shall be distributed quarterly, and that the interest due to depositors having interest bearing accounts, be credited four times a year.

The fractional and other unallotted shares arising out of the last issue of new Capital have been sold at a satisfactory price, tenders having been called for by public notice. The amount received therefrom, over $240 per share, is included in the profits of the year.

The usual careful inspections of the Head Office and Branches have been made during the year, and the Directors bear willing testimony to the faithful manner in which the officers of the Bank have performed the duties assigned to them.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE HAY, President.

THE PRESIDENT.

The President, Mr. George Hay, then said:

At our last Annual Meeting we ventured to look forward to another year of successful business.

In the name of the Board of Directors I now beg leave to present this Thirty-second Annual Report of The Bank of Ottawa, confident that a brief glance at the salient points in the General Statement, which will be fully treated by Mr. Burn, the General Manager, will be found sufficient to assure every Stockholder that we are now called upon to rejoice together because our expectations of a good year's business have not been disappointed, but rather substantially exceeded.

In evidence of this, I refer only to the increase of Deposits of... ...$8,325,132.1
Increase in Current Loans of..... .... 2,149,457.8
Addition to Profit and Loss Account of..... .... 93,491.9

All these show that we have shared in the expansion experienced by the other Banks in Canada whose annual meetings have recently been held and reported in the public press.

The financial world during the past year has not been devoid of its fluctuations and uneasiness, as is shown by the high rates of money prevailing both on this continent and in Europe and it has been deemed wise to maintain a strong position in Cash and others. Assets of an easily realizable nature. We are more desirous to maintain this position than to make exceptional returns of a high rate in dividend earnings.

Our Canadian system of banking has been regarded as well adapted to the conditions of business throughout the various widespread parts of the Dominion. A strain was recently applied to it, which demonstrated its eminent suitability to avert dire consequences to the business interests of the country. By the prompt combined action of the confraternity of Bankers, a dangerous spark which threatened a serious flame was speedily extinguished, and the wheels of commerce were permitted to revolve with unchecked celerity and smoothness. This incident has evidently originated some suggestions which are presented to the public, demanding a better safeguard of the interests of Stockholders by improved method in the performance of the several duties of Bank Directors and Officers.

We should rejoice to learn of any better system than that which has hitherto been followed in this Bank, more especially in the regular inspection of the Head Office, as well as of the Branches thereof.

On all hands general Commerce and Industry have been blessed with phenomenal returns. Let us hope that transportation facilities may keep pace with the requirements of expansive production. In this connection we would rejoice to anticipate the powerful throb of an increased commercial life by the construction of the Georgian Bay canal recently promised to be begun in the near future.

We are glad to notice the great increase in dairy products exported. They are reported to have during the year reached the respectable amount of thirty-three millions of dollars ($33,000,000). We regard this as a very gratifying sign that our owners and tillers of the soil are "coming to their own." A system which enriches not only the farmer, but improves the native fertility of the farm, is one which cannot be regarded with too much interest. A yet more careful attention to the processes of manufacture of both cheese and butter would enhance the value of this factor in our prosperity as a people. Nothing short of a successful securing of the London market in competition with Northern Europe should satisfy the aim of our Canadian Dairymen.

Our important local industry, the lumber trade, has been prosecuted with success. While the cost of production has been materially increased, the prices realized and prospective are believed to be satisfactory.

GENERAL MANAGER.

The General Manager said:

The profits for the year show an increase over those of the preceding period of 1905, of $[illegible], but it must be borne in mind that this is only about proportionate to the average increase in capital, the issue of $500,000 at a premium of 100 per cent. having been made during the past year; the percentage of earnings on the average capital is, therefore, slightly over 14.40 per cent. or about the same as last year.

That the country continues to grow in material prosperity is abundantly manifested by the fact that our circulation is $502,121 greater than it was year ago and that the deposits in the bank bearing interest, have increased by $4,265,447 and those not bearing interest by $959,975. Following the increase in deposits and in loans the necessary reservations for interest, exchange and unearned interest on current loans are increased correspondingly, the first by $27,822 and the latter by $8,490.

The chairman has referred to the fact that we have considered it wise to maintain a strong position in what are familiarly known as "loose or quick assets." An examination of the assets, as shown in the balance sheet, gives the cash and balances due from other banks as $1,637,095 greater than a year ago. The bonds owned by the bank of various kinds amount to $706,318 more, while the call and short loans on stocks and bonds are $3,262,696 higher, or a total aggregate increase of $1,956,440, our total holdings of these Assets being 16 per cent. of our public liabilities.

The Commercial Loans are greater by $2,149,137 and the over due debts by $64,853.77

The increase in the Bank Premises Account has been caused, as is indicated in the formal report, by the acquiring of additional properties, where, in the opinion of the Board, it has been thought desirable that the Bank should own its own buildings. The Bank owns its premises at fourteen points, including the offices in Winnipeg, Montreal and Ottawa.

There are now five hundred and twenty Shareholders in the Bank.

The branches opened during the past year have been established in most cases, for the purpose of conserving business already held by the Bank and [illegible] In the case of the new report, I desire to say that the competition between Banks is, if anything, keener than ever. New Banks have been organized from time to time and are seeking to establish themselves in the country, some of them in what we are disposed to claim as our particular territory. We endeavor to meet this competition as far as possible where it is likely to interfere with business already held by us, and where there is a likelihood of a business paying by the opening of small offices; at the same time, we decline to be drawn into a competition for business which appears to be unsound in its basis and must, in the long run, prove injurious.

The paragraph in the report recommending the payment of quarterly dividends is one which we presume will commend itself to the Shareholders.

With reference to the paragraph which appears yearly in the report, as to the inspections, I desire merely to add (and I think the Directors will bear me out in this assertion) that the Head Office has always been inspected, as well as the Branches, and that the system of joint responsibility, which has prevailed in this Bank at all times, is such that it would be impossible for any officer of the Bank to draw a material sum of money anywhere without a voucher in the shape of a draft, or letter of credit, signed by two properly authorized members of the staff.

I have from time to time in past years made a brief reference to the general business of the country, but this matter has been dealt with so ably of late by others, that I will content myself by again calling attention to the extraordinary increase in deposits. In 1886 the total deposits in all the chartered Banks amounted to $104,770,000. Ten years later or in 1896, the amount had grown to $196,000,000. In 1901 they were $287,000,000 and on the 31st of December last year they were $550,000,000. According to the last statement, the deposits were $627,000,000 or an increase since the 31st of December last of $71,000,000.

For how long this progress will continue, it is very hard to say. It is for us to be watchful and prepared for whatever reverses may come, and this is our continual aim. The President then asked for comments or enquiries from the Shareholders. Mr. Steckel asked the price obtained for the unallotted Bank Shares, and the General Manager informed him it was a fraction over 238.

REPORT ADOPTED.

It was then moved by the President, seconded by Mr. Denis Murphy, "That the report of the Directors and statement now read be adopted and printed for the information of the Shareholders." Carried.

Moved by Mr. G. S. May, seconded by Mr. Newell Bate, "That the thanks of the Shareholders are due, and are hereby tendered, to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their careful attention to the interests of the Bank during the year."

Mr. Denis Murphy said in responding for the Directors:

I have to thank you for the vote of confidence and thanks which you have passed to the Directors. I am only sorry that our worthy Vice-President is absent today. He would probably address the meeting much better than I can. However, all I can say is that to be a Director of the Bank of Ottawa is a very pleasant duty. We do the best we can in the interests of the Bank, and I think the result as shown in the statement before you speaks for itself, without my adding anything to it. As well as our Directors, who really are a splendid body of men to deal with, we have our General Manager and Assistant General Manager, with the staff, and I think they are not second to any Bank in the Dominion. I have had the pleasure of visiting all the different branches at various times and consider that we have a splendid staff, which fact with the business ability and experience of the Directors has enabled the Bank to place before you the statement read by the General Manager. Although times are good generally, I think we show about as good a statement as probably any Bank in the country. I again thank you for the resolution.

The Chairman said: I also heartily thank you for this resolution. It is encouraging to the Officials and Directors to see that the shareholders take sufficient interest to come to the meetings. The Directors would be glad even to have them come for the purpose of criticism.

Moved by Mr. J. W. Woods, seconded by Mr. J. M. Courtney, C.M.G., "That the thanks of the Shareholders be tendered to the General Manager and other Officers of the Bank for the efficient manner in which they have performed their respective duties."—Carried.

Mr. Woods, in moving the resolution said: "I do not think it is necessary to add anything. It is my first meeting, but I feel satisfied that the career of prosperity which has characterized the Bank in the past will continue."

Mr. J. M. Courtney, C.M.G., said: Like Mr. Woods, this is my first appearance at a Shareholders' meeting. I came to listen, but I have great pleasure in seconding this particular motion. Not only is Mr. Burn a highly efficient General Manager of this individual Bank, but he bears an active part in Banking matters of public interest. As chief permanent officer of the Finance Department, I have continually been in communication with him in matters relating to the administration of Banks, and have always found his advice of the first-rate assistance. I am very glad to have had this opportunity of testifying to Mr. Burn's good management of this Bank and of his usefulness as a good citizen.

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS.

Moved by Mr. D. T. Mason, seconded by Mr. W. D. Morris: "That a ballot-box be now opened and remain open until five o'clock for the election of nine directors for the ensuing year, and that Messrs. J. D. Fraser and C. E. Russell be appointed scrutineers, the poll to be closed whenever five minutes shall have elapsed without a vote being tendered."

While the election of Directors was being proceeded with the President gave some information as to the details of the work of inspection.

The scrutineers presented the following report:

Ottawa, December 12, 1906.

To George Burn, General Manager:

COUNT ALEXIS IGNATIEFF PIERCED BY SIX BULLETS

Member of Council of Empire Shot and Killed While Dining in Nobles' Assembly Hall at Tver---Assassin Tries Suicide

Tver, Russia, December 22.—Count Alexis Ignatieff, a member of the council of the empire and ex-governor-general of Kiev, Volthynia and Podolia, was shot and killed by an unknown man here today in the refreshment room of the hall occupied by the nobles' assembly.

The assassin fired six bullets from a revolver into his victim's body and then tried to commit suicide, but was seized before he could do so and is now in the custody of the police.

It was erroneously announced in a Kiev despatch, May 8, that Count Alexis Ignatieff had been assassinated there.

General Count Alexis Pavulioh Ignatieff was born in 1842, and entered a regiment of the hussars of the guard. In 1861 he was appointed commander of Chevalier Guards, and in 1861 he became chief of the staff of the guards corps. In 1885 he became governor-general of Irkutsk, and in 1889 became governor-general of Kiev, which position he held until 1897.

As a result of the disorders following "Red Sunday," January 22, 1905, Ignatieff was sent by the emperor to investigate the situation in Southern Russia, and his report on the immediate necessity for granting reforms was one of the chief reasons which induced the emperor to proclaim the first Russian Parliament.

During the debates preceding the adoption of the parliamentary law of August 6, 1905, Ignatieff advocated the granting of great power to parliament, but it appears that the success of the repressive measure following the Moscow revolt changed his opinion, for he became the active coadjutor of General Trepoff in supporting the repressive policy of Minister of the Interior Durnovo and in the intrigue which resulted in the downfall of Count Witte.

REVOLUTIONISTS SHOOT POLICE.

Kostruma, Russia, December 22.—While a squad of police, headed by Police Captain Preobralansky, were entering last night a lodging house suspected of harboring revolutionists, several men opened fire with revolvers on the police, killing the captain and mortally wounding a policeman. The revolutionists escaped.

Stands by Merry Del Val Although France Hates Him

Rome December 22.—It having been currently reported that all attempts to reach an understanding with France will be useless if Papal Secretary of State Merry Del Val remains in office, it was semi-officially stated today the Pope has determined to retain him, and thus keep his word given to Merry Del Val when he conferred the red hat upon him. On that occasion the pontiff remarked:

It is pleasant to think that you will be of powerful assistance to us so long as your life lasts."

On the other hand, the enemies of the papal secretary of state assert that France looks upon him as being prejudiced and compromised, and that as it is impossible to change the Pope, there must be a change in the papal secretary of state, such as occurred under Popes Pius VI. and Pius VII., when the secretaries of state were often removed, until Cardinal Consalvi was made papal secretary, and in 1801 concluded the concordat with Napoleon I. The names of Cardinals Vincenzo Vannutelli, Agliardi, Satolli, and Ferretta are mentioned as candidates for the office.

May Revolutionize U. S. Postal Service

It is Proposed to Give Post Office into Hands of Private Company.

Washington, December 21.—It is strongly intimated that an offer will be made by an association composed of men with unlimited capital, to take over from the government the entire postoffice department and run it as a private institution subject of course to government supervision the same as the express and railroad companies are now operated.

The proposition will be such that the government will either have to accept it or stop talking about increased rates of postage.

The association will offer to do the postal business of the United States for one-half what it costs the government and give bond for the faithful performance of the contract.

When the proposition is submitted some startling facts and figures will come to light and it will be shown how the railroads are receiving double what they should on the mail-carrying contracts.

How thousands of employes are carried on the rolls of the postal service because of political influence and not for merit or capability.

Whether or not the offer is considered by congress it is a bold move on the part of the association, who have sent their representatives to Washington to make good.

Indirectly this offer of taking over the postoffice department is rather a hard knock at government ownership.

The Moroccan Situation

Tangier, December 21.—The troops sent from Fez, under the command of the war minister, Sidi Mohammed Gabbassen, are preparing to camp on the heights around this city. Emissaries have been despatched to Selnat, where Raisuli, the bandit chief, has concentrated his forces.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Corpses Turn to Stone Statues

Bodies Remarkably Petrified Disinterred From QuakerCity Cemetery.

Philadelphia, December 22.—A remarkable instance of petrification of corpses came to light when two bodies looking as though they had been chiseled from marble, were exhumed in the Oddfellows' cemetery, Twenty-third and Diamond streets. Peculiar properties in the earth, it is said, caused the petrification.

The bodies were those of a brother and a niece of Mrs. Harry Moffett, wife of Detective Moffett of the Camden police force. Mrs. Moffett was planning for the removal of the bodies to a different cemetery.

After the graves had been opened the caskets could not be lifted out, so heavy were the bodies. It required the efforts of eight strong men before the caskets could finally be extricated. To ascertain what caused the great weight the caskets were opened and the remarkable petrification was discovered. Later the bodies were interred in another burial ground.

AMERICAN EARL SPURNS TITLE

Former Chicagoan Refuses to Quit Land of Adoption for England.

Los Angeles, December 24.—R. R. Carew, heir to an earldom in England, refers to be an American citizen and a Los Angeles realty dealer and spurns a title which is his for the asking.

Carew was a resident of Chicago when the Spanish-American war broke out and enlisted in the First Regiment of that city. At the charge of San Juan Hill he was wounded. He was slow to recover in Chicago and so came West.

Mr. and Mrs. Carew are making preparations for a trip to England. Mr. Carew recently learned of the death of his father and his two older brothers, and is going back to visit his sister. He says nothing could induce him to remain or set up any claim to his father's earldom. He would say nothing of his family connections. He admitted the general truth of the story told by his friends.

When he was a mere lad his father, to give him training in business, sent him to Wales to manage some property there. The son intrusted an agent to attend to his affairs while he was absent on one occasion. The agent signed his employer's name to fraudulent papers, securing a sum of money and leaving the country. Out of this grew a family estrangement of thirty-two years' duration.

The new earl once was a Michigan state senator. He married an American girl.

Was Greatest Poultry Market Ever Known

Saturday was the busiest day this city has ever seen since the Hon. Peter Robinson brought out several hundred English immigrants to populate this district.

All the space on the market along Charlotte and Water streets was taken up, while inside the hall the place was congested. Poultry was the principal commodity, and it was offered in plentious quantities. The tables were heaped with turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens, and there seemed enough of them to provide Christmas dinners for several years to come. There was plenty on hand to meet all demands, but the holders asked good prices and got them in many cases. Turkeys sold according to size. It was a poor bird, however, that did not bring $1.50, while extra large ones went as high as $2.50 to $3.00. By the pound, 16c. and 18c. was paid.

Chickens were quoted at 60c. to 80c. per pair and were in fair demand at these prices. Geese sold at $1.25 to $1.50 each, according to size, and ducks at $1.25 to $1.60 per pair.

Butter was a trifle higher, dairy prints selling at 26c. per pound for best quality stock. Some sales were made at 24c. and 25c. per pound.

Eggs took a jump upwards and holders demanded 40c. per dozen for fresh hen fruit. Buyers were reluctant to pay this figure, however, but in some cases it was paid.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

Saturday was a busy day with the local Sergeants de Ville, as they say in Paris. There were three arrests during the afternoon, owing mainly to the exuberance of "spirits" both inwardly and externally absorbed and displayed by those in trouble.

Two of three boarders at the tax payers expense had been drinking too much of the cup that cheers and who had been creating a nuisance in front of the police station. They were quickly given a place behind the bars.

Constable Newhall was called to a local hotel to arrest a drunken man who was keen to pick a fight with any one willing to accommodate him. When arresting the drunken man another man interfered, and for this interference he was arrested and the drunk was not.

The whole staff of policemen were on duty Saturday, owing to the great crowds present that day, and it must be confessed, in view of the large bar business done and the crowded state of our city, that Peterborough and its police deserve every credit for the comparatively magnificent order in evidence Saturday.

Yesterday afternoon an old man, apparently about 70 years of age, while under the influence of the "merry bowl" in a local hotel yard, was taken in charge by P. C. Moriarty. As there was no horse in sight, and as the man was too drunk to walk, the officer lifted him into a cutter and drew him to the police station.

Germany is Prosperous.

Berlin, December 22.—There will be a prosperous Christmas in Germany. Few persons are out of work, there are not many beggars, and there is less evidence of misery among the poorer classes than in years past.

Mr. Chas. Logan the Cricketer is Dead

The many friends in this city of Mr. Charles J. Logan will regret to learn that he passed away on Friday last at Galt. The deceased was well known [illegible] brother of Mr. H. Calcutt. Mr. Logan was an accomplished cricketer and frequently played with the Peterborough team. He was undoubtedly the cleverest bowler in Canada.

Speaking of his death, the Galt Reporter says:

Apparently in good health a few days ago, Mr. Charles J. Logan, late Classical Master of the Galt Collegiate Institute, and for many years a national figure in cricket circles, died about twelve o'clock today, a victim to appendicitis.

"Charley" Logan was a man all the way through. In his chosen profession the highest dictates of honor and integrity animated him. His attitude toward the pupils at the G. C. I. was one of extreme solicitude for their welfare and progress. He was a strict disciplinarian, but withall so just and considerate that he received and held the respect of all under him and young men and women all over Canada, who passed through his room, will hear with deep regret of his death.

The deceased came from Trinity College School, Port Hope, about 1883 and for twenty years was associated with the Galt Collegiate Institute. In 1906 he retired temporarily from the service of the board, owing to a nervous attack, but having, as he supposed, built himself up again, took a position for six months in the St. Mary's Collegiate Institute. Since September last Mr. Logan, silently suffering from an undiagnosed disease, has been resting, in the hope of regaining his former strength.

The deceased was a native Canadian, born at Cartwright, the son of the late Rev. Canon Logan. His earlier life was spent in Fenelon Falls. Graduating from Lindsay High School he entered Trinity University, taking his degree as M.A. with high honors.

His Honeymoon Jag Led to a Divorce

Wife Says He Kept It Up and Gave Baby Cigars When He Came Home Drunk.

Cincinnati, Dec. 22.—Mrs. Helen J. Bailey, daughter of Congressman Johnson, of Richmond, Ind., was granted a divorce from Oscar M. Bailey "At the time my husband was being married to me he had a bottle of whiskey in his pocket."

This was the testimony of Mrs. Bailey before Judge Spiegel.

"He carried it on the Pullman sleeper when we started on our honeymoon that night and drank so much of it that he became drunk," she continued. "When I remonstrated with him he threatened to send me back home."

Mrs. Bailey, who is a beautiful young woman, told Judge Spiegel she never knew Bailey drank until the first night of their marriage. She declares he came home drunk every night thereafter.

She said he gave their baby cigars to play with, and would laugh hilariously when the child put them in its mouth. He also fed it chocolate creams when it was very sick, Mrs. said. Mrs. Bailey was granted the custody of their child.

State of Nevada Is Fight Crazy

Tonopah, Nev., Dec. 20.—This particular portion of the world is fight crazy. The Goldfield, Gans-Nelson fight touched the fuse. Now Tonopah has the Gans-Herman battle coming up, and Manhattan, a camp sixty miles away, with no railroad connection, is so anxious to butt into the game that the leading citizens of that place have gathered together $40,000 and want to put it up as a purse for a fight to be held between the winner of the combat between Gans and Herman and Battling Nelson. They want to see the Dane meet the winner of the New Year's Day fight.

Popular Bank Clerk Removed to Berlin

The many friends of Mr. M. L. Watson, of the Bank of Commerce staff, will regret to learn that he has been transferred to the Berlin branch. Word was received of this change on Saturday morning, and Mr. Watson will leave either tonight or Tuesday. He has been connected with this branch of the Bank of Commerce for the past thirteen months, and during that time has made many friends in both society and athletic circles, and he will be greatly missed. Mr. Watson is a good hockey player, and was a candidate for this year's senior team. He is fast and a good stick handler, and his loss to the team will be keenly felt.

Mr. D. G. Cameron, of Stratford, has arrived and will take Mr. Watson's place.

Brigandage and Rioting Reported —Government to Provide Work.

Washington, December 24.—Consul-Rodgers of Shanghai cabled the state department as follows:

"Kiangpei famine conditions are daily growing worse. Brigandage and rioting in adjacent districts resulting.

"Very serious state of affairs anticipated by officials.

"Chinese government will probably provide work on a grand canal for the destitute hordes.

"Immense numbers unquestionably starving. Sickly, afflicted and old left in the famine district.

"Refugees concentrated in adjacent cities, where they are poorly provided for."

ROCKEFELLER PREACHES A CHRISTMAS SERMON

Says Great Wealth is a Burden and Millionaires are Only Stewards---American People Too Prodigal---Respect for Courts.

New York, December 22.—John D. Rockefeller, in a conversation on seasonable topics, yesterday, said: "Good will to all men and gratitude to God—that, I should say, should be the Christmas sentiment for everyone."

Referring to large fortunes, he said: "Great wealth is a burden, a great responsibility. It invariably proves to be one of two things—either a great blessing or a great curse. We are only stewards, but every man has to give an accounting of his stewardship, and those who possess great wealth should have to show that they are competent to use it properly—should pass an examination and be judged, perhaps by what they do with their money."

Mr. Rockefeller declared that the American people are too prodigal, and that their extravagance will have to be paid for by some one.

"We cannot buy toys always," Mr. Rockefeller said. "Our present pace is one that cannot be kept up."

Asked if he would go to court whenever the Government desired him to do so, he said:

"It will be a sorry day for the country and for all of us when our courts are not respected, or we cannot respect them, and our laws are not upheld. We must have law and order, and we must have the courts to enforce them.

"What else can I do but go to court when summoned?"

A New Empire In Turkestan

Russia Busily Engaged in Building Great Cities Between the Caspian and the Pamirs.

London, December 24.—Pulled in Manchuria and not knowing what will be the outcome of the present disastrous condition of affairs at home, Russia is still proceeding quietly and successfully with the great work on which she has been employed for the last twenty years, for it is within a comparatively short time that Russia silently and almost secretly has developed Russian Turkestan.

Twenty years ago these transcaspian territories were waste places covered with the ruins of long-past splendors. Today, in traveling East by the Transcaspian Railway, town after town and city after city worthy of Europe are passed and in the region between the Caspian and the Pamirs there is a standing army of some half a million men. Askabad, Tashkend, Merv, Bokara and Samarkand are today busy industrial, commercial centers. Twenty years ago they were typical Central Asian settlements.

Magnificent cantonments, arsenals and railways have sprung up practically unnoticed, and now Samarkand has a population of 65,000, Askabad 35,000, and Tashkend 154,000, of which at least 15,000 are Europeans. These figures do not include huge garrisons which are maintained throughout the country. These garrisons are increasing every year, for this is a military empire, which is growing up in Central Asia. Every district in every province has been carefully surveyed to see how many troops can be supported and what army supplies can be drawn upon. Even at the most critical stages of the Russo-Japanese war there was no wholesale denuding of Transcaspia. Its troops were permitted for the moment to garrison Merv, but were never allowed to fall below 10,000, with the proper proportion of horses and guns.

In drawing attention to the above facts, the Post points out the importance thereof to the Indian government and notes how erroneous is the general idea that an army marching against India from the north would have to cross hundreds of miles of deserts.

THE GIRL FROM THE RANCH

Christmas, Matinee and Night.

There is a strong comedy interest in "The Girl from the Ranch," as well that heart thrilling love and hate story that goes to make it a success. The comedy is natural and not of the farce order so much in vogue and so much deplored by sensible theatre-goers. Everything about the "Girl" is natural and the pathos is never permitted to bathos any more than the comedy is permitted to fall into burlesque. The play is strong in all the elements that go to make popular successes, and is presented by the young actor, Mr. George Heath, and his excellent company just as they presented it in New York, with all the scenery, costumes, properties, etc., just the same. "The Girl" will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, Tuesday, December 25, Christmas Day. Matinee at 3 p.m. Night at 8.

They've Got the Grippe.

New York, December 24.—A London despatch reports that influenza of a particularly virulent type is raging there. The Lord Chancellor and the Archbishop of Canterbury are barely convalescent, while Arthur Balfour and Speaker Lowther are seriously ill.

President Master Of The Situation

Strong Feeling That His Last Message to Congress Places Administration on Safer Ground.

New York, December 24.—A Herald's Washington special says: There is a strong feeling in official and congressional circles that the President is easily master of the Japanese situation. The message sent to Congress Monday sinks the school matter almost out of sight and takes new ground upon which administration can more safely stand. This new ground is maltreatment and boycotting of Japanese as a result of the labor agitation. On this the leaders of the Senate and the House declare the Congress will undoubtedly be with the President, because what Secretary Metcalf reports is, in the opinion of most members, a violation of treaty rights. This, taken in connection with the very friendly and conciliatory speech of Viscount Aoki, Japanese Ambassador in New York, indicates to Congress that matters are going fairly toward a settlement of the differences between this country and Japan, as far as the immediate present is concerned. On the heels of this, as showing how the wind is blowing, came today a practical rebuke to the California delegation, which called a caucus of representatives of the Pacific Slope and Rocky Mountain States for the purpose of exhibiting Hayes' Japanese Exclusion bill and making trouble for the administration for introducing either Japanese or Chinese coolies into the canal zone. California members were told they were treading on dangerous ground and they would soon find themselves tools of labor agitators and were aiming something against interests of the United States, as such a movement could only embarrass the President and create bad relations with Japan. Rather degreased, Californians have concluded to wait the course of events.

REWARD FOR BRAINS

London, December 24.—Sir John Fisher, the brains of the admiralty, has just asked the co-operation of all workmen at the government dockyards and invites them to contribute suggestions for the improvement of tools and methods of work and any other matters which they think will be of assistance to the navy. A committee of naval officers is to sit once a month to consider and adjudicate on the suggestions received. The sum of $1,000 will be distributed in prizes to those whose suggestions are accepted and also be given to workmen and a forty-eight hour week established at all dockyards. The premium system of pay will also be adopted. Expert workmen will thus be able to materially increase their pay by finishing work in less time than usually allowed.

OUT OF SORTS

People Not Really Sick Are Often Most In Need of Care.

The people who actually are most in need of kind words and medical treatment are not those who are really sick, but just "out of sorts."

The old-time energy, force, strength and happy spirits are lacking, the physical and mental powers are lagging; there is poor appetite, and boy cannot get the good out of the food they eat. In nine cases out of ten, this results directly from a weakened stomach, and no other treatment equals Mi-o-na to restore strength and health.

When the nerves and muscles are weak, if there is sleeplessness, irritability, and specks before the eyes, when the head aches and there is a dull pain in the back, and there is any distress and heaviness in the stomach, dizziness, and sometimes nausea, the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets for a few days will make a world of improvement, and continued use for a reasonable time will restore perfect health.

These tablets are not mere digestives; they absolutely strengthen all the organs of digestion, so that there is good appetite, perfect digestion and strong nerves, when they are used.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

HEALTH FOR WOMEN

Mrs Emma Daigle, of Moncton, N. B. Sends an Open Letter to All Sufferers.

Most women are tired when they wake up. Housework drags along with great difficulty. Nervousness is always present, headaches seldom depart, tears are ever ready to flow.

But there is a cure, a true specific for women's ills that restored a prominent lady in Moncton, Mrs. Daigle, who tells the following experience:

"About a year ago I had a serious sickness, sort of a general breakdown. My digestion failed entirely and I was able to eat but very little. I took violent stomach pains and suffered terribly from headaches. My doctor said it was "nerve exhaustion" and I might never be well. My troubles increased, for as I grew weaker I became subject to neuralgia and rheumatism. Sleep finally forsook me and I almost lost heart. Different medicines didn't help. Doctors couldn't do me any good. I was desperate when I heard of Ferrozone. The first box convinced me it was just what I needed. It toned up my stomach, gave me a splendid appetite and then my recovery seemed easier. Ferrozone increased my weight several pounds, has restored my nerves, gave me a good color and strength such as I never had before. For the weak and sickly I can truthfully recommend Ferrozone." (Signed) Emma Daigle.

REMEMBER: No mere stimulant or alcoholic concoction can take the place of the nerve and blood nourishment contained in Ferrozone. This true tonic always does what is claimed for it. Sold everywhere in 50c. boxes or six for $2.50. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn, U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

POINTS AT ISSUE IN FRANCE

While the great clerico-civil drama in France moves irresistibly toward its culmination, it will be well to keep clearly in mind the actual issues involved, concerning which there has appeared at times to be some uncertainty. Much reference has been made to the government's offer to accept compliance with the law of 1881, and some have apparently imagined that to be tantamount to a nullification, or at least a holding in abeyance of the new law of 1906. Such a notion is quite erroneous. The two laws serve two entirely different purposes, and compliance with one cannot satisfy the requirements of the other; neither does refusal to comply with one necessarily affect compliance with the other; nor yet is there any intention on the part of the French government to let either of them even temporarily lapse.

The Separation law of 1906, which has just gone into force, provides for the abrogation of the Concordat and the separation of State and Church. Under it the various churches are called upon to form associations cultuelles, or lay boards of trustees, to be the custodians of the church buildings, which, it must be remembered, largely belong not to the churches but to the communes, the departments or the State. Wherever such boards are formed everything is to go on just as before, the Church occupying and controlling the buildings and the priests receiving their stipends from the public treasury for nine years to come. But wherever boards or trustees are not formed the State declines to let public property remain in irresponsible or alien hands, and therefore itself takes possession of the church buildings, which it will keep open and in repair for worship, and will not divert to other uses. The Pope has forbidden the formation of the required associations, and very few of them have been formed; wherefore the State is now proceeding to enforce the law by taking possession of the buildings, for with all the talk of compromise there has been no thought of witholding enforcement of that law.

With the law enforced and the civil authorities in control of the church buildings, the question would naturally arise on what terms the priests and their flocks might continue to use the buildings for worship. The answer is given in what has been said about the law of 1881. That law for the regulation of public meetings provided—and provides, for it is still in force—that any responsible persons might hold public meetings for religious worship on condition of making a formal declaration of their intention so to do. The government recently announced that after it had taken legal possession of the church buildings the priests and their congregations might continue to use them just as before, without the formation of associations cultuelles, if only the priests or some responsible persons of each church would make the declaration or application called for by the law of 1881, which declaration would need to be made only once a year. It was at first thought that the hierarchy would accept this offer, and thus make possible the continuance of services in the churches, but in the end the Vatican declined to accept such a course. Two Catholic laymen of Paris, on their own responsibility, made the required application in behalf of all the churches, hoping thus to settle the matter. The Prefect, however, not without reason, decided that such an ominous application would not serve, but that a special application must be made by two persons in each individual church. The outlook is, therefore, that in addition to resuming possession of those buildings which belong to the State, department or commune, and sequestrating the others, and stopping all payments to the clergy, under the law of 1906, the government will also, under the law of 1881, prohibit the use of the churches by congregations which have not filed the necessary declarations.

An almost universal suspension of religious services throughout France would constitute an intolerable state of affairs, which could not long be maintained, and which would doubtless soon be ended in one of three ways. The government would yield, or the hierarchy would yield, or the people would break away from the authority of the hierarchy and comply with the law of 1881—though this last course would lead pretty directly toward the substitution of a Gallican for the Roman Catholic Church in France, a contingency regarded by the Vatican with grave apprehension. That the government will yield is not to be expected. The question of the day is, then, whether the Roman Catholic Church will comply with the law of 1881 with which other bodies have been uncomplainingly complying for twenty-five years, or will invite instead a precipitation of chaos.

Cats and Birds.

Cats, if they have an opportunity to hunt birds and rabbits, will give no time to the hunting of rats and mice. Thus many cats are good mousers in the city and bad mousers in the country.

Luxury of the Ancients.

Twenty-seven hundredweight, or nearly one and a half tons, of gold plate was often placed on the tables of ancient Roman epicures.

Cooked Foods.

Cooked foods should be eaten moderately warm, not hot. The high temperature injures the mucous lining of the whole digestive apparatus and by increasing the flow of perspiration renders the skin more susceptible to chills and colds. The habit of eating hot food also increases a desire for liquids, and thus one bad habit leads to another.

The Flute.

Conductors of orchestras find that the flute is far more often played out of tune than the violin, the reason being that many of its natural notes are not strictly in tune with the rest of the band.

A Queer Scottish Custom.

In Scotland the custom still prevails of taking down the window blinds when there is a corpse in a house and hanging white sheets across the windows. The custom also prevails in some parts of England, particularly in the northern part, and in many families a special "death sheet" is reserved for the chamber in which the corpse may lie and is often used for many generations.

Our Strongest Stones.

The traprocks of New Jersey and the dolerites of Staten Island are the strongest stones in the United States, their crushing resistance being 24,000 pounds to the cubic inch.

The Caterpillar.

The female of one species of caterpillar tears off the fur from the extremity of her abdomen to make a soft bed for her eggs and to preserve them from the cold. Yet she never sees her young, for after she has accomplished the task of laying the eggs the caterpillar invariably dies.

Eyelashes in Marble.

Only one marble statue of the human figure with eyelashes is known. It is one of the gems of the Vatican, the Sleeping Ariadne, and was found in 1503.

Burning Meteors.

It is supposed that meteors begin to burn when they are within about 125 miles of the earth and that combustion is completed and they disappear at from thirty-five to fifty miles above the earth. When we see a falling star, therefore, we may consider that we have watched it through a flight of about a hundred miles before it finally burns out and disappears from view.

Distant Stars.

There are stars so distant that a flying machine moving at the rate of 500 miles an hour would require 500,000,000 years to reach them.

Bats That Eat Fruit.

Fruit eating bats eat fruit only and are confined to Asia, the islands of the East Indian archipelago being one of their principal habitats. They cover the trees in daytime in vast multitudes, looking like a large flock of crows.

Toy Wagons.

It must be that the toy wagon is the favorite plaything of children the world over, for there is no country in which grown up wagons are used that has not toy wagons just like them except in size, and in those countries where wagons are never used there are always substitutes.

High Buckles and Velvet Ribbon —Trim Fall Gowns.

Even upon street frocks and apparently more appropriately so than upon the house gowns do velvet ribbons obtain as chief trimming adjuncts this fall. They appear in single rows in very wide widths or else in groupings of narrow ribbons, three to nine rows in each group.

A high buckle upon one broadcloth gown of royal blue color is the piece de resistance of the costume. It is diamond shaped, fully six inches wide and made of large blue brilliants set in silver rims placed in turu upon a dull black jetted band. Trimmings of blue velvet ribbon in groups of three rows each were very attractively arranged on skirt and jacket, but the feature of this costume which caught and held the eye was the buckle that, placed upon the front, reached nearly to the bust line.

Another novelty seen in a bronze green cloth costume was the mandolin shaped jacket. The skirt was modeled in overskirted effect obtained by four well cut gored flounces arranged to give a plaited effect in front. A tan crepe de chine blouse of the washable variety was covered by mandolin shaped crossed fronts held in place by black jet buttons set upon insets of white broadcloth. Three little curved sections of cloth barely covering the top of the arm passed for sleeves, illustrating again and even more forcibly the continuation of this fashion of short sleeves.

MUSHROOM SAILOR HAT.

Dressy waists as well as entire costumes for autumn show short sleeves. Even those smart tailored flannel waists for autumn outing and sporting wear are shown with the short cuffed sleeve which characterized the summer "shirt." A dainty white flannel model is built with Gibson plaits and fullness opening over a tucked and shirred chemisette of white chiffon, a touch of dressiness afforded by ties of gold colored ribbons. The ends are weighted with two round green imitation jade balls, which fall from underneath a narrow square collar edged with gold soutache braid and embroidered with gold stars. The sleeves are quite simply designed and have natty little cuffs decorated to match the collar. A greater elaboration than we have seen for several seasons past will prevail, it is prophesied, upon the silk and crepe de chine waists that are to come later in the season; but, like the lone fisherman, we will wait with patience to see "what shall we see."

The hat illustrated is one of the smartest models for all round serviceable wear. It is a mushroom sailor carried out in short haired navy blue beaver. A chou of blue velvet and two stiff wings showing beautiful blendings of soft colors shading from blue to rosy pinks are placed at one side of the model.

The Ideal Hostess.

She must make you feel individually that you are the favored guest.

She must make you feel perfectly at home.

She must see everything, and yet possess the art to see nothing.

She must never look bored.

She must know how to get congenial people together.

She must know how to keep conversation always going.

She must never let any one be slighted or overlooked.

She must know when to ask the amateur musician to display his or her talents.

She must be perfectly unselfish about her own talents.

She must remember that nothing is so tiresome, so surely death to all enjoyment, as the feeling that one is being entertained.

How to Clean Rings.

A sharp pointed implement should never be employed to clean rings, as it loosens the stones. Soak them in liquid ammonia a whole day, and the dirt will float out. Afterward they should be polished with a soft cloth. It is a good plan to keep rings in sawdust, as it enables the gems to retain their brilliancy. Warm water and a little prepared chalk are all that are required to clean plain or chased rings.

Tit For Tat.

"If nature had made me an ostrich," said old Grouch, "I suppose I could eat your cooking."

"Wouldn't that be nice?" answered his imperturbable spouse. "Then I could get some feathers for my hat."

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish."

PROPERTY AND LOCATION

The property consists of forty acres being the south-west quarter of the north half of lot 6 in concession 1 Township of Bucke. The property of this Company lies about three-quarters of a mile north-west from the celebrated Tretheway mine and is identically of the same formation. Vein matter was found in this property right from the surface and subsequent prospecting has revealed several well defined veins. On the main vein several nuggets of native silver were found. A shaft had been sunk to a depth of fourteen feet, when the property was taken over by this Company.

WORK ON THE PROPERTY

At present a camp is being built and active development work is being proceeded with. One half of the Company's property is still unprospected.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Of all Cobalt Mining Companies none can show a sounder business basis than this. The organizers had such confidence in the property that they have taken their entire interest in stock and have pooled same for six months, evidencing the fact of their absolute confidence in the value of the Company's property at the par value of $1.00 per share. ONLY 25000 shares are being issued at the present time for active development work. It is confidently expected that this will be sufficient to make this property a shipper, and if so the public can at a glance see what the value of these shares will be, having regard to the fact that only 75,000 shares of the Company will have been issued. The stock is not being offered outside of Ottawa as the Directors feel confident this small amount will be oversubscribed here. Address

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER,

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

Brooke greeted him with unexpected heartiness. He was going to bed when the young man rapped upon his door.

Brooke opened the letter and read the words aloud, "Thanks; I shall not need thy help."

"What!" Trove exclaimed.

"He says he shall not need the help I offered him," Brooke answered.

"Good night," said Trove, who, turning, left the house and hurried away. Lights were out everywhere in the village now. The windows were dark at the Sign of the Dial. He hurried up the old stairs and rapped loudly, but none came to admit him. He called and listened. Within there were only silence and that old familiar sound of the seconds trooping by, some with short and some with long steps. He knew that soon they were to grow faint and weary and pass no more that way. He ran to the foot of the stairs and stood a moment hesitating. Then he walked slowly to the county jail and looked up at the dark and silent building. For a little time he leaned upon a fence there in the still night, shaken with sobs. Then he began walking up and down by the jail yard. He had not slept an hour in weeks and was weary, but he could not bear to come away and walked slower as the night wore on, hearing only the tread of his own feet. He knew not where to go and was drifting up and down, like a derelict in the sea. By and by people began to pass him—weary crowds—and they were pelting at the patches on his coat, and beneath them he could feel a kind of burning, but the crowd was dumb. He tried to say, "I am not to blame," but his heart smote him when it was half said. Then, suddenly, many people were beside him, and far ahead on a steep hill, in dim, gray light, he could see Darrel toiling upward, and sometimes the tinker turned, beckoning him to follow. And Trove ran, but the way was long between them. And the tinker called to him, "Who drains the cup of another's bitterness shall find it sweet." Quickly he was alone, groping for his path in black darkness and presently coming down a stairway into the moonlit chamber of his inheritance; then the men of the dark and a feeling of faintness and great surprise, and a broad blue field all about him and woods in the distance, and above the growing light of dawn. His bones were aching with illness and overwork, his feet sore. "I have been asleep," he said, rubbing his eyes, "and all night I have been walking."

He was in the middle of a broad field. He went on slowly and soon fell of weakness and lay for a time with his eyes closed. He could hear the dull thunder of approaching hoofs; then he felt a silky muzzle touching his cheek and the tickle of a horse's mane. He looked up at the animal, feeling her face and neck. "You feel like Phyllis, but you are not Phyllis—you are all white," said the young man as he patted her muzzle. He could hear other horses coming, and quickly she that was bending over him reared with an open mouth and drove them away. She returned again, her long mane falling on his face. "Don't step on me," he entreated. "'Remember in the day o' judgment God 'll mind the look o' yer master.'" He took hold of those long, soft threads, and the horse lifted him gently to his feet, and they walked, his arm about her neck, his face in the raveled silk of her mane. "I don't know whose horse you are, even, or where you are taking me," he said. They went down a long lane and came at length to a barway, and Trove crawled through.

He saw near him a great white house, one he had never seen before, and a beautiful lady in the doorway. He turned toward her, and it seemed a long journey to the door, although he knew it was only a few paces. He fell heavily on the steps, and the woman gave a little cry of alarm. She came quickly and bent over him. His clothes were torn, his face pale and haggard, his eyes closed.

"I am sick," he whispered faintly.

"Theron! Theron! Come here! Sidney is sick!" he heard her calling.

"Is it you, mother?" the boy whispered, feeling her face. "I thought it was a great white mansion here and that you—that you were an angel."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

FOR a month the young man lay burning with fever, his brain boiled in hot blood until things hideous and terrible were swarming out of it, as if it were being loaned of dragons. Two months had passed before he was able to leave his bed. He remembered only the glow of an Indian summer morning on wood and field, but when he rose they were all white with snow.

"I must go," said he.

"Not yet, my boy," said Mary Allen. "You are not strong enough."

"Darrel has taken my trouble on him, and I must go."

"I have heard you say it often since you fell on the doorstep," said she, stroking his hand. "There is a letter from him," and she brought the letter and put it in his hands. Trove opened it eagerly and read as follows:

Dear Sidney—It is Sunday night, and all day I have been walking in the Blessed Isles. And one was the Blessed Isle of remembrance where I met thee and we talked of all good things. If I knew it were well with thee I should be quite happy, boy, quite happy. I was a bit weary of travel, and all the roads had grown long. I miss the tick of the clocks, but my work is easy, and I have excellent good friends. I send thee my hoy. Please deliver the red, tall clock to Betsy Hilde, who lives on the road to Waterbury hill, and kindly take that assorted youngster from Connecticut—the one with the waxen ones and a brass pendulum—to Mrs. Mary Wetzo. He remembers thee as tempered Dutch thing with a loud gong and a white dial. Please take that to Harry Warner. I put some work on them all, but there's no charge. The other clocks belong to me. Do with them as thou will and with all that is mine. The rent is paid to April. Then kindly surrender the key. Now, can ye do all this for a man suffering the just punishment of many sins? I ask it for old friendship and to increase the charity I saw growing in thy heart long ago. At last I have word of thy father. He died a peaceful, happy death, having restored the wealth that cursed him to its owner. For his sake an' thine I am glad to know it. Now between thee and the dear Polly there is no shadow. Tell her everything. May the good God bless and keep thee, but the long road of happiness, that ye must seek and find. Yours truly,

R. DARREL of the Blessed Isles.

Trove read the letter many times, and as he grew strong he began to think with clearness and deliberation of his last night in Hillsborough. Darrel was the greatest problem of all. Pondering, he saw, or thought he saw, the bottom of it. Events were coming, however, that robbed him utterly of his conceit and all the hope it gave him. The sad lines about his father kept him ever in some doubt. A week more, and he was in the cutter one morning behind Phyllis on his way to Robin's Inn. As he drew up at the old, familiar gate the boys ran out to meet him. Somehow they were not the same boys; they were a bit more sober and timid. Tank came with a "Glad to see ye, mister," and took the mare. The widow stood in the doorway, smiling sadly.

"How is Polly?" said Trove.

For a moment there was no answer. He walked slowly to the steps, knowing well that some new blow was about to fall upon him.

"She is better, but has been very sick," said the widow.

Trove sat down without speaking and threw his coat open.

"You, too, have been very sick," said Mrs. Vaughn.

"Yes, very," said he.

"I heard of it and went to your home one day, but you didn't know me."

"Tell me, where is Polly?"

"In school, and I am much worried."

"Why?"

"Well, she's pretty, and the young men will not let her alone. There's one determined she shall marry him."

"Is she engaged?"

"No, but—but, sir, I think she is nearly heartbroken."

"I'm sorry," said Trove. "Not that she may choose another, but that she lost faith in me."

"Poor child! Long ago she thought you had ceased to love her," said the widow, her voice trembling.

"I loved her as I can never love again," said he, his elbow resting on a table, his head leaning on his hand. He spoke calmly.

"Don't let it kill you, boy," said she.

"No," he answered. "A man must be greater than his trouble. I have work to do, and I shall not give up. May I go and see Polly?"

"Not now," said the widow. "Give her time to find her own way. If you deserve her love it will return to you."

"I fear that you, too, have lost faith in me," said Trove.

"No," she answered. "But surely Darrel is not the guilty one. It's all such a mystery."

"Mrs. Vaughn, do not suffer yourself to think evil of me or of Darrel. If I do lose your daughter I hope I may not lose your good opinion." The young man spoke earnestly, with wet eyes.

"I shall not think evil of you," said the woman.

Trove stood a moment, his hand upon the latch.

"If there's anything I can do for you or for Polly," said he, "I should like to know it. Let's hope for the best."

Rabbit Tails.

Rabbits, asserts a naturalist, have white tails so that the young may distinguish their mother in case of pursuit. The natural color of the rabbit is so like the surrounding earth that this would be impossible otherwise.

Drooping Mustaches.

Drooping mustaches preserve the health of millers, bakers, coal heavers and ashmen, keeping the dust out of their lungs.

The Turkish Tongue.

The Turkish language is said by scholars to be the softest and most musical language of modern times, being better adapted to the purpose of musical notation and recitative than even the Italian.

Bridal Wreaths.

The bridal wreath is usually formed in Germany of myrtle branches; in France and England, of orange blossoms; in Italy and French Switzerland, of white roses; in Spain, of red roses and pinks; in the islands of Greece, of vine leaves; in Bohemia, of rosemary; in German Switzerland, of a crown of artificial flowers.

A Gleam of Hope.

The dark lantern flashed through the flat. Then came the gleam of a revolver.

"Hands up!" hissed the head of the family. "You are a burglar!"

"I-yes," gasped the intruder as he faced the cold steel.

"What have you stolen?"

"Your wife's pug dog."

"H'm! Er—if that's all, you may sneak out quietly."

"And your mother-in-law's parrot."

"You don't say! Well, here is some loose change."

"And your daughter's phonograph."

"Good! Here's some more loose change."

"Also your son's punching bag."

"What? Great Scott, man, come out to the ice chest! There certainly will be some peace in this flat from now on."

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to cut out an ore-body in granite. No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

But fly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,600 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

If you want to invest in a MINE with vast possibilities, let us hear from you at once and we will send detailed information.

What Does It Mean?

Dr. Hamilton Gives a Full and Satisfactory Explanation.

Look at your tongue! Sometimes it's heavily coated sometimes it's clear and red. Study this out and you'll find some interference with the functional activity of the body.

The means the bowels are not regular, the liver is sluggish and the blood is contaminated.

Strong cathartic pills act so destructively on the intestines as to provoke deathly sickness; this often frightens people from taking medicine when they badly need it.

To the multitude of dangerous purgatives now on the market, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a notable exception, they neither gripe, cause sickly feeling or headache, yet they cleanse and purify the entire system in one night. No other laxative acts with such mildness and certainty. Giving proper stimulus to the liver and kidneys, strengthening the stomach and lending valuable aid to digestion, it's small wonder that such marvelous results accompany Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Geo. O'Hagarty, of Amherst, N. S., writes; "Last winter I worked in a lumber camp and neglected my health. I was dreadfully constipated and had a headache that fairly made me reel at times. I was sick and miserable, and hadn't the slightest ambition to work or stir around. I felt heavy and dull and had a bad taste in my mouth. I went into the city for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which I knew were good for my condition. They fixed me up very quickly and have kept me in good condition ever since. There are other men in the camp that use Dr. Hamilton's Pills also. They say they wouldn't be without the pills for ten times their price."

Every dealer in the land sells Dr. Hamilton's Pills—25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

Dairy Men are Going to Meet in Ottawa

The program for the 19th annual convention of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association has been received here. The convention will be held in Ottawa on January 9th, 10th and 11th (Wednesday, Thursday and Friday). There will be a large number of residents of this district who will attend this meeting. It was held here last year, and as a result an immense amount of benefit was derived by the farmers throughout the whole district, and a much greater interest has been taken in the dairy industry.

Big Business at Express Office.

The local express companies last week were fairly driven wild owing to excessive demands on their time and (incidentally) patience. Never in the history of Peterborough have there been so many parcels, presumably Christmas presents, passing through the offices of the Canadian and Dominion Express Companies.

Christmas Morning at St. John's

Tomorrow morning holy communion will be celebrated at St. John's church at 7.15, 8.15 and at noon. Morning prayer will be at 11 o'clock, and during this service specially prepared Christmas carols will be rendered by the excellent choir.

CATARRH

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, and permanently relieved through druggists, small 25c. trial boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure, I will take pleasure in sending, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual, substantial help. Nothing misleading, in an convincing as a physical test of any article of merit, positive proof. Simply write your address on a postal, and the free trial package, larger than advertised, will be sent you. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snowy white, healing ointness, to be used in connection with Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Tablets, and Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Capsules or Oil Eucalyptus. Relief, thereby, comes like Providence inspired by Dr. Shoop, when Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure and Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Tablets are intermingled and used together as directed to the stomach, then by all means also use internally, Dr. Shoop's Restorative, a tonic, a food of general strength, nerves, building, blood-maker, head tonic, etc., usually call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For unaccomplished catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but

At St. John's Yesterday.

The music at St. John's yesterday was of a special and joyous character, and reflected considerable credit on the choir, under the leadership of Mr. R. J. Devey

At matins, King Hall's "Hark! the Glad Sound," an Advent anthem, was well rendered by a large choir, the tenor solo being sung splendidly by Mr. Morphet. At the offertory at evensong Mr. George Chandler sang the tenor solo "Comfort Ye," from the "Messiah," in a most pleasing manner. From the same oratorio, the choir sang the full chorus, "And the Glory of the Lord," the boys voices having a good share in a very effective rendering of this difficult chorus.

Noble Work by Children's Aid.

This afternoon Mr. George Cochrane, agent for the Children's Aid Society, will distribute a large number of baskets to families in need. During the past few days Mr Cochrane, and Mr Henry, the caretaker of the Children's Shelter, have been making rounds of the city investigating such cases. Seventy-one children in the city, who would otherwise have had a poor holiday, will now, thanks to the noble work of the Children's Aid Society, for one day at least, eat as well as the children of a Rockefeller or any other American coin magnate.

Children's Aid Society Helped.

The newly appointed priest is an old Peterborough county boy, from Douro township, who is very popular here.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes, broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies its under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, oftimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nervine and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

England Is Successful In Isolating Germany

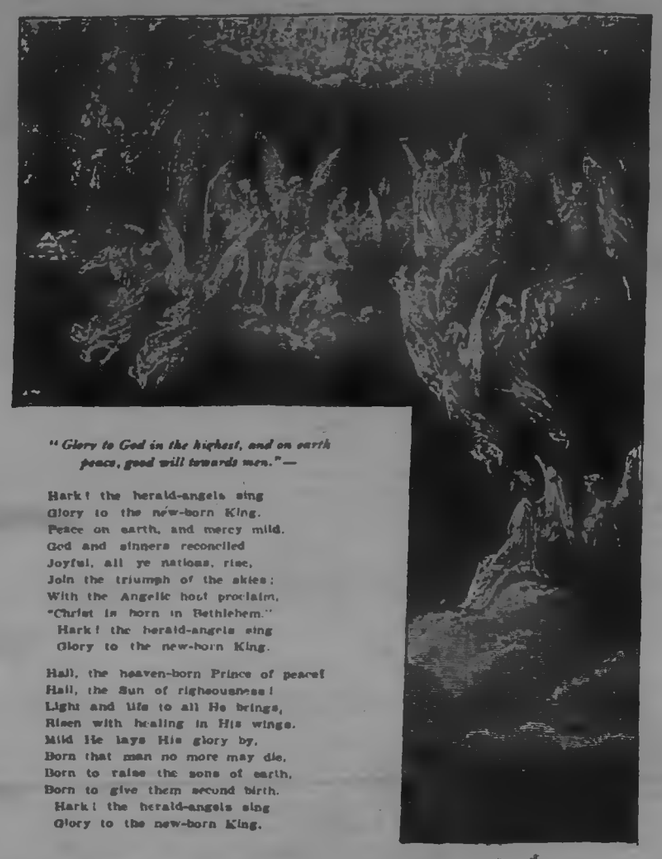
Mutual Co-operation on Land and Sea Secretly Arranged With France but in Such a Way Kaiser Cannot Challenge It.

Paris, December 24.—The Associated Press has obtained some interesting information regarding the progress of Anglo-French relations, which led to the recent erroneous reports that the entente of 1901 had been supplemented by a military or naval convention. Mutual co-operation on sea and land in the face of an aggressive move against either is regarded as assured, both at the Quai d'Orsay and in Downing street. The machinery of diplomacy has, however, been scrupulously avoided in the accomplishment of this result. No notes or drafts of conventions have been exchanged. Nothing has passed through the only channels recognized by Governments as qualified to bind countries which could be challenged by Germany as aimed at her "isolation." Nevertheless in a subtler and quite as effective fashion, the combination against Germany, as far as France and England are concerned, can be considered a "fait accompli."

The other ratifications of the diplomacy which is called in England the policy of "binding Germany over to keep the peace," (which includes the Russian-English entente, the cementing of closer relations between Spain and England, and the weaning away of Italy from the triplice) are also making progress.

It was regarded as preferable to lay the basis of mutual support primarily in a broad and deep friendship between the two peoples. The "entente cordial" adjusting outstanding differences had no sooner been signed than the campaign of friendship was inaugurated. All kinds of visits were exchanged, furnishing occasions for celebrating the new-found friendship, and now, a great Anglo-French exposition in London has been planned for 1908.

Matters had reached such a stage during the Morocco crisis that England's physical, as well as diplomatic, support was certain had the sword been unsheathed. At that time the military and naval authorities of the two countries were in communication, and after the crisis had passed they proceeded to work out "in a purely technical fashion" plans of co-operation by land and sea to meet certain eventualities. So intimate had the relations between the military departments of the two countries become last summer that General French, the Chief of the English Mission detailed to attend the French manoeuvers, was admitted to the conferences of the French General Staff during the manoeuvers and listened to, if he did not participate in, the discussions.



"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men."—

Hark! the herald-angels sing
Glory to the new-born King.
Peace on earth, and mercy mild.
God and sinners reconciled
Joyful, all ye nations, rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
With the Angelic host proclaim,
"Christ is born in Bethlehem."
Hark! the herald-angels sing
Glory to the new-born King.

Hail, the heaven-born Prince of peace!
Hail, the Sun of righteousness!
Light and life to all He brings,
Risen with healing in His wings.
Mild He lays His glory by,
Born that man no more may die,
Born to raise the sons of earth,
Born to give them second birth.
Hark! the herald-angels sing
Glory to the new-born King.

Pope Says There Can be no More Concessions ---Make The Faithful Feel they Are Being Persecuted

Rome December 24.—The members of the Sacred College went collectively this morning to the Pope to present their Christmas greetings. The Pontiff received them in his private library and conversed in the most friendly manner with all the distinguished prelates, especially with Cardinal Oreglia, Dean of the College. The chief topic was the situation in France. The Pope said that the Church will not flinch from the attitude taken, no more concessions being possible, but he hoped that the violence and persecution would soon result in better times.

PONTIFF TO REJECT LAW.

Paris, December 24.—The Associated Press learns from a high ecclesiastical source here that it is certain the Pope will reject the new religious law and at an opportune time forbid the parish priests to continue services in the churches, after which they will organize private worship. The informant of the Associated Press added:

"The Vatican can pursue no other policy. Having declined to retain the Church property under the conditions laid down by the Government, it can only logically vindicate its action by proving to the faithful that they are the objects of persecution."

The Republican organs regard the order of the bishops, suppressing Christmas masses tonight, as being the formal inauguration of the policy outlined above. The Aurore says it is a scheme dictated by the Jesuits, and that the cry will be re-echoed by every beadle and verger in France, adding:

"Yet there is not a single thinking Catholic who does not know that the suppression of the midnight masses is the work of the head of the Church, and not of the Government."

Mr. Louis Dennie's Funeral Tomorrow

Early yesterday morning Louis Dennie, eldest son of Mr. David Dennie, East Ward, passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital, after an illness of about three weeks from typhoid fever.

The deceased was about 28 years of age, and had lived all his life in Peterborough, where he was highly esteemed by a large number of friends.

Deceased leaves to mourn his loss, besides his parents, two brothers, Eddie and Herbert, at home, and one sister, Miss Mary Dennie, also residing at home.

The funeral will take place at nine o'clock tomorrow morning from the family residence, 272 Concession street, to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

North Battleford, Sask., December 24.—Thus Nep of Dauphin, Man., from Canton, China, Saturday married Eloise Willard, aged 16, of Marshall, Sask., from Collingwood, England. Parcels From Santa Claus Debarred

It seems that many people were disappointed at their inability to mail parcels at the local Postoffice Saturday night after ten o'clock.

Many people working up till ten o'clock wished to mail parcels after they had finished, but found that the Postoffice was not open to receive anything too large to be put through the small slits used for posting letters and newspapers. Some tossed their packages over the screen surrounding the office proper. It might be suggested that, under existing conditions and time of year, the Postoffice Department might have had an extra staff on to handle such parcels.

Moose Was Seen at Jack's Lake

Yesterday Capt. Young, of Young's Point, was in the city and gave a Times representative a sporting story would give a seasoned deer hunter buck fever or the blind staggers. Whilst at Jack's Lake, last Friday, he saw, within shooting distance, a magnificent cow moose crossing the ice on that lake. At first he thought it to be a horse, the animal being too large for one of the ordinary does. On getting closer, an the animal leisurely trotted across Jack's Lake, he saw clearly it was a cow moose. When such a sporting snap was seen, and the captain remembered he had no rifle with him, his language caused the snow to melt from the brushwood for a radius of 300 yards.

Mr. Jeffries Honored By Sunday School

His Departure From Active Work in George St Church Very Much Regretted by All

A pleasant event took place at George street Church Sunday School on Sunday, when Mr. John Jeffries, a former superintendent of the school and an active worker in its interests right up to the present, was presented with a handsome illuminated address by the teachers, members and officers of the Sunday School. Ever since Mr. Jeffries came to Peterborough he has been an active worker in the Sunday School, and it is with great regret that his early departure for Toronto is viewed.

The address, which was handsomely framed, was read by Mr. A. E. Dixon, secretary of the Sunday School, and is as follows:—

John Jeffries, B A., Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—The officers and teachers of the George street Methodist Sunday School have learned with deep regret of your intention to leave Peterborough. We desire before you go to give expression to that regret, and to let you know how highly your work in this school during the last seventeen years has been appreciated. As superintendent of the school and a teacher of many classes you have been unremitting and zealous in the discharge of the duties of these positions. Your marked ability as a teacher and your talents for direction and organization have been of great value to the school and have been freely exercised on its behalf. In the work of every department of the school your counsel has been relied upon and your good judgment has been of great service in all undertakings. While, personally, we have found our association together very pleasant, we regret exceedingly that you have found it advisable to leave Peterborough and that we will thus lose a valued teacher and personal friend, but we hope you will meet with success and that you will continue your work in another part of the Lord's vineyard. We wish yourself and Mrs. Jeffries and your family all happiness.

Signed on behalf of the School,
W. J. CROTHERS, Pastor,
S. R. ARMSTRONG, Superintendent,
A. E. DIXON, Secretary.

Peterborough, Dec. 23rd, 1906.

Mr. Jeffries made an appropriate reply, expressing thanks for the kindness shown him on the occasion of his departure and during the many years he had been connected with the Sunday School.

Mr. Jeffries' class, the young ladies' Bible class, presented him with a handsome stick pin as a slight token of their esteem.

A Hundred People Resoued From Flood

Truro, N.S., Experiences a Flood, and Many People are Taken From the Upper Windows.

Halifax, N. S., December 24.—For 24 hours Truro has had the greatest flood experienced in the remembrance of the oldest citizens. Three days' rain filled the brooks and rivers all over the country, and about 1 o'clock yesterday morning a great mass of ice above the Salmon River bridge broke loose and swept down heavily in the swollen streams. A temporary blockage occurred at the bridge and backed up the water so that the road was overflowed between the bridge and Bible Hill and submerged three feet. Some twenty houses along the road were surrounded, so that no one could leave. Another ice jam still further backed up the floods, so that the waters arose around Stanfield's factories and flooded all the houses on Water street.

When the jams broke away the whole Truro marsh was quickly covered to a considerable depth, and the water backed up into the suburbs and surrounded all the houses on Ford street and the Park street extension. Ice floes gathered in great force, and the water rose, gradually forcing the inhabitants from the lower flats to the upper storeys. All provisions and furniture were moved upstairs, and fired extinguished. Slowly the flood rose above the windows, and at 2 o'clock a general alarm was sounded to rescue the hundred or more people imprisoned in the upper rooms of their houses. They were finally rescued after a long battle with the ice and water.

ENTOMED 15 DAYS

Rescue of Miner Who Was Protected From Death by Position of Dirt Car.

Bakersfield, Cal., December 24.—After being entombed in a cave-in for fifteen days, Lindsay B. Hicks was released at 11.25 on Saturday night and appears to be in good health. Six men in all were entombed on December 7, and not till three days later, when a tapping on the little tramway was heard, was it known that at least one man was alive. A heavy dirt car had become wedged so that he was protected, and a 70-foot pipe two inches in diameter was forced through to him. Through this he was fed milk, and directed rescue operations. For several days, with his dead companions close by, he lay on his back afraid to move lest he dislodged dirt that would have killed him.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Gold Watch Given to Mr. Frank Adams

Ald. Frank Adams, who has been secretary of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company for the past thirteen years, and who severs his connection with that company this week, has been made the recipient of a handsome gold watch from the directors of the company.

The presentation was an informal one, there being no address read, but the directors referred to the valued services Mr. Adams had rendered the company and expressed regret at his departure.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, president of the company, on behalf of the directors made the presentation. Mr. Adams replied in suitable words.

Nothing so surely proves merit as a real, actual test—and Dr. Shoop, to prove this, earnestly desires that we let you make that test. BURNING SHIP BEACHED

Narrow Escape of Passengers and Crew of Coasting Steamer Strathcona.

Halifax, December 24.—When the coasting steamer Strathcona, which left here on Saturday morning, was two miles off Port Dufferin, fire broke out in the stoke hole. The night was dark and foggy, and the fire was soon beyond control. The steamer raced for the shore, and was soon beached. Pilot sons on shore aided in the rescue work, and 25 passengers and crew of 14 were saved. Some of the passengers lost all their belongings and came ashore in their night clothes. The whole cargo of Christmas freight was destroyed, the steamer burning to the water's edge. She was insured for $35,000, about half her value.

All Thin, Pale Women

Can Learn the Cause of Their Nervous, Used-up Condition.

With women, ill-health is usually traceable to nerve exhaustion. Feeling run-down and tired most of the time is nature's warning that more nerve-force is required.

You must build up, nourish the body, vitalize the nerves, get more flesh and blood.

It's the abundant nutriment and building material in Ferrozone that enables it to cure so many sick women. It increases the appetite, adds weight and strength, restores best color and develops a surplus of energy and nerve force that defies sickness of any kind. There is living proof in Mrs Daniel Ferguson, Jr., of Prescott, Ont Read her statement:

"A year ago my health failed. I grew thin and exceedingly pale. At times I was prostrated with nervous and sick headache. All day I was tired. At night it was difficult to obtain restful sleep. My appetite was variable and indigestion bothered me considerably. I became morose and suffered from heart palpitation. You could scarcely believe the benefit I derived in one week from Ferrozone. Color came back to my cheeks. My vitality and appetite increased, renewed nerve force and better spirits came also. Ferrozone did a world of good and made me well."

Remember this: No alcoholic stimulant can nourish and build up like Ferrozone. Fifty cents per box or six boxes for $2.50 At all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U. S. A.

HOW TO COURT A GIRL

A Subscriber Wants Information and Gets It.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—I am a constant reader of The Times, and make bold to ask your advise concerning the correct way for a young man to propose to a young lady. I know the great family journal is posted, and can tell a rather bashful young man all about it. Thanking you, Mr. Editor in advance for your information, I am, etc.,

A BATCHELOR.

My dear boy, this g-f-j, is only too pleased to respond, and would remark in the first place, that the first thing of importance for you to do is to get the girl. If you are rich and promising the girl will do the selecting and courting, but if you are poor you will have to do the courting and selecting yourself. It is the latter class that these lessons are intended to help.

The selecting can be accomplished with very little trouble on your part, for the neighbors will help you if you give them half a chance. We will suppose that the selection is made, the maid is willing, and your first date is arranged.

As you near her home on the fateful night, you should slip a shingle into the seat of your trousers, for her pa may be the sole proprietor of a dog that is as anxious as you are to leave a deep and lasting impression, and the house may conceal a younger brother struggling heroically to control his mirth and laughter until you seat yourself awkwardly on his premeditated and prearranged carpet tack.

When you open the front gate, fix your tie. As you go up the walk, whistle, "I won't go home till morning," and straighten your tie. Step up to the door and ring the bell, then take a look and see whether the moon is shining and notice the state of the weather, for you may want something to talk about when you get into the parlor. Then fix your tie.

When she opens the door, step in. You can do this by lifting one foot and planting it inside, and then doing the same with the other.

When she takes your hat, fix your tie with one hand, and watch where she puts your hat with the other (If you do not understand this sentence, remember that my time is limited and I have no time to rewrite it.)

It is customary at this juncture in the proceedings for the girl to ask you to have a seat. This, however, is optional with the girl. Before you sit down, dust off the chair with your handkerchief. This will show the girl how careful you are of your clothes. Then fix your tie, say something, and sit down.

Before blowing out the light, be sure you have a match to relight it again. Some fellows wait until the elder folks have gone to bed before blowing out the light, but this is optional. It is also nervy.

You will need no instructions to guide you from this point in the proceedings, until you both find yourselves so sleepy that you do not know what you are trying to say. The instructions at this latter point will come from the head of the stairs.

It is always best to stay as long as you can the first night, for you may not get to call again.

Of course, the girl may have been up late the night before with another fellow, but that was not your fault, so do not cut your time short on that account.

When calling on a girl, the proper time to make your exit is when you are going out the door.

If her father should happen to hasten your exit with the toe of his boot, be stoical about it, and do not go away holding the seat of your trousers and complaining that the "old man" broke your heart, for anybody who stops to think will remember that your heart is not located in that part of your anatomy. Then fix your tie.

When calling on a girl, a white vest and tie should always be worn. These will not show the powder, like a black vest and tie. Nothing is more humiliating than to sit down to breakfast the next morning and have your fellow-boarders discover the features of a girl printed in white powder on the bosom of the black vest you wore the night before. You cannot be too careful about such things. Then adjust your tie. —Ed.

HER DEFENSE.

"I own a golden locket set
With jewels bright and rare,"

Your precious picture there.

Her lines to Harry said,

Oh, fair and tricky maid!

It happened that they chanced to meet.
These two adoring youths;
Comparing notes, as lovers will,
They learned some startling truths
But when they taxed her with deceit
She showed them, nothing loath,
Their pictures in the locket. "See,"
She cried, "I wear you both!"

The Truth, the Whole Truth.

A worthy squire had a cow that always kicked and reared when milked. He decided to get rid of it and, calling one of his farm hands, told him to take the animal to market.

"Sell the brute," he said, "but, mind you, tell no lies. I've been unlucky in my purchase, but that's no reason why I should deceive others."

Two hours later the man returned from market with a larger sum than the squire had expected. "I'm sure you lied about that cow," he said.

"Not a bit of it," replied the man. "Every time I was asked if she was a good milker I simply said, 'You'll get dead tired of milking before you've got all her milk.' They asked no other questions, so that I didn't volunteer any more answers."—Bon Vivant.

The Next Step.

The schoolmaster of a small village asked his pupils the following question:

"In a family there are five children and the mother has only four potatoes between them. She wants to give every child an equal share. What is she going to do?"

Silence reigned while everybody thought hard till a little boy stood up and gave to the great surprise of the master the following answer:

"Mash the potatoes, sir."—Judge's Library.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary:—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 200,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold, the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid away into 10 fully paid $100 Share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions (20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100 Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Reports Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present; The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs. J. A. Banfield, F. B. Warren, Dr. R. H. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 475 feet long, 80 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In consequence of the great inquiry at the Company's Offices for Prospectus and Forms of Application for Shares, the Company begs to notify that Prospectus and Application Forms can be obtained upon request at any branch of "THE TRADERS' BANK OF CANADA" throughout the Dominion. Also requests for same by letter or postcard will be at once despatched to applicants from the Company's Offices in Winnipeg.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would keep me for a time but start discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—rupture, aches, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 5 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. PROPERTY AND LOCATION

The property consists of forty acres being the south-west quarter of the north half of lot 6 in concession I Township of Bucke. The property of this Company lies about three-quarters of a mile north-west from the celebrated Tretheway mine and is identically of the same formation. Vein matter was found in this property right from the surface and subsequent prospecting has revealed several well defined veins. On the main vein several nuggets of native silver were found. A shaft had been sunk to a depth of fourteen feet, when the property was taken over by this Company.

WORK ON THE PROPERTY

At present a camp is being built and active development work is being proceeded with. One half of the Company's property is still unprospected.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Of all Cobalt Mining Companies none can show a sounder business basis than this. The organizers had such confidence in the property that they have taken their entire interest in stock and have pooled same for six months, evidencing the fact of their absolute confidence in the value of the Company's property at the par value of $1.00 per share. ONLY 25000 shares are being issued at the present time for active development work. It is confidently expected that this will be sufficient to make this property a shipper, and if so the public can at a glance see what the value of these shares will be, having regard to the fact that only 75,000 shares of the Company will have been issued. The stock is not being offered outside of Ottawa as the Directors feel confident this small amount will be oversubscribed here. Address.

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER,

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

Some day you must let me come and"—he hesitated, his voice failing him for a moment—"and play a game of checkers," he added.

Paul stood looking up at him sadly, his face troubled.

"It's an evil day when the heart of a child is heavy," said Trove, bending over the boy. "What is the first law, Paul?"

"Thou shalt learn to obey," said the boy quickly.

"And who is the great master?"

"Yourself."

"Right, boy! Let's command our hearts to be happy."

The great bare maple was harping dolefully in the wind. Trove went for the mare, and Tunk rode down the hill with him in the cutter.

"Things here ain't what they used t' be," said Tunk.

"No?"

"Widder, she takes on awful. Great changes!"

There was a moment of silence.

"I ain't the same dum fool I used t' be," Tunk added presently.

"What's happened to you?"

"Well, they tol' me what you said about lyin'. Ye know a man in the hoss business is apt t' git a leetle careless, but I ain't no such dum fool as I used t' be. Have you heard that Teesey Tower was married?"

"The old maid?"

"Yes, sir; the ol' maid, to Deacon Haskins, an' he lives with 'em, an' now they're jes like other folks. Never was so surprised since I was first kicked by a hoss."

Tunk's conscience revived suddenly and seemed to put its hand over his mouth.

"Joe Beach is goin' to be a doctor," Tunk went on presently.

"I advised him to study medicine," Trove answered.

"He's gone off t' school at Milldam an' is workin' like a beaver. He was purty rambunctious till ye broke him to lead."

They rode then to the foot of the hill in silence.

"Seems so everything has changed," Tunk added as he left the cutter. "Ez Tower has crossed the Fadden bridge. Team run away an' snaked him over. They say he don't speak to his hosses now."

Trove went on thoughtfully. Some of Tunk Moody's talk had been an insight for his hunger, as a harvest, indeed, giving both seed and sustenance. More clearly than ever he saw before him the great field of life where was work and the joy of doing it.

CHAPTER XXIX.

TROVE sat in council with Mary and Theron Allen. He was now in debt to the doctor. He needed money also for clothing and boots and an enterprise all had been discussing.

"I'll give you $300 for the mare," said Allen.

Trove sat in thoughtful silence, and presently Allen went out of doors. The woman got her savings and brought them to her son.

"There is $23, an' it may help you," she whispered.

"No, mother, I can't take it," said the young man. "I owe you more now than I can ever pay. I shall have to sell the m.... It's a great trial to me, but honor is better than horses."

"Well, I've a surprise for you," said she, bringing a roll of cloth from the bureau. "Tis two old maids spun the wool, and I wove it, and, see, it's all linen fullest."

"You're as good as gold, mother, and so are they. It's grand to wear in the country, but I'm going away and ought to have an extra good suit. I'd like to look as fine as any of the village boys, and they don't wear homespun. But I'll have plenty of use for it."

Next day he walked to Jericho Mills and paid the doctor. He went on to Milldam, buying there a handsome new outfit of clothing. Then he called to see the president of the bank—that one which had set the dogs of the law on him.

"You know I put $3,000 in the bank of Hillsborough," said Trove when he sat facing the official. "I took the money there, believing it to be mine. If, however, it is yours, I wish to turn it over to you."

"It is not our money," said the president. "That bundle was sent here, and we investigated every bill—a great task, for there were some 300 of them. Many are old bills and two the issue of banks gone out of business. It's all a very curious problem. They would not have received this money, but they knew of the robbery and suspected you at once. Now we believe absolutely in your honor."

"I shall put that beyond all question," said Trove, rising.

He took the cars to Hillsborough. There he went to the Sign of the Dial and built a fire in its old stove. The clocks were now hushed. He found those Darrel had written of and delivered them. Returning, he began to wind the cherished clocks of the tinker—old ones he had gathered here and there in his wandering—and to start their pendulums. One of them, a tall clock in the corner with a calendar dial, had this legend on the inner side of its door.

Halted in memory of a good man,
Its hands pointing to the moment of his death,
Its voice hushed in his honor.

Trove shut the door of the old clock and hurried to the public attorney's office, where he got the address of Leblanc. He met many who shook his hand warmly and gave him a pleasant word. He was in great fear of meeting Polly and thought of what he should do and say if he came face to face with her. Among others he met the school principal.

"Coming back to work?" the latter inquired.

"No, sir. I've got to earn money."

"We need another teacher, and I'll recommend you."

"I'm much obliged, but I couldn't come before the fall term," said Trove.

"I'll try to keep the place for you," said his friend as they parted.

Trove came slowly down the street, thinking how happy he could be now if Darrel were free and Polly had only trusted him. Near the Sign of the Dial he met Thurston Tilly.

"Back again?" Trove inquired.

"Back again. Boss gi'n up farmin'."

"Did he make his fortune?"

"No; he had one give to him."

"Come and tell me about it."

Tilly followed Trove up the old stairway into the little shop.

"Beg yer pardon," said Thurst, turning, "are you armed?"

"No," said Trove, smiling.

"A man shot me once when I wan't doin' nothin' but tryin' t' tell a story, an' I don't take no chances. Do you remember my boss tellin' that night in the woods how he lost his money in the fire o' '75?"

"Yes."

"Wal, I guess it had suthin' t' do with that. One day the boss an' me

The tall clock indicated 4:30.

was out in the dooryard an' a stranger come along. 'You're John Thompson,' says he to the boss. 'An' you're So-an'-so,' says the boss. I don't exgzactly remember the name he give." Tilly stopped to think.

Book Muslin.

Book muslin gets its name from Buke, the district in India where it was first manufactured.

Beehives.

Germany has 1,910,000 beehives, which furnish 20,000 tons of honey in a year, while Spain comes second as a producer of honey among European countries, with 1,930,000 hives and 19,000 tons of honey.

Wheat.

The wheat of southern countries contains more albuminoids than that grown in temperate or northern zones and hence is better suited for the manufacture of macaroni.

Naval Enlistment.

HARMFUL STOMACH DOSING

No Need of it When Hyomei is Used to Cure Catarrh.

Physicians and scientists agree that the less medicine one swallows, the better. It is in keeping with this idea that Hyomei is recommended by leading physicians throughout this and other catarrhal sections.

When this treatment is used in catarrhal troubles, there is no stomach dosing, for the medicine is taken in with the air you breathe, and goes right to the spot where the catarrhal germs are present, healing the inflamed and irritated mucous membrane, killing the disease germs and entering the blood with the oxygen, driving all catarrhal germs from the system.

Do not try to cure catarrh of the head by putting medicine into your stomach—this is neither a scientific nor common-sense treatment. Breathe the healing balsams of Hyomei and in a few days you will notice relief, and its continued use will result in a complete and lasting cure.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. WAYS OF THE TOAD.

Some of the Oddities of This Peculiar Creature.

It is remarkable that the toad, loving water as it does, should wander away from watery regions to dry ground, where it can never see a drop of water except at rain time and leave its water rights to the undisputed possession of its ranal neighbor the frog. How the toad loves water must be known to every garden lover. Whenever there is a shower the creature leaves its cool retreat under the plazza or shed and stands as far as its fore legs will let it, erect in the rain, apparently enjoying to the utmost the shower bath.

Whenever they are near the water at breeding time they deposit long, slimy strings of eggs, and the young toad has to go through the tadpole stage in common with his brother frog. But when they are wholly excluded by distance from the water they seem to have the power of being viviparous, or bringing forth their young alive. In the water fertilization is effected in the same manner as in fishes, but the method in the land life career is not known. About all that is known is that confined toads are found with little toads, no larger than house flies, about them after a time, and in walled gardens and places far removed from water little toads, no larger than peas, wandering around on their own resources and which could never have been tadpoles, are within common experience.

A Horse's Age.

The age of a horse cannot always be told by looking at its teeth. After the eighth year the horse gets no more new teeth, so that this method is useless for a horse more than eight years old. As soon as the set of teeth is complete, however, a wrinkle begins to appear on the edge of the lower eyelid, and another wrinkle is added each year, so that to get the age of a horse more than eight years old you must count the teeth plus the wrinkles.

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite. No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,630 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

If you want to invest in a MINE with vast possibilities, let us hear from you at once and we will send detailed information.

Pale Faced Girls

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anaemia.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The following recent letter from Miss Etta McEwen, of Haliburton, speaks for itself;

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked on it as if a severe illness was hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

The Farmer's Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. Is the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

Fifteen Persons Killed In Missouri Race War

Troops Now Patrolling District and Situation Is Well In Hand---Peace at all Costs, the Governor Orders.

Scooba, Dec. 27.—One company of infantry and a battery of artillery dismounted here yesterday, in command of Colonel R. G. McCants, and are patroling the town and adjoining country, which has been much disturbed by race riots. Several negroes have been reported killed, but these rumors are unconfirmed. Governor Vardaman has issued instructions to military officers to preserve peace at all costs.

Col. McCants has wired Governor Vardaman that the situation is well in hand. There are no indications of further trouble.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 27.—With the number of dead placed by a conservative estimate at 15, the racial trouble prevailing throughout Kemper County, Miss., has reached a most acute stage, and unless quickly checked, a race war of serious proportions, it is feared, will result.

After quiet had been restored at Wahalak, where the first outbreak occurred Monday, and shortly after the departure of the troops sent to quell the disturbance, rioting broke out afresh at Scooba, five miles south of the latter place, and during yesterday and last night five negroes are reported to have been killed. Of this latter clash reports are conflicting, some placing the number of killed and wounded at a score. Troops were immediately ordered to the scene, and left Meridian early in the day.

At Wahalak five negroes were killed before the arrival of the troops.

At Crawford, Miss., Conductor R. N. Harrison, of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, was shot and fatally wounded by a negro last night. The negro in turn was shot by Harrison, and before he could escape was killed by a posse. Three companions who were with the negro fled to the woods. One of these was later captured, and shot to death. The others are being pursued.

Last night a negro became involved in an altercation with two white men aboard a train near Artesia, Miss., and when the station was reached, was taken from the train and killed.

The troops sent to Scooba comprise a company of infantry, and a battery of artillery. Besides the troops an organized party of forty men from Columbus are on the scene to assist in quelling the riot.

In a despatch to Governor Vardaman last night Sheriff Trout of Kemper County described the situation as critical.

NEGROES FORTIFIED.

Meridian, Miss. Dec. 27.—It was reported yesterday that a body of negroes had fortified themselves two miles from Wahalak, and announced they will resist any effort to dislodge them. They threaten to burn the little town, and the white people are alarmed. The whites all around the country have armed themselves, and one party of fifty armed persons have arrived there from Columbus, Miss. Two negroes, Tom and Jim Simpson, are reported to have been killed by whites yesterday afternoon before the arrival of the troops.

Aged Woman Trys To Get a Divorce

Old Lady 105 Years Old Makes Application for Separation.

"Nine Kan., December 27.—"I married my husband out of the house when I was 87 years old," said Martha Hunt, to the judge of the District Court here, "and now I want a divorce from him. I am only 105 years old now and I do not want to have to carry that man's name any longer. I want the name of Merrill, the name of my second husband, restored to me."

Mrs. Hunt had come to the Court House unassisted and ready to file her petition for a divorce from her third husband, who is 15 years her junior. She was so aged and weak that she was unable to climb the stairs to the court room and had to be assisted by attendants of the building. She says that her husband was cruel to her and that she found it impossible to live with him.

"You are after this divorce so you can marry again, I suppose," said one of the court attendants.

"No, I think not," she said. "I think I have had enough husbands. I'll let some of the younger women try marrying. I am pretty well along in years and do not care to try living with another man. I have known too much about them in the time I have lived—but," and the woman's eyes snapped, "if I ever see that scoundrel John H. Hunt again, I will certainly give him what he needs. I will not let him off so easily the next time."

Fussy Policeman Was Hit on the Head

New York, Dec. 27.—After a desperate fight, in which he was pounded on the head with a bottle, he was finally overpowered and beaten unconscious, James P. Gleason, a policeman, yesterday chased John Walsh several blocks and brought him down with a bullet just as the fugitive was about to enter the Hotel St. Regis. Walsh is employed as an elevator man in that fashionable hostelry. He is now in a hospital with a serious wound in his thigh. When he recovers he will have to face a charge of felonious assault upon Policeman Gleason.

Gleason encountered Walsh and three other men on Third avenue near 53rd street. One of the men was helplessly intoxicated and the others were trying to get him to go home. Gleason placed the intoxicated man under arrest. The others protested, but Gleason was determined to take the drunken man away and paid no attention until one of the men seized his night stick and began to rain blows upon the officer to the ground, blows upon his head. Half a dozen and as he rolled over and reached for his revolver the three men took to their heels. Gleason started in pursuit of Walsh, who, he declared, had struck him, threatening to shoot unless he surrendered. The officer was gaining rapidly, when Walsh darted into the servants' entrance at the St. Regis. Fearing that his man was going to get away Gleason fired and Walsh went down in a heap. He was overpowered only after a desperate struggle, in which Gleason was assisted by another policeman.

J. W. LANGMUIR, Managing Director

There had been the usual Christmas gaiety at the Cardin home. Mr. Cardin produced from its hiding place a neatly wrapped parcel, which he had bought several days previously.

He handed it to his wife and kissed her.

"I wish you a merry Christmas, my dear," he said, "and——"

The sentence was not finished. He put his hand to his side, reeled and fell to the floor. In another moment he was a corpse, and his wife was sobbing over him, with the parcel lying unopened on the floor.

He was 62 years old.

SPORTING TOPICS

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough baseball nine will be greatly strengthened next season and if the good players continue to come to the city the chances are the team will clean up every thing in the district. Last night Mr. Harry Burridge, of Toronto who played with the Sherbourne semi-Pro in the Association League last summer, has arrived in the city, brought here by the influence of Mr. Arthur Johnston, of the Little Windsor Hotel. Burridge is a catcher and was one of the best in the league last summer. With Burridge behind the bat and Corney Burns in front, Peterborough will have a first-class battery. Both these players are good at the but.

HOCKEY.

The Peterborough hockey team went to Toronto Christmas Day, and that night defeated the Marlboros by 13 goals to 12. The Mail and Empire gives the following account of the game;—

The exhibition senior game between Peterborough and Marlboros last night opened the local hockey season. Peterborough started strong, faded away, came back towards the end of the game, when there were only five men a side on the ice. Glover was hurt, the Marlboros dropping Forbes to even up. Rose, of Peterborough, was deliberately put off so as to give the Peterborough's last men more chance to work, and the Marlboros dropped Quigley. Tyner's work in goal was steady, and at times brilliant. Whitecroft's rushes were pretty to look at, but could have been easily stopped by body checking. Morgan and Crowley played well for Peterborough. Hewer the home discovery and Quigley, did good work for the Dukes.

The teams and officials were;

Marlboros—Goal, Tyler; point, Upthegrove; cover, Hewer; forwards, Kent, Brown, Quigley, Forbes.

Peterborough—Goal, Laing; point, Glover; cover, Crowley; forwards, Whitecroft, Morgan, Parnell, Rose.

Referee—W. J. Morrison; Timekeepers, H. Birmingham, W. Macdonald; Goal Judges, P. O'Grady, Dr. Crawford; Penalty Timekeeper, Dr. Gardner.

Last night's Toronto Star has the following comments on the hockey match played in Toronto on the holiday night;

The Marlboros thank Crowley is a first-class artist in the dripping line.

Laing, in goal for Peterborough, repeatedly got down on his knees to save his goal from being scored on.

Whitecroft made some spectacular rushes, although a good defence would have stopped him if they were hard checkers.

The attendance at last night's game between Peterborough and the Marlboros was over 800 and the gate receipts amounted to $282.

An Aged Indian Killed By His Son

Peter Gray Struck His Father on Head With Axe.

Cornwall, Dec. 27.—Mitchell George, an Indian constable from St. Regis reservation, who carries the mail to Cornwall, reports that Thos Gray, aged 60 years, an Indian living on the Helena road on the United States side of the boundary, was killed yesterday by his son Peter Gray, aged 24. According to George's story the father and son had been drinking and quarreled at the former's home. The father assaulted the younger man, who seized an axe and struck his parent over the head. The old man fell to the floor, and Peter completed his murderous work by again sinking the axe in his parent's brain. The deed was witnessed by another Indian, Louis Bero, who, after Peter Gray had driven him away, notified the authorities, and the murderer was arrested by Custom Officer John W. Bero, and Constable Daniel Harler, who took him to the county jail at Malone.

REVOLT IN CUBA ?

Japanese Said to Be Planning Insurrection in Cuba, the Philippines and Hawaii.

New York, Dec. 27.—A telegram to the World from Havana says Governor Magoon is investigating a report that the Japanese are planning an insurrection in February against American rule in Cuba, the Philippines and Hawaii. Five Japanese are said to have been taking photographs and measurements of the fortifications of Havana.

The secret police have been shadowing the five Japanese for three weeks.

BRITAIN WARNED; DEFENCE IS WEAK

Field Marshal Declares Enemy Could Invade the Island In Time of War.

LARGE ARMY IS NEEDED

Asserts Officials Are a "Breed of Cowards" and Blames People for Policy

London, December 26.—Ever since the days of Napoleon the possibility of a successful invasion of England has seriously exercised the minds of the military strategists. Public interest in the question has been awakened by two remarkable letters addressed by Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley to Lord Wemyss. Lord Wolseley argues that England can never have an efficient army during peace, and therefore must accept reboffs and calamities, which are always in store for a "nation that is content to follow the breed of cowards who usually direct her great affairs."

Viscount Wolseley considers one political party as good as another and hopes that when national misfortune or great defeat at sea overtakes us, followed by the invasion of England or Ireland, John Bull will turn and rend the jawers and talkers who prevent us from being prepared to meet invasion."

PUTS BLAME ON PEOPLE.

Viscount Wolseley does not find fault with Mr. Haldane, the present war minister, who, he says, acts after the manner of all English war ministers, but blames the English people who pretend to scoff at the possibility of invasion and refuse in their stuck up policy to regard warnings which the great Duke of Wellington left to the nation as a legacy. The field marshal continues:

"The invasion of England has been at all times a favorite military problem with me. I have studied it in all its phases, since the days of my boyhood, I cut from newspapers the warning contained in the Duke of Wellington's letter to Sir John Burgoyne on this serious subject. I should like to see our navy half again as strong as it is, but still to be quite secure against invasion we require a strong defensive army also. Our great duke said that England was now joined to France by an isthmus of steam."

FEARS COMBINED FOES.

In a second letter Viscount Wolseley remarks:

"Other nations—I need not name them—are now very strong at sea, as well as ourselves, and any well-planned combination among them might, I believe, give our enemies command of the channel for a sufficiently long time to enable a great invading army to be landed on our coast. The only stores it would require would be ammunition, as our rich country would furnish it with every other requisite.

"I am well aware how much I lay myself open to hostile criticism, aye, even to angry ridicule, when I assert and believe in a possible invasion of England, but as a military student I prefer to err with such great soldiers as Napoleon and Wellington upon such questions than to agree with the politicians in office, upon whom a matter that must be at no very distant date one of life or death to us as a nation, I have never written so much before on this subject, which some years ago often troubled my waking thoughts."

VIEWS ARE INDORSED.

Lord Wemyss, in an interview, emphatically indorses Wolseley's warning, and contends that England, so far from being safe, is in deadly peril.

Dr. Miller Maguire, a close student of military matters, regards Wolseley as one of the most judicious critics now living, and adds:

"He has had enormous practical experience in war, and an experience probably second to no man living. He was a spectator of the civil war in America. He has commanded campaign after campaign and studied military history in the trenches at Sebastopol. The man who ignores Viscount Wolseley's opinion insults not so much Wolseley as the nation whose wars he fought."

Major General Sir Alfred Turner does not take such a gloomy view of the situation.

Double Murder on C. N. R. Line

Italians Stab Three Swedes, One of Whom May Die, and Kill Canadian.

Parry Sound, Dec. 27.—A message from Grant's Camp, on the Canadian Northern Railway construction works, reached here yesterday with news of a murder and serious stabbing affray in that vicinity last night. It is said a party of Italians, probably under the influence of liquor, started from the camp and went to the farm house of Mr. McCormick. They started to kick up a row there, and attempted to assault Mrs. McCormick. Word had been sent to the camp of the disturbance, and a party of Swedes, headed by Mr. McDodd, a nephew of Grant, the contractor, started out. On their arrival at McCormick's, a fight took place, in which McDodd was fatally stabbed, and died shortly afterwards. Three of the Swedes were also stabbed, one probably fatally. The Italians got away and pursuit is being made. McCormick's farm is about six miles from Whitestone and thirty miles from here. Crown Attorney Haight, being notified, started constables in pursuit.

Are Foreigners Preferred In Canada

London, Dec. 27.—Mgr. Count Peter Vay, a well-known Hungarian prelate, addressing the Hungarian Geographical Society on Hungarian settlement in Canada, said the agricultural settlers retain their Hungarian character in the first generation, but their children are already more English than Hungarian, and feel themselves Canadian citizens.

Aylmer Maude, who helped to organize the emigration of Doukhobors to Canada, writing the Times re Peter Verigin's visit to Russia, says Verigin is an able politician and quite aware that, in negotiation with the Canadian government, it would be a strong card if he can show he has an invitation to return to Russia on terms which the Canadian government refuse, viz., on terms of semi-independence for the Dukhoman community. It will, however, be a case of pure bluff for the Doukhobors are far too well off in Canada to wish to leave it, and are well aware that any promises Premier Stolypin may make them are quite likely to be disregarded by his successors. Further on, Maude says, "Whatever concessions he obtains from governments tend to maintain his prestige among his followers, and, on the other hand, his control over them tends to make the Canadian government considerate of his 'demands.'"

"An Englishman," writing in the Standard from Manitoba, says he has met Englishmen endeavoring to conceal their nationality in order to improve their chances of obtaining employment.

ROMANCE IS OVER

Archduke Who Married Poor Girl Now Seeks a Divorce.

New York, Dec. 27.—A despatch from Vienna to a newspaper here says; Archduke Leopold Salvator, who renounced his family rights four years ago, and married Wilhelmina Adamovic, the daughter of a post office employe, with whom he has since lived near Geneva, is now seeking a divorce.

He has summoned a Vienna lawyer to arrange terms with his wife, who has already agreed to a separation.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP WAS A COSTLY FAILURE

Indiana Towns and Cities Spend Money Lavishly and Beyond Debt Limit to Demonstrate Inability of Reformers.

Indianapolis, December 26.—Indiana cities and towns have had their fill of municipal ownership and the General Assembly will bristle with bills to place municipal plants of all sorts under control of the state. In places where municipal ownership has been secured under specious promises by the "reformers," people have found the principal object of the reformers was to provide themselves and their friends with fat positions and opportunities to spend money in a manner that would wreck a private concern in a month.

Many cities have been bonded beyond the legal limit and the rate is unusually high where these experiments have been tried. In spite of this expenditure of money the service is much poorer than it formerly was under private ownership.

Some cities, having exceeded the debt limit, are now going further in debt on the installment plan, thus fastening the expenses upon future generations. Municipal ownership promoters are the only ones who are opposing state control.

Feeling in South Africa Favors Imperial Trade

W. T. R. Preston Reporting from Cape Town Says Canadian Cheese and Canned Goods are In Great Demand.

Ottawa, Dec. 27.—W. T. R. Preston, writing to the Department of Trade and Commerce from Cape Town, says it needs but a cursory acquaintance with the commercial situation there to convince one that a good market exists for Canadian products. This is due in the first place to a strong imperial sentiment, and secondly to a belief that Canadian goods are of good quality. Mr. Preston met a very active demand for Canadian cheese and Canadian canned fruits, and adds that to ensure profitable sales of either of these commodities the goods should be of the very first quality.

J. S. Larke, Canadian Commercial Agent in Sydney, thinks it would be a desirable thing if Canada could produce a plant that would furnish material for the manufacture of Sander twine. He calls attention to a plant commonly known as the New Zealand flax, which produces leaves about six feet in length and three inches in width which yield, he says, the strongest fiber that is grown. The same plant has been known to flourish in northern Scotland, and can be acclimatized, therefore, in South Ontario and in portions of the Maritime Provinces and British Columbia.

F. B. McNamara, Canadian Commercial Agent at Manchester, writes that, if our bacon is to maintain its position on the British market the shipment must be on a more liberal scale. The English merchants look hopefully to the time when Canada can produce more hogs, and there is a generally expressed wish that her vast resources should be turned in this direction.

Mr D H Ross, Commercial Agent in Melbourne, Australia, reports that the Australian railway system for for 1906 yielded a net revenue of £5,349,969, which is an improvement of £853,389 over the preceding year.

THE LIGHTS WENT OUT

We will have to ask the indulgence of our readers on the lack of news in this issue. Through some mishap at the power house the lights and power were shut off and as a result the machines on which our type is set had to be closed down.

Parry Sound, Dec. 27.—Crown Attorney Haight has received notification of the recapture at Fort Severn of Henry Cassanette, a desperado of the worst type, who on May 30 escaped from the jail here, where he was awaiting trial on several serious charges, among them the brutal treatment of his daughter. Cassanette was taken by Constables J. J. Vent and W. E. N. Ferguson at Victoria Harbor, without resistance. He was sawing logs at the time, and was unarmed.

LIFE GROWING SHORTER.

Are We Really Dying Earlier Than Our Grandparents Did?

In part one of the third volume of the United States census for 1900 will be found a tabular statement which shows in a very striking way the rise in the death rate during the decade from 1890 to 1900 for all ages from sixty up. The figures given are now six years old, and so I have brought them up to date with the help of fresh information from Washington, a matter of no little importance, inasmuch as the increase has been marked ever since 1900. Thus corrected for accuracy the reckoning shows that since 1890 there has been this increase in the death rate for the entire United States:

For people of ages from 60 to 64, 7 per cent.

For people of ages from 65 to 69, 6½ per cent.

For people of ages from 70 to 74, 16½ per cent.

For people of ages from 75 to 79, 7 per cent.

For people of ages from 80 to 84, 15 per cent.

For people of ages from 85 to 89, 12 per cent.

For people of ages from 90 to 94, 39½ per cent.

For people of ages from 95 and up, 39½ per cent.

These figures tell the story more clearly than the most eloquent discourse on the subject. They show that, notwithstanding improved medical knowledge and the benefits of modern sanitation, we are dying earlier than our grandparents did. The reason why offers a topic for a considerable discussion and is not to be summed up in a word. But one may discover it without much difficulty in the more complex and luxurious life that we lead. The lives of our forbears were comparatively simple, and their constitutions, unweakened by the luxury and intense nervous strain of an existence like that of today, were stronger than ours and better able to withstand the approaches of disease.—Reader Magazine.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THIRTY FEET TALL.

Horses Roamed In Wyoming In Olden Days Now Fossilized.

Out in Wyoming a lot of scientific grubbers have unearthed the fossil remains of a horse thirty feet long and more than thirty feet high. The grubbers seem to have pieced the horse together without any comment, and they don't offer a word of information concerning either his genealogy or his track record.

A horse thirty feet long would appear to be a lot of horse. If he belonged to the cave man the latter certainly had his hands full. A horse so tall that a thirty foot ladder became necessary when his bridle was to be put on might well be called the pride of the stable, although no ordinary stable would begin to accommodate him.

If the cave man hadn't any ladder and couldn't borrow one the next best thing was to climb a tree. Then try to imagine him shinning up a tall palm with the heavy bridle on his back, only to find when he attained the right attitude that the horse had moved beyond reach and was peacefully browsing on the tall grass of the jungle!

Of course a thirty-foot horse could be expected to cover much more ground than the ordinary animal of the same breed, even at a walk. And if he took it into his head to work his way across lots there would appear to be nothing to impede him. Fences would go down before him like stubble, and a merely playful cavort would carry him over raging torrents.

When a thirty foot horse shied at a bit of white paper in the roadway the chances are that he jumped clear over into the next county.

As a war horse the thirty footer must have been a startler. When he let out a neigh the enemy fled in blind and unreasoning terror. When he champed his bit and pawed the ground the very hills shuddered. When he switched his tail the hireling foe fell about him like ripened grain.

And then think of the nightmare that would be expected to follow the first sight of this prodigious equine! He certainly was a wonder. It is a great pity we know so little about him.—Cheyenne News.

Vanishing Chinchillas.

In common with many animals noted for the beauty and value of their fur, the chinchilla of South America is in danger of becoming extinct, owing to the reckless impunity with which these little natives of the Andes have been slaughtered both in season and out. The chinchilla is about the size of a squirrel, has a head somewhat the shape of a rabbit's and is covered with a light gray, silky fur, which has long been very popular in the fur markets of the world. Chinchillas are captured in various ways, but the most common method is to hunt them with dogs, the fox terrier being the most useful and skillful in their capture. In hunting them the Indians employ a weasel, which is trained to enter the crevices of the rocks, where the animals often lie concealed during the day to avoid the sunshine, and drive them out, when they are easily killed. The rapid extermination of the chinchilla and the absolute lack of protection or regulation in taking them have resulted in a tremendous advance in the price of the skins in the past two years.

Defying the Tooth of Time.

The Hungarian chemist Brunn claims to have discovered a liquid chemical compound which renders certain kinds of matter proof against the effects of time. He asserts that it doubles the density of nearly every kind of stone and renders it waterproof. It imparts to all metals qualities which defy oxygen and rust. The professor says that while traveling in Greece some twenty-five years ago he noticed that the mortar in stones of ruins which were known to be 2,000 years old was as hard, fresh and tenacious as if it had been made only a year. He secured a piece of the mortar and has been working on it ever since, until now, when, he says, he has discovered the secret. His discovery, he claims, will at the least double the life of metal exposed to the air, such as in bridges, railroads, vessels and tanks.—Consular and Trade Reports.

THE ALDERMANIC ELECTIONS

As the municipal elections steadily draw nearer, new names are mentioned as aspirants for aldermanic honors, and rumors become more frequent of the retirement from the front of battle of some of those who have occupied seats at the council board during the present year.

It is always to be expected, of course, that some men will find it necessary in the interests of their private affairs to retire from the political arena after having devoted one or more years to looking after civic matters, perhaps, to the detriment of their own business. Such bids fair to be the case this year, for two of the aldermen have already signified their intention to seek re-election in January. Others are aspiring to fill the vacancies, and still others will probably announce their candidature later.

The citizens have a grave responsibility upon them at this juncture. It is their prerogative to nominate and elect men to administer the affairs of our city who will be able to give a good account of their stewardship when their terms of office expires. This year's council, while perhaps they have made some mistakes, as all men do, are winding up a year which reflects considerable credit upon them.

It is to be hoped that the majority of them will consent to offer themselves for re-election and that a sufficient number of representative and capable men will be found to fill the vacancies that will occur on the board, to give the city a singularly capable aldermanic board for 1907.

The matter rests largely with the citizens, who have it in their power to create such a council as they wish.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The Brinton Carpet Company By-Law.

North Monaghan a Large Gainer by Other Industries.

(To the Editor of The Times).

Dear Sir—Two bylaws for the consideration of the ratepayers of the Township of North Monaghan will be voted on at the date fixed for the Municipal Elections, viz: January 7th, 1907. One, The Brinton Carpet Company of Canada is asking for a fixed taxation for ten years at $10,000.

This company is expending in the township about a quarter of a million dollars on their real estate, buildings, plant, sewer, water mains, and railway sidings.

The City of Peterborough agreed, providing this property was taken into the city, to fix the assessment covering the above term at $5,000, one half the sum mentioned in the Brinton Company's bylaw.

The company will employ about 250 hands. New dwellings will be built in this section, subject, of course, to the usual taxation of the township; the property in the neighborhood and all through the township will be increased in value.

The other, The Peterborough Sandstone Brick Company has a capitalization of $50,000, which has been expended in their plant, situated in the Township of North Monaghan, just at the south-western limits of the city. The company has given employment to twenty or twenty-five men, most of whom live in that vicinity, and several of whom are erecting houses for themselves. The operations of the company have created considerable activity in real estate in this section, and already park lots are being laid out to the west of the company's property. The class of houses, too, that are being erected are of a very substantial nature, and add to the general appearance of the section in question.

To deal justly with these companies in fixing their assessments, as asked, will doubtless encourage other manufacturing industries to locate in the township.

The location of the many industries now in the south of the city has greatly improved the value of the township real estate, and many dwellings are erected and in course of erection.

The closer the industries are to the farmers the greater is the price of all farm produce.

Should our industries be located in Belleville, Kingston or other cities, the freight and commission for handling produce must necessarily be deducted from prices now received. Produce from goods received from a distance cannot come into competition with the home market even though lower in price owing to the condition it is in when offered for sale. Townships must hereafter be the location of the new industries; there is little room left in the city, and it is to the direct interest financially and in many other ways of the farming community of this county to reasonably aid for a term of years all proposed manufacturers who are desirous of locating here. Do not forget that the location and fair treatment, such as is offered in other places, of one industry nearly always leads to others, and thus a manufacturing center is formed. Remember a majority only of votes cast in favor of the bylaw is not sufficient; the assent of two-thirds of the ratepayers entitled to vote is required unless the votes cast against the bylaw do not exceed one-fifth, in which event the assent of three-fifths is necessary.

The increased value of lands in the front of the township adds to the value of the whole township, and the additional moneys received from new dwellings and other improvements are spent on the roads of the township at large.

The bylaws received the unanimous consent of the members of the township council. Every ratepayer should make it a point to vote in favor of these bylaws.

Dated at Peterborough December 26, 1906.

Male Birds Lead the Way.

When birds are migrating the males usually precede the females. The robins, for instance, which are seen early in the year, are almost invariably males, which apparently traveled on before their mates. The female birds follow, perhaps because they are not so powerful and also perhaps because they like to take their time and gossip with one another. In the fall the male birds leave first—the old ones—while the females travel along together with their young, solicitous for their welfare and still training them after the fashion of mother birds.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary:—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the A Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $5,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 200,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold; the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so (in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid may into 10 fully paid $100 Share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions (20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100 Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present, The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs. J.A. Banfield, F. H. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In consequence of the great inquiry at the Company's Offices for Prospectus and Forms of Application for Shares, the Company begs to notify that Prospectus and Application Forms can be obtained upon request at any branch of "THE TRADERS' BANK OF CANADA" throughout the Dominion. Also requests for same by letter or postcard will be at once despatched to applicants from the Company's Offices in Winnipeg.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. PROPERTY AND LOCATION

The property consists of forty acres being the south-west quarter of the north half of lot 6 in concession 1 Township of Burke. The property of this Company lies about three-quarters of a mile north-west from the celebrated Trethewey mine and is identically of the same formation. Vein matter was found in this property right from the surface and subsequent prospecting has revealed several well defined veins. On the main vein several nuggets of native silver were found. A shaft had been sunk to a depth of fourteen feet, when the property was taken over by this Company.

WORK ON THE PROPERTY

At present a camp is being built and active development work is being proceeded with. One half of the Company's property is still unprospected.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Of all Cobalt Mining Companies none can show a sounder business basis than this. The organizers had such confidence in the property that they have taken their entire interest in stock and have pooled same for six months, evidencing the fact of their absolute confidence in the value of the Company's property at the par value of $1.00 per share. ONLY 25000 shares are being issued at the present time for active development work. It is confidently expected that this will be sufficient to make this property a shipper, and if so the public can at a glance see what the value of these shares will be, having regard to the fact that only 75,000 shares of the Company will have been issued. The stock is not being offered outside of Ottawa as the Directors feel confident this small amount will be oversubscribed here. Address

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER,

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"Can you describe him?" Trove inquired.

"He was a big man, with white whiskers an' hair, an' he wore light breeches an' a short, blue coat."

"Again the friend of Darrel," Trove thought.

"Did you tell the tinker about your boss the night we were all at Robin's Inn last summer?"

"I told him the whole story, an' he pumped me dry. I'd answer him an' he'd holler 'Very well,' an' shoot another question at me."

"Well, Thurst, go on with your story."

"Couldn't tell ye just what happened. They went off int' the house. Nex' day the boss tol' me he wa'n't no longer a poor man an' was goin' t' sell his farm an' leave for Californy. In a tavern near where we lived the stranger died sudden that night, an' the funeral was at our house, an' he was buried there in Iowy."

Trove walked to the bench and stood a moment looking out of the window.

"Strange!" said he, returning presently, with tearful eyes. "Do you remember the date?"

"'Twas a Friday, 'bout the middle o' September."

Trove turned, looking up at the brazen dial of the tall clock. It indicated 4:30 in the morning of Sept. 19.

"Were there any with him when he died?"

"Yes; the tavern keeper; it was some kind of a stroke, they told me."

"And your boss—did he go to California?" Trove asked.

"He sold the farm an' went to Californy. I worked there awhile, but the boss an' me couldn't agree, an' so I pulled up an' trotted fer home."

"To what part of California did Thompson go?"

"Hadn't no idee where he would stick his stakes. He was goin' int' the gold business."

Trove sat busy with his own thoughts while Thurston Tilly, warming to new confidence, boiled over with enthusiasm for the far west. A school friend of the boy came by and by, whereupon Tilly whistled and hurried away.

"Did you know," said the newcomer when Trove and he were alone, "that Roberts, the man who tried to send you up, is a young lawyer and is going to settle here? He and Polly are engaged."

"Engaged!"

"So he gave me to understand."

"Well, if she loves him and he's a good fellow, I've no right to complain."

"I don't believe that he's a good fellow," said the other.

"Why do you say that?"

"Well, a detective is—is"—

"A necessary evil?" Trove suggested.

"Just that," said the other. "He must pretend to be what he isn't, and—well, a gentleman is not apt to sell himself for that purpose. Now, he's trying to convince people that you knew as much about the crime as Darrel. In my opinion he isn't honest. Good looks and fine raiment are all there is to that fellow, take my word for it."

"You're inclined to judge him harshly," said Trove. "But I'm worried, for I fear he's unworthy of her, and—and I must leave town tomorrow."

"Shall you go to see her?"

"No; not until I know more about him. I have friends here, and they will give her good counsel. Soon they'll know what kind of a man he is, and, if necessary, they'll warn her. I'm beset with trouble, but, thank God, I know which way to turn."

CHAPTER XXX.

NEXT morning Trove was on his way to Quebec—a long, hard journey in the winter time those days. Leblanc had moved again, so they told him in Quebec; this time to Plattsburg, in Clinton county, N. Y. There, however, Trove was unable to find the Frenchman. A week of patient inquiry; then leaving promises of reward for information, he came away. He had yet another object of his travels—the prison at Dannemora—and came there of a Sunday morning late in February. Its towers were bathed in sunlight; its shadow lay dark upon the snow. He shivered in the gloom of this shadow as he went up a driveway and rang a bell. The warden received him kindly.

"I wish to see Roderick Darrel—he is my friend," said Trove as he gave the warden a letter.

"Come with me," said the official presently. "He is talking to the men."

They passed through gloomy corridors to the chapel door. Trove halted to compose himself, for now he could hear the voice of Darrel.

"Let me stand here awhile; I cannot go in now," he whispered.

The voice stopped. There was a moment of deep silence. Then a stir in the audience—a stir of hands and handkerchiefs. Trove entered; the chaplain was now reading a hymn. Darrel sat behind him on a raised platform, the silken spray upon his brows, long and white as snow, his face thoughtful and serious. The reading over, he came and sat among the men, singing as they sang. The benediction, a stir of feet, and the prisoners began to press about him, some kissing his hands. He gave each a kindly greeting. It was like the night of the party on Cedar hill. A moment more, and the crowd was filing away, some looking back curiously at Trove, who stood, his arms about the old man.

"Courage, boy!" the latter was saying. "I know it cuts thee like a sword, an' would to God I could have spared thee even this. Look! In yon high window I can see the sunlight, an', believe me, there is not a creature it shines upon so happy as I. God love thee, boy; God love thee!"

He put his cheek upon that of the boy and stroked his hair gently. Then a little time of silence, and the storm had passed.

"A fine, fine lad ye are," said Darrel, looking proudly at the young man, who stood now quite composed. "Let me take thy hand. Aye, 'tis a mighty arm ye have, an' some day, some day, it will shake the towers."

"You will both dine with me in my quarters at 1," said the warden.

Trove turned with a look of surprise.

"Thank ye, sor. An' mind ye make room for Wit an' Happiness," said the tinker.

"Bring them along—they're always welcome at my table," the warden answered, with a laugh.

"Know ye not they're in prison now for keeping bad company?" said Darrel as he turned. "Ay I, boy," he added, shaking the boy's head. "Ah, then, good cheer an' many a merry jest."

Darrel left the room, waving his hand. Trove and the warden made their way to the prison office.

"A wonderful man!" said the latter as they went. "We love and respect him and give him all the liberty we can. For a long time he has been nursing in the hospital, and when I see that he is overworking I bring him to my office and set him at easy jobs."

Darrel came presently, and they went to dinner. The tinker bowed politely to the warden's wife and led her to the table.

"Good friends," said he as they were sitting down, "there is an hour that is short o' minutes an' yet holds a week o' pleasure. Who can tell me which hour it is?"

"I never guessed a riddle," said the woman.

"Marry, dear madam, 'tis the hour o' thy hospitality," said the old man.

"When you are in it," she answered with good humor.

"Fellow travelers on the road to heaven," said Darrel, raising his glass, "St. Peter is fond of a smiling face."

"And when you see him you'll make a jest," were the words of the warden.

"For I believe he is a lover o' good company," said Darrel.

So the dinner went on, others talking only to encourage the tongue of Darrel. Trove, well as he knew the old man, had been surprised by his fortitude. Far from being broken, his spirit was happy, masterful, triumphant.

Darrel and Trove went away with the warden, who bade them sit awhile in his office. Tinker and young man were there talking until the day was gone. The warden sat apart, reading. Now and again they whispered earnestly, as if they were not agreed, Darrel shaking his forefinger and his head. Trove came away as the dark fell, a sad and thoughtful look upon him.

Tops are cut from pieces of box, ebony or other hard wood by a turning machine. The machine is automatic and turns the top complete from the handle at the upper end to the tip. The metal point is afterward put in by hand.

Butter in London.

The London Times asserts that genuine dairy butter is a thing past praying for. Four-fifths of the population of London, the Times asserts, have never seen it in their lives. Those who know what it is have great difficulty in procuring it and cannot obtain it in many cases at any price. What is called genuine butter in London, the Times says, is blended and reworked butter.

Bayonets.

Bayonets are now altogether machine made, a very simple as well as clever contrivance stamping the steel into proper shape.

A Wonderful Scholar.

Antonio Magliabecchi, the famous Florentine scholar, was remarkable not only for the amount and variety of his knowledge—for he knew accurately sixty different languages—but also for his incessant labors as a student and librarian. "He usually passed the whole night in study and when exhausted nature demanded rest a straw chair served for a couch and an old threadbare cloak for a coverlet."

Two Miles of Development

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite. No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,600 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

If you want to invest in a MINE with vast possibilities, let us hear from you at once and we will send detailed information.

Do You Seek Health?

Consult Dr. Hamilton And You Will Be Shown the Way.

Thousands are in the same boat—all sickly, bilious and feeling far from well.

Trouble is, the system is clogged with impurities which need to be cleared away.

Before downright sickness arrives you should cleanse and purify the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

At once you feel their mighty influence building up weak spots, clearing out disease, and putting you again on your feet.

These purely vegetable pills change your tired, worn-out condition to one of health and vigor, because they supply the body with nourishing blood that builds up and enlivens the entire system.

Mr. John Whitley, of Stanwood, P. O., Ont., knows the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and says: "I wouldn't be alive today had it not been for Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Last winter I was sick with grippe, and when spring came I was weak, bilious and rheumatic. I used enough medicine to cure twenty times, but I didn't get any help till I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They purified my blood, took the yellow color out of my face, put new tone in my my stomach, and increased my appetite. The bilious attacks and rheumatic pains gradually departed, and Dr. Hamilton's Pills made a new man of me. I proved their merit, and proclaim them a medicine for all men."

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—Xmas Day in this city, was observed with all its old time festivities.

—A large band from the 57th Regiment was in attendance at the street railway rink last night.

—For bargains in fancy goods and stationery, see our display of 25 and 50 cent articles. Times Bookstore.

—Yesterday a peculiar apparition appeared on George street. When a huge punt on bob-sleighs passed on its way to McDonald's camp at "Fords."

—Charlotte street church Sunday school on Christmas Day, had the largest collection on record amounting to over $73 in addition to the regular offering.

—As an indication of Peterborough's morality and decency it might be noted that after Christmas Day there was not one case to be tried yesterday in the police court.

—The Lakefield Cement Company's men who have been working at Lily Lake under Mr. Geo. Allen, foreman, are moving the seat of their operations to Drummond Station. There are six men in the gang.

—Biscuit jars and fern pots at greatly reduced prices for balance of this month. Times Bookstore, Marcth Block.

—Peterborough market goers have been buying turkeys at 11 cents per pound. In Lindsay 15 and 16 cents is the ruling price, while in Port Hope a merchant asks 20 cents. Cheap and rapid transportation doesn't seem to be much of a price leveller at times.—Lindsay Post.

Piles get quick relief from Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Remember it's made alone for Piles—and it works with certainty and satisfaction. Itching, painful, protruding, or blind piles disappear like magic by its use. Try it and see! J. D. Tully.

—The many friends of Mr. J. D. Haig will regret to hear of his resignation as chief turnkey at the counties jail. Mr. Haig has held the position since 1900, when he succeeded Mr. John Higgins, and has performed the duties of the office efficiently.—Port Hope Guide.

—Rev. J. S. McMullen, who is completing his fourth year at Grace church, Trenton, was the recipient of a valuable overcoat, Persian lamb collar and cap and comfortable gloves, accompanied by a complimentary address, expressing high appreciation of his labors since coming to town.

Canadian General To Build Here

The Canadian General Electric Company, is about to add extensively to their present large works in this city, and will begin work at once on the immense new transformer building, and in addition to that they will put up an addition to the lamp and wire department. The new structure will be 250 feet long and two storeys high, giving the department an increased capacity of from 100 to 150 per cent. and will give employment to probably 150 more men.

It will require something like 300,000 bricks before the building is completed besides large quantities of steel, stone, wood and other materials.

Dr. Cameron to Locate Here.

Peterborough seems, notwithstanding its recognized salubriety to be a mecca for the medical profession. Although doctors here are in good proportion to the population, still another son of Esculapius in the person of Dr. G. S. Cameron, who has practised for the past ten years in Omemee, has arrived and, preparatory to working up a local practice has purchased property at the corner of Charlotte and Stewart streets. The doctor has just completed a post-graduate course in Chicago.

Separate School Trustees.

Nominations for school trustees for the Separate School took place yesterday and resulted as follows;

No. 1 Ward—M. L. Henry.
No. 2 Ward—Jas. Murty.
No. 3 Ward—J. J. Lynch.
No. 4 Ward—T. J. Lane.
No. 5 Ward—Jas. Clancy.

The above were elected by acclamation.

DO NOT BE A BURDEN

Some Good Advice to Readers of The Times.

A weak stomach and its resulting ills are not natural. With proper care and the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, the very worst cases of indigestion or stomach trouble can be completely cured.

It is a sin to deprive oneself of enjoyment in life and become a burden to others through indigestion.

The backaches, headaches, distress after eating, loss of appetite, gulping up of undigested food and gases are not natural. Mi-o-na stomach tablets used for a few days before meals will so strengthen the digestive organs that you can eat anything you want without fear of distress or resulting sickness.

The directions for taking Mi-o-na emphasize the difference between this remedy and the ordinary medicine that is given for indigestion. Mi-o-na is to be used before meals, strengthening the digestive system for the food which is to be eaten, while the ordinary remedy is taken after meals, and simply digests the food without strengthening the stomach.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

To Erect Monument To Late Mr. Logan

Referring to one of Canada's leading cricketers and a gentleman well known here, the Galt Reformer says;

That Mr. C. J. Logan, B.A., whose sudden death occurred in the hospital on Friday, exercised a profound influence over those who had the good fortune to attend the G.C.I. during the twenty odd years that he was master of classics, is evidenced by the fact that a number of ex-pupils are contemplating perpetuating his memory by installing in the new G.C.I. some suitable mark of their esteem.

Nothing definite has been done as yet, but it is highly probable that arrangements will be made whereby ex-pupils may contribute for the purchase of a memorial tablet, or an oil-painting. The late Mr. Logan was known throughout the province as a consummate scholar, and a thorough gentleman, and one of the highest compliments that can be paid his memory is the fact that his staunchest friends consisted of those who have passed through his hands as pupils. As one of these earnestly remarked at the funeral service this morning, "He was a man!" and ex-pupils will be only too glad of an opportunity to show some mark of their high esteem.

It is to be hoped that the commendable project for the purchase of a memorial, will assume definite form, and be carried to a successful issue.

Mr. Harold Cluxton's Worth Appreciated

A pleasing feature of the Christmas holiday season was that when Mr. W. Harold Cluxton, manager of the porcelain department of the Canadian General Electric Company, was presented with a handsome gold locket by the employes of his department. The gift was accompanied by the following address;—

Mr. Cluxton—We, the members of this department, as you to accept this token, as a mere remembrance of what you have done for us in past years. We assure you, you have fulfilled your duties towards us in a manner that we cannot find words to express the good feeling that stands between you and your employes. We assure you that the highest respect and esteem is due you, and we hope that God may spare you for many long years to come. We all join in wishing you a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.

Peterborough, Dec. 24, 1906.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt Is Remembered

The German Conversation Club of which Rev. E. A. Langfeldt is the instructor, displayed in a practical manner their appreciation of his services and the high esteem in which he is held by them. This popular local divine was made the recipient of two very handsome steel engravings from his class on Christmas eve.

The people at the different places where Mr. Langfeldt holds the weekly cottage prayer meetings, also remembered him at Christmas and presented him with a handsome pair of fur gauntlets.

Mikado by Local Talent.

That Peterborough possesses great dramatic ability is demonstrated by the fact that on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 10th, 11th and 12th, about 50 young folk of the city will give three performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's famous comic opera, "The Mikado," under the management of Mr. R. J. Devey.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weakness and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Permits for Building Should be Demanded

One of the candidates for reelection as alderman, will go to the Meetings as a possible Mty father on the platform of insistence on having building permits issued for every building erected in the city hereafter. Without either advocating or deprecating the worthy alderman's stand on this point it might be noted, without doubt of contradiction on this statement that there has been a great laxity in this matter. Ald. Graham a few months ago brought up, when a certain citizen asked to build a single brick wall building in the fire limit, and was granted the privelege, how a man for whom he had taken a building contract was compelled to build even a back kitchen with a 14-inch wall. In this matter, in the general interest there should be no favoritism. If the city bylaw necessitates wall of a certain thickness in the fire limits, both Smith, Jones, Brown, Roe or Poe should be compelled to comply with the law, and neither of them be allowed to build without a properly issued and properly advertised permit issued.

In this matter we do not advocate the claims of any candidate but simply refer to a matter of vital interest to every citizen of Peterborough.

Peterboro' Must Have a New Coll. Institute

Mr. Dumble and other Influential Citizens Say the By-Law Will Carry---Will Be Voted on at Municipal Elections.

Influential citizens and business men are manifesting commendable interest in the Collegiate Institute by-law, which is to be voted on by the ratepayers at the municipal elections January 7th.

That Peterborough needs a Collegiate Institute is recognized by all thinking citizens, who deplore the fact that the Electric City, famed throughout the Dominion for its substantial progress of recent years, is unfortunately lacking a high school building which our citizens could allude to with pride and where our children would enjoy all the advantages of modern equipment and later date facilities in aid of the higher grades of education.

The Board of Education have one of the finest sites in the city on which to erect the new Collegiate Institute, and all that is now needed is the carrying of the bylaw by the ratepayers, a result of which will be an assurance to the rising generation of high school educational accommodation in keeping with that of other places of not nearly so great importance as Peterborough.

Mr D. W. Dumble yesterday gave his views on this matter to the press as follows;

He was asked the question, "What do you think about the Collegiate Institute bylaw?" and his reply was;

"I think the bylaw should be carried."

"Can you give me some of your reasons?"

"Yes; Peterborough never owned an institute building; the trustees rented from the Public School Board. The School Board now want the building for public school purposes, and the building of an institute cannot be avoided. I have always been in favor of erecting such an building, but I did not approve of spending $100,000 on it.

"The present plans provide all the required present accommodation, and can be completed for about $61,000. You know the people by their vote for $50,000, approved an expenditure of that much, but selecting the Central Park for a site took $10,000, leaving only $40,000 for the new building, meanwhile everything has got more costly, labor, materials, etc., and $40,000 will not how put up a building that would be creditable to the city. Why, Port Hope has a new Collegiate, Cobourg has a splendid new Collegiate, and is now finishing an eight-room public school that will cost with the land, $40,000. Galt voted $50,000 for an institute, but when half up the money was exhausted, they went back to the people for more and were turned down. Our Board didn't want to get into that trouble, so they have candidly submitted the whole matter to the people. It is their matter. We have 300 pupils in the Institute, and we cannot afford to break up the school and be laughed at by the whole country. The Board have carefully gone into the whole matter. One thing is certain they will not let the contracts unless they are within the amount the people put at their disposal. You see the Ontario Government are going back to Parliament for more money to build the Normal Schools, as the tenders ran far beyond the estimates. We are doing the same thing, and we believe the people will help the board when they are making an honest effort to deal candidly with the people, and to put up a building without extravagancies, yet respectable and worthy of the site and the city. We are a good progressive city, but in school buildings we are a back number. Any new buildings put up must not bring shame on us."

"Then you think the people will carry the bylaw?"

"I certainly do; they want to be treated with respect and confidence, and what is reasonable and fair they will always support. So far I have not heard one man oppose the grant. With the armory, the Collegiate, the Model School, the addition to the North Ward school, the big Gutta Percha concern, etc., we will have a booming trade next year; but it is only one indication; we have the indications of great growth for our city, which will add greatly to our population. Our city has doubled in fifteen years, yet we have not increased our school accommodation. Our present school extension is forced on us, and we must meet the demands."

"Good-bye."

Rich Oil Fields In Manitoulin

Startling Finds on Manitoulin Island Greater Than Pennsylvania.

Montreal, December 28.—Further facts were received by Mr. L. O. Armstrong, colonization agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, today, which deal with the discovery of oil in Manitoulin Island, Lake Huron. It is now known that 100 wells have been sunk at a cost of about $600 each, and all a result the discoverers believe that they have an even greater oil ground than Pennsylvania had in its greatest days. To add to this, St. Joseph's Island, which is of the same geographical formation as Manitoulin, is known to have the same oil qualities.

In Pennsylvania it used to cost $1,500 to sink a well as against $600 in Canada today. There is a belief in many quarters that this is the beginning of a great rival to the Standard Oil Company which today controls the world's products of petroleum.

Bank Teller's Loot Recovered.

Austin, Tex., December 28.—Between $5,000 and $9,000 stolen by Wm. C. Anderson, formerly assistant paying teller of the First National Bank of Kansas City, who was arrested here last week, has been found here. According to the agents of the Surety Company that bonded Anderson, the amount is sufficiently large, with that turned over by Anderson when arrested, to reimburse the company for its $10,000 bond.

GOLD MINING IN ONTARIO

Mines in Hastings County are Again in Operation.

Belleville, December 28.—Gold mining in this district is once more looking up after a long period of depression. The Star of the East is in operation, and reports received from it are highly favorable. Mr. Warner, of Trenton, has sold a gold proposition, east of Flinton, to a company, and the proposition is now in process of development. The matte being turned out from the smelter at the Eldorado copper mine has been found to contain a sufficient percentage of gold and silver to pay the cost of transporting the matte to the refinery in New Jersey. It also contains a small quantity of nickel and cobalt.

Shipments from the Bessemer iron mine on a 2000,000 ton contract will commence shortly. Senator Brown, of Pittsburg, has been looking over some of his iron properties at Apsley, in Peterborough County, and a party of Montreal capitalists who are associated with Mr. Drummond, also have been visiting in the same vicinity.

SPECIAL TRAINS FOR KING

New One Built by London and North-Western Railway is a Beauty.

London, December 28.—It is doubtful if any train in the world can be compared with the royal train recently completed for the London and North-Western Railway Company, and now ready for any call which the King and the Queen may make upon the company. The train is composed of six carriages, and is fitted throughout with every imaginable contrivance for comfort and luxury. The decoration of the interiors is said to be unequalled in any rolling stock in existence, the color scheme including much gold and ivory white.

The dining car is a sumptuous coach, the kitchen a model; the sleeping-carriages are genuine triumphs of art and convenience. The mechanical contrivances of these coaches to reduce oscillation and jarring are such that, even at fifty miles an hour one may write a letter in perfect comfort.

Quite a number of royal trains, all sumptuously appointed, are maintained by different British railway companies for the use of their Majesties. Three companies which work the East Coast route to Scotland—the Great Northern, the North-Eastern, and the North British—are now about to build a royal train for their Majesties' convenience when traveling over the joint lines. Plans have been submitted to his Majesty.

When on the Continent the King travels in a special corridor carriage which is reserved for him.

ENTIRE TOWN TO EMIGRATE

Nine Thousand Spaniards Will Go to South America.

New York, December 28.—A cable despatch from Madrid, published here yesterday, says that nine thousand of the town of Bejar, which is 45 miles south of Salamanca, decided some time ago to emigrate in a body. A meeting was held Monday, which approved the offer of the Presidents of Uruguay and Nicaragua to supply ships and funds for the transportation of the emigrants.

SAT AROUND FIRE AND SMOTHERED

Entire Family at Niagara Falls Killed by Carbonic Acid Gas.

LITTLE GIRL LINGERS ALIVE

But Her Recovery is Said to Be Hopeless—Peculiar Fatality in Every Way.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 28.—From inhaling the poisonous fumes of carbonic acid gas as they sat in a circle before the family hearth yesterday afternoon, four members of the family of James Harris, the father, mother, and two children, are dead, and the sole remaining member, a girl of eight years, is not expected to live.

James Harris lived in a little rough-cast cottage on Ferry street, at the south end of the city. At about five o'clock little Lucy Campbell, the 11-year-old daughter of C. F. Campbell, and niece of Mr. Harris, had been skating on the sidewalk, and went into the house of her uncle to get warm. Sitting in his chair in front of the natural gas stove was her uncle, apparently asleep. That was her first impression, but noticing her aunt on the floor with arms outstretched towards the door, and the little baby girl, Gertrude, aged five, both dead, and her cousin, Myrtle, lying on the floor unconscious and groaning, and smelling the strong gas, and feeling herself becoming partially overcome, she dragged the limp form of her cousin Myrtle out of the house, dropping her body on the snow. She then gave the alarm to a lineman working across the street.

The man rushed into the house, followed by others, and found the father sitting in his chair cold in death, his wife and child both dead on the floor, and a gas flame burning high up into the little living room, with two jets of the gas burner turned full on and a lid off the top of the stove.

SICK BOY IN NEXT ROOM.

In the next room lay the lifeless form of Arthur Harris, a 13-year-old son, in bed, where he had been confined sick. He had breathed the poisonous fumes and slept away in his sick bed unconscious of what was going on in the next room with his door open, through which the fumes entered his room.

Mr. Harris came here from Whitby about nine years ago, and was employed as night furnaceman at the Vermillion Works, on the American side. He got up each afternoon at four o'clock, and evidently was enjoying the companionship of his wife and little 5-year-old daughter, playing with her Christmas toys on the floor, when the poisonous carbonic acid gas fumes from the burned natural gas from the open lid of the stove gradually stole on the little family group unawares.

The little girl Myrtle was taken to her uncle's home. A thorough search was made of the premises by Mr. Smith, superintendent of the Provincial Natural Gas Co., and two experts, whose pipes supplies the house. He says there was no free gas or unburned gas visible, and claims the family died from breathing air from which the oxygen had been burned and charged with carbonic acid gas from the open flame.

NAMES OF DEAD.

The dead are; James Harris, father 44 years; Ella Harris, mother, 36 years; Arthur Harris, son, 13 years; Gertrude Harris, daughter, 5 years. Myrtle Harris, aged eight years, is not expected to live.

Mrs. Harris was a Miss Warner of Whitby. A gloom has been cast over the entire city by the calamity that had befallen the little happy family.

The only explanation why Myrtle had not succumbed to the fumes as readily as the others is that she probably had been out doors and, coming into the house and finding the family unconscious, completely collapsed.

Japs Colonize in Mexico.

Mexico City, Mexico, December 28.—Warren Garrett, general agent of the Trans-Oceanic Emigration Company, of Tokio, Japan, for Mexico, has just placed 1,200 Japanese emigrants, who left Japan last month for Mexico. They will all be employed in the cane fields. Thirteen hundred more are en route from Japan.

MASONIC INSTALLATION AND BANQUET A BIG SUCCESS

A Banner Function in the History of Peterborough Masonry--Splendid Menu and Irresistable Entertainment.

The joint installation of officers of Corinthian Lodge, No. 101, and Peterborough Lodge, No. 155, A.F. and A.M., took place yesterday, at 4.30 p.m., in the Masonic Temple, corner George and Simcoe streets, and proved an exceedingly successful function in every way. The installing master was W. Bro. J. G. M. Wilson, with an ideal assistant in the person of W. Bro. H. R. H. Kenner. The installing ceremonies were followed by a recherche banquet, served by Mr. Thos. Hooper in the Masonic dining hall, at 7.30, at which some 125 guests sat down. Amongst the many honored guests were Bro. J. A. McDonald, of Colorado, a former Peterborough boy; Bro. Dr. Leach, of Walkworth, Bro. T. E. Kyle, of Toronto, and R.W. Bro. W. J. Drope, a former Peterborough boy.

To the toast of visiting brethren, Bro. T. E. Kyle, of Toronto, responded in a very humorous and irresistable manner. He kept his audience convulsed with laughter at his life-like delineation of Irish humor. Mr. Kyle is a humorist of the highest water, and is perfectly at home in either character song or comedy sketch. He has sung in such high-class operas as the Mikado and the Pinafore, and it may well be conceived that his generous efforts last night were more than acceptable to his assembled brethren.

Mr. F. H. Dobbin's funny presentation of school days forty-five years ago, illustrated by blackboard and chalk, proved a charming adjunct to the evening's program.

Messrs. W. McIlroy, C.P.R. ticket agent, and Herb. Morphet, of the Toronto Savings and Loan Co., were unusually popular in sentimental song. These gentlemen are exceedingly strong in vocal selections, and are favorites wherever they offer their high-class numbers.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT

Lillian Spencer in "Dolly Varden" Comes to the Grand Next Friday Evening.

The return engagement of "Dolly Varden" at the Grand Opera House, is being talked about by the theatergoers and the music lovers here. This attraction made a splendid reputation for itself when the opera was presented here before in September, and the return engagement will surely be one of interest to all music and amusement lovers. The same cast, including Miss Lillian Spencer, will be seen in the opera and the production in its entirety will be the same as when offered to the public early last fall.

Turkeys For Strikers.

Chicago, December 28.—The four thousand printers who are still on strike in the United States for an eight-hour working day received a Christmas present from the International Typographical Union of ten thousand dollars, each man receiving $2.50 in addition to his or her weekly strike pay. One condition went with the union gift, that the money was to be expended to purchase a Christmas turkey.

Last Council Meeting of 1906 Held Last Night

Presentation and Address to the Retiring Treasurer, Mr. Felix Brownscombe---Usual Routine Business.

The city fathers held their last meeting of 1906 yesterday evening, when there were present, His Worship, Mayor Best presiding, and Aldermen Johnston, Hicks, Mason, Elliott, Graham, Ball, Duncan, McIntyre, Wilson and McWilliams.

Ex-Ald. Adams, who assumes office as city treasurer on January 1st, City Engineer T. A. S. Hay, Tax Collector W. G. Green, Mr. Henderson, superintendent of the water works, and Mr. Martin, engineer of the water works, were also present at this meeting, having a deep interest in an address and presentation to Mr. Felix Brownscombe, the retiring city treasurer.

The address was read by the Mayor, and was a very eulogistic one, referring to the highly satisfactory manner in which Mr. Brownscombe had fulfilled his duties, the esteem in which he was and is held by citizens at large, and the regret at his retirement from the city treasurership by all city officials, and every one with whom he has come in contact in his official capacity.

The presentation was that of a handsome and valuable eight-day clock, which strikes in a very musical manner every quarter hour as well as every sixty minutes.

Ald. Mason made the presentation accompanied by a short, but pithy and fitting address.

The following communications were received and disposed of;—

The special committee in their report said; "Your special committee appointed in reference to your banking business beg leave to report that we asked the chartered banks doing business in the city for tenders, and having considered the tenders received, we recommended that the lowest, that of the Bank of Toronto be accepted, and that the accounts be transferred to it from Jan. 1st, 1907, and to be kept under the different heads." This report was adopted at the joint meeting, and we recommend accordingly that the city's bank account be transferred to the Bank of Toronto from Jan. 1st, next.

The report was adopted.

BYLAWS.

A bylaw to authorize the execution of a contract with Dan. Bellegham, for the care and service of the Hon. Spence ambulance at a salary of $200 a year, passed its several readings.

This bylaw was left over till next year.

Indians Burn the Railway Stations

Train Bearing Col. Maxson's Party Forced to Return—Yaquis on the War Path.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 28.—Col. H. R. Maxson, vice-president of the National Irrigation Congress, tells a graphic story of a massacre of Mexicans and Americans at the little town of Lancho on the Cananea, Yaqui River and Pacific Railroad, late Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Maxson says that, when his train stopped an hour at Lancho, rumors were received that the Yaquis were upon the war path. The station master, a man named Thompson, belittled the matter and said that he and his wife would remain at their post. The train bearing Col. Maxson and party had not left the station for more than an hour when the Yaquis descended on the little party of Mexicans and Americans, and murdered four of them.

When about fifteen miles further along the line signs of the uprising became more alarming, and Col. Maxson's party started back toward Lancho. When it arrived, the station house was found to have been burned and demolished, and four human bodies lay along the track. The desperadoes appeared in the distance, but did not come within range of the few armed people on the train.

Not many miles along the road four more dead bodies of Mexicans and Americans were discovered along the tracks. The remaining members of the company at this station would not leave, but stated that they could stand off the Indians till the rurales arrived.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WARNING TO GERMANY

Must not Seek to Isolate France—Peace and Dignity the French Policy.

New York, Dec. 28.—A cable despatch received by the Herald from Berlin, tells of an interview in which M. Pichon, French ambassador, says that the present alliances, understandings and friendships of France will be cultivated and developed, and that, as to Franco-German relations, the general policy of France is based on alliances and friendships.

"We do not plan to isolate Germany," said M. Pichon, "but Germany must not seek to isolate us as she attempted at the Algeciras conference. When our interests clash we can explain to each other in good faith, and the explanations will be a consequence of the peaceful conditions which we will foster with absolute loyalty. Peace and dignity sum up the whole policy of France."

PERISHED IN THE WOODS

Farmer Went to Cut Wood and Succumbed to Heart Disease.

Belleville, Dec. 28.—Stanley Carnrite, a farmer of Ameliasburg township, Prince Edward county, went into the woods on his farm to cut cordwood a few days ago. He did not return that night, and search the next morning revealed him leaning against a fence, frozen stiff. He was subject to heart disease, which is believed to have caused his death.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

A vagrant and a drunk were the main factors in the police court proceedings yesterday morning. An elderly man by the name of Powers was charged with vagrancy. He is unable to work and is without home or money. He asked his Worship to give him four months in the county jail, and the magistrate complied with the request. It is likely, as soon as the House of Refuge is ready, he will be removed to it.

A resident of this city who has appeared in the police court before on a charge of being drunk, appeared again yesterday morning. He was remanded for one week.

WHY SO WEARY?

Always Restless and Weak Isn't Natural—But It's Dangerous.

You have to work hard. This uses up lost of nerve force and tears down the body faster than it can build up.

The result is a half-dead feeling you can't shake off. The water in your blood must be turned into nutriment and building material.

This is just what happens in using Ferrozone, which renews the blood and nerves, and makes each organ do the work that nature expects of it.

Ferrozone quickly increases your weight, brings appetite and healthy color, instills a reserve of vigor into the system that defies weariness, exhaustion, debility, or sickness of any kind.

The enormous strengthening power of Ferrozone is proved in the case of Mrs. Edward Hill, of Orr Lake, Ont., who says:

"Two years ago I had a nervous breakdown. At night I tossed restlessly in bed, unable to get any rest from sleep. In the morning I suffered from over-powering weakness. My appetite was poor. I grew pale, thin and despondent. A slight hacking cough also added to my burden.

"My doctor said to try Ferrozone, and it did me good in a few days. I increased in strength, the nervous sensations disappeared, and with my appetite came back my color and good spirits. I have gained over ten pounds in weight, and as my age is 56, I consider Ferrozone is a marvel." (Signed) Mrs. Edward Hill.

REMEMBER THIS: Ferrozone is a true tonic—not an alcoholic stimulant. Fifty chocolate-coated tablets in a box for fifty cents, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE STRUGGLE IN FRANCE

The course of politics in France is not unlikely within the next few months to produce some extraordinary occurrences. As one of the illustrative incidents of the present conflict, mention may be made of a development in the town of Canourgne, where the vicar and the mayor are waging a war in regard to the management of funerals. The municipal council bought a hearse, which was to be furnished free to the people as soon as it was paid for. Since the hearse was not consecrated and did not carry a cross, the vicar refused to allow it to enter the church grounds. The mayor then refused to permit the church hearse the use of the streets. So now the municipal hearse is used to the gate of the church grounds whence the coffin is transferred to the church hearse and back again for transportation to the cemetery.

ORGANIZED LABOR AND THE FARMERS.

The American Federation of Labor and the American Society of Equity have joined hands in a fraternal alliance. The former represents the organized wage-earners of the country, and aims to regulate wages and working conditions by controlling the supply of labor. The latter represents the organized farmers, and aims to regulate the price of farm products by holding back the supply. Both organizations have expressed their contempt for the law of supply and demand. The newly formed alliance consists of a mutual pledge that each side, as far as possible, shall use the products of the other side as to the exclusion of all producers not in the alliance.

Impracticable as this scheme may appear at first glance, there are hard-thinking men on both sides who believe that it is an epoch-making event. That the spirit of organization has taken a strong hold among the farmers there is no doubt. The American Society of Equity has a membership now of 163,000, and it is growing rapidly. The membership is scattered principally throughout Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Nebraska, with some members in Kansas, Oklahoma and Michigan. In the south-west the farmers have a strong union, especially in Texas, working on the same lines, although independent of the American Society of Equity.

In the State of Texas alone there are 100,000 organized farmers, who maintain their own warehouses in distributing centres where they store their cotton and hold it until they can get what they believe to be a fair remunerative price for it. The farmers in Texas have for two years been working in harmony with the labor unions there, exchanging fraternal delegates and jointly maintaining a lobby at Austin during sessions of the State Legislature. They have pooled their interests and demand legislation in the interests of both. Plans are now being discussed for bringing about an amalgamation of the unions of farmers in the south-west with those in the states already mentioned. The importance of such a movement can hardly be overestimated.

HOW TO BE READY

To know how to be ready—a great thing, a precious gift and one that implies calculation, grasp and decision—to be always ready a man must be able to cut a knot, for everything cannot be untied. He must know how to disengage what is essential from the detail in which it is inwrapped, for everything cannot be equally considered. In a word, he must be able to simplify his duties, his business and his life. To know how to be ready is to know how to start. It is astonishing how all of us are generally cumbered up with the thousand and one hindrances and duties which are not such, but which nevertheless wind us about with their spider threads and fetter the movement of our wings. It is the lack of order which makes us slaves. The confusion of today discounts the freedom of tomorrow. Confusion is the enemy of all comfort, and confusion is born of procrastination. To know how to be ready we must be able to finish. Nothing is done but what is finished. The things which we leave dragging behind us will start up again later on before us and harass our path. Let each day take thought for what concerns it, liquidate its own affairs and respect the day which is to follow, and then we shall be always ready. To know how to be ready is at the bottom to know how to die.—Amiel.

A Jewish University.

By the will of Moses A. Dropsie a sum of money has been set aside for the purpose of founding a Jewish university. At a meeting held at the home of Judge Mayer Sulsberger in Philadelphia, at which Judge Sulsberger, William B. Hackenberger, Dr. Cyrus Adler and Oscar S. Straus were present, it was decided to apply to the commonwealth of Pennsylvania for a charter for an institution to be known as "The Jewish university, founded by Moses A. Dropsie." The university will be established in Philadelphia, and it is expected that it will co-operate with other institutions which have been established for the promotion of Jewish learning.

A Geological Curiosity.

In excavating for the new reservoir on Auburn Heights, Me., the workmen came upon a singular geological formation the other day. In a crevice in the rock was some foliated sandstone that was twisted and rolled in the most fantastic forms. At some time in the cooling process of the earth's surface this had been molten and had run into these forms as a candle is run into a mold. The different layers lap and overlap each other in a manner that makes them a geological curiosity. When disintegrated these coils became sand, and this has been used for tamping in the dynamite charges. Some particularly fine specimens were preserved.

Engines as Freight.

A freight car as a buffer is used by locomotive manufacturers when shipping more than one locomotive in the same direction at the same time. Of course great loss would follow the wreck of a locomotive, so the manufacturers have adopted the plan of placing a freight car between every two engines in transit. In this way if there should be a wreck the freight car would be smashed, while the engine would most likely be unharmed, just the same as the ordinary passenger coach is generally telescoped while the stronger built Pullman is not damaged so much.—Philadelphia Record.

Paper.

When the editor man of this paper was a "bound boy" in Missouri forty years ago his copy paper at school was so scarce that he had to write on both sides of the paper and then crosswise of the first writing to save paper. Although the paper we now use for copy costs only 3 cents a pound, our early experience will not permit any waste without annoyance.—Concordia Kansan.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

THE ELEPHANT.

He Is Good Natured, Docile, Obedient and Long Suffering.

"The elephant is the best natured beast in all wild creation," said a circus man. "Most people have an idea that the big beast is apt to go wrong any time and make all kinds of trouble for everybody. Now, as a matter of fact, I have never but once seen a freak of this kind. Then the result was directly due to the intolerable abuse of fat headed grooms. It seems to me that if some one was putting a steel point or hook into a soft joint of yours or mine many times a day and without any good reason for it we would show temper and tear up things too. The only difference is the elephant has more patience. He is docile, obedient and long suffering. When an elephant gets a little out of sorts there is always some lightweight attendant, it seems, to fly off and say he is 'daffy.' Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the poor elephant has been badly treated, and, as he cannot talk, he does about the only thing he can do and trumpets his disgust or possibly goes a step further and eases his feelings by taking a crack with his trunk at something within reach. Elephants are as kind hearted and tender as women and respond to little attentions the same way, and in the same way, just like a woman, when they get soured, it takes a long while to sweeten them again if it can be done at all."

At Anchor.

A chief of bureau in the navy department tells a good story of the time when one of the secretaries of the navy got the notion into his head that officers should not permit their wives to reside at the foreign stations to which their husbands might be attached. So an order to that effect was promulgated. Soon thereafter considerable perplexity and no little amusement was afforded the secretary when he received the following cablegram from Commodore Fyffe, then in command of the Asiatic squadron:

Secretary Navy, Washington:
It becomes my painful duty to report that my wife, Miss Fyffe, has, in disobedience to my orders and in the face of regulations of department, taken up her residence on the station and persistently refuses to leave.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary:—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 10c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 200,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold; the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid (say up to 10 fully paid $100-Share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions ($20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100-Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present: The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs J. A. Banfield, F. H. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In consequence of the great inquiry at the Company's Offices for Prospectus and Forms of Application for Shares, the Company begs to notify that Prospectus and Application Forms can be obtained upon request at any branch of "THE TRADERS' BANK OF CANADA" throughout the Dominion. Also requests for same by letter or postcard will be at once despatched to applicants from the Company's Offices in Winnipeg.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 6 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. PROPERTY AND LOCATION

The property consists of forty acres being the south-west quarter of the north half of lot 8 in concession 1 Township of Hucks. The property of this Company lies about three-quarters of a mile north-west from the celebrated Tretheway mine and is identically of the same formation. Vein matter was found in this property right from the surface and subsequent prospecting has revealed several well defined veins. On the main vein several nuggets of native silver were found. A shaft had been sunk to a depth of fourteen feet, when the property was taken over by this Company.

WORK ON THE PROPERTY

At present a camp is being built and active development work is being proceeded with. One half of the Company's property is still unprospected.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Of all Cobalt Mining Companies none can show a sounder business basis than this. The organizers had such confidence in the property that they have taken their entire interest in stock and have pooled same for six months, evidencing the fact of their absolute confidence in the value of the Company's property at the par value of $1.00 per share. ONLY 25000 shares are being issued at the present time for active development work. It is confidently expected that this will be sufficient to make this property a shipper, and if so the public can at a glance see what the value of these shares will be, having regard to the fact that only 75,000 shares of the Company will have been issued. The stock is not being offered outside of Ottawa as the Directors feel confident this small amount will be oversubscribed here. Address

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHAPTER XXXI.

TROVE went to the inn at Dannemora that evening he left Darrel and there found a letter. It said that Leblanc was living near St. Albans. Posted in Plattsburg and signed "Henry Hope," the letter gave no hint of bad faith, and with all haste he went to the place it named. He was there a fortnight, seeking the Frenchman, but getting no word of him, and then came a new letter from the man Hope. It said now that Leblanc had moved on to Middlebury. Trove went there, spent the last of his money and sat one day in the tavern office, considering what to do, for now, after weeks of wandering, he was, it seemed, no nearer the man he sought. He had soon reached a thought of some value—this information of the unknown correspondent was at least unreliable, and he would give it no further heed. What should he do? On that point he was not long undecided, for while he was thinking of it a boy came and said, "There's a lady waiting you in the parlor, sir."

He went immediately to the parlor above stairs, and there sat Polly in her best gown, "the sweetest looking creature," he was wont to say, "this side of paradise." Polly rose, and his amazement checked his feet a moment; then he advanced quickly and would have kissed her, but she turned her face away and stood looking down. They were in a silence full of history. Twice she tried to speak, but an odd stillness followed the first word, giving possibly the more adequate expression to her thoughts.

"How came you here?" he whispered presently.

"I—I have been trying to find you," said she at length.

He turned, looking from end to end of the large room. They were alone.

"Polly," he whispered, "I believe you do love me."

For a little time she made no answer.

"No," she whispered, shaking her head. "That is, I—I do not think I love you."

"Then why have you come to find me?"

"Because—because you did not come to find me," she answered, glancing down at the toe of her pretty shoe.

"Dear Polly," he said as he took her hand in his. Gently she pulled it away.

"But I cannot speak to you now," she whispered.

Then a long silence. The low music of a million tiny wings came floating in at the window. It seemed, somehow, like a voice of the past, with mistiness, like the hour, hymning indistinguishably. Polly and Trove were thinking of the same things. "I can doubt him no more," she thought, "and I know—I know that he loves me." They could hear the flutter of bird wings beyond the window, and in the stillness they got some understanding of each other. She turned suddenly and went to where he stood.

"Sidney," she said, "I am sorry. I am sorry if I have hurt you."

She lifted one of his hands and pressed her red cheek upon it fondly. In a moment he spoke.

"Long ago I knew that you were doubting me, but I couldn't help it," he said.

"It was that—that horrible secret," she whispered.

"I had no right to your love," said he, "until"—he hesitated for a little—"until I could tell you the truth."

"You loved somebody else?" she whispered, turning to him. "Didn't you now? Tell me."

"No," said he calmly. "The fact is—the fact is, I had learned that my father was a thief."

"Your father!" she answered. "Do you think I care what your father did? Your honor and your love were enough for me."

"I did not know," he whispered, "and I should have made my way to you, but"— he paused again.

"But what?" she demanded impatiently.

"Well, it was only fair you should have a chance to meet others, and I thought you were in love with Roberts."

"Roberts! He would have been glad of my love, I can tell you that." She looked up at him. "I have endured much for you, Sidney Trove, and I cannot keep my secret any longer. He says that Darrel is now in prison for your crime."

"And you believe him?" Trove whispered.

"Not that," she answered quickly, "but you know I loved the dear old man. I cannot think him guilty any more than I could think it of you, but there's a deep mystery in it all. It has made me wretched. Every one thinks you know more than you have told."

"A beautiful mystery!" the young man whispered. "He thought I should be convicted. Who wouldn't? I think he loved me, so that he took the shame and the suffering to save me."

"He would have died for you," she answered, "but, Sidney, it was dreadful to let them take him away. Couldn't you have done something?"

"Something, dear Polly! And I with a foot in the grave?"

"Where did you go that night?"

"I do not know, but in the morning I found myself in our great pasture and was ill. Some instinct led me home, and, as usual, I had gone across lots." Then he told the story of that day and night and the illness that followed.

"I, too, was ill," said Polly, "and I thought you were cruel not to come to me. When I began to go out of doors they told me you were low with fever. Then I got ready to go to you and that very day I saw you pass the door. I

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Simple Way to Overcome the Dangers of this Disagreeable Disease.

Catarrh is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, with many annoying symptoms. In this climate there are few who do not suffer from this disagreeable disease, often in a chronic and dangerous state.

Fortunately, within the last few years, a simple and reliable treatment for catarrhal troubles has been found—Hyomei, a combination of healing and germ-killing balsams, that, when breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaches the tiniest cells in the respiratory organs, carrying its healing and health-giving properties to every part where the catarrhal poison is present.

Used in this way, Hyomei kills all catarrhal germs, drives the poison from the system and heals all irritation that may be present in the mucous membranes.

If you have the ordinary catarrhal symptoms, such as offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, cough, raising of mucous, difficulty in breathing, sneezing, huskiness, discharge from the nose, droppings in the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hyomei at once.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for the symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Same Old Story.

It was the vacation rush in the baggage room of the big depot. Suddenly, without warning, there was an explosion that shook the building.

"The trunk of an anarchist with a bomb in it!" shouted the depot detectives.

"Russian nihilists!" echoed a man in the crowd.

"The Black Hand!" added a third.

But just then a meek little man pushed his way through the crowd and picked up the fragments of a hinge.

"Lucy's trunk!" he sighed. "I told her if she forced anything else in that trunk the whole top would blow off, but a man can't tell a woman anything when she is packing."

Tenderly they lifted the poor "smasher" from the floor and picked from his anatomy one toothbrush handle, one curling iron, a soap dish and a belt buckle.—Chicago News.

GOOD FOR THIS WEEK ONLY

The undersigned has secured an allotment of 7,500 shares of a rich gold mine in New Ontario. The mine promises to be one of the richest in the Country, and adjoins the great Blum Mine, which is estimated to be worth over $25,000,000. This stock has par value of $1.00 and will be sold for 50c. a share for the balance of this week only. It probably will be worth many times its present value in a short time. There is no risk—it is a sure thing. Money needed for developement. For further particulars apply to.

MAN AND MONEY.

The Change That Often Comes With the Acquisition of Wealth.

The transforming power of money the moment it gets into a man's possession is one of the unsolved mysteries of the universe. Of course we know that the poison of avarice and greed is in the character and not in the money, but it is unfortunate that the possession of money seems to develop, to bring out, some of the worst human qualities, qualities which never develop in poverty or show themselves under ordinary circumstances.

Before we get possession of money we feel sure that we will not allow it to warp and twist our ideals. We are going to show the world a sane use of money. We are going to help everybody. We are going to help struggling merit, assist poor boys and girls to get an education and to get a start in the world. We are going to be helpful and useful in the largest possible way.

But it is a strange trait in human nature that, no matter how humble or democratic or helpful and companionable people may be while poor, just as soon as the average man gets more than his fellows he begins to domineer over them and to use the very wealth which he was so anxious to get to enable him to help his fellow men to oppress and keep them down.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

Not a Bad Prescription.

On a family druggist's prescription file is an oft repeated prescription bearing number 87,111. The Latin of the twentieth century reads: "Recipe. Ticketorii theatrici numera duo signa. Take this afternoon. Dr. ——."

Obviously it is an order on the druggist written by a reputable physician for two theater tickets, and the patients, mother and daughter, are enabled to take needed treatment at a matinee while the busy husband and father remains at work. The reason for the scheme as told the druggist by the doctor was the absolute need of mother and daughter for recreation, and as the druggist has a theater ticket office it was readily and satisfactorily arranged.

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite. No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,630 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Well Remembered

At the close of the regular Wednesday night prayer service, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Scott of the Murray street church, were each presented with a handsome gift. Mrs. Scott was given a handsome gold watch and chain, and Mr. Scott was presented with a well filled purse. An address in connection with the presentation to Mr. Scott was read by Mr. Aldridge, as follows:

Dear Mr. Scott,—As a church and congregation we sincerely regret that you are about to leave us, but we are glad that the love of Christ constrains you to enter a wider, and perhaps a more heroic field of usefulness, foreign missionary work.

During your pastorate of over two years duration, the blessing of God has rested on your labors, for the church has prospered.

We pray that this happy beginnig of your career may be an augury of good things in the future, a foreshadowing of the time when the approval of the Master shall be yours.

When Mrs. Scott and you are in solivia, the Peterborough friends will take deep interest and sympathy in your work, and hope that sometimes you may think of us.

With this purse, please accept our heartiest good wishes for a Happy New Year.

On behalf of Murray street Baptist church and congregation.

W. ALDRIDGE.

DANGERS FROM DYSPEPSIA

Imperfect Digestion Most Prolific Cause of Serious Disease.

Few people seem to realize the real dangers in disturbed, deficient or defective digestion.

While health reports do not give indigestion as a cause of death, yet it is in reality often fatal, as it so weakens the stomach that one becomes readily susceptible to an attack of typhoid fever, kidney disease, nervous prostration or other serious or fatal disease.

At the first symptoms of indigestion, Mi-o-na stomach tablets should be used. If there is a feeling of heaviness in the stomach, distress after eating, nervousness, dizziness, nausea, headaches, sleeplessness, pains in the side and limbs, specks before the eyes, or a peevish, irritable condition, with debility and weakness, begin the use of Mi-o-na at once.

It will build up the stomach and digestive organs so that you can eat anything at any time without fear of distress or indigestion.

A 50-cent box of Mi-o-na tablets will, in most cases, give prompt relief and cure, although in chronic and long-standing weakness of the stomach, two boxes or more are sometimes needed, but we guarantee Mi-o-na will cure, in all cases, no matter how chronic or serious, or money will be refunded. You run no risk whatever in buying Mi-o-na.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail, on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Switzer is an Honored Recipient

A pleasing ceremony was that when the members of Mr. Wm. C. Switzer's Bible class at the George street Methodist Sunday school, called at his residence on Weller street, and presented him with a handsome writing desk. The presentation was made by Mrs. Cunningham, and the following address was read by Mrs. W. J. Devins,—

Dear Mr. Switzer,—We, the members of your Bible Class feel that we cannot allow this Christmas season to pass by, without expressing to you in some tangible form our appreciation of your earnest efforts on our behalf during the past year.

As a teacher we have always found you patient and painstaking and as a friend warm and sincere. Our associations with you have always been most pleasant, and we feel grateful, as well, and we wish to intimate to you that these things are not unappreciated by us, and we hope that you may be long spared to point out to us, the divine truths.

We ask you to accept this writing desk, not for its intrinsic value, but rather as a testimony of the high esteem in which you are held by every member of your class.

We wish you and your wife, a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Mr. Switzer made a suitable reply thanking the members of his class for their kind words and gift.

Mr. Davidson Gets a Well-Filled Purse

In yesterday's issue of The Times appeared a card of thanks, signed by Mr. Adam Davidson. The raison d'etre of this card was that Adam Davidson, who has recently been bartender at the Royal Hotel, Hunter St., has for the past ten days been confined to bed through illness. Not only has Mr. Davidson, the sole support of a family been laid up, but his daughter Esther is also sick threatened with appendicitis. The day before yesterday a local man went round the hotels of the city and collected a substantial purse towards relieving Mr. Davidson's present needs. The men of his profession responded handsomely towards the request made.

P. Navigation Co. Hold a Meeting

A meeting of the Peterborough Navigation Company took place yesterday in the offices of Mr. R. E. Wood, secretary of the company. The meeting was held for the purpose of conveying their property, including the steamer City of Peterborough, certain barges, and that lot of land in the east ward, on the water edge belonging to the new company, recently organized. The former navigation company has practically been reorganized with new blood at the center of operations. It is quite within possibility that the new company will acquired that valuable summer outing property known as Idyl Wyld in Rice Lake, a few miles soth of Harwood.

The New-York Tribune Index.

The files of a newspaper contain the embodied history of the world. But finding what one wants in them unaided is like the proverbial search for a needle in a haystack. One might almost as well have a locked treasure chest without a key. The key that unlocks newspaper files is an index. For over thirty years The New York Tribune has published an annual index to what appears in its columns. The same index is of use with files of other newspapers, so far as general news is concerned, for the news of the same day may be found in all. In addition, for a file of The Tribune, The Tribune Index conveys information in regard to a multitude of special articles, editorials, book reviews, correspondence and other features of a distinctive character. It is a key to a great storehouse of facts. With its cross-references anything desired can be readily found. Price $1.

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M.D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that has any such professional endorsement, worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

A booklet of extracts from eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients mailed free on request. Address Dr R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM IN EASTERN ONTARIO

VOL. XXXIV. NO. 303 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 29 1906 PRICE TWO CENTS

The Legislature Meets Thursday, January 24.

Official Announcement Made by Premier Whitney ---Much Legislation is Ready For Final Revision.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—The third session of the eleventh Legislature of Ontario will be opened on January 24. This announcement was made by Premier Whitney at the close of the Cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon. The formal notices will be at once sent out to the members of the House. The date is somewhat earlier than usual, particularly so in comparison with last session, when the opening took place on February 15. That session was a long one, concluding its actual business on May 10, prorogation taking place May 14.

There will be one or two features of interest at the opening ceremony, which is always attractive, including the introduction of the new member for Cardwell, Mr. Alexander Ferguson, who succeeded Mr. E. A. Little when the latter was appointed to a Government position, and Mr. Allan Studholme, the Labor member for East Hamilton. Mr. Studholme succeeds the late Henry Carscallen, K. C., one of the most popular members of the House. Mr. Ferguson, if he so desires, will undoubtedly be selected to move the address in reply to the speech from the throne. This, however, and the member who will second the address will be decided later. It is probable that the speeches on the address will be concluded on the Friday following the opening, and the usual adjournment will then be made until Monday in the next week.

The Government legislation for the forthcoming session is important, though not so heavy as last session.

The budget speech, following the example set last year, will be made early in the session. An effort is also being made to bring down the public accounts and the estimates at an early date. With that object in view it is thought that the books of the Treasury Department will not be kept open as long as usual, although the regular custom has been to keep them open until January 20.

More Disorders Occur In The New Hebrides

Missionary Killed by a Kanaka and Also a French Settler.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 29.—Three murders in the New Hebrides and inter-tribal wars, involving much bloodshed, are reported by a steamer which is just in from the South Seas. Rev. C. C. Godden, of the Melanesian Mission, Aoba Island, was killed by a Kanaka who had lately returned home after serving three years in jail in Queensland. The native swore to kill the first white man he met on returning home, and when the missionary visited him in his hut he shot him in the thigh. Mr. Godden, although badly hurt, tried to walk home, but the native finished his work by repeatedly striking his victim with the butt-end of his gun. The murderer was arrested and sent to Suva, Fiji, for trial. The missionary had been married only a year.

Another victim was a French settler, who was murdered on the Island of Malleolo. A Solomon Islander suddenly seized a Winchester that was at the head of the Frenchman's bed and killed the man with one shot. As the murderer was running away a native of the New Hebrides, who had seen the crime, seized the rifle which the Solomon Islander had discarded, and shot the latter lead.

Native disputes have engaged the attention of the British cruiser Pegasus. The commander of that vessel communicated with Commander Cartries of the French warship Vaucluse, and it was determined to make a special effort to end the long-continued disturbances. The two warships went to Sugalo Bay, Tanna, and ordered the natives to come to the spot. Six hundred kanikas, armed and in their war dress, obeyed. A proclamation was read to them, ordering them to cease hostilities among themselves and in future to await the arrival of warships and submit their quarrels to the commanders. It was pointed out that in case of disobedience of these orders offenders would be punished with the utmost rigor. It is said the natives appeared much impressed, and it is thought the severe caution thus given is likely to be beneficial in discouraging further strife.

Three Children Burned to Death

The flames spread to adjoining dwellings, four of which with their contents, were destroyed

Grand Trunk at Jamestown Exposition

All the arrangements for the Grand Trunk Railway System Exhibit at the Jamestown Exposition, Norfolk, Virginia, have been completed and the Company have decided to erect a handsome building for the purpose. The building will be in the form of a cottage of unique architecture and one that will not fail to attract the attention of the visitors.

It will combine in its entirety an effect colonial with a wide verandah surrounding front half of the structure. It will be situated on a plot 50 x 100 feet in one of the best locations on the grounds, within a stone's throw of the Manufacturers and Liberal Arts Building and a short distance from the "War Path"—that portion of the grounds set apart for the lighter attractions and which will be on similar lines to the "Midway" of the Chicago World's Fair and "The Pike" at the St. Louis World's Fair—The interior will be of Elizabethan design and finished in dark colors—a series of large photographic views being inserted in the panels that will form the inner sheathing of the walls. A decorative frieze in colors and executed in oils will adorn the upper portion of the walls, and will consist of subjects symbolical of Canadian manufactures, industries, summer vacation haunts, transportation, hunting in Canada, etc. A collection of mounted animals, fish and birds native to the Canadian Forests and Waters will also be shown, and a series of moving picture machines projecting scenes along the line of the Grand Trunk will form another attractive feature. This exhibit will be one of the best advertisements that Canada has ever had in the United States.

It is estimated that from eight to ten million people will visit this exhibition during its life. The exhibition opens on April 26th, 1907, and lasts until November 30th, 1907.

BERLIN TASTES TAMMANY

Social Democrats Plan Big Political Coup for Coming Elections.

Berlin, December 29.—It is understood that the Social Democrats have completed stealthy plans to capture the elections for members of the Reichstag in the Imperial constituency of Berlin, in which the Kaiser's palace is situated. This is the only metropolitan constituency that they have not yet held. They lost it in 1903 by only 50 votes.

It is stated that they have now resorted to Tammany methods and are colonizing the constituency with enough floaters to ensure a majority for their party.

MORE DISORDERS IN CUBA

Uncle Sam's Troops Augmented in the Province of Santa Clara.

Washington, December 29.—United States Secretary of War Taft has received advices from Governor Magoon, at Havana, indicating that a more or less unsettled condition of affairs exists in certain parts of Cuba, and that in Santa Clara province some lawless bands are operating and pillaging. Therefore, at the Governor's instance, General Bell has ordered a considerable reinforcement of the garrison of American troops in that province.

For the first time since the second occupation of the island, it has become necessary for the troops to undertake themselves the suppression of these disorders, instead of leaving this task to the native Cuban rurales, which, in some quarters, is regarded as an invitation of the inability of the Cuban civil authorities to permanently maintain peace on the island.

Winter Races on New Years Day

Peterborough Turf Club Have arranged for Three Good Events.

Horsemen are impatiently waiting for New Year's Day to arrive, when what promises to be three keenly contested races will be pulled off on the Driving Park track. The races will start at two o'clock sharp, January first, and will be run off as speedily as possible. This should be a banner day in the history of Peterborough's Turf Club, both in the way of winter sport and attendance.

BOND OF COMMERCE

Chamberlain Looks to That For Union of Britain and Colonies

London, Dec. 28.—Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain sends to Canada a message in which he expresses appreciation of "the patriotism of the Canadian people and the sentiment which so strongly moves them in the consideration of all questions of commercial preference between the Dominion and the Mother Country."

He states that the strongest bond that can unite nations is commerce, and that the perception of this fact will lead to a closer union between Britain and her colonies. Only the spread of mutual understanding, he says, can bring about the union, and he states that the defeat of the Unionist party at the last election was due to causes altogether outside the question of mutual preference.

Rich Strike at Minnehaha Mine

As quite a number of local citizens have recently purchased stock in the Minnehaha Mine in New Ontario it will be pleasing intelligence to them to learn that The Times yesterday received a most encouraging report from Mr. B. J. Moringstar of 518 Ashland Ave., Buffalo, N.Y., concerning a rich strike recently made in that mine. Our correspondent notes that;

"A find of rich gold ore body at the Minnehaha Mine, on Minnehaha Lake near the Blum Mine, is equal in richness to the famous Laurention Mine or may even surpass it, which is estimated to run over $300,000 per ton. This field is a wonder in richness of gold and half has not yet been told."

Mr. Morningstar who is a gentleman of sterling integrity, and who commands great influence among the capitalists of Buffalo, has still a few shares in the Minnehaha Mine for sale, which will undoubtedly be eagerly snapped up.

Standard Trotters Beat Out Hackneys

As is well known in horse circles in this city there has been much controversy as to the respective merits of Hackneys and standard bred trotters for sale as harness horses.

The New York Herald referred in a recent issue to the National Horse show in the American metropolis.

This report said that standard bred horses took 107 prizes as compared with 25 prizes to Hackneys. One team exhibited, named respectively, Delight and Delightful, of standard breed, sold readily for $12,000, this being the winning team.

The paper goes on to say that the American trotting horse more than holds its own in competition for prizes for harness horses. The paper concludes by saying that "The trotting bred horse can more than meet any breed."

WANT ENGLISH BRIDES

Queen's Defeat the Local Hookey Team

By a Score of 10-8 in the First Game of Season in Brock St. Rink.

Last night at the Brock street rink a fairly large crowd witnessed the locals go down to defeat before the fast Queen's team of Kingston, the locals made some good rushes and had not the Kingston bunch a good guardian of the nets, the score might have been reversed. Whiteroft, for the locals was easily the best man on the ice. Richardson for Queen's made some furious rushes doing most of the scoring for his side. Crowley put up a good game, doing some great checking, while Moore broke up more than a few combinations of the opposing team. The score at half time stood 4—3, and at full time 10—8 in favor of Queen's.

The teams lined up as follows;

Peterborough	Goal.	Queen's
Lang	Point.	Mills
Moore	C. Point.	MacDonald
Crowley	Rover.	Williams
Whiteroft	Center.	Lowe
Morgan	R. Wing.	Crawford
Ross	L. Wing.	Dobson
Graham		Richardson

The timekeepers were Mr. Vinette for Queen's, and Fred A. Clarke for Peterborough.

Dr. Lionel King officiated as referee to the satisfaction of both teams.

For Hungary's Steamship Service.

Vienna, December 29.—Representatives of the German-American steamship lines purpose founding a corporation which will be known as The Hungarian-American Navigation Company. It will have a capital of 20,000,000 crowns (about $4,000,000). The company is the result of the large increase in the immigration from Hungary to America.

Has Had Enough of Raisuli.

London, December 29.—The Tangier correspondent of The Times says that Mr Mohammed Gabbas, minister of war, with practically his whole army, will go on Thursday to a spot three miles east of Tangier, on the border of Anghera territory, and there read to the neighboring chiefs a letter from the Sultan deposing Raisuli from the governorship of the Tangier district, and calling upon the tribesmen to submit to the Maghzen, or Moroccan Foreign Office. They are believed to be ready to do this. Excellent order is being maintained in the Moroccan camp.

NEW COLLEGIATE BUILDING IS NOW A CRYING NEED

Said Ald. Johnston Yesterday---High School Education Should Be Substantially Encouraged.

class of education needed, and which must be available, if Peterborough is to keep pace in educational matters with other localities of less importance than the Electric City.

The press representative next asked the worthy alderman if he considered a Collegiate Institute education of sufficient importance to citizens as a whole to warrant the expenditure of $60,000 on the proposed building.

Ald. Johnston replied that it is the desire of every parent to give at least some of the family such educational advantages as will enable them to make substantial progress, to distinction amongst their fellow citizens. Such men and women are needed and sought after, and no municipality can afford to be without them. And there is no cheaper stepping stone toward higher educational attainments than a good Collegiate Institute. It stands between the public schools and the universities, and thousands who could not afford a course at one of the latter institutions, have by matriculating at a high school carved out for themselves an eminently successful and honorable career. Therefore, he said, I am not going to be the to stand aside and criticise my fellow citizen.

From what The Times can learn the general consensus of opinion seems to be that next year will see a handsome Collegiate Institute building erected on the Central Park, a structure of which all Peterborolans may well feel proud, and one thoroughly modern in all its appointments.

Ald Johnston, chairman of the City Fire, Water and Light Committee, expressed to a newspaper man yesterday his unqualified support of the bylaw to raise an additional $21,000, for Collegiate Institute purposes. Higher education, he said, is the rock upon which the rising generation must rely for the betterment of mankind in general. He had no patience with people who because they either would not or could not give their children a high school education, denounced any measure tending to improved advantages and accommodation in educational courses beyond those of the public schools.

When asked what he thought of Peterborough's public buildings, generally, Ald. Johnston replied that while Peterborough poses as the banner baby city of this Province, she is away behind many other communities in the way of public buildings of any kind. In fact, he said, our new fire hall is the only real up-to-date building we have, and that is a creditable beginning along a line of public structures which shall prove a credit to this city, and in keeping with its past and future progress in other respects. When we are going to erect a Collegiate Institute, and not before it is wanted, the Electric City should, he urged, see to it that the structure is modern and presentable in its architectural design, and not wanting in approved 20 century appointments. He could not understand why Peterborough should be behind all surrounding small towns in the matter of magnificent schools and institutes, and said he was strongly in favor of the place of his birth enjoying all the advantages of a good up-to-the-times high school, as such an institution offers that who has been fortunate in securing the benefits of an education I did not get myself, and who rightly contends that the interests of higher education should be promoted at any cost.

Ald. Johnston was here asked if he thought a Collegiate Institute course was within the reach, and taken advantage of by the poor.

Why, he replied, I could name me families in this city today, who have struggled manfully against tremendous odds in the battle for family necessities, supplementing their incomes in divers ways, and as a result have given from one to four of their children a collegiate education. And those children are now a credit to their parents, the community, and to themselves. A great many people have attained to high callings in our land by struggling with all manner of difficultims to educate themselves. Thousands who could not afford to give their children a university course have managed to put them through the Collegiate Institute, and thus placed them in a position to earn a better living than otherwise attainable, and to make further advance in education if they desire to do so.

Then you think the new institute is needed? was next asked.

I should say so, answered Ald. Johnston. I see a great need of bettering our educational facilities as we grow in size. We cannot reasonably expect the schools of thirty, twenty, or even ten years ago, to accommodate our present needs. Why should not the institute be erected next year? We have the land to build on, not a better site can be found anywhere; we have the plans of the building required; and now we (the people) have the opportunity of saying by our votes on January 7th, whether we are to at last experience the realization of our hopes by having a building constructed in the Central Park for Collegiate Institute purposes that will answer the requirements of higher education for years to come.

That bylaw should carry, and by a big majority, concluded the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

WM. LANGFORD'S VIEWS.

Mr. Wm. Langford, the well-known builder and contractor, was interrogated yesterday on the Collegiate Institute bylaw. He thought the building is badly needed, and that the measure should carry on January 7th. He did not think the Board of Education were asking any too much for the building, which should be proceeded with if the Board are satisfied that they can meet their requirements with $60,000.

E. A. PECK SAYS VOTE FOR BY-LAW.

"If the city needs a new Collegiate Institute, the people must vote the money for it," is what Mr. E. A. Peck said yesterday morning when asked his opinion about the Collegiate Institute bylaw.

"It is no use beating around the bush," continued Mr. Peck. "Every citizen knows that the Collegiate Accommodation of the 300 pupils now attending. Every citizen also now attending. Every citizen also knows that the pupils cannot do justice to themselves when cooped up like a lot of chickens on exhibition. They must have more room and the teachers must be given fewer pupils to enable them to handle the subjects properly. I know that the building now occupied is too crowded, and I intend to vote for the bylaw.

"Then, it must be remembered that the public school requires more room, and the Board wants its own building (the one now used as a Collegiate) for public school purposes, and unless a new Collegiate is built the pupils of that institution will be turned out on the streets. Besides, $21,000 is a very small sum for a wealthy city like Peterborough to vote for school purposes. We have lots of money, and whatever sum it costs for the new building will come back to the city again."

To Get the Preference From Commonwealth

Canadian Government Re-Opens Negotiations to That End---Winnipeg Battery First in Personnel and Equipment.

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—The Dominion Government has re-opened negotiations with Australia for a mutual tariff preference between the two countries, and with New Zealand for an enlargement of the scope of the preferential arrangement now in force between them. The Canadian Ministers have made no secret of their desire for a preference in the Australian markets, and from the recent remarks of the leaders of both political parties in Australia, there would seem to be no good reason why such an arrangement should not be obtained.

The Australian Parliament reassembles in February, and the New Zealand Parliament in June, so whatever agreement they are desirous of making with us cannot, in any event, be given effect to until February and June respectively.

In the speech from the throne at the closing of the last session of the Australian Parliament, the Government's position in regard to preferential trade was expressed in the following terms;

"My advisers earnestly trust that their efforts may lead to closer commercial relations and foster a sentiment of unity between the United Kingdom and the self-governing dominions."

NO SHAM PREFERENCE.

Mr. J. S. Larke, Canadian Commercial Agent at Sydney, in a report quotes a declaration by Right Hon. G. H. Reid, the Opposition leader, in which he says; "If the people of Great Britain change their minds, and believe a preferential arrangement with Australia advisable, I would meet their wishes by an equitable agreement. But I do not think the people of the Mother country will ever agree to taxes on foods, and their horror of such taxes is natural, and I think sensible, too. I support an unconditional preference offered by Australia to the Mother country, but if any is offered it should not be a sham."

JAP SILK IMPORTS INCREASE.

Mr. MacLean, Canadian Commercial Agent in Japan, writes that, contrary to expectations, there will be no increase in the new Japanese tariff. The exports of Japanese silks to Canada increased from $350,000 to $547,000 during November.

WINNIPEG BATTERY FIRST.

The general efficiency returns of the Canadian artillery, just issued, show that the 13th Battery, Winnipeg, won first place; the 23rd Battery of Ottawa, second; the Montreal Field Battery, third; the Deseronto Field Battery, fourth; and the Hamilton Field Battery, fifth. The 23rd Field Battery, which was recently organized second place. In the general efficiency trophy competition in Ottawa, under the command of Major E. W. B. Morrison, D.S.O., captured first place in gun practice and in competitive practices, second place in general efficiency, and made the largest score, winning also three challenge cups and $300 in prize money in efficiency of personnel and equipment. Toronto Battery took returns the 8th London Field Battery obtained the highest number of marks but did not affiliate. In battery manoeuvers, the 13th Field Battery, Winnipeg, won first place, and Deseronto second.

Ex-Alderman Mason For Water Commissioner

Mr. E. F. Mason resigned from the Aldermanic Board, Thursday night, with the purpose of entering nomination for water commissioner. Ex-Ald. Mason, during his occupancy of a seat in our civic legislature, has done splendid service for the city and has demonstrated that he is a gentleman of very desirable executive ability. His efforts in the community's interest as finance minister cannot be spoken too highly of, and to his careful guidance and endorsed expenditure of the city's revenue, has assured to our citizens, at the end of a year of exceptional progress, not only a clean sheet but a handsome balance on the right side of the ledger. Ex-Ald. Mason's career as an exceptionally successful business man, followed by an era of generally recognized acceptable services for the public weal as alderman most assuredly commends him to the ratepayers as one in whom their confidence would be well placed in returning him on January 7th, as one of the members of the Board of Water Commissioners.

Coroner's Jury Held at Norwood Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon Dr. J. W. Gray county coroner, was in Norwood, where he was called to investigate the death of Mr. Fred McMaster, son of Mr. Jas. McMaster, of that village.

The deceased had been missing since Christmas Eve until his body was found on the east bank of the river Ouse, Thursday night, which passes Ouse, which passes through Norwood Ouse, which passes through Norwood. Thursday night. It was at first feared that foul play was accountable for the young man's death. The deceased was only 19 years of age.

Coroner Dr. Gray yesterday summoned a coroner's jury, who made a searching investigation into the cause of the late McMaster's death. As no external sign of violence were found and other matters touted towards such a solution, the unanimous verdict of the jury, was that the late Fred McMaster came to his death through exposure whilst intoxicated.

In a special despatch to the Toronto Globe from Ottawa, Monday, reference is made, among the list of new railways to be constructed by the Canadian Northern Railway Company of one from Pembroke through Peterborough to Cobourg. Maps have been filed with the government by the company, showing that they contemplate covering pretty well Western and Northern Ontario.

Peterborough Club's Dance Last Night

Last night the Peterborough Club held their annual "at home" in their handsome premises in the Bank of Commerce Building. Judge Wallace and other officers of the club, met and welcomed the guests. The club rooms were appropriately decorated for the occasion, and many years of delighted and, judging by the number of daintily clad ladies present, delightful guests enjoyed one of the most successful dances of the season.

The music was superb and a most admirable supper was enjoyed by all present.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

Another vagrant occupied the prisoner's box at police court yesterday morning. Charles Beavi, who seems to be without home, money or friends came to the police station and asked for three months in jail.

It would appear to the casual observer that Beavis is suffering from infection of that "Tired Feeling" bacteria, but the liquor that stimulates and next befouls, seems to have taken possession of his mental and physical equilibrum. He was remanded for one week, during which time it is to be hoped, the volatile quality of whiskey will have allowed "The enemy" to evaporate.

DANGERS FROM DYSPEPSIA

Imperfect Digestion Most Prolific Cause of Serious Disease.

Few people seem to realize the real dangers in disturbed, deficient or defective digestion.

While health reports do not give indigestion as a cause of death, yet it is in reality often fatal, as it so weakens the stomach that one becomes readily susceptible to an attack of typhoid fever, kidney disease, nervous prostration or other serious or fatal disease.

At the first symptoms of indigestion, Mi-o-na stomach tablets should be used. If there is a feeling of heaviness in the stomach, distress after eating, nervousness, dizziness, nausea, headaches, sleeplessness, pains in the side and limbs, specks before the eyes, or a peevish, irritable condition, with debility and weakness, begin the use of Mi-o-na at once.

It will build up the stomach and digestive organs so that you can eat anything at any time without fear of distress or indigestion.

A 50-cent box of Mi-o-na tablets will, in most cases, give prompt relief and cure, although in chronic and long-standing weakness of the stomach, two boxes or more are sometimes needed, but we guarantee Mi-o-na will cure, in all cases, no matter how chronic or serious, or money will be refunded. You run no risk whatever in buying Mi-o-na.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail, on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Your Countenance Indicates the Body's Awful Struggle for Health

Impossible to work or think clearly when there is no reserve of vigor, no nourishment in the blood, no supply of nerve energy.

The life of the half-sick man is pitiful, in fact, almost criminal, when bounding strength is so quickly derived from Ferrozone.

This nutritive tonic is guaranteed to strengthen all men, women and children. Weak organs get new force, vital energy is generated. Muscle and fat are added, healthy color is restored, and the blood fairly tingles with new-found life.

Read the evidence of Jno. Carter, of 624 King St. East, Toronto, who says:

"After a severe attack of Grippe my health was almost shattered. I suffered constantly from nervousness and dyspepsia. At night I would waken with terrible palpitation and heart pains. Work became a great effort. At ten in the morning I was so tired and weak I could hardly work another minute.

"Then came a bad attack of rheumatism, which laid me up in bed. I could scarcely lift the weight of a pound, and to stoop or bend was impossible. My druggist recommended Ferrozone, and he knew what he was talking about, for it rebuilt my strength, gave me abundant appetite, better blood, and new nerve energy. The rheumatism has disappeared. I weigh more, feel refreshed and vigorous, and am able to work ten hours a day. Ferrozone did it all."

You will be steadied, toned and strengthened for all time to come with Ferrozone. Get the genuine in 50c boxes or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 29 1906

A YEAR OF CALAMITIES.

While the year 1906 was still in its dying stages the newspapers both in Canada and the United States were giving space to an article in the form of a prophecy that the year 1906 would be one of great calamities, that there would be a terrible destruction of life and property by the forces of nature. Few who read the rather discomforting forecast were really impressed with its seriousness and hardly anyone excepting the author himself would credit it as authentic.

But hardly had the declining shadows of the old year passed from view and we had entered upon the new year with all its joys and expectant prosperity than the whole world was startled by a terrible calamity on the Columbian coast, where a tidal wave swept away to their death 2,500 people. This was preceded by an earthquake at Gonzano, Italy, which killed fourteen persons. In February a hurricane visited the Society Island, a favorite resort for hurricanes, and one thousand perished. In March a cyclone swept through Mississippi, and twenty-one were killed, and an earthquake in Formosa destroyed 2,500. In April the Vesuvius eruption killed 2,000, a second earthquake at Formosa 700, the San Francisco earthquake 44, and a cyclone in Texas twenty-six. In July there were two smaller disasters, a cloud-burst at Guampo, Mexico, which killed ten persons, and a waterspout at Lyons, France, which killed thirty-one.

The furies broke loose in August and 2,400 were victims of an earthquake at Valparaiso and 12,000 of floods at Hunan, China. In September there was a long series of disasters. A landslide and storm in the Caucasus cost 350 lives. The typhoon at Hong Kong, 1,000; a flood at Tepic, Mexico, ten, a hurricane at New Orleans and Mobile 140, and a cyclone in Southern Spain sixty. In October a hurricane off the coast of Florida, which started from Venezuela, skirting Honduras, Nicaragua, Salvador and Cuba, left 900 dead in its path.

Including the losses of life by lesser disasters of this kind the record shows that upwards of 12,000 people have perished this year by earthquake, hurricane and other manifestations of the fury of nature.

Then add to these the terrible loss of life by shipwreck during the past few weeks, and little wonder it is we look with horror on the past year, out of which we are so soon to pass, and hail the new year be hastened with all its joys, and may it also mean a cessation of further disaster on either land or sea.

TALE OF ITS BENEFITS

WHY UNIVERSAL PENNY POSTAGE IS A NECESSITY.

Henniker Heaton, M.P., Thorn in the Side of Successive Postmasters-General, Tells of Its Advantages—Ambitious Aim of the Man Who Has Been a Boon and Blessing to the People—Preserve Family Ties.

Few persons deserve so well of their countrymen as Mr. Henniker Heaton, M.P., that stalwart champion of the people's rights in relation to postage. For years Mr. Henniker Heaton has been fighting the battle of postal progress, and in spite of the deadly influence of departmental red-tape, he has succeeded in carrying reform after reform until he has almost made the British an ideal post-office. Sixty important changes have been credited to his great perseverance. It is to him that we owe imperial penny postage and numerous other reforms, and, before long, no doubt, his greatest scheme of all—that of a universal penny letter post—will be in full swing. Mr. Heaton may be a thorn in the sides of successive postmasters-general, but to the public he is a boon and a blessing. Some years ago, in recognition of his efforts to cheapen our postal and telegraphic arrangements, he was presented with the freedom of the City of London in a gold casket, and he has on half a dozen occasions refused titles, decorations and honors. In December last he was gazetted K.C.M.G. without his authority.

With an Ambitious Aim.

The reduction of the twopenny halfpenny rate of postage to a penny is of such supreme importance that I called upon Mr. Henniker Heaton the other morning (writes a representative) for the purpose of having a talk with him on the matter. Mr. Henniker Heaton's aim is, briefly (I use his own words), to establish universal penny postage so that any inhabitant of our planet, white, black or yellow, may be enabled for the sum of one penny to communicate with any other, at the lowest possible rate, and the highest attainable speed; Englishman with Frenchman, German, Italian or Russian; European with American; Asiatic with Australian or African; so that when one soul has something to say to another neither color, nor religion, nor greed, nor diplomacy, nor national antipathy, nor latitude, nor longitude, nor poverty, nor any other barrier shall stand between them.

To those who are not overburdened with a supply of shekels, a universal penny post would be of enormous advantage, and it was on this point that I commenced to cross-question my go-ahead host.

To Preserve Family Ties.

"I have had a vast number of letters from poor people dealing with the subject," Mr. Henniker Heaton observed; "and some of them have been exceedingly touching. It is the charge of twopence-halfpenny, of course, that prevents people from communicating with their friends abroad. When you break into a shilling to buy a twopenny-halfpenny stamp the change seems to be very small. Universal penny postage would remedy this; it would have the effect of keeping members of a family, some of whom are resident in distant lands, in touch with each other. At present, when an individual emigrates, he writes home once a week at first, then once a month, and, finally, he ceases corresponding. If there was a popular rate he would write every week.

"Do you know that last year at least 200,000 people from Great Britain and Ireland went to America. There you have 200,000 letter-writers at once. The poor emigrants sent home during the year no less a sum than £1,500,000. That is nearly £5,000 a day—nearly £5,000 posted daily to the folk—wives, brothers, sisters—in their village homes; and certainly a proportion of it despatched with a view to bringing out sweethearts. This immense sum was forwarded in the shape of money orders ranging in value from five shillings to five pounds."

The absurdity of the opposition that is being manifested in certain quarters towards universal penny postage is rendered apparent on the instant. Every Friday 250,000 British letters pass through France and Italy for India, Hong Kong and Australasia—distances exceeding 12,000 miles. The postage on each of these letters is a penny. By the same boat a few British letters are carried for residents in Calais—twenty-one miles from Dover; and on these letters the postage is twopence-halfpenny.

A Question Not Easy to Answer.

"How can this distinction be justified?" Mr. Henniker Heaton, who had alluded to these facts, asked me.

I replied that no sane man could answer the conundrum correctly, upon which Mr. Henniker Heaton put me another poser.

"Why should a letter to New York cost twopence-halfpenny, and another in the same bag be carried through that city and 1,000 miles into Canada for a penny?"

I again expressed my inability to solve postal mysteries, and we remained silent for a moment, reflecting.

It is fortunate that Mr. Henniker Heaton is not frightened by obstacles. A born fighter, he pursues the even tenor of his way until he gets what he wants. Some weeks back he and several wealthy men offered to compensate the Government if, on the establishment of a universal penny postage, a loss during three years was incurred. This generous proposition was refused. In reference to this event Mr. Henniker Heaton observed:

Confident of Success.

"It is too bad when millionaires offer money to make thousands and thousands of poor people happy, that the Government should decline to accept it. No, it won't be much of a battle. We shall have universal penny postage ere long. There will be no peace for the officials and no peace for me until the last ditch has been bridged over. They are using the same arguments against universal penny postage as they did against imperial penny postage, and they are once more in the wrong. I calculate that when it is possible to send a letter to America for a penny our correspondence with the United States will in the first year be double what it is now. People will write once a week instead of once a month, and the loss entailed by the decrease in the price of postage will be only £35,000 for the first year. In the fourth year it will show a profit."

"You're told me, Mr. Henniker Heaton," I remarked presently, "of the appreciative letters you receive, what of the abusive ones?"

"I am not the recipient of any abusive letters. Sir William Howard Russel, however, had a rather quaint communication concerning me some time ago. It was contained in a postscript to a note sent to him from a man in Canada. As far as I can remember, it read thus:

"'You know that Henniker Heaton. Tell that blackguard that he is the curse of my life. All my relatives in County Clare—you know there are a hundred of them—have written to me, taking advantage of the penny post, to ask me for assistance to enable them to come out to Canada.'

"I can't recollect having had one abusive letter on the subject of my work in connection with postal reform. Indeed, I have been overwhelmed with kindness."

Of Benefit to Business Men.

"You haven't touched on the business side of universal penny postage, Mr. Henniker Heaton," said I.

"The benefits that would accrue through the introduction of universal penny postage are obvious. Since imperial penny postage was established several hundreds of thousands of pounds have been saved to the merchants of the empire, who have the greatest difficulty in competing with foreigners."

"Would you advocate a halfpenny inland postage?"

"No certainly not. A halfpenny inland postage is about as likely as the abolition of our front doors."

Saying which, Mr. Henniker Heaton bade me good-bye.

Hall Curtains.

Beautiful and inexpensive hall curtains can be made of bobbinet with inch and a half hems all around. Down one side and across the bottom is a design four inches wide in the old fashioned darning pattern. The work is very speedy, and the cost was only for the bobbinet and mercerized floss for the darning.

Scoring a Sink Board.

Have your sink board scored deeply, either in parallel lines or those that converge slightly toward the lower end, and of course have the end nearest the sink a full inch lower than the opposite end is. Then when you are working, and especially in cleaning times, the water will run off of its own accord.

Grate Cleaning.

If newspapers are spread on the floor before the stove when ashes are to be removed much work will be saved, for the papers can be gathered up and burned, and there will be no necessity for sweeping. The ashes should be sprinkled with water before the pan is overturned.

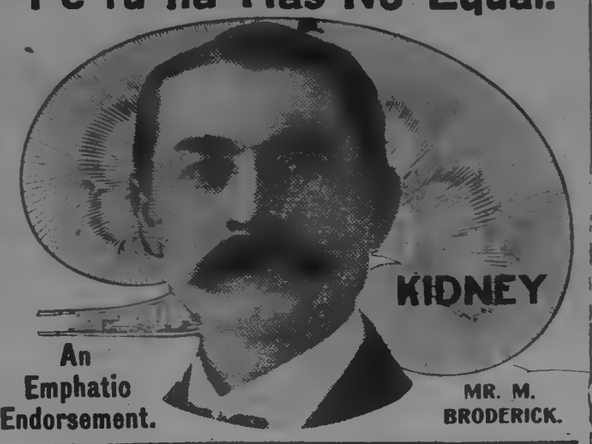
"FOR KIDNEY TROUBLE AND A WEAK BACK."

"Pe-ru-na Has No Equal."



An Emphatic Endorsement.

MR. M. BRODERICK.

Mr. M. Broderick, 435 E. 46th St., Financial Secretary Stable Employes Union, No. 1041, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I have been suffering from a weak back and kidney trouble for some time and have been able to find relief only through the use of Peruna.

"During the winter season I usually keep a bottle of your medicine in the house and by taking a dose at night, I am feeling fine the next morning.

"Some of my friends assure me that Peruna is equally as good for their various ailments as it is for my complaint, but, I do know that for kidney trouble and suffering from a weak back it has no equal."

Kidney Trouble is Not Always Recognized as Catarrh---Pe-ru-na Relieves Kidney Disease because it is a Remedy For All Phases of Catarrh.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago, before Dr. Hartman began distributing his pamphlets, books and newspaper articles, Bright's Disease of the kidneys was regarded as a disease wholly distinct from catarrh.

Now, Bright's Disease is thought by many the world over to be a phase of catarrhal inflammation.

To relieve Bright's Disease something must be used that has the power to relieve catarrh.

Any medicine that is a remedy for catarrh of one organ is obviously a medicine for catarrh of any other organ.

Peruna is an internal, systemic catarrh remedy.

Like catarrh, it pervades the whole system, and counteracts the effects of the disease.

A great many people believe that they have been cured of chronic Bright's Disease by the use of Peruna.

It is certainly true that in the earlier stages of Bright's Disease, Peruna is an effective remedy.

Numerous testimonials on this point establish the fact beyond all doubt.

Mr. Otto A. Fleisner, American epicurean, formerly Chef to Col. W. J. Cody, 1412 Sixth Ave., Seattle, Wash., writes:

"I suffered with kidney and bladder trouble until life did not seem worth living. I had tried many medicines, but did not get any relief until I took Peruna. It was really wonderful how much better I was after I used this medicine only a week. At the end of six months I found to my relief that it had rid my system of all poisons and I was cured to stay cured."

$75,000,000 IN COPPER DIVIDENDS

This stupendous sum will be paid to the lucky holders of Copper Stocks during 1907—so say the world's highest authorities.

Lluvia de Cobre Stockholders will Soon Share in These Profits

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM THE COPPER BELT OF SONORA.

A New Copper Mine that is Destined to Rank Among Mexico's Greatest.

Hermosillo, Mexico, November 20.—Local investors are showing unusual interest in copper stocks—particularly in the stocks of Sonora properties that have passed beyond the stage of mere prospects.

The property that is the strongest in public favor is the Lluvia de Cobre, located about 50 miles north from Hermosillo and about 90 miles west from Carbo on the Sonora Railway. This is considered one of the most valuable copper properties in the state, and much of the stock is held by the most conservative local investors. Business, banking and mining men of Hermosillo look with much favor upon this property, and the general prediction is that the Lluvia will very soon develop into one of the state's largest producers.

The property has been examined and reported on by some of the best known copper experts and engineers in the South-West—among the most prominent being Messrs. J. J. Wood and Thomas Bentley, well known as expert assayers through their work in this line for the Banco de Sonora, one of the largest banking institutions of Mexico. Exhaustive reports are also made by D. J. Thompson, L. H. Jansen, and others. The verdict of all is that this is a property of great value, and that from every indication it is soon to become another Greene Consolidated. Those familiar with the great Greene property say that no two properties in America are so nearly alike in every way as are these two kings of Sonora.

During the past month sensational developments have been made almost daily. The big strike of sulphide ore which was made in the Josephine shaft some weeks ago was one of unusual richness. The ore was encountered near the 150-foot level and penetrated for something near 20 feet, averaging from 7 1-2 per cent. to 25 per cent. in copper, and is one of the very best smelting ores, as it carries its own fluxes.

Following this rich strike the shaft penetrated an excellent deposit of iron sprinkled throughout with native copper, and just a few days ago went into the second layer of sulphides and with every indication present that the permanent sulphide bed will be reached at almost any moment. When that is accomplished the stock of this company should, and no doubt will, advance to far above its par value of, $1.00 per share.

The company has been selling some of its stock for development purposes during the past two months, and the first block, offered at 25 cents, was quickly taken up and the price was just recently advanced to 35 cents per share. Conservative investors are taking up this second offering very rapidly, confident that this price will be more than doubled at a very early date.

The president vice-president and other officers and directors of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co., of Kansas City, Mo., recently spent several days at Camp Lluvia, and were more than gratified with the progress that is being made. Mr. W. T. Lake is in charge of the office at Hermosillo, and Mr. J. C. Worthington, General Manager, is directing the work at the mine.

The property is well equipped for present needs with steam hoist and other modern machinery. The assay office, tool house, shaft house, store house, and the homes for the workers are all well built and in first class condition. A full crew of men is working in two shifts, and the work of sinking the Josephine shaft on through to the permanent sulphide bed is being rushed with all possible speed. The miners are of the better class of Mexican laborers, are trained workmen, well paid and well satisfied with the treatment they are receiving from Manager Worthington. In this section of Mexico labor troubles are unknown.

The original holdings of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. consisted of about 160 acres, but 120 acres of valuable adjoining property was added by the officers on their recent visit, making the present holdings 280 acres. This additional territory will mean much to the future of this already valuable property. Before the present offering of stock was placed on the market the officers of the company had already been developing the property for two years and had spent thousands of dollars of their own money in carrying the work to its present stage. The company needs larger equipment to carry on the larger work outlined, and for that purpose stock is now being sold.

A smelter will probably be a proposition of the early future; but for the present, Green's big custom smelter at Guaymas will handle all the ore when shipments begin. The ore can be milled at a very small cost, owing to its unusually fine smelting qualities. Good wagon roads lead direct from the mine to Carbo, and the ore can be transported at a very reasonable cost. Timber, fuel and water are near at hand and can be had at very small cost. In fact, everything is present in the Lluvia for the making of a very great mine—and that it will become such in the very early days of the future is the prediction of men in a position to know—the best and most expert mining engineers of Mexico.

LLUVIA DE COBRE HAS HIGH VALUE ORES.

The average of the many assays made on ores taken from all parts of the Lluvia de Cobre property, show an unusually high value.

Some of the most capable and experienced mining engineers in this country and Mexico have examined the Lluvia de Cobre property, and it is the general opinion of all that Lluvia de Cobre ores will run probably higher in value than the ores from many of the world's other greatest copper mines.

Following is a list of some of the world's greatest copper producers and the average value of the ores handled:

Anaconda	1.25
Calumet & Hecla	2.5
Greene Consolidated	7.9
Quincy	1.6
Rio Tinto	2.19
United Verde	7.
Osceola	1.
Parrot	2.

When it is remembered that all these properties are valued at millions of dollars and have paid dividends of many millions more, and that the average valuation of the ores produced by these eight big properties is less than 3.5 per cent., it will readily be seen what a valuable property we have in the Lluvia de Cobre, with the possibility of opening up an enormous body of ore averaging probably double this amount.

A BIG, NEW SMELTER CLOSE AT HAND.

Colonel Greene is now building a large custom smelter at Guaymas on the coast of the Gulf of California. This will be one of the largest and most modern smelters in the State of Sonora, and as it is directly south of our property and at the terminus of the Sonora Railway, it will give us excellent smelting facilities until such time as we have our own smelter in operation.

MINING ACTIVITY IN MEXICO.

(From 1906 Edition of Stevens Copper Handbook, the world's most eminent authority on Copper).

MEXICO—The Republic of Mexico has made relatively greater strides in copper production during the past five years than any other country in the world. Not only has there been a most remarkable relative gain, but the actual gain in output puts Mexico an exceedingly close second to the United States in point of increase. That Mexico will soon lead Spain, and rank second only to the United States, seems assured. The Boleo has long been an important mine, but the copper production of all other Mexican mines was but 1,200 tons so recently as 1896. Since that time the Greenes, Inguarran, Dandela, Moctezuma and other great properties have been developed. Those interested in copper will do well to keep an eye on Mexico for the next two years.

Mexico has upwards of 200 smelters of all sorts, mostly very crude, but with a few of the most modern type and of immense size, notable among the latter being the fine plants of the American Smelting and Refining Co. at Aguascalientes, Monterey and San Luis Potosi. There are also fine reduction plants of the Boleo, Green Consolidated, Desrubridora and other copper mines of the country.

WATER AND FUEL.

In the development of the Greene property one of the most serious problems that presented itself was the water supply.

No such difficulties are encountered at the Lluvia de Cobre. The property is located in a draw, and water can be secured in sufficient quantities to supply all possible needs at any time in the future.

Fuel timber grows in abundance in the immediate neighborhood and can be cut and prepared for use at a very small cost.

Expert Testimony as to the Lluvia de Cobre Mine

FROM A PROMINENT MINING ENGINEER.

"I have visited the Lluvia de Cobre property various times. My opinion has always been that it was valuable mineral ground. Subsequent development work has proven this opinion to be correct."

H. H. LIGHT, E. M.,
Hermosillo, Mex.

FROM THE MANAGER OF WELLS-FARGO EXPRESS CO. FOR THE STATE OF SONORA.

"I have been to the Lluvia de Cobre properties and can say that in my opinion they have a fine future, with very little development work. I have talked the matter over with expert mining men and find that my opinion is well based and would not be surprised to see this property rise to be among the biggest in the state."

L. P. GAXIOLA,
Hermosillo, Mex.

FROM THE HERMOSILLO MANAGER OF THE LLUVIA DE COBRE MINE.

"I had one of the most beautiful homes in this city, and exchanged it for a block of Lluvia de Cobre stock before there was any amount of work done, and can now get my home back in exchange for ONE-FIFTH of the same stock that I received for the property, so you see that our people here think well of the Lluvia's future."

W. T. LAKE.

The Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. is really a close corporation, the controlling interest being held by well known Kansas City business men. As to the business standing and integrity of the Officers and Directors of this Company we refer by special permission to The Fidelity Trust Company or The Union Avenue Bank of Commerce, both of Kansas City, Mo.

LLUVIA DE COBRE Stock now 35 Cents a Share - - Par Value $1.00

The original incorporators of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Company have already expended thousands of dollars of their own money in the purchase and development of the property to its present stage.

These developments prove that the Lluvia de Cobre is destined to become one of the world's leading copper producers, and that it justifies much more extensive and more rapid development than it is now receiving. We want money in order that we may greatly increase the working force, purchase more machinery and equipment of all kinds. We want to rush the work of sinking the Josephine shaft (which at this time has reached a depth of 150 feet) just as rapidly as possible. We want to thoroughly open up this big property and then install mills, smelters, additional work houses, store houses—everything necessary to make this the really big mine that it can surely be made with the necessary capital behind it.

Only 400,000 shares are to be sold for this purpose, as this will secure sufficient money to meet all requirements. 100,000 shares of this stock will be sold at 35 cents per share. It is no reflection upon the value of this great property to admit that we must seek outside financial assistance. The great Greene Consolidated would not be the immense property it is today had it not been for the aid of the investing public. The Calumet and Hecla, Anaconda, Boston and Montana—these and all other big mining properties owe their present greatness to the co-operation and assistance of the "outside investor."

COPPER IS THE WORLD'S GREATEST FORTUNE MAKER.

Every argument that could be desired points to copper as the king of all mining investments.

Electricity, the one great factor in the modernization of the world, is believed to be only in its infancy—and even now the world's supply of copper is not sufficient to supply the demand for this one industry alone.

"Never in memory has copper mining been as profitable as it is today. Not only has the increasing consumption and high market prices initiated prosperity, but the improvements in mining methods have made it possible to handle all grades of ore economically."—The Mining World, March 31, 1906.

"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world today."—Thomas W. Lawson.

"Lawson, we have verified your conclusions as to the value of copper stocks as an investment."—H. H. Rogers.

No investment is so safe, so permanent, so profitable, so sure and sain, as copper!

My Personal Guarantee to Investors

I have told you just what must necessarily be done before this property can be made the big producer that I feel it is destined to become.

I have told you that this Company needs more money to obtain these results and why you are given the opportunity to assist in furnishing it.

I believe this proposition offers far greater returns per dollar invested than any other investment proposition on the market.

So confident am I of the future of this great property that I have this proposition to make to you:

Subscribe at once for as much of this stock as you feel that you can carry. Investigate the mine and the men behind it in any and every way you please for thirty days. If you are not entirely satisfied with your investment at the end of that time, you have but to write me to that effect and I will return every cent of your money.

I want you to feel that you positively cannot go wrong by making an investment in Lluvia de Cobre stock. I want you to decide the question of making this investment, and I want you to give me your order at the earliest possible moment.

Weigh this proposition in the balance—let the facts in the case, as they impress you, decide its true worth. I leave it to your good judgment as to whether you shall be one of the chosen few who shall make of the Lluvia de Cobre another Greene Consolidated.

Officers and Directors

The success of any mining company depends first, of course, upon the property itself, but next, and of almost equal importance, is the personnel of the men back of the whole proposition.

We publish herewith a complete list of the officers and directors of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. We do not believe a more trustworthy or more efficient organization was ever effected. Each and every man has made a pronounced and unusual success in some one particular line of business endeavor and is exceptionally well suited to the duties required by his connection with this company.

Investigate this proposition and the men behind it in any and every way you please—and let the verdict of those who know assist you in deciding whether or not these gentlemen are worthy of your trust and confidence.

WEDDING STATIONERY

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS are always in order. The season for the final result of being a disciple of Cupid finds expression in the Hymeneal ceremony at the altar—that occasion when "two hearts that beat as one" are joined together—pronounced one.

For this auspicious occasion the printing must be chastely dignified—must be appropriate in appearance to this one time of life when everything "best" is donned—when happiness reigns supremely.

Marriage Announcements
Marriage Invitations
Marriage Reception Cards
Post Nuptial Reception Cards

All of these we are able to supply in a proper form and printed artistically. Our work is conducted under the supervision of skilled typographical mechanics and may be unhesitatingly presented to the most fastidious critic.

Our charges for such work are moderate—yet good printing is ever valuable. However, we give quality for our figures, and an order entrusted to our care will be speedily, carefully and satisfactorily executed.

No work can be well done which has to be done hurriedly. Time is necessary for the accomplishment of faultless printing. We will fulfil all expectations if given ample time for completion.

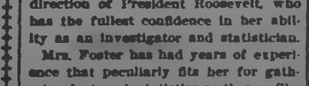
ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.



MRS. J. ELLEN FOSTER.

Prominent as a Lawyer, Orator and Reformer.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster of Washington, who has won fame as a lawyer, an orator and a reformer, is investigating the condition of women and child workers throughout this country. Mrs. Foster was detailed from the department of justice to do this work by direction of President Roosevelt, who has the fullest confidence in her ability as an investigator and statistician.

Mrs. Foster has had years of experience that peculiarly fits her for gathering just such statistics as these. She was among the first women in the country to study and practice law, and most of her clients were moneyless and defenseless women and children. She has been prominent in most of the best reform movements which have engaged women's clubs and societies and usually had charge of the work of crystallizing the sentiment into political action. On two occasions she brought special trainloads of factory women from New England to testify before senate committees as to their wages and living conditions.

MRS. J. ELLEN FOSTER.

In 1900 Mrs. Foster was appointed by Secretary of State John Hay to represent the United States at the International Red Cross conference at St. Petersburg. In 1905 she accompanied the Taft party to the Philippines and made a special report to President Roosevelt on the condition of women and children there.

Mrs. Foster then made a trip around the world, in the course of which she studied the condition of women and children in China and India.

Mrs. Foster is an ardent advocate of temperance and was one of the founders of the W. C. T. U. in Massachusetts, in which state she was born. She has spoken in the cause of temperance all over the Union and was in the thick of the fight which resulted in making Iowa a temperance state.

"Weeping Willows."

"If there were more tears, there would be more marriages," said a matchmaker. "Whatever men may say, they like a woman who has not lost the ability to weep in true feminine fashion. In spite of their alleged strength, men always want some one in whom they can confide. What sympathy can they expect from a woman who knows not how to weep and regards tears as undignified? No man really likes to see a woman cry, but all men prefer a woman who can and does cry—a tender hearted creature who, although brave enough, does not try to incase herself in a kind of additional outer skin or suit of mail that renders her proof against sentiment. It is very questionable if this stoicism is good for women in any way. It is a relief to shed tears, and many a man would be glad if it were not regarded as cowardice for him to weep. It is one of nature's methods of assuaging grief."

Cheerful Bedrooms.

A cheerful bedroom is one of the essential points for an invalid or convalescent, and, since it is difficult to find a house with all the bedrooms facing south, some one must be unselfish enough to give the sunniest rooms to the less robust members of the family. Many people insist that the eastern exposure is the best for a sleeping room, because the early morning sun is healthful, but if the room must, perforce, face north it should have a light, cheerful paper and the lightest possible draperies. The bed should not be placed so that the light from the window shines directly in the eyes of the sleeper. It may be conducive to early rising, but the effect upon the eyes is unpleasant and often harmful. If the bed must face the windows and the footboard is not high enough to shield the eyes, a screen should be put across overnight between the window and the bed.

A Famous Skin Lotion.

A famous lotion, which not only whitens and clears the skin, but is also said to efface scars and even smallpox pittings, may be used at night and morning. Take one-half ounce of Jordan almonds, one and a half drams of bitter almonds, half a pint of distilled water and seven grains of bichloride of mercury in powder form. Care should be taken in making this lotion that nothing alkaline or metallic should touch the liquid. To make the almond milk blanch the almonds, crush in a mortar and add half of the distilled water. Put a lump of sugar in to prevent the two ingredients from separating, then beat well; strain through a flannel. Add the mercury, which has been previously dissolved in the other half of the water. When beaten together add sufficient water to make a pint. Apply twice a day and allow to dry on, then wipe off with soft cloth.—Philadelphia Press.

White Spots on the Table.

Who is not tormented with "white spots" on the dining table? To remedy, have three cloths and three saucers containing one kerosene, one alcohol and one sweet oil. Apply kerosene first of all. If kerosene or raw linseed oil is applied as soon as the spot is first made it will often remove it at once. After the stain has been allowed to stand for some time, however, first apply the kerosene, the second cloth with alcohol and finally the third cloth with sweet oil or linseed oil, rubbing the last in thoroughly until the spot has disappeared.

Movable Kitchen Cupboard.

A movable kitchen cupboard is a delight to the housewife, for this useful piece of furniture is like a parlor cabinet, as far as completeness is concerned. It has compartments for the flour barrel and large bowls underneath. It has shelves of varying depths for plates and cups and saucers. It has a small closet with labeled drawers of spices and others for sugar and the like, while, on the order of a desk, one shelf is let down for a bread board. All this is compactly arranged in a remarkably small space suited to the modern kitchen.

A Plate Shelf.

When the plate rail around the dining room is not sufficient to hold all the plates and the ceiling is so high as to leave an ugly blank space above the doorway an excellent idea is to build a narrow shelf over the lintel and bank it with plates and perhaps a tall, graceful vase filled with grasses or autumn leaves. The shelf should, of course, be stained to match the woodwork in the room, but it is quite possible for the home carpenter to put up such a contrivance.

Novel Way of Mending.

A good way to mend a round hole in a silk or woolen dress where otherwise only a patch could remedy matters is the following: The frayed portions around the tear should be carefully smoothed and a piece of the material, moistened with very thin mucilage, placed under the hole. A heavy weight should then be put upon it until dry, when it is only possible to discover the mended place by careful observation.

Saving the Woodwork.

To prevent the marring of mantels, furniture and window sills by flower vases or pots place beneath them little squares of oiled pasteboard cut from cracker or cake boxes now so common on the market. A supply of these squares can be cut in a few moments, and if kept in a handy place their use will soon become a habit, saving furniture and woodwork from many unsightly rings.

Taking a Compliment.

It is said that the way a woman takes a compliment stamps her place in society. A blush denotes the debutante, a giggle the silly or unsophisticated, a brusque protest the sensible but unpolished, but the quiet, unelated smile, with a quieter "Thank you," if reply be necessary, unmistakably denotes the woman of social training, the one accustomed to compliments.

After Treatment.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. PROPERTY AND LOCATION

The property consists of forty acres being the south-west quarter of the north half of lot 6 in concession 1 Township of Burke. The property of this Company lies about three-quarters of a mile north-west from the celebrated Trethewey mine and is identically of the same formation. Vein matter was found in this property right from the surface and subsequent prospecting has revealed several well defined veins. On the main vein several nuggets of native silver were found. A shaft had been sunk to a depth of fourteen feet when the property was taken over by this Company.

WORK ON THE PROPERTY

At present a camp is being built and active development work is being proceeded with. One half of the Company's property is still unprospected.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Of all Cobalt Mining Companies none can show a sounder business basis than this. The organizers had such confidence in the property that they have taken their entire interest in stock and have pooled same for six months, evidencing the fact of their absolute confidence in the value of the Company's property at the par value of $1.00 per share. ONLY 25000 shares are being issued at the present time for active development work. It is confidently expected that this will be sufficient to make this property a shipper, and if so the public can at a glance see what the value of these shares will be, having regard to the fact that only 75,000 shares of the Company will have been issued. The stock is not being offered outside of Ottawa as the Directors feel confident this small amount will be oversubscribed here. Address thought surely you would come to see me, but you went away."

Polly's lips were trembling, and she covered her eyes.

"I feared to be unwelcome," said he.

"You and every one, except my mother, were determined that I should marry Roberts," Polly went on. "He has been urgent, but you, Sidney, you wouldn't have me. You have done everything you could to help him. Now I've found you, and I'm going to tell you all, and you've got to listen to me. He has proof, he says, that you are guilty of another crime, and—and he says you are now a fugitive trying to escape arrest."

A little silence followed, in which Trove was thinking of the Hope letters and of Roberts' claim that he was engaged to Polly.

"You have been wrapped in mysteries long enough. I shall not let you go until you explain," she continued.

"There's no mystery about this," said Trove calmly. "Roberts is a rascal, and that's the reason I'm here."

She turned quickly, with a look of surprise.

"I mean it. He knows I am guilty of no crime, but he does know that I am looking for Louis Leblanc, and he has fooled me with lying letters to keep me out of the way and win you with his guile."

A serious look came into Polly's eyes.

"You are looking for Louis Leblanc," she whispered.

"Yes. It is the first move in a plan to free Darrel, for I am sure that Leblanc committed the crime. I shall know soon after I meet him."

"How?"

"If he should have a certain mark on the back of his left hand and were to satisfy me in two other details I'd give my life to one purpose—that of making him confess. God help me! I cannot find the man. But I shall not give up. I shall see the governor."

Turning her face away and looking out of the window she felt for his hand. Then she pressed it fondly. That was the giving of all sacred things forever, and he knew it.

"I do love you, Polly," said Trove at length. "I've answered your queries, all of them, and now it's my turn. If we were at Robin's Inn I should put my arms about you and I should not let you go until—until you had promised to be my wife."

"And I should not promise for at least an hour," said she, smiling, as she turned, her dark eyes full of their new discovery. "Let us go home."

"I'm going to be imperative," said he, "and you must answer before I will let you go"—

"Dear Sidney," said she, "let's wait until we reach home. It's too bad to spoil it here. But"— she whispered, looking about the room, "you may kiss me once now."

"I must get work somewhere. My money is gone," said Trove.

"Money!" said she, opening her purse. "I'm a Lady Bountiful. Think of it. I've $200 here. Didn't you know Riley Brooke canceled the mortgage? Mother had saved this money for a payment."

"Canceled the mortgage!" said Trove.

"Yes, the dear old tinker repaired him, and now he's a new man. I'll give you a job, Sidney."

"What to do?"

"Go and see the governor, and then—and then you are to report to me at Robin's Inn. Mind you, there's to be no delay, and I'll pay you. Let's see, I'll pay you a hundred dollars."

Trove began to laugh.

"I shall stay tonight with a cousin at Burlington. Oh, there's one more thing you're to get a new suit of clothes at Albany, and, remember, it must be very grand."

It was near train time, and they left the inn.

"I'm going to tell you everything," said she as they were on their way to the depot. "The day after tomorrow I am to see that dreadful Roberts. I'm longing to give him his answer."

Not an hour before then Roberts had passed them on his way to Boston.

CHAPTER XXXII.

IT was early May and a bright morning in Hillsborough. There were lines of stores and houses on either side of the main thoroughfare from the river to Moorehead inn, a long, low white building that faced the public square. Hunters coming off its veranda and gazing down the street, as if sighting over gun barrels at the bridge, were wont to reckon the distance "nigh on to forty rod." There were "Boston Stores" and "Great Emporiums" and shops, modest as they were small, in that forty rods of Hillsborough. Midway was a little white building, its eaves within reach of one's hand, its gable on the line of the sidewalk overhanging which, from a crane above the door, was a big golden spool. In its two windows were lace and ribbons and ladies' hats and spools of thread, and blue shades drawn high from 7 o'clock in the morning until dark. It was the little shop of Ruth Tole, a house of fate on the way from happening to history. There secrets, travel worn, were nourished awhile and sent on their way; reputations were made over and often trimmed with excellent taste and discrimination.

Ruth Tole was behind the counter, sorting threads. She was a maiden of middle life and severe countenance, of few and decisive words. The door of the little shop was ajar, and near it a woman was knitting. She had a position favorable for eye and ear. She could see all who passed on either side of the way and not a word or move in the shop escaped her. In the sisterhood she bore the familiar name of Lize. She had been talking about that old case of Riley Brooke and the Widow Glover.

"Looks to me," said she thoughtfully as she tickled her scalp with a knitting needle, "that she took the kinks out o' him. He's a deal more respectable."

"Like a panther with his teeth pulled," said a woman who stood by the counter buying a spool of thread. "Ain't you heard how they made up?"

"Land sakes, no!" said Lize.

"Well, that old tinker gave 'em both a good talking to," said the customer. "He brings 'em face to face, and he says to him, says he, 'In the day o' the judgment God 'll mind the look o' your wife,' and then he says the same to her."

"Singular man!" said comely Lize.

"He never robbed that bank, either, any more'n I did."

"Men ain't apt to claim a sin that don't belong to 'em. That's my opinion."

"He did it to shield another."

"Sidney Trove?" was the half whispered query of the sister Lize.

"Trove, no!" said the other quickly. "It was that old man with a gray beard who never spoke to anybody an' used to visit the tinker."

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH

Cure Catarrh by Breathing Hyomei; Sold Under Guarantee.

The only scientific and common sense way to treat catarrh of the nose and throat is by a local application that will kill the catarrhal germs.

Ordinary stomach dosing is worse than useless. Taking medicine into the stomach to cure catarrh of the head can have no good effect, and often leads to serious derangement of the digestive organs.

By breathing Hyomei three or four times daily through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, its medicated, healing air penetrates to the most remote parts of the nose, throat and lungs, searches out and kills all catarrhal germs, and soothes and heals any irritation in the mucous membranes.

Our faith in the wonderful merit of Hyomei as a cure for catarrh is shown by the guarantee given with every Hyomei outfit that the money will be refunded unless the treatment gives satisfaction.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. On Their Way.

During a newspaper men's convention, a number of journalists were one afternoon talking of the tricks of "the faithless types," when Henry Watterson said:

"While I've heard of a great many funny typographical breaks in my time, about the oddest and most humorous transposition of the types that ever came within my observation was that in a New York paper some years ago. That sheet used to print its shipping news on the same page with the obituaries. Imagine the glee with which its readers found the captions exchanged one morning, whereby a long list of respectable names were set forth under the marine head 'Passed Through Hell Gate Yester day.'"

Not a Simple Task.

"It takes him a painfully long time to write a letter."

HUMOR

THE NEW JOURNALIST.

His Remarks on Lynching Cause Him a Heap of Trouble.

"I was in the newspaper business once myself," laughed the portly party. "When I left college I decided that nothing but journalism would cater to the strenuous life that I proposed to lead. In looking over the situation I realized that the eastern field was too cramped for my swelling ambition, so I decided upon the free and boundless west as the only spot where my budding genius could properly expand unhampered by the conventionalities of the effete east.

"Well, I found a small town in the west where there was no paper and proceeded at once to fill a long felt want. Soon after I had established my great molder of opinion a lynching took place, and I felt that the situation called for a few burning words upon the subject. The result was a two column leader, wherein I handled the outrage without gloves. I cannot now recall what I said except the end, which read something like this: 'Gentlemen, think twice before you again drag the name of our beautiful and future great city through the mud.'

"The edition containing my inspired and burning words was hardly issued when I had a call from a delegation of my fellow citizens.

"'What can I do for you, gentlemen?' I asked, realising that I was facing a condition, not a theory.

"'We've kim yere,' said the spokesman, 'to inform you that we don't take no shine to that thar article of yourn 'bout lynchin'. Our first impression was to bring a rope along with us, but we remembered what you said 'bout thinkin' twice, so we've jes' called to let you know that we've had our first think. We'll be yere again tomorrow.'

"I took the hint and the first train out of town."—Detroit Free Press.

Two Miles of Development

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite. No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

But fly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,600 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

If you want to invest in a MINE with vast possibilities, let us hear from you at once and we will send detailed information.

WARNING TO GERMANY

Must not Seek to Isolate France—Peace and Dignity the French Policy

New York, Dec. 28.—A cable despatch received by the Herald from Berlin tells of an interview in which M. Pichon, French ambassador, says that the present alliances, understandings and friendships of France will be cultivated and developed, and that, as to Franco-German relations, the general policy of France is based on alliances and friendships.

"We do not plan to isolate Germany," said M. Pichon, "but Germany must not seek to isolate us as she attempted at the Algeciras conference. When our interests clash we can explain to each other in good faith, and the explanations will be a consequence of the peaceful conditions which we will foster with absolute loyalty. Peace and dignity sum up the whole policy of France."

ENTIRE TOWN TO EMIGRATE

Nine Thousand Spaniards Will Go to South America.

New York, December 28.—A cable despatch from Madrid, published here yesterday, says that nine thousand of the town of Bejar, which is 45 miles south of Salamanca, decided some time ago to emigrate in a body. A meeting was held Monday, which approved the offer of the Presidents of Uruguay and Nicaragua to supply ships and funds for the transportation of the emigrants.

Bank Teller's Loot Recovered.

Austin, Tex., December 28.—Between $5,000 and $9,000 stolen by Wm. C. Anderson, formerly assistant paying teller of the First National Bank of Kansas City, who was arrested here last week, has been found here. According to the agents of the Surety Company that bonded Anderson, the amount is sufficiently large, with that turned over by Anderson when arrested, to reimburse the company for its $10,000 bond.

STOMACH'S IMPORTANCE

How to Strengthen It so That It Will Act as It Should.

The stomach is the principal organ concerned in the digestion of food. If it is weak, inactive or out of order and unable to properly digest the food, the body will soon be in a state of semi-starvation.

Then, too, when the stomach is weak, the food is not properly digested and lies in it for hours, decomposing, fermenting, and forming poisonous gases and ptomaines that are absorbed into the blood, poisoning the system and impoverishing the blood.

To enjoy good health, it is absolutely necessary that the stomach and digestive organs should be strong, and no other remedy equals Mi-o-na in strengthening and giving tone to the whole digestive system.

Relief from the use of Mi-o-na is permanent and lasting. Use Mi-o-na for a few days, and the digestion will be good, the appetite keen, and there will be no pains or distress after eating, no sleeplessness, no nervousness, and the headaches, backaches and disturbed heart action that are the direct result of a weakened stomach will soon be overcome.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Hygeal Company Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

OSCILLATING CANDLE.

It Works Like the Walking Beam of a Watt Engine.

The little motor represented herewith operates not by steam nor by electricity nor by compressed air. It possesses no boiler, no cylinder, no piston and consists simply of a stearin candle. Let the reader take a candle and perform the experiment for himself. Insert in the center of the candle and at right angles with it the heads of two pins previously heated. These pins will constitute the axis of the motor and are to be placed upon the edge of two wineglasses. If the two ends of the candles are lighted they will burn, and a drop of stearin will fall into one of the plates placed beneath in order to receive it. The equilibrium of the scale beam will be broken, and the other end of the candle will descend, causing the end that has just lost the first drop of stearin to rise. This oscillatory motion will cause several drops to fall from the end that has just descended and which in its turn becomes the lighter and will therefore rise, while the other descends, and the oscillatory motion, slight at first, will take on a greater and greater amplitude, the candle, slightly inclined upon the horizon at first, finally taking a nearly vertical position. There is nothing more interesting than to watch this oscillatory motion, which does not cease unless one blows out the two flames or the two candles are entirely consumed—that is to say, at the end of half an hour. If now it is desired to utilize the motion of the candle while it is in operation it may be connected by a thin iron wire with small figures cut out of cardboard and jointed, to which it will give a to and fro motion. It may be considered as the walking beam of a Watt engine, and to each extremity may be connected a small piston moving in a vertical cylinder. Finally and more simply, there may be fixed to the axis by means of pins, which will keep it at a distance in order to prevent the contact of the flames, a strip of light cardboard, representing a plank, to the extremities of which may be glued two figures that will play a seesaw and thus render the experiment still more attractive to the young.

THE CANDLE IN OPERATION.

A Pocket Notebook.

It is not the usual custom of young people to take notes, but as they grow older and their interest in the affairs of life widens they will discover that a number of matters will come to their attention and will slip away again unless there is something to help the memory. While the suggestion may not be of use to many of you, for the benefit of the few who like to be systematic the habit of carrying a little notebook with an alphabetical index is strongly recommended. In this put down at least a brief note regarding what you wish to remember, in each case entering it under the letter beginning the most prominent name or word connected with it. If you cannot put down the exact item you wish to remember at least note where you found it. The amount of time saved by this habit as you grow older will enable you to read a large number of excellent books, for to seek in vain a bit of information is not only extremely irritating, but exceedingly wasteful of time. Particularly in reading will a little notebook prove a great help. It is better to choose a tiny book, so that it will never be in the way.—St. Nicholas.

Pick a Name For Yourself.

One of the customs practiced by our Puritan forefathers was that of inflicting ludicrous and terrifying names upon their children. One Puritan damsel when asked her baptismal name answered, "Through-Much-Tribulation-We-Enter-the-Kingdom-of-Heaven, but for short they call me Tribby." Another unfortunate maiden bore the name The-Gift-of-God Stringer. A sickly boy was christened Faint-Not Hewitt. Another labored under Fight-the-Good-Fight-of-Faith White. A little girl who had a propensity for crying was at the age of eight christened Weep-Not Billing. There also were Thunder Goldsmith, The-Work-of-God Farmer, Search-the-Scriptures Morton, Be-Courteous Cole and, worst of all, Kill-Sin Pimple.

A Sleeping Bird.

If you have a pet bird look at it closely when it is asleep and you will see that it does not, as is generally believed, tuck its head under its wing. You have heard all your life that a bird sleeps in that way, but it does not. It turns its head and lays it on the soft and yielding feathers of its back, which sometimes entirely hide it.

The Wise Man.

There is a man in our town
Who is so wondrous wise
He knows he cannot sing at all,
And so he never tries.

He also knows he has no wit
Like many funny folks,
And so he never bothers us
By getting off his jokes.

And when he has no word to say
He's wise enough, though young,
To sit about while others talk
And hold his little tongue.

The Parrot Fish.

There are water parrots as well as land parrots. The parrot fish come from the tropics, are brilliantly colored and have beaks something like those of the parrot, for use in breaking off the coral shell in order to get at the living polyp. Not all of them, however, live on animal food, some species being herbivorous. One species is found in the Mediterranean sea, where it has been known for thousands of years. The Greeks and Romans regarded it for a time as the first of fishes, and Pliny tells us how it was introduced into the Italian sea in the course of the reign of Claudius. It was known as the "scarus" by the ancients, who told some wonderful stories about its love, its wisdom and its rumination. Some having a length of sixteen inches have been captured alive.

Dubuque's Seal.

On the city seal of Dubuque, Ia., appear the words "La petite nuit," and strangers are always puzzled by them. Why should Dubuque be called "the little night?" It is explained that the place originally was settled by an old miner named Dubuque. When the Indians granted certain lands to Dubuque the document was drawn up in French in Prairie du Chien. The clerk who did the work believed that "la petite nuit" meant "the old miner," and his mistake has perpetuated a phrase which, however pretty, has no significance in its present connection.

Blew His Own Horn.

A Scottish colonel who was in command of the Perthshire yeomanry was at an evening party in Edinburgh complaining loudly of his officers, alleging that all the duties of the regiment devolved upon him. "I am," he said, "to all intents and purposes my own major, my own captain, my own lieutenant, my own cornet." "To say nothing of being your own trumpeter too," remarked a grim old Scottish lady, sotto voce.

Quick Wit.

There is no more effective weapon to defend us from impertinence or rudeness than quick, sharp wit. But few men have it, and it is born with them. If we try to imitate it we end in ill nature and scurrility. Wit cannot be forced into growth. But courtesy and good temper can. These weapons are sure and grow brighter and stronger with age.

Didn't Like Taxes.

Cases against George Washington appear here and there in old documents. No less than three claims were entered against him during the year 1767 to compel him to pay taxes. The humorous clerk, commenting on those actions, remarked, "George Washington, Esq., appeareth not to like taxes."

PROFESSIONAL ETIQUETTE.

Medical Secrets Were Told in Court and Raise Nice Question.

In a recent breach of promise action in England a medical man was closely cross-examined as to the professional etiquette regarding what had passed between a patient and himself.

The medical profession certainly lays it down that such matters ought not to be divulged to third parties without the consent of the patient. And the law, too, as shown in a case a few years back, when a leading physician was mulcted in heavy damages for telling his wife about a lady patient, upholds this contention out of court. But in the witness box a doctor is compelled by the rules of law as laid down by English judges, however confidential the communications may have been, to answer questions concerning what has passed and what he noticed.

The advice usually given by writers to medical men is that they should appeal to the judge, and, though the witness will be compelled to answer questions, he will thus show that it is against his will to speak of his patients' ailments. Acting thus under compulsion, medical men are absolutely safe if slander actions are launched by angry patients against them, for such evidence is privileged.

In France it is by no means rare to hear of actions being brought against medical men for giving evidence regarding their patients' health, and in New York there is a statute which forbids a medical man to disclose any information which he may have acquired in attending any patient in a professional character.

Saving the Babies.

When Alderman Broadbent, a brother of the King's well-known physician, took office as Mayor of Huddersfield, on November 9, 1904, he offered to give parents living in a specified district of the city $5 for every child born during his twelve months in office and which lived to the age of a year. The result of the experiment was announced, the second anniversary of its inauguration. The rate of infant mortality in the Longwood district of Huddersfield, which is the experimental area, had averaged 122 per thousand for the preceding ten years. The period of the test proved somewhat unfortunate. There were serious epidemics of whooping cough and measles, while the summer of 1906 was one of the deadliest recorded. The first baby to earn the gift was born on November 10, 1904, and the last on November 8, 1905. The mothers notified the managing committee of the births of these babies. No fewer than 107 received the gift. Four died and one did not claim the gift and its fate cannot be learned. If, however, it is reckoned as dead the average mortality works out 44 per thousand as compared with the previous 122 per thousand.

Mr. Broadbent in announcing the result at the Borough Council said this reduction in the average to less than one-half of what it had been was astounding. His promise of the gift of $5 was intended as a stimulus to maternal affection, but to prove his desire to help mothers this was done through a committee of volunteer women workers who undertook to advise and assist the parents if they so desired. The babies belonged to all classes and there was no discrimination. Some lived in places which were hardly better than slums.

A New London Hospital.

There is probably no coatlier operating-room in the world than that of the hospital opened in London on Nov. 19. The room is made of marble, so as to prevent any accumulation of dust. It has a tessellated floor of Terazzo marble, and the walls are lined with Sicilian marble. Electric heating makes it possible to obtain any desired temperature, and noiseless fans provide ventilation. That the patient may not be frightened by the instruments used in the operation and the presence of so many physicians and medical students, there is an anteroom to the operation hall, where the patient is put under the anaesthetic.

The Bedouin of Socotra.

The Bedouin is decidedly a handsome individual, lithe of limb like his goats and with a cafe au lait colored skin. He has a sharp profile, excellent teeth. He often wears a stubby black beard and has beautifully pencilled eyebrows, and, though differing entirely in language, in physique and type, he closely resembles the Bedouin found in the Mahri and Gara mountains. Furthermore, the mode of life is the same—dwelling in caves when necessary, but having permanent abodes on the lower lands—and they have several other striking points in common. Greetings take place between the Arabian Bedouins and the Socotran Bedouins in similar fashion—by touching each cheek and then rubbing the nose. We found the Bedouin of Mount Haghier fond of dancing and playing his teherane, and also peculiarly lax in his religious observances, and, though ostensibly conforming to Mohammedan practice, he observes next to none of their precepts, and it is precisely the same with the Bedouins whom we met in the Gara mountains. There is certainly nothing African about the Socotran Bedouin. Therefore I am inclined to consider him as a branch of that aboriginal race which inhabited Arabia, with a language of its own.

Order of British Titles.

They had been talking about an English marquis and the position he held among his titled aristocracy.

"I didn't know a marquis ranked so high," said the girl in white.

"Dear me!" said an Englishman. "Didn't you? Why, a marquis ranks next to a duke."

He paused to sip his tea and take a foie gras sandwich.

"Marquess, not marquis," he went on, "is the more accurate use of the word. It is so spelled and pronounced in Burke. Shall I tell you the degrees of the English aristocracy? The knowledge may be useful to you when you come to contract an international alliance, eh?

"After royalty come dukes. After dukes come marquises, then earls, viscounts, barons, baronets and knights. I don't mention lords. A lord is an earl—the Earl of Craven, for instance, is often called Lord Craven—or else the title is only the courtesy one accorded to the younger sons of dukes.

THE ONLY PACKERS OF BEEF, PORK AND OTHER FOOD PRODUCTS OF THE RANCHES AND FARMS OF WESTERN CANADA.

This Company has already about 1,000 shareholders, all of whom have paid for their shares in cash on equal terms, and shares are allotted by priority of application.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary;—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada, in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2½c per lb, with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 500,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or more whole sections containing two or three miles each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold; the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere, it is probable that the shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid say up to 10 fully paid $100 shares for each Share held), and I may mention that the firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions (20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100 Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

EXTRACT FROM REPORT, JUNE 30TH, 1906.

"An interesting brochure published by Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, give statistics of the past year's business. The total sales for the year aggregated over $200,000,000, representing shipments of 360 carloads daily. In a single day were slaughtered in the company's seven packing plants 11,875 cattle, 16,253 sheep and 34,462 hogs.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure, Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present; The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs J. A. Banfield, F. B. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

Changes in Local Hotels.

Several changes in local hotel proprietorship have recently been accomplished. The American House, formerly managed by Mr. Steve Holland, has passed into the proprietorship and management of Mr. Flynn, who will make many improvements already noted by The Times.

The Hotel Royal, also on Hunter street, has changed ownership to the control of Mr. Kelly, who, it is understood, will be assisted by no well qualified and competent an hotelman as Mr Patrick Cluman.

Pleasing Presentation at Norwood

Norwood Register.—A pleasing incident took place at the High School on Friday morning when the pupils of the school presented Miss Leighton, Science teacher, who is severing her connection with the staff to accept a similar position at Madoc, with an appreciative address accompanied by a pretty pearl sunburst and stick-pin. The address read as follows:—

To Miss Leighton;

We, the pupils of the Norwood High School, have now met together to bid you farewell. We wish to express our appreciation of your faithful and efficient work, as your teacher, and the regard for you personally.

You have ever been a kind and true friend to us, and it is withfeelings of deepest regret that we realize that the time has come when we must separate.

Before you leave us, we, with many good wishes for prosperity and happiness in your new field of work, ask you to accept this small token of remembrance of your days spent in Norwood High School.

The funeral will take place today at two o'clock, from the family residence, 92 Hunter street, to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Good Fight For Monaghan Reeveship

It now seems that the reeveship of North Monaghan is going to be contested in old time fashion. The present reeve, Mr. Madill, has announced his intention of retiring from office, and will not be a candidate again next year. It is stated that there are two candidates for the reeveship, Mr. John Brown, of Springville, and Mr. John Holmes, who resides in the township. Both are well known in the municipality and if they allow their names to go before the people there will be an interesting fight. Both are councillors at the present time and either of them would make a good official.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, [illegible] "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more thoroughly than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes, and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE MAYORALTY

Ald. R. F. McWilliams, candidate for Mayor, has issued the following address to the electors:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

At the request of large numbers of the ratepayers I have decided to become a candidate for the Mayoralty of our city for the year 1907. I have served on the Council for several years, have held an important chairmanship each year, and am known to the great majority of the ratepayers; I was born and bred, and have lived all my life, in this city, and with its prosperity all my own business interests are bound up. I have, therefore, every interest in serving the city well and faithfully; and if you honor me with your confidence, I shall make it my aim to place Peterborough still higher in the ranks of Canadian cities.

I think it incumbent on me to state clearly what my position is and always has been on the leading questions likely to be considered next year, and the principles upon which I would conduct your business.

HONESTY AND EFFICIENCY

Should be the watchwords of our administration. I have always advocated the publicity of Council business, except in rare cases, as the surest guarantee of a sole regard for the public interest; and for the same reason I have advocated the appointment of a permanent auditor, who would audit at the time instead of a year later, and the frequent publication of financial statements free from the technicalities of book-keeping.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

I believe that the voters of this city can be depended on to place in the management of public services men who will give to it the same honest and efficient service as they give to their private business, and therefore that we need have no fear of undertaking the operation of public utilities. I am strongly in favor of the ownership and operation by the municipality of every public utility which requires the use of the streets. I believe that we should not give any more franchises to corporations in our streets, and that we should get back all that have been given away whenever we can do so at reasonable cost. I am therefore in favor of the purchase of the business of the Peterboro Light and Power Co. if investigation proves that, at fair prices to the consumers, the profit is sufficient to pay for the works.

THE DAY LABOR SYSTEM

Our experience in recent years in building pavements and sewers has demonstrated, as I have always contended, that the municipality can do its street work of all kinds without resort to contracting; and I believe we should in future do all such work by the day labor system. Further, all such work should be done in a season when the roadway can be properly repaired, and not left a danger and discredit to the city, with sometimes the work unfinished.

IMPROVEMENT OF STREETS

I think the time has come when we should put an end to the disgraceful condition of our streets. With the rapidly increasing revenue of the corporation we will have, without raising the rate, a large fund which should be used for making permanent improvements in our roads. Still more do we need proper crossings. I believe that we should build concrete crossings not merely in a few places on the little used streets where pavements have yet to be built; but at all the points which have been omitted in previous years, to be paid for in the same way as all other permanent improvements are being paid for. We need also a system of keeping the centre of the city clean and of repairing defects in the streets before they have time to grow.

NEW INDUSTRIES

It is of vital importance that Peterborough should in this growing time of Canada secure a large share of the manufactories which are being established in the country. We should aim to place our advantages before capitalists, and especially to make use of the good start we now have with English factories. So long as the law continues to permit bonusing by our rivals we must continue the policy of moderate assistance to new factories and to enlargements of existing factories, but I will gladly support any effort towards the abolition of all bonusing. We must without delay place ourselves in a position to offer power as cheap as our competitors, and to make the fullest use of our exceptional railway and canal facilities.

For the manner in which I shall carry out these principles, and for my attitude on other questions, I must ask you to judge by my record in the Council. I have not a single interest conflicting with the interests of the city, and I have no other purposes to serve; my sole motive in aspiring to this position is to fulfill its duties in such a manner as to earn the esteem and confidence of my fellow-citizens. I hope to be honored by your vote at the polls.

Wishing you the compliments of the season, I remain

Yours faithfully,

R. F. McWILLIAMS.

Serious Riots in Poland Mills Are Closing Down

Six Killed and Many Injured as Result of Socialist Reign of Terror---Continuance of Business Impossible and Exodus Has Begun.

Lodz, Poland, Dec. 30.—The proprietors of seven of the largest factories here employing 100 000 persons, have announced their intention of closing their establishments owing to the system of terrorism inaugurated by the extreme Socialists.

The announcement caused great excitement among the inhabitants here, who fear that when this great army of unemployed persons begins to feel the want of bread, rioting will occur.

One of the mill owners informed the correspondent of The Associated Press that the employers were compelled to close down because the militant Socialists control the whole city, and are murdering all those who do not accept their demands, which makes the continuance of business impossible.

The Socialists yesterday murdered no less than a score of Nationalists workmen in this city and vicinity, and they threaten to organize street riots and compel citizens at the point of revolver to feed and lodge the unemployed.

The manager of the Scheibler's Cotton Mills, and the foreman and engineer of another factory were murdered during the night by Socialists, and the engineers of those and other establishments, fearing assassination refused to return to their work.

Consequently, four of the largest cotton mills have shut down, and others will close this evening. The engineers and skilled artisans are leaving Lodz, and many of the wealthiest inhabitants have fled from the city in anticipation of disorder.

As the afternoon advanced the bitterness between the conflicting elements became more acute, sanguinary encounters were more frequent, and a number of both sides were killed or wounded.

Up to this hour (3.30 p.m.) six persons have been killed and twelve wounded.

The authorities at first were supine but are now more active and are preparing to meet all emergencies. It is generally anticipated that the workmen will eventually drive out the socialist agitaor and resume work within a few days.

The principal Polish banks say they do not fear any financial difficulties among the firms which have been forced to close down their works.

Sir. W. Van Horne Back From Cuba

He Tells of The Conditions Prevelent in the Pearl of the Antilles.

Montreal, December 29.—Sir William Van Horne, who has just returned from a visit to Cuba, arriving in the city this morning, speaks confidently as to the financial and commercial conditions prevailing in the island. Sir William said the situation in Cuba is perfectly quiet and there is absolutely no basis for the rumors that natives had threatened to destroy property belonging to the Cuba Company.

"I am entirely sure," he declared, "that we will have good government in Cuba, equal to the maintenance of all personal and property rights, either as a Cuban Government or American Government. The action of the United States in this matter has confirmed this opinion."

"With regard to recent disturbance in Cuba, was your property seriously affected," was asked.

"The moderation of the revolutionists was in the main exemplary," he replied. "We did not suffer a single dollar of damage, notwithstanding contrary statements."

Sir William further said: "I think American capital is as safe on the Island as in the United States, or in any other country. I never saw all sortet of business so prosperous as at present, and there is every reason to expect a continuation of these favorable conditions. The earnings of the Cuba Railroad for December show an increase of forty per cent. compared with a year ago."

Sir William is spending the holidays with his family.

Baby Talks at Nine Months Old

St. Louis Prodigy Able to Use Words Clearly and Distinctly.

St. Louis, December 31.—Although she is but nine months old, Eugenie Barbara Jacques, of St. Louis, is able to talk, and talk plainly. Every word she says can be understood distinctly, and the child apparently exercises reason in using her words, as few of them are ever in the wrong place. Doctors who have examined the baby declare that her mental faculties are as well developed as a child of three years and that her talking is marvelous.

Barbara's linguistic ability was first noticed when she was six months old. Being brought to the table one day last September, she startled her parents and brothers by saying distinctly, "All gone." Since then she has added constantly to her vocabulary.

The child's mother says the little girl from the very first of her life has been unusual.

An Estrangement Is Suspected

Settlement of Wife's Estate Reported to Have Caused Friction Between Lord Curzon and the Leiters.

Chicago, December 31.—A series of incidents connected with the visit to America of Lord Curzon, formerly Viceroy of India, culminating in his departure for England on a different vessel from that taken by Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter and her daughter, the Countess of Suffolk, and Mrs. Colin Campbell, wife of an English army officer, has given Chicago society leaders, in close touch with the Leiter family, opportunity to gossip that there has been an estrangement between them, and the distinguished son of Great Britain.

It is known that this difficulty is the outgrowth of financial relations growing out of the settlement of Lady Curzon's estate, and the disbursement of the $1,150,000 marriage settlement.

When Lord Curzon was in Washington, he did not visit the Leiter home, but instead was a guest at the residence of the Persian Ambassador, although Mrs. Leiter and her daughters were in the city, and the beautiful home in Dupont Circle was open at the time.

"Joe" Leiter took practically no part in the financial conference with Lord Curzon, but left the morning of Lord Curzon a arrival in Chicago, for a "routine visit" to his coal mines at Zeigler.

"Joe" Leiter, when seen yesterday, scoffed at the idea of an estrangement. He admitted, however, that the Washington incidents "looked funny."

DIES TRYING TO SAVE BOY

Man Drowns Before His Wife After Vain Effort to Rescue Lad.

Morristown, N. J., December 29.—John Arke, eight years old, and George Davis, twenty-five years old, were drowned in the grist mill pond in the Rockaway River this afternoon, after a frantic fight for life. Arke was skating on the pond with a crowd of boys when he fell through a hole in the ice. Davis lived near the pond, and the boys ran to him for assistance. Mrs. Davis took a clothes line with her. She tied it around her husband's body and held fast to the other end while he slid into the water and grabbed the boy, who was exhausted. Each time he got the boy to the surface he slid back. Soon overcome by the cold, Davis bent what strength he had left to getting himself out. Just as he was about to crawl to safety the rope broke and he went under. Although several men had been attracted by the cries of the woman, they stood on the banks like statues. The bodies were recovered.

Billiards and Poker.

A St. Louis judge has decreed that there is no law against betting upon the result of a game of billiards, billiards being a game of skill. And strangely enough in the same town men are fined or sent to jail—sometimes—for betting upon the value of a hand of poker. There seems to be an inconsistency here. If the judge referred to, or any judge, thinks the outcome of a poker game is not the result of skill he would learn a whole lot by "sitting in" occasionally. Of all games, not excepting chess, that require an alert intelligence and the ability to do the proper thing at the proper time poker is at the top of the heap. It requires memory, judgment and a nerve that cannot be shaken even in the face of adversity to win.

Storms Create Great Havoo in England

London, Dec. 29. — The blizzard which commenced Christmas night continues throughout Great Britain. The country districts in most of the northern parts of the country are snow-bound, trains are blocked, the roads are impassable, and isolated villages are temporarily cut off from communication with the neighboring towns. A number of deaths have been reported of pedestrians who were overtaken by snowstorms in the bleak Scottish hills.

Telegraphic communication with the North of England and Scotland is generally interrupted, and steamer traffic across the channel and Irish Sea is greatly impeded. In some instances mail steamers had to suspend their trips owing to the fierceness of the gale and heavy fall of snow.

London, Dec. 29.—Nine persons have been found frozen to death in roads in England alone during the last 24 hours. The list doubtless will be much lengthened when communication with isolated parts of the provinces, now snowbound, is restored.

All the members of the crew of the Japanese steamer Awa Maru, from Antwerp for Middlesbrough, which ran on the rocks off Red Car last night, were safely taken off by the life boats.

A telegram from Holy Head says that it is learned there that an unknown vessel had foundered off Rhoscolin Point, Wales. Distress rockets were sent up late last night, and a life-boat put out and searched for hours, but found no sign of the vessel in distress.

Merry Del Val's Fight.

Rome, Dec. 29.—The Pope received the survivors of the disbanded Pontifical army, in all 517 men, yesterday for the exchange of Christmas greetings. He thanked them warmly for their past services in the Church, and regretted that the condition of the Church today did not permit him to aid the defenders of the Papacy as he would like.

Subsequently the survivors were received by Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, who said;

"You fought with gun and cannon. today I am fighting one of the most important battles of the Church without guns and without men, and even without money. But I do not despair of victory; I trust in Divine mercy and the loyalty of the French Catholics."

MONGOOSE KILLED COBRA AND DIES

Battle Fought in Steamship Ends Disastrously for Combatants.

LASCAR CREW IN TERROR

Engineers Work for Half an Hour in Gale Trying to Separate Their Pets.

New York, December 29.—With the death of a mongoose and a cobra in the Lichtenfels, a German freight steamship which came into port yesterday from the Far East, there ended a remarkable chain of fatalities among animals taken from India by officers of the vessel. The mongoose and the snake died almost simultaneously, locked together at the end of one of the most exciting battles ever fought at sea.

When the Litchenfels sailed from Calcutta on October 20 Captain Frerichs had a collie dog presented to him by an English officer; First Officer Waldorf had a crocodile; Second Officer Neiger had several small parrots; the Chief Engineer, Roese, had a doe; the Second Engineer, Kuck, had several cobras; John Wolf and Chas. Freudenberg, Fifth and Sixth Engineers, had three specimens of the mongoose, deadly enemies of snakes, and members of the Lascar crew had about two dozen monkeys.

Within two days of Suez, on November 14, the Lichtenfels ran into a Red Sea sand storm, which set the monkeys crazy. They were caged in the main deck compartment forward. When the storm disappeared the doors were opened and they scattered over the ship, and all except two leaped into the sea from the riggings. The survivors were left in Suez.

END OF THE CROCODILE.

On the day following the monkey cage delivery Freudenberg was caught by the first officer's pet crocodile and nearly knocked down a flight of iron steps into the engine room by its tail. The crocodile had to be beaten away, and it died that afternoon, presumably of a fractured skull. The doe succumbed at Suez, and on the passage through the Suez Canal the captain's collie fell or jumped overboard when barking at natives.

Cold weather was encountered as soon as the Lichtenfels poked her nose past Gibraltar and headed for America. One by one the parrots died, and finally two of the mongooses also expired. That left the two cobras and a lone mongoose.

For eight days the freighter was tossed by a north-east gale, and her decks were continually awash. In the midst of this gale, on December 6, as Freudenberg and Wolf were attending to their pets, the mongoose darted into the box wherein lay the cobras and tore open the throat of one of the drowsy snakes. Then it turned its attention to the other.

LASCAR CREW IN TERROR.

The Lascar firemen, already terrified by the gale and the dripping of water into the engine-room, were sent into a panic when they heard the cries of Freudenberg and Wolf for assistance. In a narrow space over the huge engines, on a platform of iron bars and with a sheer fall of thirty feet at their very heels, the two under engineers battled with the cobra and the mongoose for half an hour.

Over and over the platform went the snake and the mongoose until the cobra's scaly hide was torn in several places and the mongoose's jaws were dripping. Suddenly the cobra wound itself around the lithe body of the mongoose, but the mongoose's teeth were in its throat before it could begin to squeeze. Then, as the mongoose's life was crushed out the snake's head dropped.

It was with difficulty that the engineers disengaged the two bodies. When they had succeeded thye quickly stuffed both and returned snake and mongoose to the positions which they held when they killed each other. The battle was thus portrayed by the stuffed animals in the engineers' room yesterday.

In the big freighter's cargo there are 8,500 tons of tea, jute, gunnies, East India goods, silks, and Indian temples, and other things for collectors. Roast chicken for Chinese settlements, joss sticks, fire crackers, and birds' nests also appear in her manifest.

FRENCH SENARE REFUSES

Briand Bill Not Recommitted Speech to be Placarded.

Paris, Dec. 30.—The senate yesterday refused by a vote of 186 to 59 to recommit the Briand Bill, amending the Church and State Act, with instructions to reframe the measure on the lines of the Brazilian church and state separation law, which the Vatican accepted. The bill passed the senate yesterday.

The senate has concluded the general debate on the church measure, and the principle of the bill was voted by 187 ayes to 87 nays. Only discussion of the details of the various sections remains. It is expected that this will be completed tomorrow.

During the debate Minister of Education Briand called forth repeated applause by assurances of the government's determination not to sacrifice its dignity by abandoning the proposed reforms, and not to accede to the Vatican's evident usere for persecution.

The senate has ordered that M. Briand's speech be placarded throughout France.

BULLETS TO END DISEASE

Crazed From Appendicitis A. L. Maddocks Shoots Himself

Toronto, Dec. 30.—Crazed with the worry and pain from acute appendicitis, from which he had been suffering for the past seven days, Alfred L. Maddocks, 13 O'Hara avenue, shot himself twice in the head and face about 11 o'clock Friday night, and died Saturday at 2 p.m.

Conscious to the end, the injured man explained the whole situation to Dr. Thomas McKenzie of 10 O'Hara avenue, who was attending.

"I could stand it no longer," he said. "The pain was awful, and in a frenzy I just shot myself."

Dr. McKenzie says that the fatality was not caused by the wounds inflicted by the gun, but death was due directly to the disease.

Mr. Maddocks was a man of 55 years of age. As head of the British Empire Ink & Mucilage Co., he was a successful business man. He leaves a widow, two daughters and one son.

PREMIER'S BROTHER DEAD

Charlemagne Laurier Passes Away After Illness of Several Months.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—The death took place at St. Lin last night of Charlemagne Laurier, M.P., half-brother of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, after an illness extending over several months.

His death had been expected for some time, and Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier had been at the bedside of the dying man for several days.

He had been member for L'Assomption since 1900. He was a general merchant and took a leading part in the affairs of his district. He was 54 years of age.

It is only a few months ago that Sir Wilfrid was bereaved by the death of another half-brother at Arthabaskaville.

Vote For the Collegiate Institute Bylaw

Say Representative Citizens---Dr. Halliday Says Nothing is Needed as Badly as a New Institute Building

That Peterborough needs a Collegiate Institute goes without saying, and there can be little doubt but what the bylaw asking the ratepayers for an additional $21,000 to add to the $40,000 already on hand with which to build a modern institute, will be carried at the polls on January 7th, when the electors will turn out to vote for mayor and aldermen, water commissioners and members of the Board of Education.

For a long time matters have been congested in the building at present used for high school purposes, it being overtaxed by a roll membership of 300 pupils; cramped accommodation and supplementary efforts to meet requirements is not conducive to the best results in a grade of education upon which so many young folk rely for a successful career in active life. Peterborough is one of the best communities in Ontario, if not in the whole Dominion; this has been substantially recognized by the Legislature in arranging for a Normal School to be erected here, and the best in Collegiate Institute matters is none too good for the Electric City. Peterborough is growing in leaps and bounds, so is its membership roll at the Collegiate Institute, each year showing an increase in proportion to the growth in population. And now citizens themselves must strengthen the hands of the School Board in their efforts to furnish the additional educational facilities demand of them each succeeding year by voting for the $21,000 bylaw now before the ratepayers. This city has no Collegiate Institute; the structure at present in use for that purpose belongs to the public schools, and will shortly be called into requisition for domestic science and manual training. This fact will unquestionably be borne in mind by our ratepayers, who will poll on Monday next.

LOCAL MEMBER'S VIEWS

A press representative called upon Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., Saturday in reference to the Collegiate Institute question. Mr. Bradburn, while not going into the matter at length, said he recognized that the building at present used for a Collegiate Institute must be totally inadequate to properly accommodate the present attendance of 300 pupils. He agreed with his interrogator that in a city like Peterborough, rejoicing in the establishment within its boundaries of a modern Normal school, would assume a more creditable appearance by offering for high school purposes a modernly equipped and up-to-date institute building on the site already purchased. He did not think the Board of Education were excessive in their demands for an additional $21,000 with which to construct such a building.

Mr. Bradburn offered however that the Normal school and the Institute buildings were two distinct measures, separate questions entirely.

It might here be pointed out that Mr. Bradburn, our local members for the Legislature, has been mainly instrumental in securing to Peterborough the promised Normal school for this city.

ALD. GRAHAM'S VIEWS

Ald J. G. Graham, who has on the solicitation of many friends, consented to accept nomination for alderman for 1907, also assures the press that he intends supporting the Collegiate Institute bylaw. He believed an up-to-date building of graceful proportions and ample accommodation should be erected. He hoped the bylaw would carry by a substantial majority.

Ald. Graham has been a valued member of the council, of thoroughly disinterested motives, and who always had the courage of his convictions on all matters. He should be re-elected by a big vote.

DR. HALLIDAY SAYS VOTE FOR BYLAW.

"I have noticed by the papers the last couple of days that the Collegiate Institute bylaw is creating considerable interest in the city," said Dr. Halliday to a reporter.

"Yes," was the reply, "the people are beginning to realize that the municipal elections are at hand, and that they will be given another chance to vote in favor of building a new Collegiate Institute.

"I sincerely hope the bylaw carries," said the doctor. "There is really nothing which the city requires more than a Collegiate. I will certainly vote for the bylaw and do all I can to induce others to vote for it. I did so last time, because I was perfectly satisfied that the present school is inadequate in every respect. It is really a shame to crowd the pupils into those rooms the way the Board of Education is compelled to do. But the crowding is not the worst feature by any means. The Board is held back, and are not able to adopt any new courses, such as domestic science and manual training, which are today very necessary in the young people. Even the subjects which are taught are sacrificed, to a great extent, for the lack of room, and the large number of pupils in each room. Teachers are not to blame themselves or the pupils justice.

"The whole thing is," concluded the doctor, "we need a new Collegiate Institute in the worst way. The people will, if they have any interest whatever in the future of their children, vote for the bylaw.

EX-ALD. ADAMS IN FAVOR.

Ex-Ald. Adams is strongly in favor of the bylaw to provide an additional $21,000 for Collegiate Institute purposes which will be presented to the electors on Jan. 7th. A reporter saw Mr. Adams in reference to the matter, and found that he thought that the bylaw should receive the support of everyone.

Mr. Adams said that he thought that anyone who had the best interest of the city at heart could not fail to support the bylaw. He had heard no opposition to it and did not think that there would be any. In fact he heard no one speak either for or against the bylaw.

The ex-alderman said that when $50,000 had already been voted for the purpose of building a Collegiate Institute, there was no other reasonable course to pursue but to vote the extra money needed to complete the building. He thought that there was no doubt that a new Collegiate Institute building was needed, and for these reasons was in favor of the bylaw which he thought would carry without trouble.

Taft is Willing But He is Not Ambitious

Secretary of War Issues a Statement as to His Presidential Chances

Washington, Dec. 30.—Secretary of War Taft made the following statement yesterday concerning his presidential aspirations:

"For the purpose of relieving the burden imposed by recent publications upon some of my friends among the Washington newspaper correspondents of putting further enquiries to me, I wish to say:

"That my ambition is not political, I am not seeking the presidential nomination.

"That I do not expect to be the Republican candidate if for no other reason because of what seems to me to be objections to my availability, which do not appear to lessen with the continued discharge of my own official duty.

"But that I am not foolish enough to say that in the improbable event that the opportunity to run for the great office of president were to come to me I should decline it, for this would not be true.

Lord Strathcona Wishes to Retire

Has Been Canada's High Commissioner For Over Ten Years

Ottawa, Dec. 31.—Lord Strathcona has already signified his wish that the government should release him from the responsibilities of the Canadian high commissionership in London, but under persuasion has continued the daily round of duties of this important office up till the present.

Although the purpose of his lordship's visit to Canada is not known in Ottawa, it is quite possible that he comes to again ask that his proffered resignation be accepted, in view of his advancing years, and the many other calls upon his time, incident to the large financial interests that he controls.

If it proves to be the case that his lordship's mind is made up to retire, the Canadian government cannot hope to dissuade him from that course, and there will be nothing left but to choose a successor.

Lord Strathcona is now 86 years of age, and has been the representative of the Canadian government in London a little over ten years.

Peace Dinner Ends in War

Prestonsburg, Ky., Dec. 30. — The Christmas dining room of John D. Bagley, a merchant of Alphoretta, Floyd County, was turned into a slaughter house lately. Bagley invited his brothers and sisters and the Allens Samuel and John, and Cleve Fitzpatrick, to dine with them. The dinner was being served, when Fitzpatrick, who was drinking, began a quarrel. The Bagleys and Allens had been in a feud for some time, but no killings had taken place, and the merchant was attempting to patch up the difficulties with the Christmas dinner.

When the smoke had cleared away, Bagley was dead, shot through the heart, and his brother was dangerously wounded. Samuel Allen was shot in the face and hands and John Allen had a scalp wound. Samuel Allen is a deputy sheriff.

HOW CONSUMPTION STARTS

Tired When You Waken—Languid All Day—Nerves Worn Out—Snap All Gone.

Your limbs feel "draggy" and excessively weak. A night's sleep seldom brings satisfying rest. Continuous headaches, exhaustion and nervous sensations destroy your health. Soon every spark of vitality is used up Then you catch tuberculosis.

Start today. Build up, get new nerve force, and overcome this process of decay. Use Ferrozone, which physicians consider the most vitalizing, uplifting tonic ever made.

Ferrozone cures because it can furnish the body with sufficient nutriment and building material.

Think of the instant effect—at once the appetite increases, delightful color in the cheeks proves that rich, red blood is being circulated. Tired muscles are invigorated, flesh and weight are added. Nerve force develops, and bounding, joyous health is firmly established.

This is certain—Ferrozone restores failing strength from any cause. The experience of Mr. Thos. Dowd, of Schreiber, Ont., proves this:

"Household worries and cares had about exhausted my strength. I was weak and miserable. My cheeks lacked the color of health, and occasionally I had spells of rheumatism. Then my appetite fell off, and nothing could tempt me to eat. Worn-out feelings, chills and despondency filled my very being. I became anaemic and dwindled down to a shadow. Consumption was very near. Ferrozone put strength in my body with a rush. It built me up, strong, virile and happy, and I have been well ever since."

Ferrozone cures sickness by curing the real cause—lack of blood and nerve tone. It keeps people at their best—fit, ready and anxious for work. In 50c. boxes only, six for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

There has been a considerable change in public opinion during the last few years on the subject of public ownership of utilities in cities and towns. This has shown itself in many parts of this Continent, while in the United Kingdom something almost in the nature of a revolt against the acquisition and operation of these undertakings by municipal bodies has been seen in many parts of England and Scotland. Perhaps the change would be most accurately defined by saying that it is not so much in reference to the principle of public ownership as in the belief that under ordinary circumstances and the conditions existing in a large majority of urban communities it is almost impossible to secure that economy and efficiency in the operation of such undertakings as is essential to their success. The principle of public ownership has had a trial in Great Britain on a large scale and in a diversity of undertakings. In large cities, in towns and in suburban and rural districts the principle has been tested under such a variety of conditions as must preclude the view that some local or accidental circumstances had interfered unfavorably with an experiment that otherwise would have come up to the expectations of its promoters. The enterprises controlled by different corporations have given such different results in so many instances that, as we have said, public opinion to a great extent has come to regard with disfavor any further exploitation of the policy of public ownership. A proof of this change in sentiment was seen in the results of the recent elections in London for the councils of the various metropolitan boroughs, in which the principle of public ownership was condemned in nearly every district by the overwhelming defeat of the candidates who favored it.

On this Continent there has also been a considerable decline in the favor with which public ownership was regarded a few years ago. Actual experience of its operation has in many cases been very disappointing, and the results secured by its adoption have not come up to the anticipation, in regard to either the economy or the efficiency of the municipal services as compared with what has been obtained under private management. From statements that have appeared in some of the newspapers of the United States the principle of public ownership is likely to receive another and a very considerable setback in a short time. The body known as the National Civic Federation, and which includes in its ranks many persons of prominence and ability in different walks of life, some time ago appointed a commission to make an exhaustive inquiry into the subject of public ownership and its results in both Europe and America. It is stated that the Commission will make its report in January, and it is rumored that it will be against public ownership on the ground that it is unscientific, wasteful, morally undesirable and generally unsatisfactory. The character and standing of the men who composed the Commission will give its finding great weight throughout the United States and can scarcely fail to exercise considerable influence on public opinion. The Commission spent four months in Great Britain enquiring into the results of public and private plants with the view of ascertaining their relative merits. It visited Dublin, Glasgow, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Manchester, Leicester, Sheffield, Birmingham, London, Liverpool and Norwich, thus covering a wide range and affording knowledge of many different conditions, diversity in the undertakings and great variety in the circumstances under which the plants were operated. The Commission has since been visiting different parts of the United States, so that its report will be the most complete and exhaustive one on this important subject that has been made. The fact that not a few members of the Commission were pronounced advocates of public ownership will lend additional interest to the reports and increase the weight that will be attached to opinions arrived at by a thorough study of the matter.

While there will be very general disappointment at the results of the operation of a system from which so much was hoped, it is certainly in the public interest that erroneous ideas should be dissipated and a check be put to a movement that otherwise might result in great economic loss and much public inconvenience. To have found the defects may help us ultimately to learn how to remedy them and make a new start.

How He Answered.

The London Academy tells a story of De Quincey. He had to fill up a census paper, and the set questions puzzled him greatly. He finally managed to characterize his occupation as "writer to the magazines," but when it came to the occupations of his three daughters his troubles began again. At last he put a ring around their names and wrote, "They are like lilies of the field—they toil not, neither do they spin."

One Way Blind.

"You admit you are an impostor?" said the judge.

"No, I don't, your honor."

"You claimed to be blind, and yet you have an unimpaired eyesight."

"That's true, your honor, but I'm morally blind, sir, and not being able to see the harm in my innocent deception"—

"Six months," ejaculated the judge.

McINNES FOR ESQUIMALT

Likely to Become Lieutenant to Leader MacDonald in British Columbia.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 28.—With the probability of Governor McInnes, of the Yukon, offering himself for election in Esquimalt and becoming lieutenant to Mr. Macdonald, the Liberal leader, the political situation here takes on new interest. This arrangement would prove of great assistance to Mr. Macdonald.

Premier McBride will soon have his Cabinet filled. McPhillips or Eberts likely getting the post of Attorney-General, and Lands and Works going to Carter Cotten. The Premier will then deliver a number of speeches at Dewdney and tour the Province.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

Eastern Issue of 10 p. c. Preference Shares

Subscriptions are invited for 2,000 Ten Per Cent. 10 p.c. Preference Shares of $100 each.

This Preference Stock shares equally in all profits and dividends of the Company in excess of the 10 per cent. minimum.

CALLS—$10 per share on application and $10 per share on allotment, and the balance in calls of $10 per share as required at intervals of not less than two months.

The Western issue having been wholly taken up by the Ranching, Farming and Commercial men of Western Canada, and more than half of the present issue has been already subscribed.

THE ONLY PACKERS OF BEEF, PORK AND OTHER FOOD PRODUCTS OF THE RANCHES AND FARMS OF WESTERN CANADA.

This Company has already about 1,000 shareholders, all of whom have paid for their shares in cash on equal terms, and shares are allotted by priority of application.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary;—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 800,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold, the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by (Packing) Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so (in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid away into 10 fully paid $100-Share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions (20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100-Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

EXTRACT FROM REPORT, JUNE 30TH, 1906.

"An interesting brochure published by Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, give statistics of the past year's business. The total sales for the year aggregated over $[illegible],000,000, representing shipments of 250 carloads daily. In a single day were slaughtered in the company's seven packing plants 11,875 cattle [illegible],333 sheep and 34,263 hogs.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present; The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs. J. A. Banfield, F. R. Warren, Dr R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. PROPERTY AND LOCATION

The property consists of forty acres being the south-west quarter of the north half of lot 6 in concession 1 Township of Hucke. The property of this Company lies about three-quarters of a mile north-west from the celebrated Trethewey mine and is identically of the same formation. Vein matter was found in this property right from the surface and subsequent prospecting has revealed several well defined veins. On the main vein several nuggets of native silver were found. A shaft had been sunk to a depth of fourteen feet, when the property was taken over by this Company.

WORK ON THE PROPERTY

At present a camp is being built and active development work is being proceeded with. One half of the Company's property is still unprospected.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Of all Cobalt Mining Companies none can show a sounder business basis than this. The organizers had such confidence in the property that they have taken their entire interest in stock and have pooled same for six months, evidencing the fact of their absolute confidence in the value of the Company's property at the par value of $1.00 per share. ONLY 25000 shares are being issued at the present time for active development work. It is confidently expected that this will be sufficient to make this property a shipper, and if so the public can at a glance see what the value of these shares will be, having regard to the fact that only 75,000 shares of the Company will have been issued. The stock is not being offered outside of Ottawa as the Directors feel confident this small amount will be oversubscribed here. Address

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER,

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"She was interrupted by a newcomer—a stout woman of middle age who fluttered in, breathing heavily, under a look of pallor and agitation.

"Sh-h-h!" said she, lifting a large hand. She sank upon a chair, fanning herself. She said nothing for a little.

"What is it, Bet, for mercy's sake?" said Lise.

"Have you heard the news?" said she that was called Bet.

"Land sakes, no!" said the others.

Then followed a moment of suspense, during which the newcomer sat biting her under lip, with a merry smile.

"You're too provoking!" said the sister Lise impatiently. "Why do you keep us hanging by the eyebrows?"

"Sh-h-h!" said the dear sister Bet again. Another woman had stopped by the door. Then a scornful whisper from the sister Lise.

"It's that horrible Kate Tredder. Mercy! Is she coming in?"

She came in. Long since she had ceased to enjoy credit or confidence at the little shop.

"Nice day," said she.

The sister Lise moved impatiently and picked up her work. This untimely intrusion had left her "hanging by the eyebrows" and red with anxiety. She gave the newcomer a sweeping glance, sighed and said, "Yes." The sister Bet grew serious and began tapping the floor with her toe.

"I've been clear round the square," said Mrs. Tredder, "an' I guess I'll sit awhile. I ain't done a thing today, an' I don't b'lieve I'll try till after dinner. Miss Tole, you may give me another yard o' that red silk ribbon."

She sat by the counter, and Miss Tole sniffed a little and began to measure the ribbon. She was deeply if secretly offended by this intrusion.

"What's the news?" said the newcomer, turning to the sister Bet.

"Oh, nothing," said the other wearily.

"Ain't you heard about that woman up at the Moosehead?"

"Heard all I care to," said the sister Bet, with jealous feeling.

"What about her?" said the sister Lise, now reaching on tiptoe, as it were. The sister Bet rose impatiently and made for the door.

"Going?" said she that was called Lise, a note of alarm in her voice.

"Yes; do you think I've nothing else to do but sit here and gossip?" said sister Bet, disappearing suddenly, her face red.

The newcomer sat in a thoughtful attitude, her elbow on the counter.

"Well?" said the sister Lise.

"You all treat me so funny here I guess I'll go," said Mrs. Tredder, who now got up, her face darkening, and hurried away.

"Wretch!" said the sister Lise hotly. "I could have choked her." She squirmed a little, moving her chair roughly.

"She's forever sticking her nose into other people's business," were the words of the customer. She seemed to be near the point of tears.

"Maybe that's why it's so red," the other answered, with unspeakable contempt. "I'm so mad I can hardly sit still."

She wound her yarn close and stuck her needle into the ball.

"Thank goodness!" said she suddenly. "Here comes Serene."

The sister Serene Davis, a frail, fair lady, entered.

"Well," said the latter, "I suppose you've heard"— She paused to get her breath.

"What?" said the sister Lise in a whisper, approaching the new arrival.

"My heart is all in a flutter. Don't hurry me."

The sister Lise went to the door and closed it. Then she turned quickly, facing the other woman.

"Serene Davis," she began solemnly, "you'll never leave this room alive until you tell us."

"Can't you let a body enjoy herself a minute?"

"Tell me," she insisted, threatening with a needle.

Ruth Tole regarded them with a look of firmness, which seemed to say, "Stab her if she doesn't tell."

"Well," said the sister Serene, "you know that stylish young widow that came awhile ago to the Moosehead—the one that wore the splendid black silk the night o' the ball?"

"Yes."

"She was a detective"—this in a whisper.

"What!" said the other two awesomely.

"A detective."

The sister Serene was now laughing.

"It's ridiculous!" she remarked.

"Go on," said the others, and one of them added, "Land sakes, don't stop now!"

"Well, she got sick the other day and sent for a lawyer, an' who do you suppose it was?"

"I dunno," said Ruth Tole. The words had broken away from her, and she covered her mouth quickly and began to look out of the window. The speaker had begun to laugh again.

"'Twas Dick Roberts," she went on. "He went over to the tavern. She lay there in bed and a nurse in the room with her—a woman she got in Ogdensburg. She tells the young lawyer she wants him to make her will. Then she describes her property, and he puts it down. There was a palace in Wales and a castle on the Rhine and pearls and diamonds and £50,000 in a foreign bank, and I don't know what all. Well, ye know she was pert and handsome, and he began to take notice."

The sisters looked from one to another and gave up to gleeful smiles, but Ruth was if anything a bit firmer than before.

"Have you heard the news?"

OUT OF SORTS

People Not Really Sick Are Often Most in Need of Care.

The people who actually are most in need of kind words and medical treatment are not those who are really sick, but just "out of sorts."

The old-time energy, force, strength and happy spirits are lacking, the physical and mental powers are lagging; there is poor appetite, and they cannot get the good out of the food they eat. In nine cases out of ten, this results directly from a weakened stomach, and no other treatment equals Mi-o-na to restore strength and health.

When the nerves and muscles are weak, if there is sleeplessness, irritability, and sparks before the eyes, when the head aches and there is a dull pain in the back, and there is any distress and heaviness in the stomach, dizziness, and sometimes nausea, the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets for a few days will make a world of improvement, and continued use for a reasonable time will restore perfect health.

These tablets are not mere digestives; they absolutely strengthen all the organs of digestion, so that there is good appetite, perfect digestion and strong nerves, when they are used.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

MEANING OF MOLES.

A mole on the right side of a man's forehead denotes wonderful luck; on the left side of a woman's forehead, gifts from the dead.

On the left side of a man's forehead a mole denotes a long term in prison; on the left side of a woman's forehead, two husbands and a life of exile.

A man with a mole in the middle of his forehead has a cruel mind. A woman with such a mole is foolish, idle and envious.

A mole on the neck in man or woman promises a long and happy life, wealth and fame.

A man with a mole on the left side of the upper lip rarely marries, and such a mole in the case of a woman denotes suffering.

On the right side of the upper lip a mole promises good to both sexes.

Simple Cure For Neuralgia.

Here is a simple method of curing facial neuralgia: If the neuralgia is on the right side of the face the left hand should be placed in a basin of water as hot as can be borne, or if neuralgia is in the left side of the face then the right hand should be placed in the hot water. It is asserted that in this way relief may be obtained in less than five minutes. The explanation is that the two nerves which have the greatest number of tactile nerve endings are the fifth and the median nerve. As the fibers of these two nerves cross any impulse conveyed to the left hand will affect the right side of the face or if applied to the right hand will affect the left side of the face. This is on account of the crossing of the cords. —Indian Review.

His Promotion.

A somewhat turbulent private wrote to his mother: "I am sorry you had no letter last week, but I am a defaulter, and it gives me a heap of extra work." The good woman in reply begged him not to be too hard on the others, but to remember he had been a private himself. I regret to say that he reared with laughter and read the letter aloud for the benefit of all who shared his room. —Miss M. Loane, a Queen's Nurse, in Contemporary Review.

Musical Note.

A gentleman at a musical party where the lady was very particular not to have the concord of sweet sounds interrupted, seeing that the fire was going out, asked a friend in a whisper, "How could you stir the fire without interrupting the music?"

"Between the bars!" replied the friend.

Two Miles of Development

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite. No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

But by we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,630 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics And Seek The Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Sallowed skin and fallen in cheeks are produced by disorders of the alimentary canal.

Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of.

Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone.

Dainty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky, dull appearance, it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Buoyancy, vim and a feeling of vigor invariably follow their use. Sold in yellow boxes by all dealers; 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

The young son of Mr. W. F. Ballard of 295 Murray street, who, on Friday, had his arm broken at the toboggan slide is doing well. Young Ballard did not get up at once, and another toboggan coming behind struck him. He was taken to a doctor and the fracture set. He was then taken home.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

House of Refuge Gets a Good Cheque

On Saturday Mr. E. A. Peck, county solicitor, received a cheque for $670.84 from the Foley estate to be handed over to Mr. W. T. Buck, chairman and Sheriff Hall, secretary-treasurer, of the board in charge of the county's interest.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Foley left an estate valued at about $40,000 and the income was to be divided annually among certain annuitants. As those annuitants pass away their share goes to the poor widows and orphans of the city and county. Opposition was made to this interpretation of the will and the courts were appealed to. The result was that the county won out and the cheque for $670.84 goes toward the maintenance of the House of Refuge. The above sum is what has accrued from the dead annuitants' annuities, after paying the law costs, and each year the county will have an income of about $250 under present circumstances, which will in the natural order of events, due to death subsequently to possibly $1600.

Miss Annie Little Has Passed Away

Early Saturday morning Annie, the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Little of Hamilton township, near Garden Hill, passed away at the Nicholls Hospital.

As noted in a former issue of The Times, about a month ago while lighting a fire at her home, the child's clothes caught fire and she was severely burned. She was removed to Nicholls hospital, but unfortunately her constitution was not strong and as a result death came Saturday morning. The deceased was only nine years of age and was a very bright child.

The remains were taken home the same morning and the funeral will be held today.

Good Racing For New Year's Day

Three Big Events Promise Fast Time and Good Afternoon's Sport.

The following is the program;

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

Dr. Pierce may be consulted by letter free of charge. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Beresford Left a Million Dollars.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 29.—The will of Delaval J. Beresford, who was killed in a wreck at Enderlin, N.D., last week, was found at the First National Bank yesterday. The will was made in 1890, and, after devising $10,000 to the colored woman who nursed him through an attack of yellow fever in New Orleans several years ago, the rest of his estate is left to his three brothers, Lord Charles Beresford, Marquis Beresford, and another brother, now dead. The value of the estate is a million dollars.

ONLY TWO CANDIDATES FOR THE MAYORALITY

Nominations Held Yesterday for Mayor, Aldermen, School Board and Water Commissioners.

It was clearly demonstrated in the City Council chamber yesterday that unusual interest is being taken in the municipal elections of this year, the room being crowded to its full capacity.

At 10 o'clock the returning officer, S. R. Armstrong, took the chair and announced that he was ready to receive nominations.

R. F. McWilliams, barrister, was first proposed by Jas. Burnett and seconded by Joseph Maher.

Robt. Hicks, coal merchant, was next proposed by William Langford and seconded by Joseph Batten.

WATER COMMISSIONERS.

W. H. Moore, barrister at law, proposed by Jas. Kendry and W. H. Meldrum.

Vincent Eastwood, merchant, proposed by George H. Duncan and Joseph Batten.

E. F. Mason, merchant, proposed by W. S. Robinson and M. McFadden.

FOR BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Benjamin F. Ackerman, proposed by William Yelland and Jas. Kendry.

William G. Ferguson, merchant, proposed by Robt. Hicks and Wm. Pringle.

Dr. M. A. Morrison, dentist, proposed by Wm. Pringle and Robt. Hicks.

Robt. Fair, merchant, proposed by W. H. Moore and W. H. Meldrum.

William S. Robinson, mechanic, proposed by T. J. Wilson and J. A. Tully.

R. C. Braund, merchant, proposed by Vincent Eastwood and W. S. Robinson.

E. A. Peck, barrister, proposed by Wm. Langford and Vincent Eastwood.

Dr. Wm. McFall, physician, proposed by John Sawers and Geo. H. Duncan.

After the nominations were all in, at 12 o'clock as usual, the various candidates made their respective platforms known.

MR. M'WILLIAMS.

Mr. McWilliams, the first speaker, did not need any introduction to the people of Peterborough. He had been before them, and they knew his record. He said that the most important matter at present was the proposition to purchase the Light and Power Company's plant. Three years ago the franchise of the company had run out, and it had been urged that the city take over the business then. For various reasons they had thought it wise not to do so then. He thought that the city should buy the plant now, saying that the time had come when the city should own the business. He believed that it could be made a success as had been the waterworks. There was the question of power to be faced. If it was possible to get power at the waterworks a dam could be built now. If electy wanted to keep pace with its competitors it must have cheap power.

In regard to the streets, Mr. Williams spoke of the securing of Mr. Evans to do the work of street commissioner. The work that the city had carried on on its own account had been better and more cheaply done than under the contract system. Sidewalks were needed throughout the city. There should be permanent crossings all over the city.

As long as he remained in the council his own interests would remain secondary to those of the city.

MR. HICKS.

Ald. Hicks, the other candidate first spoke of the Light and Power Company's offer and said that the question was "Can it be operated as a commercial enterprise? During his three years in the council he stated there was no case on the records where he did not vote. He referred to the building of concrete crossings. The Board of Works of 1906 was the first to lay down the present policy in connection with these crossings. Another matter was the filling in of the water front which was a credit to the city and a material advantage.

Referring to the day labor system, he read a motion of his own to the effect that the Boswell avenue sewer should be constructed by day labor. He thought that the policy of the Board of Works of having the city engineer tender on all contracts was the best.

Mr. Hicks stated that the income was $130,000. The expenditure for public school purposes was $35,000, for separate school purposes $6,000 for city trust commissioners $16,500, and for the administration of justice, $9,500. This only left about 50 per cent of the total income under the control of the council and of this sum half were taken up with absolutely civic expenses, so that only about 20 per cent. of the total was available. Most of this money was spent upon the streets and keeping roadways in repair.

After the mayoralty candidates had given their views, Messrs. Moore Eastwood and Mason, candidates for water commissioners each spoke at some length regarding their individual platforms and ideas.

ALDERMANIC CANDIDATES.

It seems that there will be a stiff conflict over our civic parliament, as the following were nominated as follows;

George Edward Elliott, proposed by Dr. George Burnham, seconded by Wm. Rudkins.

Archibald A. McIntyre, proposed by E. F. Mason, seconded by Adam Dawson.

Henry Phelan, proposed by A. A. McIntyre, seconded by D. Belleghem.

John J. Hartley, proposed by J. F. Thornton, seconded by C. H. Howson.

Jas. G. Graham, proposed by A. E. Micks, seconded by A. R. Moore.

William George Marrow, proposed by T. F. Matthews, seconded by W. Langford.

Wm. Langford, proposed by V. G. Morlow, seconded by T. F. Matthews.

Robert H. Leary, proposed by Geo. K. Martin, seconded by Jos. Batten.

George Ball, proposed by E. F. Mason, seconded by James Murty.

John D. Craig, proposed by Wm. Langford, seconded by J. S. Knapman.

Adam Dawson, proposed by J. S. Knapman, seconded by Wm. Langford.

George James Tovey, proposed by E. F. Mason, seconded by J. S. Knapman.

PROPOSED NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE —SIDE VIEW.

Ald. Tovey in Favor of New Collegiate Bylaw

Ald. Tovey is another citizen who is very much in favor of the passing of the bylaw to grant an extra $21,000 for Collegiate Institute. He was seen by a reporter and gave a number of reasons to the scribe why the bylaw should be voted on by the citizens.

The ratepayers he explained had already voted $50,000 for the building and grounds and there was nothing to be gained he believed in letting go by a proper Collegiate Institute for the sake of an extra $21,000 which to the taxpayers would be so insignificant that it would never be noticed.

"The city must have a Collegiate Institute," he said, "and a $40,000 building would not fill the bill according to the way the City is advancing at the present time."

In the years to come, he believed the city would look back and wonder why there was any opposition at all in the erection of a $1,100 Collegiate Institute. He considered it a disgrace to a city with such expectations as Peterborough has, not to have an institute to meet the requirements of the citizens built at once.

Since the Government has decided to erect a Normal School here he thought that the citizens should agree to the building of a good Collegiate to provide students for it.

"The extra $21,000 doesn't amount to much," he concluded, "but it is very material to the improvement of the city and besides enterprises seeking location here always inquire about the educational advantages which the city affords. We need some public buildings which we may be able to point to with pride to visitors from larger cities."

Jews in Douma's Hands.

Washington, January 1.—Semi-official advices to the Department of State convey the information that the question of permission for Jews to acquire land in all parts of Russia and removal of the limits of Jewish settlement will be left to the Douma, but that the following measures will be carried out before the summoning of the Douma:

The removal of the restrictive police regulations in twenty-five governments lying within the Jewish pale; the promulgation of similar arrangements for Jews outside the pale, and the removal of the restrictions under which Jews labor regarding trade.

HARMFUL STOMACH DOSING

No Need of it When Hyomei is Used to Cure Catarrh.

Physicians and scientists agree that the less medicine one swallows, the better. It is in keeping with this idea that Hyomei is recommended by leading physicians throughout this and other catarrhal sections.

When this treatment is used in catarrhal troubles, there is no stomach dosing, for the medicine is taken in with the air you breathe, and goes right to the spot where the catarrhal germs are present, healing the inflamed and irritated mucous membrane, killing the disease germs and entering the blood with the oxygen, driving all catarrhal germs from the system.

Do not try to cure catarrh of the head by putting medicine into your stomach—this is neither a scientific nor common-sense treatment. Breathe the healing balsams of Hyomei and in a few days you will notice relief, and its continued use will result in a complete and lasting cure.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but, $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Tried to Blackmail Northern Pacific

Threat to Blow Up Train if $25,000 Were Not Paid

Helena, Mont., December 29.—Unknown persons have attempted to blackmail the Northern Pacific Railroad for $25,000, after the method employed by Isaac Grevelle, who, after a dramatic escape from the courthouse where he was on trial for the dynamiting of trains, was finally killed in Governor Toole's dooryard.

The present blackmailers wrote the railroad that unless $25,000 was forthcoming the St. Louis-Burlington express would be blown up today between Livingston and Billings. The road, instead of giving up the money, placed six detectives on the train. A supposed accomplice was found in the baggage car, but as he made no move he was not molested. The train met with no unusual experience. Little trouble could have been secured had the train been blown up.

Farmer Raises Many Wild Geese

Peculiar Vocation of an Enterprising American.

Eldora, Iowa, January 1.—The raising of wild geese for market is the peculiar vocation of one William Rainsbarger, a farmer living north of this city, and is indeed doubtful if the vocation is to be duplicated anywhere in America.

For a number of years this Iowa farmer and sportsman has shipped wild geese to eastern points where they are used in New Jersey and other states for decoy purposes by sportsmen and he has gotten quite a reputation as being the only wild goose shipper in the West. For a number of years Mr. Rainsbarger has been a hunter and sportsman and some years ago he succeeded in capturing alive quite a flock of wild geese. He clipped their wings and has long been adding to his flock, hatching new birds yearly and the novelty of a wild goose for dinner can be had at any time of the year by applying to Mr. Rainsbarger.

During the early spring he sets many eggs and the birds are now becoming so used to civilized ways and civilization that it is no longer necessary to even clip their wings in order to keep them from leaving the big poultry farm of Mr. Rainsbarger.

Many a millionaire's table in the East, especially in New York and Philadelphia, has been graced in the past by a Rainsbarger wild goose as the piece de resistance, and the prices have been fancy that have been paid for the delicacy and luxury.

REGINA MERCHANTS KICK

Changes in Rates by Canadian Northern Cause Dissatisfaction.

Regina, Sask., December 31.—Traders' rates north from Regina have been discontinued by the Canadian Northern, and the rate from Regina to Prince Albert has been increased by eleven cents. Local wholesale interests suffer a great loss by the change, and until some other form of railway competition enters into Regina, there is but little hope for reductions in rates, which it was expected would come with the Canadian Northern. The change in tariff is apparently made for the purpose of diverting through traffic from the C. P. R. main line to the main line for the Canadian Northern, and for the purpose of bringing goods via Warman instead of Regina. The actual reason for the change is to place Warman upon a much better footing for wholesale trade than in Regina although when the Canadian Northern line from Branden and the head of the lakes enters Regina, this will be changed and the city placed in a better position than ever before.

From Ranch to Market.

London, January 1.—A cattle rancher, of Calgary, named McHugh, has arrived at Birkenhead by Warren liner with 700 North-West cattle. He is making an experiment in direct shipment from the ranch to the British market. Mr. McHugh contends that the middleman takes an undue profit and expects to prove how much better results would follow independent direct shipments. He will report on the experiment and his general inquiries here to the Dominion and Alberta Governments.

Japanese Plan Invincible Fleet

Construction of Eight Battleships of the Same Class as the Dreadnaught.

Berlin, January 1.—Colonel Gadke, war department correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt during the war in the Far East, has contributed to that newspaper an article entitled, "Military Position in the Far East." He says there are clear signs that the air is loaded with electricity, but that the financial condition of Japan and Russia alike may keep off hostilities for some time. The naval strength of Russia in that region need not be considered, still Japan means to have eight battleships of the Dreadnaught type afloat within the next eight years. On land, the continued increase of its fighting strength is remarkable. For a time Japan increased its army only by four divisions, which were raised during the war. It intends to increase the army by twenty divisions and to gradually form ten army corps out of them.

The Japanese cavalry is to be increased considerably, machine guns are to be attached to every infantry regiment, railway troops and balloon detachments are to be raised and fortress artillery is to be increased. Meanwhile Russia's position in the Far East is considerably better, thus while Russia had only 68 battalions before the late war there are now 127 battalions, including the European division, which is to remain at Harbin until April 1, the date on which both Japan and Russia will have to evacuate Manchuria, according to the treaty.

Altogether in West Siberia, Trans-Baikalia and Maritime province, Russia now has nine divisions of rifles and one foot, with three reserve brigades of foot, the latter being twice as strong as they were before the war. Russia has fifteen field and reserve divisions, or sixteen with the divisions at Harbin, each of sixteen battalions, a total of 256 battalions compared with only 138 battalions at the beginning of 1904.

NOMINATIONS ELSEWHERE

OTONABEE AND DUMMER.

Some excitement was caused in the village of Keene yesterday over nominations for the township council, whilst the office of reeve went by acclamation to Mr. John Fife, there were a large number of names presented as candidates for the council.

Three names were placed in nomination for reeve, but Messrs. Robert Easson, and John Carey withdrew, leaving Mr. Fife elected by acclamation.

For deputy reeve, W. J. Porter and J. J. Porter were nominated and there will therefore be a contest.

Those nominated for the council three of whom are to be elected are; Messrs Richard Howson, Duncan, Cameron, T. G. Hazlett, Robt. Humphries. Chris Howson, James Elmhirst, John Miller and W. B. Stewart.

It might be noted that Mr. Fife was reeve last year.

In Warsaw there was also some excitement. Mr. C. J. Darling was elected reeve by acclamation, and the following were nominated for councillors; F. Harding, J. L. Kidd, Nathan Payne, W. Miles and Ed. Martin. Four of whom will be elected.

Strike Rioter Released.

Hamilton, January 1.—Word was received that Thos. Garrett, who was sentenced by the magistrate to two years' imprisonment for throwing a stone at a street car during the recent strike riots, had been released. It was the magistrate who took the initiative in securing the release of Garrett. He wrote to the department of justice explaining that Garrett was the first man to come before him for rioting, and that he had made the sentence much more severe than the offence warranted in the hope that it would be a warning to others.

DAIRY SHOW FOR THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

Advocated by the Finance Committee of City Council---Many Thousands os Dollars at Stake.

The Finance Committee of the City Council met last night to confer with Mr. H. B. Cowan, secretary of the Dairy Show Committee on the feasibility of holding a dairy exhibition in Peterborough.

There were present all the members of the committee, with Ald. Mason in the chair, Geo. Gillespie, M. A. Baptie, and M. Dundas, of Springville.

Mr. Cowan addressed the committee and pointed out that in his opinion the dairymen should be annually represented in the same manner as the fat stock men are at Guelph. The dairymen's shows in England and New Zealand have been exceedingly successful.

Continuing, Mr. Cowan remarked that all Ontario dairymen are strongly in favor of their annual show being held in Peterborough. A large hall would be required as both the eastern and western dairy associations would jointly hold their annual convention here. An effort is also being made, Mr. Cowan said, to get the swine breeders interested in this movement, the bacon trade growing into considerable importance. The dairy show would be continued for one whole week, during either the last week in December or the first week in January each year. It would be desirable to have the buildings near the center of the city, and composed of two story structures.

Ald. Mason offered that the proposed convention should be an annual affair, and supplemented by grants from both the Government and the city.

Mr. Cowan said that the building for the fat stock show at Guelph cost approximately $30,000. He contended that the city and county should send a joint committee to the eastern and western dairymen's associations, with authority to state exactly what Peterborough is prepared to do in encouragement of an annual show here.

Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Ball,—That this committee report to the council of 1907 that they have considered the cost and benefits of and from holding an annual dairy show in Peterborough, and are strongly of opinion that such a show should be established. The committee also recommend that steps be taken at the earliest opportunity to further this project.—Carried.

The Finance Committee had under consideration covering the market square for dairy exhibition purposes, and using the land recently created by filling in from the dredging of the river, on the water front between Hunter and Charlotte streets, for open air market accommodation.

Incidently it might be mentioned that some 7,000 people daily visit the fat stock show at Guelph, representing a revenue of about $12,000 daily.

Jail For Press Feeders.

Chicago, January 1.—Under a decision handed down yesterday by the Supreme Court of Illinois, four members, including President C. W. Warner and Secretary J. M. Shea, of Franklin Union of Press Feeders, will be obliged to go to jail for periods ranging from thirty days to six months. The two officials of the union must also pay fines.

This ends a legal fight of four years' duration. During the strike of 1902 of Franklin Union against the printing shops of the Typothetae organization, the four men disregarded an injunction making it unlawful to picket.

CRIED EASILY

Nervous Woman Stopped Coffee and Quit Other Things

No better practical proof that coffee is a drug can be required than to note how the nerves become unstrung in women who habitually drink it.

The stomach, too, rebels at being continually drugged with coffee and tea—they both contain the drug—caffeine. Ask your doctor.

An Ia. woman tells the old story thus:

"I had used coffee for six years and was troubled with headaches, nervousness and dizziness. In the morning upon arising I used to belch up a sour fluid, regularly.

"After using Postum a while, I observed the headache left me and soon the belching of the sour fluid stopped (water brash from dyspepsia). I feel decidedly different now, and I am convinced that it is because I stopped coffee and began to use Postum. I can see better now, my eyes are stronger.

"A friend of mine did not like Postum, but when I told her to make it like it said on the package, she liked it all right." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Always boil Postum well and it will surprise you.

Ladies and Gentlemen.—Having been a member of the Aldermanic Board for two years, I believe I am qualified by experience to serve your best interests during another term. As alderman last year I have been honored with the chairmanship of important special committees, taking up work in the interests of the whole community, and I am convinced that the experience so acquired will stand my fellow citizens and myself in good stead should I once again be voted with the responsibilities resting upon a representative of the public on the aldermanic board. I strongly advocate a policy of sanitary measures which shall assure to the city the highest possible standard of health at a minimum expenditure of public monies.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I remain,

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THE SCOURGE OF CONSUMPTION

Thousands Are Dying—If Tired, Languid or Run Down Get Protection Before Too Late.

No child, man or woman is safe from consumption unless their blood is pure, rich and nourishing.

Allow the blood to become thin, and immediately the whole system grows weak. The lungs are deprived of resisting power and the ever-present tubercular bacilli develops.

The most positive protection against consumption is Ferrozone, which restores the blood to full strength. Weak organs are instantly strengthened. Worn-out tissues are rebuilt. New life is given to the lungs and all danger of consumption is destroyed.

Mrs. E. J. Richardson, Manotick, Ont., tells as follows of her enormous gain in health from Ferrozone: "For two years I was not well. I was thin and anaemic. Towards spring I fell into a condition of nervous exhaustion. A dead tiredness hung over me like a load of lead. Housework of any kind I simply couldn't do. A bad cough developed that worried me greatly for I thought it might be tubercular. When I first read of Ferrozone I was convinced it was good. I took it regularly for eight weeks and the change in my condition was wonderful. My cheeks filled out and became clear and rosy. I gained eight pounds and now am strong and vigorous as possible."

Ferrozone feeds, nourishes and tones up the body—it sends the thrill and vim of robust health from head to foot—makes you feel better at once. Won't you use Ferrozone? Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

SPEED AND SAFETY

The Burlington road has warned its engineers against the practice of making up lost time by excessively fast [illegible] of more importance [illegible] NOR, President, [illegible] and Gentlemen, [illegible] believes it is possible to secure it. The traveling public will applaud the decision of the road.

Apart from the saving of fuel by the prevention of accidents due primarily to high speed there will be a saving in the life of the engines. Machinery is less apt to wear out if run at a steady rate than if low velocity alternates with abnormally high velocity. An engineer who starts and stops his train without loss of time and who does everything possible to avoid delay at stations will be able to traverse the distance between stations at the rate contemplated when the time table was made out, and will use less coal and leave the engine in better shape that if he had increased speed in order to make up time lost at stations or by slow running for part of the way.

Punctual arrival and departure of trains is a satisfaction to travelers and usually avoids some discomfort. It is true also that on most railroads a moderate rate of speed is more comfortable than a high rate. The mental satisfaction of feeling that engineers are expected to be conservative is better than the knowledge that the engineers will take any risk to bring a train in on time. The legitimate occasions for delay will be found to be so few, when the engineers become accustomed to the though' that irregular running will not be tolerated, that arrival behind time will probably be less frequent than now.

Not only is high speed itself a frequent cause for accidents, but there is greater danger at crossings and switches when a train does not arrive with clocklike punctuality. It may be taken for granted that the management of the road means what it says and that engineers who cannot make schedule time without bursts of speed beyond what is considered safe will be transferred to less important work. The public may have to put up with delays for a short time, but may be consoled by the thought that safety is the immediate result. It will be no long time before the new way of running is understood and then punctuality as well as safety will be secured.

Redeeming Grand Trunk Ry. Tickets

Toronto, Dec. 30.—A circular has been issued by the passenger department of the Grand Trunk relative to the regulations as to redemption of railway passenger tickets sold in Canada. The circular will take effect Jan. 1, and reads as follows:

"An wholly unused passenger tickets sold in Canada and presented for redemption at the ticket office where sold within 30 days from date of expiration of such ticket, shall be redeemed immediately by the agent in charge of said ticket office at the price paid for ticket. The word 'void' must be written by agent in ink heavily across the face of the ticket at the time of redemption."

Passengers presenting such tickets at the office where they were not sold will have some delay in having them honored. If presented at the office where it was sold, the ticket will be immediately honored. The object of the new regulations is to expedite the settlement of claims for such tickets.

The Lottery In Italy.

Lotto banks do a thriving business in Italy. Millions of people of all classes and conditions contribute every week to the game, by which they hope to make fortunes. The princess and her maid, the professor and his pupils, the bootblack and the army officer, the crippled mendicant, school children—everybody is drawn into the lotto net. The main office is in Rome, but suboffices are in operation in every hamlet in the kingdom, and drawings take place every Saturday in eight cities. The public knows the hour of the drawing, and the plaza near the Via del Umitta, near the Quirinal, always swarms with people when the little blind boy draws five numbers of the ninety which have been placed there. These numbers are displayed on a signboard in the order in which they are drawn, and the player who has bought a ticket with the same numbers in the same order receives the grand prize. The play keeps many people still poorer than they would be and is a great source of revenue to the country.

Rats as Gold Miners.

It is a common practice for the boys in some watch and jewelry factories to kill the rats which infest the buildings and burn the bodies to obtain the gold. Many oiled rags are used in burnishing watch cases, and in time they become impregnated with gold. The rats eagerly devour these rags, and a few months of this kind of diet fills the interior mechanism of the rat with a gold plating. Twice a year the boys have a grand cremation. The rats are caught by the hundred and burned in a crucible. The intense heat drives off all animal substances and leaves the gold in the shape of a little lump. The amount of the precious metal obtained in this way is not large, but gives the ingenious youngsters plenty of pocket money. In some factories young Napoleons of finance buy up in advance the shares of their fellow workers in the rat colony.—London Mail.

The Source of Chalybeate Water.

The chalybeate waters of Tunbridge Wells are said to owe their ruddy tint and queer taste to the fact that St. Dunstan flung his pincbers into them after that memorable encounter recorded in the old rhyme—

St. Dunstan, as the story goes,
Pulled the devil by the nose
With redhot tongs, which made him roar
That he was heard three miles or more—or that the glowing proboscis—and a long snout is one of the most marked features of the fiend in the mediaeval art—was itself plunged into the healing well when its owner had taken a flying leap out of the saint's cell at Mayfield, some nine or ten miles away.

The English language, according to a statistician who has made a study of the comparative wealth of languages, heads the list with the enormous vocabulary of 260,000 words. German comes next, with 80,000 words; then Italian, with 75,000; French, with 30,000; Turkish, with 22,500, and Spanish, with 20,000.

Subscriptions are invited for 2,000 Ten Per Cent. 10 p.c. Preference Shares of $100 each.

This Preference Stock shares equally in all profits and dividends of the Company in excess of the 10 per cent. minimum.

CALLS—$10 per share on application and $10 per share on allotment, and the balance in calls of $10 per share as required at intervals of not less than two months.

The Western Issue having been wholly taken up by the Ranching, Farming and Commercial men of Western Canada, and more than half of the present issue has been already subscribed.

THE ONLY PACKERS OF BEEF, PORK AND OTHER FOOD PRODUCTS OF THE RANCHES AND FARMS OF WESTERN CANADA.

This Company has already about 1,000 shareholders, all of whom have paid for their shares in cash on equal terms, and shares are allotted by priority of application.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary;—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over 900,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 10c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 800,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold, the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be redeemed within a few years at par, in order to avoid the unnecessary accumulation of surplus, by means of dividends being paid annually up to 10 fully paid $100 share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions (20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100 Shares of bonus have been issued to the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

EXTRACT FROM REPORT, JUNE 30TH, 1906.

"An interesting brochure published by Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, give statistics of the past years business. The total sales for the year aggregated over $700,000,000, representing shipments of 50 carloads daily. In a single day were slaughtered in the company's seven packing plants 11,875 cattle 16,502 sheep and 34,562 hogs.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present; The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs J.A. Banfield, F. B. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

PROPERTY AND LOCATION

The property consists of forty acres being the south-west quarter of the north half of lot 6 in concession I Township of Bucke. The property of this Company lies about three-quarters of a mile north-west from the celebrated Trethewey mine and is identically of the same formation. Vein matter was found in this property right from the surface and subsequent prospecting has revealed several well defined veins. On the main vein several nuggets of native silver were found. A shaft had been sunk to a depth of fourteen feet, when the property was taken over by this Company.

WORK ON THE PROPERTY

At present writing active development work is being proceeded with. One half of the Company's property is still unprospected.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Of all Cobalt Mining Companies none can show a sounder business basis than this. The organizers had such confidence in the property that they have taken their entire interest in stock and have pooled same for six months, evidencing the fact of their absolute confidence in the value of the Company's property at the par value of $1.00 per share. ONLY 25000 shares are being issued at the present time for active development work. It is confidently expected that this will be sufficient to make this property a shipper, and if so the public can at a glance see what the values of these shares will be, having regard to the fact that only 75,000 shares of the Company will have been issued. The stock is not being offered outside of Ottawa as the Directors feel confident this small amount will be oversubscribed here. Address

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER,

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"Next day he brought her some flowers, and she began to get better. Then he took her out to ride. One night about 10 o'clock the nurse comes into the room sudden like and finds him on his knees before the widow, kissing her dress an' talking all kinds o' nonsense."

"Here! Stop a minute," said the sister Lise, who had now dropped her knitting and began to fan herself. "You take my breath away." The details were too important for hasty consideration.

"Makin' love?" said the customer.

"I should think likely," said the other, whereupon the three began to laugh again.

"Now go on," said the sister Lise, leaning forward.

"There he knelt, kissing her dress," the narrator continued.

"Why didn't he kiss her face?"

"Because she wouldn't let him, I suppose."

"Oh!" said the others, nodding their heads thoughtfully.

"When the nurse came," the sister Serene continued, "the widow went to a desk and wrote a letter and brought it to Dick. Then says the widow, says she: 'You take this to my uncle in Boston. If you can make him give his consent I'd be glad to see you again.'

"Dick, he rushed off that very evening an' took the cars at Madrid. What do you suppose the letter said?"

The sister Serene began to shake with laughter.

"What?" was the eager demand of the two sisters.

"Well, the widow told the nurse, and she told Mary Jones, and Mary told me. The letter was kind o' short and about like this:

"Pardon me for introducing a scamp by the name of Roberts. He's engaged to a very sweet young lady and has the impudence to make love to me. I wish to get him out of town for awhile and can't think of any better way. Don't use him too roughly. He was a detective once himself.

"Well, in a couple of days the widow got a telegraph message from her uncle, an' what do you suppose it said?"

The sister Serene covered her face and began to quiver. The other two were leaning toward her, smiling, their mouths open.

"What was it?" said the sister Lize.

"'Kicked him downstairs,'" the narrator quoted.

"I!" the two whispered.

"Good enough for him." It was the verdict of the little shopkeeper, sharply spoken, as she went on with her work.

"So I say," this from the other three, who were now quite serious.

"He'd better not come back here," said the sister Lise.

"He never will probably."

"Who employed the widow?"

"Nobody knows," said the sister Serene. "Before she left town she had a check cashed, an' it come from Riley Brooke. Some think Martha Vaughn herself knows all about it. Sh-h-h! There goes Sidney Trove."

"Ain't he splendid looking?"

Ruth Tole had opened the door, and they were now observing the street and those who were passing in it.

"One of these days there'll be some tall lovemaking up there at the Widow Vaughn's," said Lize.

"Like to be behind the door."

"I wouldn't," said the sister Serene.

"No, you wouldn't!"

"I'd rather be up next to the young man." A merry laugh and then a sigh from Lize, who looked a bit dreamy.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

TROVE had come to Hillsborough that very hour he passed the Golden Spool. In him a touch of dignity had sobered the careless eye of youth. He was indeed a comely young man, his attire fashionable, his form erect. Soon he was on the familiar road to Robin's Inn. In the air was an odor of the harrowed earth, and up in the hills a shout of greeting came out of field or garden as Trove went by. It was a walk to remember, and when he had come near the far side of Pleasant valley he could see Polly waving her hand to him at the edge of the maple grove.

"Supper is waiting," said she merrily as she came to meet him. "There's blueberries and biscuit and lots of nice things."

"I'm hungry," said he. "But first, dear, let us enjoy love and kisses."

Then by the lonely road he held her close to him, and each could feel the heartbeat of the other, and for quite a moment speech would have been most idle and inadequate.

"Now the promise, Polly," said he soon. "I go not another step until I have your promise to be my wife."

"You do not think I'd let one treat me that way unless I expected to marry him, do you?" said Polly as she fussed with a ribbon bow, her face red with blushes. "You've mussed me all up."

"I'm to be a teacher in the big school, and if you were willing we could be married soon."

"Oh, dear!" said she, sighing and looking up at him with a smile. "I'm too happy to think." Then followed another moment of silence, in which the little god, if he were near them, must have smiled.

"Won't you name the day now?" he insisted.

"Oh, let's keep that for the next chapter," said she. "Don't you know supper is waiting?"

"It's all like those tales 'to be continued in our next,'" he answered, with a laugh.

Then they walked slowly up the long hill arm in arm.

"How very grand you look!" said she proudly. "Did you see the governor?"

"Yes, but he can do nothing now. It's the only cloud in the sky."

"Dear old man!" said Polly. "We'll find a way to help him."

"But he wouldn't thank us for help—there's the truth of it," said Trove quickly. "He's happy and content. Here is a letter that came today:

"Dear Sidney—Think of all I have said to thee, an', if ye remember well, boy, it will bear thee up. 'Were I indeed,' as ye believe, drinking the cup o' bitterness for thy sake, know ye not the law will make it sweet for me? After all I have said to thee, are ye not prepared? Is my work wasted? Is the seed fallen upon the rocks? And, if ye hold to thy view, consider—would ye rob the dark world o' the light o' sacrifice? 'Nay,' ye will answer. Then I say, 'If ye would give me peace, go to thy work, boy, and cease to waste thyself with worry and foolish wandering.'

"Somehow it puts me to shame," said Trove as he put the letter in his pocket. "I'm so far beneath him. I shall obey and go to work and pray for the speedy coming of God's justice."

Two Miles of Development

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,630 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we will make a enormous body of copper ore.

Are You Often Bilious?

Read This and Learn How to Prevent Attacks.

Biliousness is merely a term applied to a condition that exists when the body is over-loaded with bile.

The complexion turns yellow, eyes look dull, pimples, itching and eczema break out, headaches are ever present.

Biliousness has two great causes, constipation and defective liver action.

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken they not only correct the bowels, but act directly on the liver, regulating its bile secretion.

Unlike ordinary medicines which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the condition which causes biliousness, thus permanent cures are effected.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills do cure biliousness and liver ills under all circumstances.

We prove this by the statement of Mr. Fenwick Luddington, of New Harbor, N.S., who writes: "Three months ago I had no expectation of ever getting free from periodical bilious attacks. These were preceded by dizziness and dreadful headaches. If I stooped over my head would swim and a nauseous feeling crept into my stomach.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills fixed up my liver, drove all the bile out of my blood and made me a well man in a few months. Today I enjoy a good appetite, excellent digestion, and the best of health. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills today. Sold by all dealers: 25c per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

NEW YORK FERRY BOAT SUNK

New York, Dec. 31.—The ferry boat Paterson of the Erie Railroad Line was sunk by collision with a freight lighter in the Hudson River, while on her way to the 23d-street slip, New York, from New Jersey, yesterday.

All the passengers and members of the crew were saved, but 18 horses were drowned. They were owned by market men, who were on their way to the New York markets.

There were only a few passengers on the ferry boat at the time of the accident.

The collision occurred while the two boats were in midstream. The freight lighter struck the Paterson amidships, and the big ferry boat was almost cut in two and at once began to sink.

Her passengers and crew were taken on board the lighter, but there was not sufficient time to remove the horses before the Paterson went down.

American "Red Cross" Sends Money to China

Harriman Offers to Transport Supplies Free From 'Frisco to Orient.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The American Red Cross today sent $3400 to China on account of the recent earthquake. This is in addition to $8943 previously despatched to that country.

The contributions received at the national office of the Red Cross here for the famine sufferers in China amount to $8600, but no reports have been received from state agencies, which make the largest collections.

A despatch addressed to the president was received at the White House today from E. H. Harriman, stating that he would transport free of charge all supplies for Chinese famine sufferers.

The free transportation is to begin at San Francisco, and end at Wu Sung, which is the port for Shanghai and Hongkong. This information was sent to the state department and the American Red Cross.

ADDRESS TO THE ELECTORS

OF THE

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

To the Electors of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In compliance with the request of a large number of influential ratepayers, I have decided to offer myself as a candidate for the mayoralty of Peterborough for the year 1907. I assure you that, in aspiring to the position of Mayor, I appreciate the responsibility of being intrusted with the dignity of promoting the interests of a city of whose position and [illegible], I, in common with every other citizen, am justly proud. The

Identity of Interests

All my material and business interests and their betterment and advancement are centred in, and bound up with the good government, good standing and progress of Peterborough. Therefore, to put the matter upon no higher ground, if I receive the honour of being elected Mayor, it will be to my interest to do all in my power for the growth, up-building and general welfare of my home City, in which I received my education in the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute, and in which, as remarked, my present and future are centred.

Systematize Municipal Work

As a member of the Council for the past three years I have endeavored to serve the interests of the ratepayers faithfully, and the knowledge gained by service on all the committees of the Council, and, for the past two years, respectively, as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee and Board of Works, and the careful study I have devoted to all municipal questions, give me such experience as will place me in a position to so systematize the operations of the machinery of municipal government as to give the best results for the least expenditure of money.

General Policy

My policy for the coming year can be briefly stated — promoting the interests of the general mass of the ratepayers which is the first consideration — a liberal and prudent attitude of encouragement to industries to establish themselves in Peterborough, and the adoption of a general policy looking to making Peterborough the industrial and commercial centre, and the rallying point for the Midland District and Eastern Ontario. This would involve the provision of accommodation, within reasonable limits, for conventions gatherings — district, Provincial and Dominion—dealing with the agricultural, dairying and other interests of the district of which Peterborough is the natural centre.

Exemption Conditions

My policy in regard to the improvement of conditions in the City will be a continuance of that I have advocated in Council and which has been adopted in principle by the Council.

In regard to the exemption of, or fixed assessment for, industrial establishments, I have advocated, and still advocate, the adoption of conditions which will require such establishments, not to obstruct local improvements, such as sidewalks or sewers, but, on the contrary, require them to bear their proportion of the cost.

Permanency of Improvements

With regard to pending street extensions, I shall continue the policy, adopted by the Council and put into motion by myself, till Aylmer street as well as George street (which is practically open now) is extended to the southern boundary of the city.

I firmly believe that all expenditure of money upon streets should be, as far as possible, for works of a permanent character. In the building of permanent pavements, I hold that the policy I advocated (which was adopted by the Council,) of building arcasings at street intersections at the same time as the general work is done, should be continued.

With a full appreciation of the great injury done to our streets by promiscuous disturbance of the surface, I introduced a bylaw providing for the laying of connections to the street line at the time of sewer construction, thus avoiding the necessity of digging up the streets at frequent intervals. In this connection I will, if elected, use my influence to make financial and executive provision to restore the streets disturbed by sewer, waterworks, gas, and other excavation operations to their original condition, with the least possible delay and at the minimum of expense to the general ratepayers, so that the public for whose use the streets are intended will have the advantage of the best street conditions.

Surface Drainage

In the interests of the business men and citizens generally, I regard the proper care of our streets as of the utmost importance, and as proper surface drainage is one of the easiest and most essential means of maintaining them in good condition, and as this can be effected with comparatively trifling expenditure, I shall, if honoured with your confidence, make it a point to provide the best condition of surface drainage possible.

Municipal Ownership

In regard to the question of municipal ownership and operation of public utilities in general use, I am in favour of the principle, subject to the condition that, as Mayor of the city, if elected, I must be convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that the acquirement and operation of any public utility will be in the interests of the citizens at large and reasonably certain of yielding satisfactory results. This covers my position, in regard to the general principle, as well as to the electric lighting, gas, and power propositions now before the public. The acquirement of such utilities should be done on purely business principles—the city should not, because it is a corporation, pay one cent more or one cent less than their carefully ascertained value.

To Get Good Advice

To this end I would advocate the constitution of an Advisory Board, to consist of representatives of the Trades and Labour Council, of the Manufacturers' Association, of the Board of Trade and of the Water Commissioners, such Advisory Board in consultation with the City Council, or Manufacturers' Committee, to pass upon the details of any proposition before its submission to the people.

In respectfully soliciting your votes and influence, I might say in summary, that in addition to what I have specified, I shall use my best efforts if elected, to so discharge my duties as to promote the best interests and progress of the city, and to creditably and satisfactorily represent the citizens, without distinction of class or interest.

Yours very faithfully

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "in Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted, in the treatment of disease peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with a leucorrhoea; atonic (weak) condition of the reproductive organs of [illegible], mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding) due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; [illegible] or absent monthly periods; pain from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and [illegible] (thin blood) habit; dragging [illegible] in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms [illegible] which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root: "In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal: "Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhoea (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

More Views in Favor of the New Collegiate

The Amount Asked For the New High School Is Very Reasonable---Need of Modern Building Not Denied by Anyone.

Mr. R. Lees, county public school inspector, in speaking to the press yesterday of the bylaw to raise $21,000 for Collegiate Institute purposes, said; — The question of a Collegiate Institute building, is not a new one in Peterborough, and it is certainly time it was settled. Apart altogether from the fact that the present building is required for public school purposes. One has only to consider its inadequacy to present needs, its lack of laboratory accommodation, and its general unsuitableness for the purposes of a modern high school, to wonder that so much has been accomplished there, and to be convinced of the need of a new building.

Peterborough has occupied a very honorable place, educationally, among the towns and cities of the province. It was one of the first places to introduce the plan of a supervising inspector of public schools, setting an example that has now been followed by many others. The school authorities have taken pains to secure the services of the best teachers, and have been wise enough to retain them for long periods when secured. Compared with other places of similar size the teachers have been very well paid. In the matter of buildings, Peterborough was once in the front rank. But for twenty-five years no progress has been made in that dispect, while other places have forged ahead to such an extent that we are now near the end of the procession.

Perhaps the greatest mistake that the people of this city have made in educational matters, has been in the lack of foresight shown in regard to grounds and buildings. In facts it almost seems as if it was only within the last few years that Peterborough realized that she might have a future. The mistake should be guarded against now. An excellent site has been secured, and a school should be placed on it, that will not only be a credit to the city, but will meet the needs of secondary education for some time to come. The building will occupy a conspicuous place in the city, and, while the matter of first importance is to have it adapted to the needs of the school as completely as possible, yet there is a certain amount of education in the exterior of a public building, and it should not be entirely devoid of ornament. It should be such a building as we will all be proud of.

Considering everything, I should say that the amount asked for, $61,000, is not unreasonable, and I have no doubt but this will be the opinion of a large majority of the patriotic and public-spirited ratepayers of our city as expressed at the polls on Monday next.

ALD. GRAHAM'S VIEWS.

Ald. J. G. Graham, was seen by a press representative in egard to the Collegiate Institute bylaw. Needless to say, he, like all other up-to-date and wide awake people, was strongly in favor of it. Ald. Graham is a building contractor, having had many years' experience, and is an authority on such work as the cost of building a Collegiate. He was asked what he thought of the price, and replied that he would not like to undertake to put up a building, such as the Board of Education propose to erect for anything less than $61,000, which the Board was figuring on. "It's all right," he said, "for those fellows who sit in their offices, and condemn a thing the face of it. But when they begin to figure out the cost of material, labor, etc., about which they know absolutely nothing. I tell you what ferent matter. I tell you what, there will be little enough left for the contractor when he gets through.

"As far as the necessity for a new Collegiate is concerned," continued Ald. Graham, "there is not a person in the city who can deny it. All that is necessary to convince you that the present school is a disgrace to the city is to visit it some day while the classes are in. I am going to vote for the bylaw, and I am going to get as many others as possible to do the same."

The year of grace 1906 made an excellent start from the railway viewpoint. There was hardly any severe weather, and the snowplows reposed serenely in the sheds. That meant hundreds of thousands of dollars less in operating expenses, so far as the big systems were concerned.

It is true the systems have had to pay more for labor, more for material used for structural purposes, and more for equipment than they have ever done before, but against that there has been enormous advances in the earnings owing to the vastly increased volume of traffic handled. It must be said that the results have been of a remarkable character as regards the systems operating in the west, east, and middle of the country. This is, of course, due to the wider-read prosperity. To begin with the I.C.R., the Government Railway, may be said to have turned from a chronic accumulator of deficits to a profit maker of great health and promise. The Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk have surpassed all records, and the Canadian Northern has shown that as one of Canada's great systems it must now be seriously reckoned with.

Taking it as a whole, the railway year has been the best for the companies and the best for the people that Canada has had. It has been the best in economic results, and it leaves the systems in better physical condition than it found them.

Miss Eva W. Bradd Is Now a Matron

One of the most interesting events in the current social history of Peterborough was in evidence on New Year's Day, when at Dr. F. J. Bradd's residence in the presence of about fifty guests, Miss Eva Warfied, his eldest daughter was united in marriage to Mr. Lesley Leyson Kennedy, son of Dr. William Kennedy, of Wilmette, Chicago. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. W. J. McIlree, of Clinton, a former pastor of the bride, the ceremony taking place in the drawing room, the bridal couple stood before a bank of greenery and white

The bride elect was given away by her father, the wedding march from Lohengrin, being played by Miss Helen Davies. The fair bride was attired in embroidered white chiffon, over white satin, and wore the usual veil and orange blossoms.

The bridesmaid was Miss Hazel Dean, and the maid of honor, Miss Ada Bradd, sister of the bride. The flower girl was Miss Helen Hardinge of Chicago, cousin of the bride.

After the ceremony Mr. R. Norman Jollie of Clinton, sang "Love's Coronation," and "O Fair, and Sweet and Holy," and previous to the wedding breakfast, the health of the bride was proposed by Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy left on the 5.15 C.P.R. train for a wedding tour and will return to Peterborough before going to their new home in Chicago.

Among the out of town guests were Dr. and Mrs. Mallory, Mrs. Curran and Miss Clark, of Toronto; Mrs. Harding, St. Mary's; Mrs. F. Hardinge, Miss Helen Hardinge, Dr. and Mrs. Kennedy, Miss Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hardinge, Chicago; Mrs. A. Henderson, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Stone, London; Mr. and Mrs. Bradd, Mr. and Mrs. Cockrane, Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Colborne; Mrs. Curtis, Warkworth; and Mrs. English, of Omemee.

The bride is one of the most popular young ladies of the city, and will doubtless be a great acquisition to the society of Chicago.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

A Candidate, to the Ratepayers:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I respectfully offer my services to the ratepayers of the city, and am a candidate for election by you to the position of Water Commissioner, now vacant. I do this at the urgent request of many ratepayers, who are good enough to say that my services as Alderman and experience on the City Council qualifies me to render intelligent and helpful service in the interest of the city.

I believe it to be a fact, and it is endorsed by others, that in no way may a citizen receive the information and be in a position to appreciate the needs of the municipality as by service on your Council Board.

Should you see fit to elect me, you will please remember in so doing that I am thoroughly in touch with municipal matters, having held the important position of Chairman of the Finance Committee for the last two years. It is admittedly the most important committee of the Council, and one requiring considerable time at the hands of its members and particularly so of its chairman.

I believe I can truly say that I understand the financial position and needs of the city thoroughly. In so far as your City Water Department is concerned, I promise, if elected, to faithfully perform the duties of the position and to bear in mind the needs of the city, as implied in the carrying on of the department and its extension in future years.

I may call attention to the legislation which Mr. Moore, the retiring member of the Commission, is drafting out and which it is proposed to ask for at the next session of the Legislative Assembly:—

(a) To constitute the Water Commissioners of the said City of Peterborough a body corporate.

(b) To authorize the said Water Commissioners to levy and collect a water rate upon properties fronting on streets along which water mains are laid, and to provide that all water rates shall be a lien on properties served with water or mains; with the right of distress and sale as in the case of unpaid taxes.

I do not favor such drastic legislation and am thoroughly convinced that the people should be asked first to endorse this proposition and, if elected, will endeavor to have this matter submitted to vote before making application for such a sweeping change in the policy, system and conduct of the Water Commission.

I may not be able to personally call on all ratepayers before polling day, but I solicit their votes and influence. I trust that my candidature will receive a hearty and successful support and I will be proud to be elected.

Very respectfully,

E. F. MASON

P.S. Inspector Lees Advocates Coll. Inst.

As there is a diversity of opinion, although with a majority seemingly in favor of the proposed Collegiate Institute bonus bylaw, it is of interest to note that Mr. R. Lees, county public school inspector, in speaking a few days ago of the bylaw to raise $21,000 for the proposed Collegiate Institute, openly expressed his opinion that the institute should be erected. He thinks that Peterborough has shown a possible lack of foresight in school buildings and grounds. He thinks that an excellent site has been secured, and an institute should be placed on it, that will not only be a credit to the city, but suffice for some time to come. The building will occupy a prominent position in the city, and, while the most important consideration is to have it adapted to the needs of the school as much as possible, yet it should not be devoid of ornament. It should be such a building as we will all be proud of.

Reading Exiles Hold Gathering

Several sons of Albion, and in particular hailing from the great biscuit making city of Reading, in the county of Berkshire, England, gathered on New Year's Day, at the residence of Mr. H. Gray, Bolivar, street. All present came from the mother country, who have met often to exchange views and reminiscences of English life. About forty-two partook of a well furnished supper provided by Mr. and Mrs. Gray. Songs and recitations were given by a number of those present and a Christmas tree well laden with gifts was the chief attraction for the children.

John Herron M.P. Interviewed Yesterday

Yesterday one of the three Conservative members of the Dominion Government for Alberta, was in the city, a guest at the Snowden House.

Mr. Herron, who lives at Pincher Creek, Alta., is a rancher of importance, whose main business is that of raising horses, principally of the Clydsdale breed.

Yesterday a Times representative interviewed Mr. Herron, and ascertained that the member of the Dominion Government, was well qualified to speak authoratively on horse raising. Mr. Herron's ranch is just about on the boundary between Alberta and British Columbia. They have one of the most perfect climates on earth in his section, there being no severe frost. Mr. Herron, as do other ranchers in his district, finds his chief market for horses in British Columbia for mining and milling purposes.

This distinguished member of Canada's Parliament, whilst evidently non-desirous of being interviewed was kind enough to give The Times these few points. It might be noted that Mr. Herron is one sense a local man, having married a Miss Luke of Cameron, P.O., in Victoria Falls. Mrs. Herron is spending a few days with her relatives whilst her husband goes to Ottawa to look after the affairs and prospects of our growing and glorious Dominion. Mr. Herron left last night for the capital.

Prettty Wedding In the East Ward

The residence of Mr. George Boyler, east ward south, was the scene of a pretty New Year's wedding Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, when his daughter, Miss Emma, was united in marriage to Mr. Maxwell E Weir.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's, in the drawing room, which was very prettily decorated for the occasion. About one hundred invited guests were present, including friends from Toronto, Orillia, Goderich, Ottawa, Windsor and other places.

The bride was charmingly attired in a dress of pale blue silk, covered with cream voile, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss A. Linster, of Bridgenorth, wore a becoming dress of white silk. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Albert E. Weir. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. George Boyler, Jr.

After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding dejeuner served on prettily-decorated tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Weir left on the 5.15 C.P.R. train on a wedding trip to Windsor and other western points. On their return they will take up residence at 208 Berkeley street, Toronto.

The presents received were costly and numerous, testifying to the high esteem in which the young couple are held by a large circle of friends.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

Yesterday's session of the police court, had a good grist to grind. The first to face the music was "Gusty" Dundas, a local eccentric. Gusty was charged with being a vagrant. He has been sleeping in the police station for several nights. The magistrate gave him three months in jail.

John Doig, a junk dealer, the next victim, pleaded not guilty to the charge of stealing an iron rod, the property of the city. Mr. Harry Evans said he had seen the rods in the corporation yard on Townsend street, and they were missed and afterwards found on a Jew's yard on George street. Louis Florence, the junk dealer, said he had bought several iron rods from Doig.

Doig said that the rod he sold to the Jew was bought from a man on London street. The other rod was brought to him by another man, whom he hired to peddle for him.

The magistrate gave the prisoner the benefit of the doubt, but will insist hereafter on greater accuracy as to time, description, etc., of purchases by those engaged in the noble work of handling Junk.

An Exciting Apartment Fire in New York City

Several Persons Burned, Firemen Badly Hurt, and Riot Occurred--Score of Policemen Disperse the Crowd

New York, Jan. 3.—One of the worst fires the fire-fighters of this city have been called on to contend with in some time started in the tenement district on West Fifty-third street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, shortly after one a.m. yesterday. The fire began in a livery stable at number 429, spread to another stable next door, and had reached four adjacent tenements across the street before it was brought under control. Lack of water pressure was responsible for the extensive spread of the flames, according to the fire chiefs. When the pressure was strengthened, the firemen quickly controlled the blaze. The loss, is estimated at $200,000.

Several persons are reported missing, and the police believe that they have perished. Two of these are the husband and four-year-old child of Mrs. Kate Garland, who lives at 428 West Fifty-third street, across from where the fire started. Mrs. Garland thinks that her husband and child were burned to death, as they were still in the Garland apartments when she fled.

Fireman Alfred Kinsella, while fighting the fire from the roof of No. 424, fell from the fifth to the fourth story, when the roof of the building collapsed. He was rescued at great risk by some of his companions, but was so seriously injured that he may die. The tenements burned or badly damaged were inhabited by nearly five hundred persons, most of whom had retired when the fire broke out. Close to the scene of the fire there is a negro settlement, and there were many negroes in the big crowd that gathered to watch the progress of the flames. A quarrel was started between a white man and a colored man, and as the races took sides, a general fight was soon under way. During the fight, Francis Shanlon, a negro, 28 years old, was shot in the head and probably fatally wounded. It took a score of police with drawn clubs to stop the fight and disperse the mob.

A dozen persons were injured, forty families are homeless, 2,000 persons were driven temporarily from their homes, and fifty horses were roasted to death. One big tenement house at 427 West 53rd street and a large boarding stable at 429 to 431 West 53rd street were destroyed. Seven tenement houses at 425, 428, 430, 432, and 434 West 53rd street and 436 and 438 West 54th street were badly damaged. Lack of adequate water pressure is said to have been largely responsible for the extent of the fire.

Deputy Chief Binns, who had charge of the fire-fighters, declares that for more than 20 minutes there could not be obtained from hydrants in the vicinity even enough water to supply the boilers of the fire engines. Had not one of the big fire boats, which drew its water supply from the Hudson River, come to the rescue, the whole west side might have been swept, for even when the water came to the hydrants the pressure was light, and it became necessary to work the engines in pairs and triplets before an effective stream could be obtained.

Deep Sea Mission Dance a Success

The Deep-Sea Mission Dance, given last week, under the auspices and courtesy of Mr. Geo. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel, in that popular caravansary, was well attended. The elite of Peterborough were out in large numbers, and in fashionable attire. The music was exceptionally good, Miss Hurley presiding at the piano, and the opera house orchestra assisting later. Mr. Graham left no trouble or expense aside in making this most commendable social function and deserving charity a great success.

CARD TO THE ELECTORS!

CEO. J. TOVEY

For Alderman

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been once again nominated as your representative on the Aldermanic Board for the year 1907, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence at the coming elections. In the future as in the past if elected, I shall always advocate as economical a civic government as consistent with public needs, and devote my services in the interests of the whole community; I shall support all measures leading to municipal ownership of public utilities, providing the operation of the same will assure to the citizens maximum results at a minimum expenditure of public monies, and at the same time furnish sufficient surplus revenue to pay off the capital invested. I am strongly in favor of this city acquiring its own electric power, in which event Peterborough will be in a position to guarantee new industries all the power they need at the lowest possible price.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year, I remain,

Your obedient servant.

CARD TO THE ELECTORS!

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having been nominated as one of many to represent you at your Council Board, for this present year, I take this opportunity of soliciting your votes.

I am a firm believer, that to have a good representative council, that the office should seek the man, instead of the man seeking the office.

When an alderman gives the time and attention that is required of him, if he represents the electors, it is quite sufficient, without spending his time, (which was always very valuable to him) in canvassing votes.

As I am opening up a business to become one of your merchants, my time for the future will be spent in your city, therefore, at the services of the ratepayers.

I shall devote my energies to serve the ratepayers faithfully, as I have no axe to grind.

Having made a success of my own business so I think I am capable of helping to manage that of our progressive young city.

It shall be my duty to procure municipal ownership in all cases where our public thoroughfares are utilized. I have visited a large number of towns and cities during the last two years, and I have yet to find one instance when it has been a failure.

It shall be my duty to assist in the careful expenditure of money, consistent with the advancement of our city.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours very truly.

CURLING.

On New Year's forenoon two rinks had a friendly tussle, viz., one skipped by Dicsken Davidson and one by Robt. Neil. The former skip won out by a score of 13—3. A few minutes before noon one of Mr. Neill's doughty players, when the score stood 10—3 against his side, proposed two more ends, asserting that his side might make up their loss. His skip, Mr. Neil, although having to attend a train, took a chance on the said train being late and with true sportsmanlike pluck played out the two more ends. Alas and alack! the ice was poor, the playing was more for muscle than for science, and they came out worse than ever. No tears however were shed.

Mr. Adam Clotworthy Has Passed Away

On Monday evening one of Peterborough's old and most respected citizens, in the person of Mr. Adam Clotworthy, died in the Nichols' Hospital. The deceased, who was 78 years old, went to the hospital some three weeks ago, suffering with bronchitis and other complications.

The late Mr. Clotworthy, who had been living with his sister, Mrs. Livick, at 616 Water street, was unmarried. He was born near Belfast, Ireland, and came to Canada when 20 years old. He was engaged in mining and lumbering in British Columbia, until he finally located in Peterborough. Mr. Clotworthy attended St. Andrew's church, and was a staunch Conservative in politics.

The funeral, which is private, will be held this afternoon from 580 George street to the Little Lake cemetery.

Wreck in Scotland; Twenty-two are Dead

Dundee, Scotland, Jan. 1. — The wrecks of the two trains which were in collision near Arbroath yesterday, resulting in the death of sixteen persons and serious injuries to over thirty, have been cleared away sufficiently to permit traffic being resumed.

The firemen of the wrecked express died yesterday in the hospital at Arbroath where all the dead and injured were taken. His death was partly due to his lying in the snowpinned down under his cab for eight hours. Five of the injured passengers also succumbed today as the result of exposure before being succored, raising the total deaths to 22.

William Black, the novelist, and a member of the House of Commons from Banffshire, Scotland, who was among the passengers severely injured, is making fair progress towards recovery. The other injured persons include the editor of the Scottish Farmer.

SPREADING THE NET

Figures look so much alike, it takes some effort of the imagination to realize the full meaning of the statement that there are over five thousand miles of railway now under construction in that part of Canada which lies between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains, says the Montreal Herald. That, however, is the simple truth of it. The Canadian Pacific people are adding to their existing system a nice little lean-to of 1,400 miles. The Grand Trunk Pacific are starting out with 1,800 miles. The Canadian Northern, trying to live up to Mr. Mackenzie's maxim of no day without its mile—or two—is in for 1,500. And "Jim Hill" the terror of the plains, is laying a thousand miles to keep up the reputation of the Great Northern.

Three of these railway companies are making for the Pacific Coast as fast as they can go, the fourth being already there. Also there are signs that some or all of them will presently have outlets on Hudson Bay. They work while we sleep, these railway builders, and when we awake, as we shall one of these days, it will be a new country altogether upon which we shall look out.

Rochester, Jan. 1.—Miss Florence Patterson, 55 years old, committed suicide yesterday by hanging herself. Her sister, Mrs. Charles R. Foster, took her life three weeks ago, and in the same manner. Both tied a rope to a door knob, ran it over the top of the door, and hanged themselves to it on the other side. Coroner Killip will hold an inquest.

G. T. Bell Combats Statement by W. F. Maclean as to Two-Cent Rate.

An interesting statement was made by Mr. G. T. Bell, general passenger and ticket agent of the Grand Trunk, yesterday, in connection with the two-cent rate bill, and other legislation now being pressed in the House of Commons by Mr. W. F. Maclean, M. P. Mr. Bell took strong issue with Mr. Maclean, and produced facts and figures to bear out his contentions. His attention was particularly drawn to the following statement made by Mr. Maclean in the parliamentary debate:

"I defy the representative of any railway company in Canada or the United States to show a case where the maximum standard passenger rate has been reduced that it has been to the detriment of the company."

Mr. Bell said he was surprised to hear Mr. Maclean was again making such an argument. Mr. Maclean had made a similar assertion in Parliament in 1903, and when his passenger rate bill of that year was under consideration of the Railway Committee the following statement had been made in behalf of the railways which Mr. Maclean did not attempt to and could not successfully challenge, viz.:

"On a small part of the railway mileage in Michigan the maximum rate is two cents a mile, as the result of arbitrary legislation that is not a credit to the wisdom or justice of those responsible for it. This law requires railways earning from their passenger trains $1,000 per mile of railroad per annum to charge two cents a mile. It is evident that such a law is based upon a principle that must force the railways to limit their passenger service or operate it at a loss. It does not take into consideration the amount of train service given and consequently the cost of earning this $1,000 per mile of railroad. In this year ended December 31st, 1902, the railroads in Michigan earned under the arbitrary law an average of only 96 cents per train mile from their passengers, against an average for all railroads in the United States of 96 cents.

The railroads in Canada in the year ended June 30th, 1902, earned from passengers only $1,300 per mile of railroad, or only 40 per cent. of the amount fixed by the Michigan law as a basis for the two cent a mile fare."

"It does not require an expert," continued Mr. Bell, "to see that legislation which reduced the earnings of Michigan railways ten cents per train mile below the average of all the railways in the United States, was not only detrimental to the railways, but almost confiscatory and most discouraging to railway development in that state."

"Nearer home we have convincing evidence of Mr. Maclean's fallacy," said Mr. Bell. "You may recall passenger fares, also freights and interest were greatly reduced in 1896 owing to a disagreement between the two principal railways with the result that both carried more passengers for a while when it was thought by the public they would have the rates only a short time, but at the end of a few months the travel was about normal in numbers and unprofitable in earnings. The reduction lasted nine months and in the aggregate the Grand Trunk carried about half a million more passengers that year at increased cost and earned over one hundred thousand dollars less than in the preceding year. I am assured the Canadian Pacific experience was substantially similar.

"But," said Mr. Bell, "Mr. Maclean's object seems to be to compel the railways to operate at a loss and force the Government to take them over as I infer from his remarks in Parliament. For example, when he introduced the 2 cents per mile bill, Hansard quotes him as follows: 'We have expressly declared that we undertake th absolute control of rates, and I believe the ultimate end of that will be that we will undertake the absolute control of the operation of railways.' Let us hope for the good of this country such an undesirable event may be long deferred. However, it may only be one of Mr. Maclean's rash statements. Here is another: Mr. Maclean, on the same occasion said:

"The law (in Ohio), went into force, the people got two cents a mile, the railroad (the Pennsylvania lines in Ohio) got more travel than it could carry, and not a single privilege that the people of Ohio enjoyed previous to that law going into force was abandoned."

"Now," said Mr. Bell, "I met in New York last week Col. Samuel Moody, general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines, and he informed me that when the 2c per mile maximum became law last March, every reduced fare was cut off except for commutation and Sunday excursion tickets and for these the fares were advanced. This means to benefit comparatively few transient passengers, the working people and vast majority of all classes who can only afford to travel at holiday seasons, and who formerly enjoyed one way for round trip excursions on such occasions as Decoration Day, Fourth of July, etc., now must pay 2 cents per mile. The people of limited means are thus helping to make up the deficit in earnings created by a compulsory and undue reduction of the maximum fare. This must always be the case when the railways are forced by legislation to carry passengers, or perform other services at unprofitable rates—they cannot discontinue their operations and must recoup themselves by restricting privileges and raising excursion fares they otherwise would be glad to accord. Why even in populous New England states and in New York and Pennsylvania at holiday times the people pay two cents per mile or more against an average of one and one-half cents on our railways in Quebec and Ontario."—Montreal Gazette, December 26th, 1906.

Dawson, Y.T., January 1.—The residence of Governor McInnes, known as Government House, was burned on Christmas Day, with the furniture, valued at $100,000. It was the finest building north of Vancouver, and contained much valuable property belonging to Mr. and Mrs. McInnes.

The fire started before noon, and is supposed to have originated from an explosion in the furnace. The temperature was only at zero, but the firemen were covered with ice after fighting the flames for four hours. The building is a total wreck.

Eastern Issue of 10 p. c. Preference Shares

Subscriptions are invited for 3,000 Ten Per Cent. 10 p.c. Preference Shares of $100 each.

This Preference Stock shares equally in all profits and dividends of the Company in excess of the 10 per cent. minimum.

CALLS—$10 per share on application and $10 per share on allotment, and the balance in calls of $10 per share as required at intervals of not less than two months.

The Western issue having been wholly taken up by the Ranching, Farming and Commercial men of Western Canada, and more than half of the present issue has been already subscribed.

THE ONLY PACKERS OF BEEF, PORK AND OTHER FOOD PRODUCTS OF THE RANCHES AND FARMS OF WESTERN CANADA.

This Company has already about 1,000 shareholders, all of whom have paid for their shares in cash on equal terms, and shares are allotted by priority of application.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary;—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 200,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center, and a considerable portion can be given away to actual settlers, leaving the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid (say to 10 fully paid $100-share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions ($20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100-Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

EXTRACT FROM REPORT, JUNE 30TH, 1905.

"An interesting brochure published by Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, give statistics of the past year's business. The total sales for the year aggregated over $200,000,000, representing shipments of 250 carloads daily. In a single day were slaughtered in the company's seven packing plants 11,375 cattle 16,343 sheep and 34,563 hogs.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentleman being present; The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs. J. A. Banfield, F. B. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the first call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER,

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

"It's the only thing to do," said she. "Sidney, I hope now I have a right to ask if you know who is your father?"

"I believe him to be dead."

"Dead!" There was a note of surprise in the word.

"I know not even his name."

"It is all very strange," said Polly. In a moment she added, "I hope you will forgive my mother if she seemed to doubt you."

"I forgive all," said the young man. "I know it was hard to believe me innocent."

"And impossible to believe you guilty. She was only waiting for more light."

The widow and her two boys came out to meet them.

"Mother, behold this big man! He is to be my husband." The girl looked up at him proudly.

"And my son?" said Mrs. Vaughn, with a smile, as she kissed him. "You've lost no time."

"Oh, I didn't intend to give up so soon," said Polly, "but—but the supper would have been ruined."

"It's now on the table," said Mrs. Vaughn.

"I've news for you," said Polly as they were sitting down. "Tunk has reformed."

"He must have been busy," said Trove, "and he's ruined his epitaph."

"His epitaph?"

"Yes; that one Darrel wrote for him: 'Here lies Tunk. O grave, where is thy victory?'"

"Tunk has one merit. He never deceived any one but himself," said the widow.

"Horses have run away with him," Trove continued. "His character is like a broken buggy, and his imagination—that's the unbroken colt. Every day for a long time the colt has run away with the wagon, tipping it over and dragging it in the ditch until every bolt is loose and every spoke rattling and every wheel awry."

"Mother, behold this big man!"

"He walks better and complains less," the widow answered.

"Often he stands very straight and walks like you," said Polly, laughing.

"He thinks you are the only great man," so spoke the widow.

"Gone from one illusion to another," said Trove.

"I do not understand you," said Polly. "Now, we heard of the shot and run—how you came by them and how one night you threw them into the river at Hillsborough. That led perhaps to most of your trouble. I'd like to know what moral law you broke when you flung them into the river."

"A great law," Trove answered, "but one hard to phrase."

"Suppose you try."

"The innocent shall have no fear," said he. "Until then I had kept the commandment."

There was a little time of silence.

"If you watch a coward you'll see a most unhappy creature." It was Trove who spoke. "Darrel said once, 'A coward is the prey of all evil and the mark of thunderbolts.'"

"I'll not admit you're a coward," were the words of Polly.

"Well," said he, rising, "I had fear of only one thing that I should lose your love."

Reaching home next day, Trove found that Allen had sold Phyllis. The mare had been shipped away.

"She brought a thousand dollars," said his foster father, "and I'll divide the profit with you."

* * * * * * *

It was a June day, and Trove was at Robin's Inn. A little before noon Polly and he and the two boys started for Brier Dale. They waded the flowering meadows in Pleasant valley, crossed a great pasture and came under the forest roof. As they came to Brier road the boys found a nest of hornets. It hung on a bough above the roadway. Soon Paul had flung a stone that broke the nest open. Hornets began to buzz around them, and all ran for refuge to a thicket of young firs. In a moment they could hear a horse coming at a slow trot. Trove peered through the bushes. He could see Ezra Tower, that man of scornful piety, on a white horse. Trove shouted a warning, but with no effect. Suddenly Tower broke his long silence, and the horse began to run.

"He did speak to the hornets," said Polly.

"Swore, too," said Paul.

Near sunset they came into Brier Dale. Mary Allen met them at the door.

"Mother, here is my future wife," said Trove proudly.

Then ruddy lips of youth touched the faded cheek of the good woman.

"We shall be married in September," said Trove, tossing his hat in the air. "We're going to have a grand time, and, mind you, mother, no more hard work for you."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"DID ye hear the cock crow? By the beard of my father, I'd forgotten you and myself and everything but the story. It's near morning, and I've a weary tongue. Another log and one more pipe. Then, sir, I'll let you go. I'm near the end.

"Let me see. It's a winter day in New York city after four years. The streets are crowded. Here are men and women, but I see only the horses. You know, sir, how I love them. Well, here is a big stable. A tall man has halted by its open door and addressed the manager.

"'I learn that you have a bay mare with starred face and a white stocking.' It is Trove who speaks.

"'Yes. There she is coming yonder.'

"'The mare is a rack of bones. Limp-

Two Miles of Development

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite. No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,650 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet we will tap an enormous body of copper ore.

If you want to invest in a MINE with vast possibilities, let us hear from you at once and we will send detailed information.

—The local customs returns for the month of December were $23,642.64.

—A special meeting of Diamond Lodge, No. 90, was held yesterday evening.

—Mr. Cavanagh has won out in the suit against him by the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Co., of Port Hope.

—Midland won out from the Y.M.C.A. Arrows by a half century to forty-nine. This was a close call and no discredit to the locals.

If you are Constipated, dull, or bilious, or have a sallow lifeless complexion, try Lax-ets just once to see what they will do for you. Lax-ets are little toothsome Candy tablets—nice to eat, nice in effect. No griping, no pain. Just a gentle laxative effect that is pleasingly desirable. Handy for the vest pocket or purse. Fire at Houdrey's Factory

Last night shortly before ten o'clock, the fire brigade was called out by the public alarm, and responded in their usual prompt manner. It seems that a cat in the office of Houdrey's pea factory caught fire in some way. The brigade did not have to turn on the hose, the fire being extinguished by the use of a Babcock. The loss was trifling.

Bricklayers Elect Officers.

The local Union No. 17 of Bricklayers and Stonemasons have elected the following officers for the ensuing year, viz:

President—H. Phillips.
Vice-President—A. H. Webb.
Cor.-Sec.—Wm. Stevens.
Treasurer—John J. Hartley.
Inner Guard—R. D. Robeson.

Mr. Arthur Stevenson Will Run

Mr. Arthur Stevenson, who for many years was manager of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, a nominee for alderman, has, at the request of a number of prominent citizens, qualified for this important office. Mr. Stevenson, as are several others of those nominated, is a strong favorite, whose intelligence and integrity are beyond cavil. Mr. Stevenson will doubtless poll a large vote.

Municipal Candidates May Speak

A public meeting will be held tomorrow night in the Foresters' Hall, George street, over B. Y. Moyes' store, when the mayoralty, aldermanic, and Board of Education candidates will be given an opportunity of addressing the gathering. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council and will doubtless be largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Fowler Honored

The fifth celebration of a wedding day was held New Year's night when some 35 friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Fowler, 668 Concession street, gathered at a local restaurant in honor of the event. After supper the guests were driven to Mr. and Mrs. Fowler's residence, where a pleasant evening was spent in speech, song and music.

Mr. and Mrs. McIlroy Entertain

An appetising menu was provided and the guests thoroughly enjoyed and greatly appreciated their hosts' dejeuner. After dinner several speeches were made while the guests enjoyed their cigars. Mr. McIlroy knows how to treat his friends and guests in royal style.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous colitis), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections it is often successful in affecting cure.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the functional ills of debilitated, feeble, sensitive women, and for painful periods and irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulæ of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

Presentation to Miss May Kelly

The Stores and Shipping Department staff of the Canadian General Electric Company called on Miss May Kelly, daughter of the late Ald. Thos. Kelly, at her mother's residence, and presented her with a gold ring set with rubies and pearls. After an enjoyable evening, the committee departed, wishing her many happy New Years, and long life to wear the gift of the donors.

ADDRESS TO THE ELECTORS

OF THE

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

To the Electors of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In compliance with the request of a large number of influential ratepayers, I have decided to offer myself as a candidate for the mayoralty of Peterborough for the year 1907. I assure you that, in aspiring to the position of Mayor, I appreciate the responsibility of being intrusted with the duty of promoting the interests of a city of whose position and progress, I, in common with every other citizen, am justly proud.

Identity of Interests

All my material and business interests and their betterment and advancement are centred in, and bound up with the good government, good standing and progress of Peterborough. Therefore, to put the matter upon no higher ground, if I receive the honour of being elected Mayor, it will be to my interest to do all in my power for the growth, up-building and general welfare of my home City, in which I received my education in the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute, and in which, as remarked, my present and future are centred.

Systematize Municipal Work

As a member of the Council for the past three years I have endeavored to serve the interests of the ratepayers faithfully, and the knowledge gained by service on all the committees of the Council, and, for the past two years, respectively, as chairman of the Manufacturers Committee and Board of Works, and the careful study I have devoted to all municipal questions, give me such experience as will place me in a position to so systematize the operations of the machinery of municipal government as to give the best results for the least expenditure of money.

General Policy

My policy for the coming year can be briefly stated — promoting the interests of the general mass of the ratepayers which is the first consideration — a liberal and prudent attitude of encouragement to industries to establish themselves in Peterborough, and the adoption of a general policy looking to making Peterborough the industrial and commercial centre, and the rallying point for the Midland District and Eastern Ontario. This would involve the provision of accommodation, within reasonable limits, for conventions — gatherings — district, Provincial and Dominion—dealing with the agricultural, dairying and other interests of the district of which Peterborough is the natural centre.

Exemption Conditions

My policy in regard to the improvement of conditions in the City will be a continuance of that I have advocated in Council and which has been adopted in principle by the Council.

In regard to the exemption of, or fixed assessment for, industrial establishments, I have advocated, and still advocate, the adoption of conditions which will require such establishments, not to obstruct local improvements, such as sidewalks or sewers, but, on the contrary, require them to bear their proportion of the cost.

Permanency of Improvements

With regard to pending street extensions, I shall continue the policy, adopted by the Council and put into motion by myself, till Aylmer street as well as George street (which is practically open now) is extended to the southern boundary of the city.

I firmly believe that all expenditure of money upon streets should be, as far as possible, for works of a permanent character. In the building of permanent pavements, I hold that the policy I advocated (which was adopted by the Council,) of building crossings at street intersections at the same time as the general work is done, should be continued.

With a full appreciation of the great injury done to our streets by promiscuous disturbance of the surface, I introduced a bylaw providing for the laying of connections to the street line at the time of sewer construction, thus avoiding the necessity of digging up the streets at frequent intervals. In this connection I will, if elected, use my influence to make financial and executive provision to restore the streets disturbed by sewer, waterworks, gas, and other excavation operations to their original condition, with the least possible delay and at the minimum of expense to the general ratepayers, so that the public for whose use the streets are intended will have the advantage of the best street conditions.

Surface Drainage

In the interests of the business men and citizens generally, I regard the proper care of our streets as of the utmost importance, and as proper surface drainage is one of the easiest and most essential means of maintaining them in good condition, and as this can be effected with comparatively trifling expenditure, I shall, if honoured with your confidence, make it a point to provide the best condition of surface drainage possible.

Municipal Ownership

In regard to the question of municipal ownership and operation of public utilities in general use, I am in favour of the principle, subject to the condition that, as Mayor of the city, if elected, I must be convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that the acquirement and operation of any public utility will be in the interests of the citizens at large and reasonably certain of yielding satisfactory results. This covers my position, in regard to the general principle, as well as to the electric lighting, gas, and power propositions now before the public. The acquirement of such utilities should be done on purely business principles—the city should not, because it is a corporation, pay one cent more or one cent less than their carefully ascertained value.

To Get Good Advice

To this end I would advocate the constitution of an Advisory Board, to consist of representatives of the Trades and Labour Council, of the Manufacturers' Association, of the Board of Trade and of the Water Commissioners, such Advisory Board in consultation with the City Council, or Manufacturers' Committee, to pass upon the details of any proposition before its submission to the people.

In respectfully soliciting your votes and influence, I might say in summary, that in addition to what I have specified, I shall use my best efforts if elected, to so discharge my duties as to promote the best interests and progress of the city, and to creditably and satisfactorily represent the citizens, without distinction of class or interest.

Yours very faithfully

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having been duly nominated a second time as alderman for the progressive City of Peterborough, I once again solicit your vote and influence at the coming elections, January 7th. In the future, as in the past, if elected, I shall always advocate the policy of municipal ownership of all public utilities, strongly believing such principles to be in the best interests of the general public. During the past year I have consistently supported and advanced such measures as would assure to the ratepayers economic civic government, and municipal control of public services. If once more honored with your confidence, such measures will receive from me unqualified support, and I shall make it my business to see that permanent improvements are equally distributed throughout the whole city, and that the expenditure of public monies is commensurate with value received.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year, and relying upon your support at the coming elections, I am,

Yours faithfully.

GEO. BALL

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having served you as alderman for two years, and at the request of a large number of ratepayers, I once again offer myself as a candidate for re-election. It is only fair to assume that my two years' experience on the council board will stand me in good stead in the conduction of the municipal business of this prosperous and progressive city. I have always had the courage of my convictions in the past, and in the future, if re-elected shall only support such measures as I consider to be in the best interests of the community as a whole. I shall always have due regard to economy in all branches of municipal work, and endeavor to make my two years experience as your servant count in your favor when questions of public interest arise.

Trusting that you may once again honor me with your confidence, believe me to remain,

Your obedient servant.

I submit that my business experience subjoined with my desire to serve the interests of Peterborough in the most effective and beneficial manner constitute a reasonable claim upon your confidence and support. I may say that I have made a study of the details of the management of this public utility; and if honored with election by the ratepayers, I shall be my constant aim and endeavor to continue and improve upon, so far as possible, the valuable water service which this city possesses.

Respectfully soliciting your vote and influence, I remain,

Yours faithfully.

A Big Fire in Montreal, Six Firemen are Injured

One Man Was Burned to Death While Looking For His Son and Fire Loss Will Reach Half A Million Dollars.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—The worst fire of the season occurred yesterday morning on St. Antoine and St. James street west, causing a loss close to half a million dollars and causing the death of one man and injuring half a dozen firemen. This was caused by the collapse of one of the brick walls.

Hormidas Gagnon, a carter, who lived in a little house in St. David's lane, close by the burning structure, was the man killed. He was going back to his house to see what detained his son when he was caught under the falling wall. His son got out without being hurt.

The injured firemen were working on a ladder in the same locality when the bricks came down, and they all sustained more or less serious fractures and bruises.

The fire started in the building on St. Antoine street occupied by the Smith Patterson Company, wholesale jewelers, and the Gorham Company, silversmiths. From the rear it spread over to the buildings facing St. James at the corner of Little Craig street, occupied by the Cheesebrough Company, the Lodge Manufacturing Company, and the Standard Clothing Company. A half dozen smaller firms and manufacturers' agents in both structures were also sufferers.

The burned structure is owned by the estate of G. W. Stephens.

The firemen injured were Patrick Hamel, Joseph Dupuis, John Livingstone, Michael McGrath, J. Brosseau, and James Mussett.

There will doubtless be a large crowd present at the senior hockey match, as all arrangements are now completed for the game in the Brock street rink tomorrow night when the Varsity team from Toronto will tussle with the local seniors. The home team is in good shape, and the contest, which promises to be a close and exciting one, should be witnessed by a large audience.

BASKETBALL.

The Harrier Basketball team had a fine trip to Hamilton and Brantford, where they played a match with the senior Y.M.C.A. team at each place. At Hamilton the Harriers were defeated by 68 points to 21, but at Brantford the score was only 55 to 24 against them. The Peterborough team consisted of S. M. Beat, and F. Richardson, backs; R. Dobbin, center, and MacIntosh and W. Richardson, forwards. The boys state that the Hamilton and Brantford teams play a much rougher game than is allowed in Toronto and Peterborough.

HOCKEY.

Last night the first game of the City Hockey League was played on rather soft ice at the Brock street rink between the Strathconas and the Auburns with Geo. Lynch as referee. The goal umpires were respectively Kensie and Vinette, the score standing at the end of the game 4—3 in favor of the Strathconas.

The second game was played between the Charlotte street Guild and the High Lifes, and resulted in a score of 4—0 in favor of the Methodists.

Chamberlain Out of Politics.

New York, Jan. 1.—The Herald has received the following cable despatch from London; — Sir Charles Russell, writing to his own paper, the Liverpool Daily Post, on the condition of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain says; —It is high time that all the rubbish sent out about his convalescence was ignored. It is supplied by the chief votaries of tariff reform, and is simply so much dust thrown in the eyes of that large section of the public not in the know.'

"Mr. Chamberlain may live twenty years All hope he will, but so far as any political work is concerned, he is already as dead as though he were buried Whether tariff reform can survive him is doubtful."

Japs in Mexico.

City of Mexico, Jan. 1.—A despatch to the Herald from Guadalajara says that the migration of Japanese brought to this country under contract to work on the Manzanillo extension of the Mexican Central Railroad continues.

According to the correspondent, 150 of these men have arrived in Guadalajara and purchased tickets for El Paso.

The story puts an entirely new version on the affair, for it says that most of the men are well supplied with money, and are not laborers. Among their number are professional men, skilled artisans, and students. According to the correspondent, it is the belief of the railroad contractors that these men men came to Mexico with the sole of getting transportation to the United States. On January 20, a steamer from Japan, carrying 1,100 bona fide laborers is expected to arrive, and the railroad men hope will relieve the stringency in the labor market.

Says Coal Company Is Unreasonable

Mr Plummer Thinks Steel Company Must Win Eight in the Courts.

Montreal, Jan. 1.—J. H. Plummer, president of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, in an interview states that he would like to see the two corporations working harmoniously together to attain a common end, and that it is only natural that the difficulties should be permanently settled. Regarding rumors of final settlement he stated that the Steel Company would like to come to an amicable settlement, but that the Coal Company was not reasonable and that it was unlikely that any settlement would be reached until the Steel Company won in the courts. He said that the plant at Sydney was working steadily and that the output was sold for practically a year.

Blames Gladstone's Home Rule Frenzy

London, Jan. 3.—The Spectator publishes the following communication from Goldwin Smith:

"Gladstone's Home Rule frenzy seems to have set the separatist spirit at work in Scotland and Wales as well as in Ireland. Lord Rosebery, if he is rightly reported, proposes should the quarters of the Scots Greys be changed, to propose the question of the union between Scotland and England. A curious attitude surely is this of a nation striving to incorporate within itself imperially communities all over the globe, and at the same time dallying with various proposals for its dissolution. Is it certain that Scotland, had she remained separate from England, would ever have been perfectly united to herself? What progress had Lowland and Teutonic Scotland made in the incorporation of the Celtic highlands, aliens to her in race, language, character, and political customs? As to Wales, would it be possible to show that she ever was the seat of united nationality and settled government before her incorporation with England?

"I am, Sir, &c.,

The City Aldermen Seeking Re-Election

Of the 17 candidates for aldermen, there should be plenty of room for a re-election of the old members of the aldermanic board, Ald. Graham having unfortunately dropped out and thus leaving but seven of his colleagues in the field. This casts no reflection whatever on the new candidates, as good men of last year's experience must necessarily be desirable candidates, being in touch with the routine work and unfinished business. The old members seeking reelection are;

Ald. Johnston.
Ald McIntyre.
Ald. Ball.
Ald Tovey.
Ald Elliott.
Ald Wilson.
Ald. Duncan.

The platform of all these men should be too well known to need extended reference.

ALD. JOHNSTON.

Says he is not in the field forhonor, recognizing the great responsibility resting upon a man of extended municipal experience not only in the city council, but also in that of Ashburnham some years ago. Then this year will be an important one in the matter of acquiring new industries. He believes in the day labor system for public works in the construction of an advisory board on big projects, the new fire hall for instance. He advocates a referendum being taken on such measures as the Collegiate Institute, the establishment of a permit system for buildings, which would entail no expense to the city, and the appointment of one tenant officer. He thinks that the custom of sending deputations to important measures measures have proved of great advantage in furnishing important information for the council's guidance, and in securing concessions, such as postal delivery, which could not be otherwise gained. He is and always has been a friend of the workman, and advocates the provision of a shelter and public stand for workers, to their accommodation and the public's convenience. He will use his best efforts to secure permanent cement crossings on all streets.

ALD. McINTYRE.

In seeking a third term, his policy is similar to that of Ald. Johnston, and he is also a strong advocate of the day labor system, whenever it is considerable practicable. His policy is that the city engineer tender on all contracts, and every time his tender is the lowest, the work is to be done by day labor. Ald. McIntyre states that in his opinion this is the only fair way. It assures to the ratepayers that they will not have to pay a cent more for their local improvements than is absolutely necessary. It also gives the contractors in the city an opportunity to make a fair living, and it will not drive them out of the city to take contracts. He advocates municipal ownership, when such can be operated at a profit and to the benefit of the community.

Ald. McIntyre last year fathered the milk bylaw, a popular measure with the community in general. This bylaw is now in force. Like Ald. Johnston, he is a friend of workingmen.

ALD. BALL AND TOVEY.

Both these gentlemen favor municipal ownership whenever compatable with public interests, and both have the courage of their convictions at any and all times. They have always advanced economic measures for civic government.

ALD. GEO ELLIOTT.

This gentleman has had considerable municipal experience in the township of Smith, and has served the city one year on its aldermanic board. He has proved extremely energetic, favors municipal ownership, where advantageous to the general ratepayer, both financially and in the way of service, and it is whispered that he will be one of the council's chairmen next year.

ALD. DUNCAN AND WILSON.

Have both manifested great and acceptable interest in the aldermanic board, supporting and advancing progressive and economic measures in municipal government. The former has served the public two years and the latter one year. Their experiences would certainly stand themselves and their fellow citizens in good stead another year.

Departed Orangeman's Portrait Was Placed

Fitting Tribute to Memory of Late Bro. Robt. Weir.

A pleasing ceremony took place in Loyal Orange Lodge No. 80, on Wednesday evening, when in accordance with a special summons issued the members, with W. Bro. Jos. Batten, P.C.M., the chair assisted by Bro. R. Wilson, P.D.M., a life-sized portrait of the late P.G.M., the revered Bro. Robt. Weir was unveiled. In addition to the prominent officers mentioned there were present: Bro. G. Bartley, director of ceremonies; Bro. W. H. G. Armstrong, county secretary; Cbl. W. J. Miller, W. Bros. Wyley, deputy master, J. Gainside, E. J. Clarke, N. Horsley, J. Cunningham, J. Chown, R. Graham, and others.

Before W. Bro. Bartley unveiled the portrait, addresses were delivered by several of the brethren. Chairman Batten said they had met to pay a tribute to the memory of one whom had lived up to the constitution and principles of the Order, one whose memory would always be cherished and revered by the Orangemen of Canada. W. Bro. Robt. Wilson, P.D.M.I., said he had the most pleasant recollections of their late brother. W. H. G. Armstrong, county secretary, referred to the late brother as an able advisor on many matters, and that not only was Bro. Weir looked upon as such locally but in the Grand Lodge of British America. Col. W. J. Miller, P.W. Master, had known the late brother for a great many years and had always found him as one who could be held up to the younger members as an example of the principles of the Orange Association in public and private life.

Bro. Gainside found Bro. Weir a most active worker in all things in connection with the Order.

E. J. Clarke, U. Hawley, J. Cunningham, J. White also referred to the late brother in similar terms.

W. Bro. Sidney B. Weir, past district master was present and returned thanks on behalf of the family for the tribute paid to the memory of his father.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

A local man, by name Kearns, was yesterday assessed in the good round sum of $20. Kearns was charged with having assaulted a young woman working in a local hotel, by striking her on the face, on Saturday, Dec. 29th. Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for the prisoner, and pleaded guilty According to the evidence, Kearns had been trying to force his company upon her. Last Saturday whilst she was walking along the streets, Kearns followed her and used abusive language. He knocked a paper she carried out of her hand, and struck her in the face, and had previously tried to force his company upon her and called her names. Mr. McWilliams pleaded for leniency as prisoner was working steadily now, and at the time of the assault was probably a little the worst of liquor.

The magistrate considered it a very serious charge, and said he first thought of sending him to the Central Prison but he would not imprison him this time. He fined him $20, to be paid in ten days.

Man Need Not Die Says French Scientist

New York, Jan. 1.—The Sun has received the following cable despatch from Paris:—"Provided this electrical cleansing is followed by auxiliary treatment in expelling from our bodies the morbid waste caused by electricity, there is no longer any internal reason for growing old or even dying."

This is the promise held out by the Matin after a lengthy explanation of Prof. d'Arsonval's high frequency current electric treatment. The discoverer, who is one of the most eminent members of the Academy of Sciences, says the majority of people die of arterio sclerosis. He uses a sphygmometer to measure the tension of the blood in the arteries. If the mercury of the instrument marks fifteen or sixteen centimetres it shows a normal tension. If the tension is higher or lower Prof. d'Arsonval states that six baths of the high frequency current will bring it to the normal, where it will remain, all danger of arterio sclerosis being removed.

These baths of five to ten minutes each may be taken three times a week. They give the patient absolutely no sensation. It only remains to find a method of checkmating microbes from without, and the Matin believes the world will possess the means of perpetual health.

COLD PEOPLE

Improper Food Makes Poor Circulation.

The food that produces energy, gives natural warmth while it strengthens the invalid and leads back to health and happiness.

There's no stimulant that can take the place of proper, fully digested food—that's Grape-Nuts.

"I am so grateful," writes a N. Y. lady, "for the good done me by Grape-Nuts, that I feel I ought to write and thank you.

"Ever since the coming of my baby I have had such poor circulation it seemed as though I never could get warm.

"Nothing I ate agreed with me and I had little nourishment for baby. Finally my husband said, 'Why not try Grape-Nuts? I see it has done a good deal for some people.'

"'Oh, I am sick and tired of hearing about those things,' I answered, 'it might benefit some people, but not me.' But I got worse all the time. One day my husband brought home a package of Grape-Nuts and asked me to try it.

"I did so and that's why I am so thankful now. The first night I tried it I slept soundly all night and in the morning felt warm and comfortable. I tried it again and began to develop plenty of milk for the baby. I have kept on this food and am now a well woman.

"I am giving baby a little of the Grape-Nuts every day, and he is growing wonderfully. When I am tired out some night by being kept awake, I find that Grape-Nuts in the morning refreshes me as though I had had a good night's sleep and I feel able to do a good day's work.

"It has done so much for me I want to encourage mothers to use it themselves and give it to their babies. We feel it was a godsend to us."

Alderman McWilliams Versus Alderman Hicks

Probably The Two Youngest Candidates That Ever Contested a Mayoralty Election in Peterborough.

Interest in the mayoralty campaign grows apace as the time draws night for the electorate to cast their ballots, and much speculation is rife as to which of the two young candidates will have the pleasing duty on January 8th of thanking their supporters for carrying him to victory.

A week or more ago public opinion seemed to favor Ald. Robert Hicks, while today the tables seemed to have been turned in the interests of Ald. Roland McWilliams. However, both candidates are putting up a fair and even friendly fight, and any personalities that may be current do not emanate from either. This is an instance in which two mayoralty candidates have both been well trained for the position they are seeking, and have now stripped and entered the public arena in a decisive struggle for supremacy. Let there be no undue or dishonorable interference, but rather let fair play prevail.

JAS. KENDRY'S POSITION.

Jas Kendry, ex-M.P., has taken a public stand against Ald. Robert Hicks, as evidenced in the following letter;—

Sir,—Some friends of Mr. Hicks are making an attack upon me apparently with his knowledge and consent, which is wholly without foundation, and base as the man who makes it. Any say that I am opposing Hicks because he did not or would not consent of appeal favorable to the acquiring by the city of the Auburn power of auburn Auburn power from the Auburn Company, of which I am president. This is a lie. I never in any time spoke to either Hicks or McWilliams concerning the Auburn power or to any of the members of the council. My reasons for supporting McWilliams and not Hicks are these;—Hicks as chairman of the Board of Works closed the Smith street bridge and caused it to go down. He declared that the bridge at the Cedar dam should be used and that the Smith street bridge, in which I am co-surety for the sheriff, be closed. This was an unexpected and unjustifiable blow. To all the householders on the north ward, and circle the ten of them, it meant loss. To the company it meant a heavy loss. All sorts of means were resorted to in order to get him to reconsider the question, but he was adamant to the representations of the people and of the press. It was a matter of great astonishment to everybody that such a high-handed action should have been taken. At last I went to the council and put my views before them so cogently that the bridge was reopened and at the paltry expense of six hundred dollars for repairs. This, however, will serve only for a short time. We must have another bridge there. Would any same man vote for Hicks in the face of this? My other reasons are that I believe McWilliams is a better man from every point of view. McWilliams is not tied up by his combine with local corporations for coal and can give an independent administration which, of course, could not be expected of Hicks. Mr. McWilliams, moreover, is not a member of any trust or combine. With regard to my refusal to let Mr. Hicks go through the mills, I may say that it was because I consider he did not treat me fairly in a business deal. Altogether my experience with Mr. Hicks has not been satisfactory and I want nothing more to do with him. Further I should not have revealed my sentiments in this way if it had not been for the contemptuous stand taken by him and his friends in this matter against me. He'll get a dose from the people north of Dublin street that will surprise him on the evening of January 7th.

JAS. KENDRY.

In all fairness to Ald. Hicks, from following the council's proceedings closely last year, we can honestly say that neither Ald. Hicks or the Board of Works had any deliberate policy of closing Smith street bridge good. In fact their intention was to furnish a new steel structure; but unfortunate delay in securing appropriate cost on such a bridge, followed later by delays, when this scheme was abandoned, in getting timber and in chance to repair the old structure, resulted in an interference by northenders that the Board of Works had no interest in the requirements of wards four. Again, later on the whole council decided that as the Smith street bridge could be put in repair for a couple of years at a cost much less than the interest and sinking fund on the $35,000 in debentures required for a new structure, it would be advisable in the face of so much money being asked for in bylaws this year to have the question of a new bridge at Smith St., in abeyance, thus on advice of Chairman Ald. Hicks, and by consent of the council, the bylaw was withdrawn, and arrangements made to have the bridge repaired this winter when the river is frozen over.

This is the whole matter in a nutshell. Ald. Hicks may have erred in judgment on this matter of not, just as the electorate think, but he had no axe to grind with ward four in the matter of Smith street bridge.

As to day labor, Ald. Hicks as chairman of the Board of Works, always advocated such a policy when the city engineer's tender for sewers was lower than that of any contractor. This seems to have been a fair and advantageous policy to the city and one in force at Toronto. The work was done at the lowest price, whether by day labor or contract, the same number of men employed, and wages were not by any means low the past year.

ROLAND F. McWILLIAMS.

Was born and brought up in Peterborough, and since graduating barrister-at-law has manifested deep and active interest in the city of his birth. A young man of an aspiring character, of liberal education, ability, coupled with considerable experience on the aldermanic board, he appears to come as a favorite in the mayoralty race. He is conducting a clean campaign, and is sufficiently energetic, should he be elected to leave no stone unturned to assure to the city of Peterborough a banner year for 1907 in the way of municipal progress. If has proved an indefatigable alderman as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee, and his legal acumen has been highly respected by his colleagues in the aldermanic board. He has confidence in the result of the election, but should he not be returned, he will be one of the first to shake hands with his opponent and congratulate him upon his success. His policy is thoroughly outlined in his address.

STAND ON THEIR MERITS.

Both Ald. Hicks and Ald. McWilliams are appealing to their fellow citizens on their merits and their records as city fathers and both agreed to enter into a fair and clean campaign. Both are young men, both are full of energy and ambition, and both are willing to abide the shock of public opinion like two friendly opponents, each ready to congratulate the other on the night of the 7th of January.

BOOM IN WINTER FISHING

Many Parties at Work on the Lakes Round Prince Albert, Sask.

Prince Albert, Sask., January 3.—It is expected that fully 600 tons of fish will be taken from the lakes in the district immediately to the north of Prince Albert this winter. Never before has there been such activity in this industry. The Veteran Trading Company is fishing Trout Lake, which lies north-east of Montreal Lake and 130 miles from Prince Albert; Campbell and Co. is fishing on the same lake; Walsh and Gilmor are fishing Little Trout Lake; Hugh Armstrong and Pollock and Vance are fishing Big Trout and Deer Lakes; Thompson Bros. are fishing in several lakes. The Veteran Trading Co. has opened up a trail to Montreal Lake, which was first opened up by J. E. Sinclair in 1895 and had not been used since that time.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

"NO TROUBLE"
To change from Coffee to Postum

"Postum has done a world of good for me," writes an Illinois man. "I've had indigestion nearly all my life, but never dreamed coffee was the cause of my trouble until last Spring I got so bad I was in misery all the time.

"A coffee drinker for 30 years, it irritated my stomach and nerves, yet I was just crazy for it. After drinking it with my meals, I would leave the table, go out and lose my meal and the coffee too. Then I'd be as hungry as ever.

"A friend advised me to quit coffee and use Postum—said it cured him. Since taking his advice I retain my food and get all the good out of it, and don't have those awful hungry spells.

"I changed from coffee to Postum without any trouble whatever, felt better from the first day I drank it. I am well now and give the credit to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

HEALTH FOR WOMEN

Mrs. Emma Daigle, of Moncton, N. B. Sends an Open Letter to All Sufferers.

Most women are tired when they wake up. Housework drags along with great difficulty. Nervousness is always present, headaches seldom depart, tears are ever ready to flow,

But there is a cure, a true specific for women's ills that restored a prominent lady in Moncton, Mrs. Daigle, who tells the following experience:

"About a year ago I had a serious sickness, sort of a general breakdown. My digestion failed entirely and I was able to eat but very little. I took violent stomach pains and suffered terribly from headaches. My doctor said it was 'nerve exhaustion' and I might never be well. My troubles increased, for as I grew weaker I became subject to neuralgia and rheumatism. Sleep finally forsook me and I almost lost heart. Different medicines didn't help. Doctors couldn't do me any good. I was desperate when I heard of Ferrozone. The first box convinced me it was just what I needed. It toned up my stomach, gave me a splendid appetite and then my recovery seemed easier. Ferrozone increased my weight several pounds, has restored my nerves, gave me a good color and strength such as I never had before. For the weak and sickly I can truthfully recommend Ferrozone." (Signed) Emma Daigle.

REMEMBER: No mere stimulant or alcoholic concoction can take the place of the nerve and blood nourishment contained in Ferrozone. This true tonic always does what is claimed for it. Sold everywhere in 50c. boxes or six for $2.50. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn, U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 5 1907

NATURE AND MAN IN 1906

The year 1906 was, at its close, characterized in these columns as "a year of signs and portents," a year of "spade work," of laying the foundations for substantial achievements and improvements. As one bids farewell to 1906 and reflects on its record, the dominant thought, perhaps, is that a twelvemonth is, after all, a very short period for tendencies to define themselves clearly and for ideas and movements to make much headway. Lasting results are the product of slow evolution, alike in nature at large and in social and human affairs.

Yet the year just ended has unquestionably been a year of progress, of moral, social and political gain. It has been a year of hard work, of intense mental and spiritual, as well as of physical, activity. Here in Canada we have enjoyed unprecedented material prosperity, but that has not prevented the nation from thinking earnestly about industrial, ethical and social problems, from attacking abuses and evils making for social discord and unnecessary inequality and suffering, and from pondering anxiously the proper solutions of our vital problems.

And not only have we studied such questions as taxation, control of corporations, elimination of graft and corruption, purifying our politics, increasing the efficiency of our governing bodies, and so on, but we have secured excellent legislation of great importance, in which the new spirit, the new conceptions of national duty and responsibility, are definitely expressed.

In Europe, likewise, the year has been one of steady, if rather slow, advance. Democracy has added to its conquests in Russia, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Sweden and elsewhere. In the first-named country reaction was gravely threatened early in the year, but the developments since have been distinctly reassuring. In Germany better suffrage laws are promised, while in Austria and Hungary practically universal sufffrage is about to be granted. Everywhere the paramount question is that of industrial and social reform as exemplified in old-age or workmen's pension bills, arbitration bills, measures for the evil of unemployment, better housing, insurance against industrial accidents, etc.

Nature has been "catastrophic" and violent in 1906, which has, in fact, been a year of disasters—of earthquakes, volcanic disturbances and eruptions, devastating cyclones and storms and floods. These disasters have caused famine and distress in some quarters of the earth, but the quickened conscience of man has prompted generous activity for the relief of the victims of accident and misfortune.

Let us hope that nature will be gentler in 1907, and man even more strenuous and persistent in the struggle for constructive reform and social righteousness.

Important Vote in North Monaghan

Candidates for Reeve and Township Councillors

The municipal elections in North Monaghan this year are of unusual interest and importance to that flourishing township, as not only have the electors to choose their governing body but to settle taxation matters of vital importance.

The candidates for the Reeveship, Messrs. John Brown and John Holmes, are both strong men. Those in the field for Councillors are Messrs. Harry Clark, Robt. A. Dobbin, W. G. Howden, Geo. H. May, Jas. Morrow, Robt. Waterman, and Thos. D. Young.

Of almost equal importance to the selectoin of the Council are the two bylaws regarding fixed assessment on two new industries. The Brinton Carpet Company is asking for a fixed assessment at $10,000 for a period of ten years, and the Sandstone Brick Company for a fixed assessmernt at $3,000 for a similar period,

There seems to be every imaginable reason why the electors should turn out to a man and support both of these bylaws, whilst not a real reason exists to the contrary. To begin with, the property on which the carpet factory is locating has been assessed at only $6,000, whilst on half the same property the company is willing to have an assessment of double this amount. Then the very fact of this important industry locating where it has will be the direct means of greatly increasing the value of surrounding property for residential and other purposes. The same argument applies to the Sandstone Brick Company's bylaw.

There is every reason to anticipate the carrying of both of these bylaws by sweeping majorities.

Hard to Locate Boundary on Lakes

U. S. Hydrographic Chart Differs Greatly From British Admiralty Chart—A Faulty Map.

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 1.—Secretary W Edward Wilson of the American section of the International Waterways Commission has received the second progress report of the Commission Referring to the present status of the Lake Erie boundary the report says:

"It has been found that the boundary line as laid down in the United States Hydrographic Chart differs widely from the British Admiralty chart. They both derive their authority from the Treaty of Ghent. The map on file with the treaty is so inaccurate that no two persons probably would transfer the boundary line thereon to a modern chart in the same way. It is, in fact, worthless for its purpose.

Reference is made to the poaching disputes that have arisen between American fishermen and the Canadian inspectors owing to the lack of a fixed boundary line.

ASSASINATE ROOSEVELT!

Japanese in California Publish an Inflammatory Appeal.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 31.—Secret service agents here had their attention called to an inflammatory paper published in Berkeley by Japanese, entitled "The Revolution," in which the assassination of Mikado, President Roosevelt and others in authority is advocated in plain language.

Marked copies of the paper were sent through the mail to the board of education in this city. The paper was mailed in Berkeley.

It is printed in both Japanese and English. The articles advocating assassination are in English.

Peary's Ship Hoodooed.

New York, December 31.—Ever since her return from the Arctic misfortune seems to have attended Commander Peary's steamer Roosevelt. On her way to her present anchorage off West Forty-fourth street on Christmas Day, she ran afoul of the ferryboat Atlantic. Today fifteen would-be visitors to her narrowly escaped death when their launch which had started for the ship, was caught by ice-floes and jammed against the ferry rack at West Forty-second street. The ice stove a hole in the boat, and she began to fill. The water was almost up to the knees of the boat's occupants when a tug saved the party.

Fitzpatrick to Resign.

Ottawa, Jan. 1.—It is rumored here that the King's Birthday honors will include a knighthood for Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Worse Than Leprosy.

St. Louis, January 1.—Measures for combating an incurable disease, prevalent among the natives of Guam, which usually attacks and mutilates the face and in numerous instances the limbs, and which is described by medical men of the army and navy as being more frightful than leprosy, are under serious consideration by department officials, says a Manila correspondent.

The disease is known as "gangosa," is contagious, and has existed on the islands since 1823.

At present there are about 300 cases on the island, which has a population of about 9,000.

DARREL of THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER,

Author of "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY

ing, weary, sore. But see her foot lift! You can't kill the pride of the Barbary. She falters. Her driver lashes her over the head. Trove is running toward her. He climbs a front wheel, and down comes the driver. In a minute Trove has her by the bit. He calls her by name—Phyllis! The slim ears begin to move. She nickers. God, sir, she is trying to see him. One eye is bleeding, the other blind. His arms go round her neck, sir, and he hides his face in her mane. That mare you ride—she is the granddaughter of Phyllis. I'd as soon think of selling my wife. Really, sir, Darrel was right. God 'll mind the look of your horses."

So spake an old man sitting in the firelight.

"Trove went home with the mare," he continued. "She recovered the sight of one eye and had a box stall and the brook pasture—you know, that one by the beech grove. He got home the day before Christmas. Polly met him at the depot, a charming lady, sir, and a child of three was with her, a little girl, dark eyes and flaxen curly hair. You remember Beryl? Eyes like her mother's.

"I was there at the depot that day. Well, it looked as if they were still in their honeymoon.

"'Dear little wife!' said Trove as he kissed Polly. Then he took the child in his arms, and I went to dinner with them. They lived half a mile or so out of Hillsborough.

"'Hello!' said Trove as we entered. 'Here's a merry Christmas!'

"Polly had trimmed the house. There against the wall was a tapering fir tree, hung with tinsel and popcorn. All around the room were green branches of holly and hemlock.

"'I'm glad you found Phyllis,' said she.

"'Poor Phyllis!' he answered. 'They broke her down with hard work and sold her. She'll be here tomorrow.'

"'You saw Darrel on the way?'

"'Yes, and he is the same miracle of happiness. I think he will soon be free. Leblanc is there in prison, convicted of a crime in Whitehall. As I expected, there is a red mark on the back of his left hand. Day after tomorrow we go again to Dannemora. Sweetheart, I hurried home to see you.'

"Night came, dark and stormy, with snow in the west wind. They were sitting there by the Christmas tree, all bright with candles—Polly, Trove and the little child. They were talking of old times. They heard a rap at the door. Trove flung it open. He spoke a word of surprise. There was the old Santa Claus of Cedar hill; upon my word, sir, the very one. He entered, shaking his great coat, his beard full of snow. He let down his sack there by the lighted tree. He beckoned to the little one.

"'Go and see him. It is old Santa Claus,' said Polly, her voice trembling as she led the child.

"Then quickly she took the hand of her husband.

"'He is your father,' she whispered.

"A moment they stood with hearts full looking at Santa Claus and the child. That little one had her arms about a knee and, dumb with great wonder, gazed up at him. There was a timid appeal in her sweet face.

"The man did not move. He was looking down at the child. In a moment

"Oh, my father, speak to me!"

she began to prattle and tug at him. They saw his knees bend a bit. Ah, sir, it seemed as if the baby were pulling him down. He gently pushed the child away. They heard a little cry, a kind of a wailing 'Oh-o-o,' like that you hear in the chimney. Then, sir, down he went in his tracks, a quivering little heap, and lay there at the foot of the tree. Polly and Trove were bending over him. Cap and wig had fallen from his head. He was an old man.

"'Father!' Trove whispered, touching the long white hair. 'Oh, my father, speak to me! Let me—let me see your face.'

"Slowly—slowly the old man rose, Trove helping him, and put on his cap. Then, sir, he took a step back and stood straight as a king. He waved them away with his hand.

"'Nay, boy, remember,' he whispered. 'Ye were to let him pass.' And then he started for the door.

"Trove went before him and stood against it.

"'Hear me, boy; 'tis better that ye let him sleep until the trumpet calls an' ye both stand with all the quick an' the dead.'

"'No, I have waited long, and I love—I love him,' Trove answered.

"Those fair young people knelt beside the old man, clinging to his hands. The good saint was crying.

"'I came not here to bring shame,' said he pathetically.

"'We honor and with all our souls we love you,' Trove answered.

"'Who shall stand before it?' said the old man. 'Behold—behold how love hath raised the dead!' He flung off his cap and beard.

"'If ye will have it so, know ye that I, Roderick Darrel, am thy father.'"

* * * * * * * *

"Now, sir, you may go. I wish ye merry Christmas!" said that old man of the hills.

But the other tarried, thoughtfully puffing his pipe.

"And the father was not dead?"

"'Twas only the living death," said the old man, now lighting a lantern. "You know that grave in a poem of Sidney Trove:

"It has neither sod nor stone;
It has neither dust nor bone.

He planned to be as one dead to the world."

"And the other man of mystery, who was he?"

"Some child of misfortune. He was befriended by the tinker and did errands for him."

"He took the money to Trove that night the latter slept in the woods?"

"And, for Darrel, returned to Thompson his own with usury. Thompson was the chief creditor."

"With usury?"

"Yes. For years it lay under the bed of Darrel. By and by he put the money in a savings bank, all but a few dollars."

"And why did he wait so long before returning it?"

"He tried to be rid of the money, but was unable to find Thompson. And Trove, he lived to repay every creditor. Ah, sir, he was a man of a thousand."

"That story of Darrel's in the little shop—I see—it was fact in a setting of fiction."

"That's all it pretended to be," said the old man of the hills.

"One more query," said the other. He was now mounted. "I know Darrel went to prison for the sake of the boy, but did some one set him free?"

"His own character. Leblanc came to love him, like the other prisoners, and, sir, he confessed. I declare, it's daylight now, and here I am with the lantern! Goodby, and merry Christmas!"

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,620 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

If you want to invest in a MINE with vast possibilities, let us hear from you at once and we will send detailed information.

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—Letter heads and business envelopes, blank or printed to order on short notice. Times Printing Co.

—Ald. McIntyre, one of the aldermanic candidates, is strongly in favor of placing permanent crossings all over the city.

—Yesterday a local bonifacе was somewhat startled when his Maltese cat, a feline of mature years, brought into his house a pure white Albino kitten.

—It was generally said throughout the city yesterday that Mr. Arthur Stevenson's accurate and deep knowledge of light and power conditions would be of great advantage to the city should he be elected, when the matter of purchase arises, as it presumably will.

Plucky Stoppage of a Run-away

Yesterday afternoon about 3.45 a most exciting attempt at a runaway, checked by pluck and muscle was in evidence on Charlotte St.

It seems that Mr. James Thorp, an elderly Englishman, who is, we understand, employed at Mr. H. Kendry's chicken ranch, in North Monaghan, just south of the city limits; started with a horse and cutter, from the White House, to drive home. Just as he drove in front of the Snowden House, a passing street car frightened his horse.

The horse at once began to get fractious and to run away. Mr. Booth, at once used the lines to advantage and pulled up the frightened animal. The horse whilst trying to wheel about upset the cutter, throwing Mr. Booth out into the water and slush covered road. He pluckily held on to the ribbons, and was dragged round and round in the wet, until several men ran out, and grabbed the horse's bridle. When Mr. Booth arose water and filth from the street streamed out of his coat sleeves and trouser legs. No damage was done beyond a few bruises and a thorough vetting. Mr. Frank White drove Mr. Booth home.

Mr. Frank Adams in Office

Mr. Frank Adams, for many years the trusted and efficient secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co., yesterday took office as city treasurer and collector for the waterworks, in place of Mr. Felix Brownscombe, resigned. Mr. Adams, is a most capable man, and will shortly be settled in his new position, in the meantime he is overhauling the papers and books and getting himself acquainted with the work.

Another Nomination for Lakefield

It seemed as though the Lakefield village council had been elected by acclamation. The Times yesterday however was notified that of the four councillors nominated, and thus elected by acclamation, two have withdrawn. This will necessitate a further nomination.

The Lakefield Reeveship.

Although Messrs. F. J. Moore, Dr. J. A. Burgess, A. J. Kidd, E. A. Tanner, and J. W. Cornish, were nominated for the Lakefield reeveship, by resignation of two of the candidates, the conflict has narrowed down to a contest between last year's reeve and Dr. Burgess.

Good Debate at Y.M.C.A.

The first meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Literary and Debating Society, for 1907, was most successful. The attendance was unusually large. The debate was in the form of a mock parliament, the subject being, "Resolved, That we talk too much." Mr. Ben Simpson, of the Hamilton Collegiate Institute, acted as critic, and the affirmative won out.

Mr. E. A. Peck Gives Good Address

Last night Mr. E. A. Peck, of the well known legal firm of Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr, delivered a most polished and well delivered address before the Young Conservative Club, in their elegantly furnished and commodious rooms. The occasion was the fortnightly smoker. The attendance was very large, and Mr. Peck held all present deeply interested from his opening remarks until the end of his address. He took as his subject "William Pitt, Earl of Chatham," and displayed a deep knowledge of his subject and the ability to treat it in a most interesting manner. In addition to the lecture a splendid instrumental and vocal musical program was rendered.

New Industry May Locate Here.

It now looks as though still another gem is to be added to the already brilliant corona of Peterborough's industries. Mr. W. F. Babcock, of Brantford, a practical man in his line of business, has been in the city looking for a location. Mr. Babcock is proprietor of the Brantford Carpet Cleaning and Rug Industry.

It is probable that local capitalists may become associated with him in the enterprise. He looks upon Peterborough as a very favorable field for location. The proposed new industry is that of cleaning carpets by electricity in a huge revolving drum, which thoroughly cleans carpets, rugs, etc., without injury to the fabric.

Mr. A. Stevenson is Well Recommended

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—I am much pleased to see that Mr. Arthur Stevenson has consented to run for the council. Now, Mr. Stevenson is too well known to the citizens of Peterborough to require me or any one else to throw boquets at him.

There is one matter however, in connection with his candidature that should be borne in mind by every citizen of Peterborough.

As is well known Mr. Stevenson was for many years manager of the Peterborough Light & Power Company. Mr. Stevenson was not merely a dude figure-head as are many in similar positions with large companies. This gentleman knows the practical details of every branch of either the electric light or gas branches of this company.

It is quite to be supposed that this year the matter of buying out the electric light and gas departments of the above company. With Mr. Stevenson in the council his practical knowledge of these matters will undoubtedly save the city thousands of dollars.

Again Mr. Stevenson is thoroughly posted in the matter of water power and dams from many years experience. Should the city ever consider buying any or one of the dams on the Otonabee, his knowledge will be of vast gain to the city. Furthe above reasons I am going to vote for Mr. Stevenson.

Yours truly,
CITY INTERESTS.

Sewerage Wanted in the North Ward

Residents in the north end of the city are working hard to carry what seems a most necessary bylaw. Several of them, within the past few days had called at The Times office in regard to the trunk sewer, running or to run, from Aylmer St. to Smith street, on the G.T.R. property. It seems that nearly one hundred houses cannot get sewerage connection until this trunk sewer is completed. As this is a matter affecting not only those directly benefited, but concerns the health of the whole city, it is altogether likely this sewerage question will receive favorable recognition.

C.P.R. HEADING FOR CHICAGO

Making Arrangements to Enter Sarnia and Connect With P.M.

Sarnia, January 2.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is serious in its intentions to extending its line to Sarnia is no longer questioned by those well informed in railroad circles. The past week a number of the road's engineering staff visited here looking over several entrances to the city and giving special attention to the mode of reaching the water front. Options have been obtained on some very desirable property, with ample wharf conveniences. The real object of coming here is thought to be to reach Port Huron and effect traffic arrangements with the Pere Marquette system, for the purpose of getting a direct line into Chicago. By securing an entry here it could become a keen competitor for the American-Canadian traffic, and be on a more even footing with the Grand Trunk. The Pere Marquette, being in the hands of a receiver, the ultimate result of the plan might be the acquiring of this system by the C. P. R.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach, (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels, (as mucous [illegible]), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. [illegible] affect the glands in the throat, as in scrofulous enlargements, or tumors, or in other glandular affections, or in any blood-taint, as in scrofula, "Golden Medical Discovery" is a powerful blood-purifier, and tonic and nervine.

"Favorite Prescription" is the one medicine for [illegible] weaknesses, derangements, irregularities incident to [illegible] sex. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulas of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glycerine extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Coal Prices Compared

Yesterday to settle a wager that was made regarding the price of coal in this city as compared with other specified towns, a local man wired the several places. The result was that telegraphic replies denoted that of seven places wired to, Lindsay was, taking comparitive freight rates into consideration, the only place where coal sells cheaper than here, and this necessary commodity there sells at five cents per ton cheaper than in Peterborough. The money was paid over.

W. H. MOORE

Is a candidate for the office of Water Commissioner, and respectfully solicits the votes of the Electors.

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having served you as alderman for two years, and at the request of a large number of ratepayers, I once again offer myself as a candidate for re-election. It is only fair to assume that my two years' experience on the council board will stand me in good stead in the conduction of the municipal business of this prosperous and progressive city. I have always had the courage of my convictions in the past, and in the future, if re-elected shall only support such measures as I consider to be in the best interests of the community as a whole. I shall always have due regard to economy in all branches of municipal work, and endeavor to make my two years experience as your servant count in your favor when questions of public interest arise.

Trusting that you may once again honor me with your confidence, believe me to remain,

Your obedient servant,
GEO. H. DUNCAN

CARD TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen,—After having served as your representative in the city council for the past year, I again appeal to your support. I have endeavored in the year just ended to serve the public interests without other considerations than the promotion of the welfare of the ratepayers. As I have done in the past I will do again, if honored with your confidence. Every good measure promising to build up and advance Peterborough will have my hearty support.

Respectfully yours,

CARD TO THE ELECTORS!

CEO. J. TOVEY
For Alderman

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been once again nominated as your representative on the Aldermanic Board for the year 1907, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence at the coming elections. In the future as in the past if elected, I shall always advocate an economical civic government as consistent with public needs, and devote my services in the interests of the whole community. I shall support all measures leading to municipal ownership of public utilities, providing the operation of the same will assure to the citizens maximum results at a minimum expenditure of public monies, and at the same time furnish sufficient surplus revenue to pay off the capital invested. I am strongly in favor of this city acquiring its own electric power, in which event Peterborough will be in a position to guarantee new industries all the power they need at the lowest possible price.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year, I remain,

Your obedient servant,
GEO. J. TOVEY

—FOR—
WATER COMMISSIONER
ADDRESS OF
Mr. E. F. MASON
A Candidate, to the Ratepayers:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I respectfully offer my services to the ratepayers of the city, and am a candidate for election by you to the position of Water Commissioner, now vacant. I do this at the urgent request of many ratepayers, who are good enough to say that my services as Alderman and experience on the City Council qualifies me to render intelligent and helpful service in the interest of the city.

I believe it to be a fact, and it is endorsed by others, that in no way may a citizen receive the information and be in a position to appreciate the needs of the municipality as by service on your Council Board.

Should you see fit to elect me, you will please remember in so doing that I am thoroughly in touch with municipal matters, having held the important position of Chairman of the Finance Committee for the last two years. It is admittedly the most important committee of the Council, and one requiring considerable time at the hands of its members and particularly so of its chairman.

I believe I can truly say that I understand the financial position and needs of the city thoroughly. In so far as your City Water Department is concerned, I promise, if elected, to faithfully perform the duties of the position and to bear in mind the needs of the city, as implied in the carrying on of the department and its extension in future years.

I may call attention to the legislation which Mr. Moore, the retiring member of the Commission, is drafting out and which it is proposed to ask for at the next session of the Legislative Assembly:—

(a) To constitute the Water Commissioners of the said City of Peterborough a body corporate.

(b) To authorize the said Water Commissioners to levy and collect a water rate upon properties fronting on streets along which water mains are laid, and to provide that all water rates shall be a lien on properties served with water or mains; with the right of distress and sale as in the case of unpaid taxes.

I do not favor such drastic legislation and am thoroughly convinced that the people should be asked first to endorse this proposition and, if elected, will endeavor to have this matter submitted to vote before making application for such a sweeping change in the policy, system and conduct of the Water Commission.

I may not be able to personally wait on all ratepayers before polling day, but I solicit their votes and influence. I trust that my candidature will receive a hearty and successful support and I will be proud to be elected.

Very respectfully,
E. F. MASON

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

W. J. Johnston

Respectfully solicits your Vote and Influence for
Alderman for 1907

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having been duly nominated a second time as alderman for the progressive City of Peterborough, I also again solicit your vote and influence at the coming elections, January 7th. In the future, as in the past, if elected, I shall always advocate the policy of municipal ownership of all public utilities, strongly believing such principles to be in the best interests of the general public. During the past year I have consistently supported and advanced such measures as would assure to the ratepayers economic civic government, and municipal control of public services. If once more honored with your confidence, such measures will receive from me unqualified support, and I shall make it my business to see that permanent improvements are equally distributed throughout the whole city, and that the expenditure of public monies is commensurate with value received.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year, and relying upon your support at the coming elections, I am,

Yours faithfully,
GEO. BALL

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having been a member of the Aldermanic Board for two years, I believe I am qualified by experience to serve your best interests during another term. As alderman last year I have been honored with the chairmanship of important special committees, taking up work in the interests of the whole community, and I am convinced that the experience so required will stand my fellow citizens and myself in good stead should I once again be vested with the responsibilities resting upon a representative of the public on the aldermanic board. I strongly advocate a policy of sanitary measures which shall assure to the city the highest possible standard of health at a minimum expenditure of public monies.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I remain,

Yours faithfully,

ALLAN McCARTHY
FOR
Alderman for 1907

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I beg to solicit your vote and influence on my behalf at the coming Municipal Elections. If elected, I will use my best efforts in the interests of the community as a whole, especially so in the matter of economic government, and in support of all measures tending to municipal ownership of public utilities, in so far as the same can be applied to the advantage of the municipality generally. I am in favor of the construction of all permanent work, such as sidewalks and sewers by day labor, providing said principle can be adopted at no loss to the city, and confer upon the workingman substantial benefit.

It is impossible for me to make a personal canvas of all the Electorate, therefor I take this means of soliciting your support.

Wishing you a glad and prosperous New Year, believe me to remain,

Yours faithfully,
ALLAN McCARTHY

Harry Morgan

Is a candidate for alderman of the City of Peterborough, and respectfully solicits the votes of the ratepayers. On the subject of municipal ownership Mr. Morgan is in favor of such, but only so far as consistent with the interests of our city.

CARD TO THE ELECTORS!

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having been nominated as one of many to represent you at your Council Board for this present year, I take this opportunity of soliciting your votes. I am a firm believer, that to have a good representative council, that the office should seek the man, instead of the man seeking the office.

When an alderman gives the time and attention that is required of him, if he represents the electors, it is quite sufficient, without spending his time, (which was always very valuable to him) in canvassing votes.

As I am opening up a business to become one of your merchants, my time for the future will be spent in your city, therefore, at the services of the ratepayers.

I shall devote my energies to serve the ratepayers faithfully, as I have no axe to grind.

Having made a success of my own business, I think I am capable of assisting to manage that of our progressive young city.

It shall be my duty to procure municipal ownership in all cases where our public thoroughfares are utilized. I have visited a large number of towns and cities during the last two years, and I have yet to find one instance when it has been a failure.

It shall be my duty to assist in the careful expenditure of money, consistent with the advancement of our city.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours very truly,
R. H. LEARY

Hicks and McWilliams Each Given a Hearing

Mayoralty Candidates Heard by Trades and Labor Council in the Foresters' Hall---Other Candidates Also Spoke.

Last night from 150 to 200 representatives met in the Labor Hall, on George street, at a meeting held under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council of the city, to give the candidates for municipal honors an opportunity to air their views. In the absence of Mr. Chas. Murty, president of the local council, ex-Ald. Crowe took the chair. Among those present were, Messrs. W. H. Moore, E. F. Mason and V. Eastwood, candidates for water commissioners; Messrs. Johnston, Ball, McCarthy, Smith and other candidates for the council; Aldermen McWilliams and Hicks, candidates for the mayoralty. Messrs G. Hatton, D. Edleghem, A. Dawson, ex-Mayor Telland and many other leading citizens.

The chairman, ex-Ald. Crowe, explained that the mayoralty and water commissionership candidates would have 15 minutes and the would-be aldermen five minutes each. He then called upon Mr. McWilliams, one of the candidates for mayor.

R. F. M'WILLIAMS.

Said that the "workingmen's interests were those of the city. On the subject of day labor; he said he had spoken on this subject before the Board of Trade before this, on the matter of using the streets for public utilities he thought the people of this city could be dependended on to give an intelligent verdict. We can safely take up the use of our highways. It ought to be our policy to take up and run the various services in the interests of the municipality. We ought to grasp such opportunities when presented. The Peterborough Light & Power Co., are now trying to sell out their business, and are offering it to the city. We ought to take this offer at once from Mr. Stuart, and drive the best bargain we can. No citizen regrets the purchase of the waterworks. Few people know how much the city has made out of the purchase of the waterworks, which pays now 10 per cent.

At the end of 30 years the whole system will be paid for. There will ultimately be a profit of possibly $30,000 at the end of 20 years, with a better service than ever before. His principle is that no more street franchises should be given; if there is anything in such franchises the city should have the profit. We must have power, even if we have to buy another dam or other power. Other cities, such as Hamilton, St. Catharines, Welland, etc., can give power cheap, so we must have cheap power.

In regard to work on the streets we have tried both contract and day labor, and the latter has proven the cheaper for sewers, etc. The greater bulk of sewer work during the past year has been done by contract work. The streets under day labor work have been left in perfect condition, but in bad condition under the contract work. The city should not pay profits to contractors when the city could make the profit. He thought the city could build the sewers, etc., to greater advantage than by contract work. He had no interest in the city's work except to assist the city. Vague insinuations have been made which he is glad to meet and answer satisfactorily at any time.

The chairman then asked for questions. A member present asked as to the earning power of the Peterborough Light & Power Co. Mr. McWilliams at some length replied practically that the city committee had been offered access to the books of the company, but as this had not yet been done, could not say, but investigation would be made before any purchase.

Regarding a question put by ex-Ald. Crowe as to how a city-owned electric light plant would operate against an opposition electric light plant, the speaker said the Hydro-Electric Commission could probably fix such a matter. Mr. McWilliams then retired amid much applause.

ALD. HICKS.

Next spoke, and noted that this was his second time of speaking in public. He understood a gentleman was present to ask questions foreign to municipal affairs. He was anxious to answer such questions and there to answer questions pertinent to municipal affairs.

When the city was asked by The C.G.E. Co., to extend their assessment, he agreed that this should be done. The suggestion made by him was then adopted and is still in force. The Board of Works spends more money and gets more abuse than any other branch of the city council. The appropriations made for expenditures were insufficient to meet all requirements. This was no fault of his. He had spent all the money he had and would have liked to spend more where needed.

He had introduced a bylaw to place a sewer connection whenever a sewer ran through a street. This was done mainly in the interests of the poor man. The poor man by this has 30 years to pay, where otherwise he would have to pay up at once or go without.

Regarding the Peterborough Light & Power Co. bargain, the company had deferred closing the deal till they knew who the next mayor would be, and they rather suspected that he, the speaker, would be "it."

Regarding Day Labor, he thought such matters should be thoroughly treated. He was the first to suggest day labor on Boswell avenue. The board he belonged to, next instructed the city engineer on the next job, to bid on a sewer work.

He next noted that insinuations had been made that he, as a member of the council, had supplied sewer pipes to the city on a city contract. He flatly denied ever purchasing or supplying a single car load of pipes over six inches in diameter, such pipes only being used for connections.

His opponent, with whom he hoped to shake hands after the election, whoever won, was a young man who was advancing a theory, whilst he the speaker, was speaking from practice.

He then thanked the meeting for their kind hearing.

Mr. Ward then asked regarding the price of coal in Peterborough. Mr. Hicks then produced telegrams from seven different towns and cities in Canada, showing that coal was cheaper in Peterborough, than any of the places involved except Lindsay where coal sold at five cents a ton cheaper. The prices, of course being dependent upon the respective freight rates of such places. Several pertinent questions were next asked as to various local street and sewer questions.

Mr. A. Dawson noted that when he was in the council that the then city solicitor considered that when a frontage tax was charged there should be the fullest competition, and asked why the city engineer should now tender for sewers when he did not put up a cent of bonds or guarantee whether he could finish the work or not.

Mr. Hicks explained that he had asked the city solicitor on this subject and that he was told the matter was a subject of question. This seemed to satisfy the audience. Mr. Hicks then took his seat amid loud applause.

FOR WATER COMMISSIONERS.

Messrs. W. H. Moore, E. F. Mason and V. Eastwood, candidates for the office of water commissioner, were all present, and were each given a fair hearing.

Mr. W. H. Moore, spoke at length in support of the application to the Legislature for legislation recognizing the water commissioners as a corporate body, and sanctioning the levying and collecting of a frontage tax on all property fronting on water mains. These measures, he claimed to be in the interest of the whole community, in assuring an equable distribution of the cost and maintenance of the waterworks system. He claimed that holders of all property fronting on the water mains should contribute toward the support of the waterworks, whether they used city water or not. The waterworks, he claimed are of general public utility and their mains should be regarded as the finest property. This is a policy of the greatest amount of benefit to the largest number of citizens. Such a policy would encourage the building up of the city, as were all landowners taxed alike for public improvements they could not afford to let their vacant lands lie idle.

EX-ALD. MASON.

Ex-Ald. E. F. Mason was enthusiastically received, a tribute to his excellent and generally recognized services as a city father of this city. He thought his record as finance minister of last year's council should be as good as that of any chairman of the Finance Committee, and from the manner in which this remark was received, his audience were one with him. As to the legislation now being sought by the water commissioners, he did not think it right for that body to step over the heads of the electorate and go to the Legislature without the people's consent. It is hard to say, he contended, what drastic powers may be vested in the water commissioners were they recognized as a corporate body. He did not approve of a frontage tax on old water mains, which policy he contended would mean that residents on the outskirts of the city would have to pay for maximum advantages reaped by the business district. Under Mr. Moore's proposition the man owning say a $5,000 house would have to pay on an equal basis with his neighbor rejoicing in a $2,000 building. He did not believe in such a policy of taxing the poor man on an equal basis with his more fortunate neighbor.

Mr. W. H. Moore here replied that property owners would merely pay for water mains on their house rate. The idea was that owners of vacant lots should contribute their fair share of the burden of public benefits.

Ex-Ald. Mason replied that this substantiated his position. The center of the city is thickly populated and the waterworks is there in general use. The imposition of a frontage tax would mean that a large number of property owners on the outskirts, where the city water is not much called for, would be taxed to the advantage of their more fortunate brethren in the center of the community. Ald. Mason resumed his seat amidst considerable applause.

VINCENT EASTWOOD.

Mr. V. Eastwood, a one time school trustee and now seeking support as water commissioner, was next called upon. He spoke in fair and honorable terms of his competitors, all of whom he knew would give faithful service to the city. Three years ago he deferred to Mr. W. H. Moore in a contest for water commissioner, on family and friendly grounds, and he did not think it necessary for Mr. Moore to publicly ask of him British fair play. He had given Mr. Moore all the British fair play that could be looked for from any man. He considered he was quite capable as a successful business man of satisfactorily filling the duties that would be required of him as one of the water commissioners. The demands as to the engineering system of the waterworks are met by capable engineers, whom should they be found wanting could be replaced. However, a large amount of raw material is required for this department under the city control, with which he in his business is quite conversant. He said he is in perfect accord with the principle of frontage tax on all property abutting on the water mains. There is no reason why property held for value should be exempt; all should pay a fair proportion of the costs of public utilities. Should he be elected he would endeavor to improve the quality of the water by a system of filtration, which he considered much needed. He said he was also in favor of developing power at the waterworks dam or elsewhere, at the least possible cost for service to manufacturers.

ALD. JOHNSTON.

Was very enthusiastically received. He said that any one seeking the position of alderman this year was facing a very responsible problem as he believed that upon the work of the aldermanic board in 1907 will depend the welfare of this city for years to come. If elected he will use his best endeavors to have cement crossings constructed throughout the whole city. As to municipal lighting, he wanted to see in force such measures as will give every citizen electric light at a price within his reach. Municipal ownership is the best thing if it can be secured at a profitable cost to the community and prove of greatest benefit to the greatest number of citizens. He thought all aldermen should be elected for a three years' term, in the interests of the whole city. He favored the establishment of a central station for carters, with a comfortable shelter adjacent. This he considered to be a crying need, and one which he would advocate should he be re-elected.

Ald. Johnston has the labor vote behind him.

ALD. BALL.

Was enthusiastically received. He warmly endorsed the candidature of his colleagues, and alluded to last year's council as one saving to the city many thousands of dollars. No graft, he said, could be found around the precincts of the city hall. The council of last year should be judged for what they did not do. For instance, they did not endorse the purchase of a certain lot for the fire hall when a cheaper one was available. They did not grant the petition of the School Board for another $50,000 for the Collegiate Institute, as a result of which they are now only asking for $21,000. They would not endorse Mr. Stuart's overtures for a $150,000 overhead bridge to Ashburnham; but on the contrary replied to him, You are representing the Peterborough Railway Co., and we are representing the city of Peterborough, and we are not here to legislate in your interests. Put these figures together, Ald. Ball contended, and you will find that last year's council saved to the community much money by doing nothing. Ald. Ball heartily endorsed the policy of sending deputations to other towns and cities, and to the different governments, without which the city would indeed be done many advantages. He (Ball) that he wanted to go on any more deputations, as he always returned poorer in pocket by so doing. A man council suggested this ought should and not do it handsomely. He impressed upon his hearers that he has yet to discover any graft floating around the city hall, and satisfied all present that all actions of last year's council were thoroughly disinterested.

In conclusion, Ald. Ball expressed his gratification at seeing municipal ownership so popular these days, especially so as when he advocated 25 years ago this policy he was ambushed a crank. Apparently, he contended there are many cranks today.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Messrs. Allan McCarthy and John Smith, of the east ward, also received a hearty hearing, and both pledged themselves, if elected to legislate in the interests of the workingman.

John Smith is personally in favor of the Collegiate Institute bylaw as being in the interests of even the poorer sections of the community.

Good Dance in Foresters' Hall.

One of the best dances of the season was that held in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, under the auspices of the Otherdom Club. About sixty couples were present, and the floor was in excellent condition, and good music was provided. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Messrs. H. V. VanEvery and A. Lockington are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in pursuance of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic affections, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements, cured by erasion, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Ald. Johnston's Report On Labor Conditions

Considering that November is usually regarded as a dull month, so far as labor is concerned, that month in Peterborough, according to the report of the correspondent of the Labor Gazette, was quite satisfactory. Ald. Johnston's report to the Gazette for that month is as follows;

November was very active for all classes of labor. Civic improvement work had stopped, though sewer construction was still in progress. Dredging and sounding were still actively under way, many of the industrial establishments enlarging their premises. The Cavendish Lumber Company's output was 11,000,000. This company has 450 men and 45 teams at present in the woods. The Lakefield Cement Co. used 1860 carloads of clay last year. Wholesale and retail trade was active. Winter schedules went into effect in some trades. Flour and saw mills were busy and general trade was good.

LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

Agricultural — Excellent weather conditions prevailed.

Manufacturing Establishments — Very active with heavy orders in advance.

PARTICULAR TRADES.

Building — Very busy conditions prevailed.

Metal, engineering and shipbuilding — Conditions were active to very busy, though bicycle workers were quiet.

Woodworking and furnishings — All were actively employed.

Printing and Allied —An excellent month was reported.

Clothing— Activity prevailed, although hat makers were quiet.

Food and Tobacco Preparations — All were very busy.

Leather—Conditions were busy.

Miscellaneous employes were active.

Transport — Railway employes were active, teamsters, expressmen, etc., were busy.

DISTRICT NOTES.

The Election for Water Commissioners

For the honorable position of water commissioners three desirable candidates are in the field; retiring commissioner W. H. Moore; ex-finance minister of the city, Ald. Mason; and Mr. V. Eastwood, ex-school trustee. Mr. W. H. Moore has served the city faithfully, and has received many honors at the hands of the electorate. As a water commissioner he has been energetic and faithful, and brought considerable legal acumen to bear on the board of which he is a member. He is now, however in competition with two rising young men, and should he be defeated, it will simply mean a hard-earned rest before he comes again before his fellow citizens as a candidate for the more honorable position of chief magistrate.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood has had considerable experience on the Board of Education, and seeks election as a water commissioner. He is energetic and ambitious and would undoubtedly bring to bear upon the commission the same indefatigable enterprise as has assured his success in business as a member of the Peterborough Hardware Co.

All three are desirable candidates, but ex-Ald. Mason appeals to one as seeking the position of water commissioner as a sequence to his highly appreciated services in the city's interests on its Board of Aldermen. Mr. Moore, himself, admits that Mr. Mason was looked upon as the coming mayor of this city. This is unquestionably true, but Mr. Mason deferred rather than enter into a three-cornered fight with two colleagues he so highly esteemed. Perhaps some other time Mr. Mason, who is a young man, may cast his eyes upon the velvet chair. In the interim ex-Ald. Mason believes he can render the city good service as a member of the water commission, in which he has manifested peculiar interest. In support of his nomination he brings with him an enviable record as a shrewd and successful business man, the controller of two stores in the city, to say nothing of outside ventures, and his experience as finance minister of this city. And unquestionably a financier who stands on the top rungs of the ladder of finance. Last year he steered Peterborough through a period of exceptional progressive ventures, and retired from office with a balance on hand of at least $2,000. This meant that the city's treasury was called upon in an abnormal manner to meet latter date demands, and yet he kept his committees within bounds of the revenues in sight. And anyone who has had anything to do with municipal committees will readily understand that this is no easy task to undertake. The late city treasurer affirms that at no period has Ald. Mason been out of touch of the city's finances, and that no keener was his perception of the city's business that his (the treasurer's) duties were considerably lightened thereby. Ex-Ald. Mason, by reason of his exceptional services to the city, has good reasons to expect that his candidature will be favorably received at the hands of fellow citizens to whom he has given much disinterested service. Should he be returned as water commissioner, the same energies and business executive will be applied to his new position of trust as freely rendered in his late office of finance minister.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie After City Interests

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, local representative to the Eastern Dairymen's convention, leaves at the beginning of next week for Brockville, to attend the convention, which begins on Wednesday, January 9 in Ottawa.

Mr. Gillespie is very enthusiastic over the proposed National Dairy Show, which he hopes will come to Peterborough. He thinks that the Eastern convention will favor Peterborough for the exhibition. This is a question he will bring up there. He will also go to London to attend the Western Dairymen's convention, to be held on January 16, 17 and 18, and if possible have that convention endorse Peterborough as the place for the show.

Bars Must Close All Day Monday

License Inspector Joseph Stewart yesterday notified the hotels and licensed stores throughout the whole city that all bar-rooms and such stores must keep closed from seven o'clock Saturday evening until six o'clock Tuesday morning. This is due to Monday being Municipal Election Day. The inspector, when interviewed by a Times representative, remarked that the local hotels are now keeping the law in its entirety. On Saturday night last Mr. Stewart, at from 1 to 3 a.m., made a thorough inspection, not only of the smaller but of the leading hotels, and found that no liquor was being sold in any way. This is quite a difference from former conditions.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt Gives Good Address

Over 200 people were present and enjoyed the lecture given in George street church, by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's church. The speaker's subject was "The Evolution of the Boy." That his hearers were delighted with the lecture was shown by the applause given.

The chair was occupied by Rev. Dr. Crothers, and two amy the musical numbers preceded the lecture. The Misses Chaney sang a duet and Miss Reesor a solo. The lecturer was introduced by the chairman, and a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. G. N. Gordon and seconded by Dr. Middleton.

The evening was most enjoyably spent, and in acknowledging the vote of thanks, the lecturer referred to the pleasure it had given him to have spoken.

Ex-Mayor Yelland Speaks.

At a short meeting before the larger one of the Trades & Labor Council, ex-Mayor Yelland made an enthusiastic speech in favor of Mr. Hicks. Amongst other things he stated that he had personally sold Mr. Hicks five thousand dollars worth of property, and therefore he knew he could properly qualify for the mayor's chair, and having so much at stake in the city was well fitted for the office.

Peterborough Wins An Exciting Game

Defeats Varsity by Score of 9-4— Wasson Gets Collar-Bone Broken.

Last night at the Brock street rink the locals defeated the Varsity team of Toronto, to the sweet tune of 9—4. The half-time score being 4—2 The local players put up a much faster game than they played against Queen's a week ago. The combination was great, Morgan and Whitcroft doing most of the scoring.

In the beginning of the game Wasson, of the locals, had his collar bone fractured, but, pluckily finished the first half, when he was replaced by Lang, who put up a good game. It will be remembered that the students were only defeated by one goal by the senior champions in Berlin, and on the showing made last night by the locals, the other O.H.A. teams will have to travel some to catch them.

The boards were decorated frequently by both teams. In the second half the homesters started off in a great dash, the puck being mostly in the visitors' territory. Varsity was only able to score two goals, while Peterborough scored five.

The goals were scored as follows:
Whitcroft—3 min.
Keith—2 min.
Morgan, 12 mins.
Morgan, 5 mins.
Clarke, 4 mins.
Whitcroft, 3 mins.
Morgan, 2 mins.
Morgan, 10 min.
Davidson, 2 mins.
Crowley, 9 mins.
Whitcroft, 1 min.
Whitcroft, 1-2 min.
Davidson, 1 min.

Mr. F. H. Clarke, of Peterborough, officiated as referee to the satisfaction of both teams. The time-keepers were Dr. Wightman of Peterborough, and Mr. Laird of Toronto. The goal umpires were both local men, Mr. R. Deane, and Gene Hurtubise.

Following was the line-up;

Peterborough Fuel Combine.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir—There should be some way of combating this outrageous combine of the fuel dealers in our city. The present price charged, $7.50, is about $1.00 higher than in neighboring towns. To those who cannot afford to buy more than a quarter of a ton at a time, coal is charged at the rate of $8.00. Coal is carried past our doors from Pennsylvania to Montreal and sold there at $6.75. Under existing conditions our authorities should conduct a fuel supply yard in the interest of the poor.

The Collegiate Bylaw Will Garry Monday Next

Peterborough Must Keep Apace With Less Important Centers in the Matter of Higher Education.

The measure asking for an additional $21,000 to add to the $30,000 already in the School Board's hands, with which to construct and equip a modern and up-to-the-hour Collegiate Institute, seems to be most popular with the ratepayers. Of course, these days when so many claims are made upon our columns regarding the election of mayor and aldermen, it is impossible to give in detail the opinions of the vast majority of ratepayers who favor this bylaw; but their consensus of opinion is that the bylaw will carry by a substantial vote, and rightly so as the community's interest is a whole. It is urged that the best in the way of High School facilities is none too good for a city of Peterborough's importance. It is also advanced that with a Collegiate Institute building and equipment on parallel lines with those of other places in the province, the Electric City will secure in attendance at our high school a large number of out of town pupils who under existing conditions feel it incumbent upon them in their own interest to throw their names to remain on the roll of another institute more modern in its appointments than that to which we are at present forced to attach the cognomen of Collegiate Institute. These facts are weighing heavily in favor of the Collegiate Institute bylaw and our School Board will in all probability have the satisfaction of seeing their measure carried on Monday next. We shall have a last word to say on this matter in Monday's issue. In the meantime our readers should bear in mind that The School Board's interest in this measure is not of a personal nature, but is engendered by a desire to see this important City of Peterborough, of forging similar advantages in the way of higher education to those afforded by much less important centers.

Mr. H. LeBrun was seen yesterday by a member of the press, and expressed himself as being strongly in favor of the bylaw, which, he said, would receive his hearty support. Mr. LeBrun said that there was no doubt that a new Collegiate Institute was badly needed in the best interests of the city. He pointed out that the present Collegiate Institute was inadequate, having been erected when the city was considerably smaller than it is at present. While it served its purpose then, it was not large enough to accommodate the pupils of today. "I hope the bylaw will carry," said Mr. LeBrun, in conclusion.

What Flag Will Canada Adopt ?

Independent Autonomy Said to Be Still a Matter of the Distant Future.

London, Jan. 5—A writer, signing himself "C," in the Monthly Review, has an interesting article on "Canada, Under What Flag?" He points to the American immigration, and the affinities of Canadians and Yankees, and concludes,

"What will be the upshot of it all? I hope I am not injuring Canadian armour propre, when I hold that the independent autonomy of the Dominion must be still in the distant future. Judging from merely geographical considerations, the ultimate political union of Canada and the States is not more improbable than that of England and Scotland a couple of centuries ago. Another powerful factor is the argumentum ad crumenam. If the intermediate tariff is going to materially increase the income of the Canadian, he naturally begins to think of his duty to his wife and children, and weighs the prospective advantages of complete political union. It is possible, as a Canadian friend suggests, that the final solution lies in the hands of the 43,000 Chinese students at Tokio, who are trying to find out how Japan managed to more than hold her own against a first-class white power. If they succeed, and if they impart the lesson to their four hundred million fellow-countrymen, Canada a few generations hence may be under a new heraldic combination, and the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes be changed into the Maple Leaf and Southern Cross, or other strange device possibly unexistent today."

County Coroner Cray Supports the Institute

Yesterday a Times representative interviewed the local coroner, Dr. J. W. Gray, 201 Sherbrooke street, as to his opinions regarding the coming Collegiate Institute bylaw.

Dr. Gray freely expressed his opinion that the institute should be built but only on one condition, viz., that all work be done by the city on the day labor system. The doctor is strongly against all contract work on this building. He thinks that the city should appoint efficient and honest foremen, at fair wages to superintendent every branch of this structure, from the foundation to the roof. Such foremen, the doctor said should supply vouchers, sworn to by themselves in every particular. Dr. Gray instanced the erection of a certain mill in the city where the cost would indicate that the Collegiate Institute could be built much cheaper than at present suggested.

Tom. Weller Was Deported.

County Constable Cochrane left on the C.P.R. yesterday morning for St. John, N.B., in company with Tom Weller. The latter was a sad looking character as he boarded the train with the officer.

From all appearances his departure bore no signs of grief as usually exhibited by crape on the doors nor by visible signs of mourning by those in England who paid for his deportation.

Former Peterborough Woman's Sad Death

Died in Poverty and Squalor in Toronto.

The Toronto News last night has the following;

Surrounded by poverty and squalor, Aggie McDonald, or McDermott, died last evening in a dilapidated shack in the rear of 238½ King street east, and the fact was reported to the police this morning.

The hovel in question is a two-storey wooden building, the ground floor being occupied by J. Duffy and his wife. Upstairs the rooms were rented to Mr. Cranston and wife. The McDonald woman was not a permanent resident, but a friend of the parties, she came and went just as she pleased.

All five have been celebrating the holiday season pretty extensively, and the McDonald woman has been sick since New Year's Day. Early last evening her ailment took a turn for the worse, and at 11:30 Duffy informed Undertaker Rosar that the woman was dead.

Mrs. McDonald often told her companions that she had a husband in Winnipeg. But he had left her to shift for herself some years ago. Coming originally from Peterborough, Mrs. McDonald was a woman of possibly thirty-five years of age.

When Sergeant Allison went to the house this morning, after the event had been reported to the police, he found the body in bed. There were no marks of violence to be seen, though Coroner Johnston was notified of the circumstances.

New Baptist Pastor's First Service

Rev. John R. Webb, the new pastor of the Murray street Baptist church will preach his first sermon in his new church on Sunday, January 13th, coming here from the Point St. Charles Baptist church, Montreal.

—Mr. Tom Pathick of Collingwood, is in town for a few days renewing old acquaintances.

WATER COMMISSIONERS

CARD TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I hereby beg to announce that I am a candidate for member of the Board of Water Commissioners. I submit that my business experience subpoined with my desire to serve the interests of Peterborough in the most effective and beneficial manner constitute a reasonable claim upon your confidence and support. I may say that I have made a study of the details of the management of this public utility; and if honored with election by the ratepayers, it shall be my constant aim and endeavor to continue and improve upon, so far as possible, the valuable water service which this city possesses.

Respectfully soliciting your vote and influence, I remain,

Yours faithfully,

V. EASTWOOD

All Thin, Pale Women

Can Learn the Cause of Their Nervous, Used-up Condition.

With women, ill-health is usually traceable to nerve exhaustion. Feeling run-down and tired most of the time is nature's warning that more nerve-force is required.

You must build up, nourish the body, vitalize the nerves, get more flesh and blood.

It's the abundant nutriment and building material in Ferrozone that enables it to cure so many sick women. It increases the appetite, adds weight and strength, restores lost color and develops a surplus of energy and nerve force that defies sickness of any kind. There is living proof in Mrs. Daniel Ferguson, Jr., of Prescott, Ont Read her statement:

"A year ago my health failed. I grew thin and exceedingly pale. At times I was prostrated with nervous and sick headache. All day I was tired. At night it was difficult to obtain restful sleep. My appetite was variable and indigestion bothered me considerably. I became morose and suffered from heart palpitation. You could scarcely believe the benefit I derived in one week from Ferrozone. Color came back to my cheeks. My vitality and appetite increased, renewed nerve force and better spirits came also. Ferrozone did a world of good and made me well."

Remember this: No alcoholic stimulant can nourish and build up like Ferrozone. Fifty cents per box or six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U. S. A.

ANTI-CORRUPTION LAWS

The intimation that Ontario is to have another act to amend the act to prevent corrupt practices at elections is a reminder that all the States of the Union have laws prohibiting bribery in elections, but in only a few cases is an attempt made to specify forbidden subjects or objects of expenditure. The characteristic feature of the law may be summed up as the requirement of publicity in regard to campaign revenues and expenses, and the enumeration of specific objects of legitimate election expenses, with provision for proper enforcement of these regulations. In some cases an attempt is made to limit expenditures to an amount proportionate to the size of the constituency, as in Minnesota, where the expenses for 1,000 voters may not exceed $250; for each 100 voters above 5,000 and under 25,000, $1; for each 100 between 25,000 and 100,000, $1, and above 100,000, 50 cents each. A similar law, with a different scale of expenditure, is found in Missouri. In many other cases specific prohibition of contributions by corporations is a part of the law. Of the numerous laws on the books, those of Connecticut and Wisconsin are the most complete and thorough-going.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

What is in many respects the most informing and significant paper issued by any life insurance company during the present year has just appeared over the signature of John R. Hegeman, President of the Metropolitan Life. While the communication is addressed to the Company's agents, and is in the nature of a review and announcement covering matters chiefly interesting to the field force, it deserves attentive reading by every one who holds or intends to secure a life insurance policy.

It appears that the Metropolitan Life has for some time been engaged in the preparation of new "mortality tables" based upon its own experience. By comparison of given periods in recent years with corresponding periods in former years, back to 1890, the fact is established that among the Company's policy-holders there has been sufficient improvement in the mortality (that is, a smaller average of deaths at various ages) to warrant certain changes affecting future premiums and benefits, all directly in the interest of those insured in the Company. With characteristic thoroughness and frankness these results and changes are specified to minute detail, not put forth as "estimates" or vague promises.

Their significance to the insuring public is a reduction in the price of insurance in the Industrial Department, and through a readjustment of rates of commissions to agents, a reduction of premiums charged in the Ordinary Department.

Concerning the policies to be issued in 1907 this information is given:

"Our new policies will be found most attractive in form and even more attractive in substance. They contain all of the advantages and concessions which we can afford to give and which the public have the right to expect. The surrender values will be found to be generous and take the optional forms of extended insurance, paid-up insurance and cash. They are the standard forms of the New York Department, the work of experts which has legislative approval. They are as plain to the understanding as they can be made. We have discontinued many plans as unnecessary. We shall issue Ordinary Life, Limited Payment, Endowment and Term plans, and we have applied for permission and hope to issue in addition three plans which the public have stamped with their approval—namely, the Optional Life or Endowment, under a new name, the Modified Endowment with Life Option; the Guaranteed Dividend, also under a new and more descriptive name, the Guaranteed Increased Endowment; and the Reduced Premium Life under its new name, Life with Reduced Premium after 20 years."

One noteworthy passage relates to the Company's liberal policy of distributing dividends and benefits not contemplated in its contracts with policy-holders. President Hegeman asks his agents to note that "This year the Company has been disbursing the enormous sum of about two millions of dollars in voluntary dividends upon non-participating industrial policies, bringing the total amount of unpromised dividends in twelve years to about ten millions of dollars to Industrial policy-holders in the form of dividends on premiums, dividends on death claims and increases of benefits upon existing policies." He adds:

"We have been enabled to accomplish this work all these years by steady improvements in business methods, by steady extensions of business territory, by steady additions to insurance in force, by watchfulness in writing and taking care of business, resulting in a decreasing death rate, decreasing lapse rate and decreasing expense rate. These improvements we have announced to you from year to year, but perhaps from this very fact—their gradual, steady progressiveness—you have failed to grasp their full significance. Yet year by year we have told you our aim—to reduce expenses, to improve the death rate, to better the policies, to distribute the surplus, so that each year a larger proportionate amount could be returned to policy-holders and a smaller proportionate amount used in expenses.

He goes on to say that although the year is not ended, the records show from July 1st to date (December 1st), that the Company's increase of Industrial business exceeded the increase of any previous year with the exception of two, that in the Ordinary Life Department the business of September equalled that of September, 1906, while October and November showed a large increase, and December "promises to be a record-breaker." Further he says:

"Taking the last six months for comparison—June to November, inclusive—you wrote more Ordinary than ever was written by the Company in the corresponding months, and exceeded 1906 by over six millions and a half, and this it must be remembered by more than 3,000 less men."

Other matters discussed in the announcement are no less interesting than those referred to in this brief review. The entire paper is commended as an educational and timely contribution to insurance literature.

MILLIONAIRE TO PAUPER

Death in Disgrace of One-Time Partner of "Old Hutch."

Chicago, Dec. 31.—A despatch to the Tribune from Spokane says:

"Once a millionaire wheat speculator, the partner of 'Old Hutch,' in the Chicago wheat pit, G. G. Leonard died yesterday at the county poorfarm at Spangle, unattended by friends or relatives.

"One son is superintendent of the largest steel mills at Birmingham, Ala., a daughter is the wife of Prof. Fisher in the University of California, and his wife and two other daughters reside in Chicago. Drink brought about his downfall, wrecking his health and breaking up his family relations.

"Judge Leonard, as he was familiarly known, was born in New York 53 years ago. In the early eighties he practised law in Chicago. He became associated with Hutchinson in the famous wheat corner, which made him a multi-millionaire. He had been president of the school board and superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday School. He located in Spokane in 1896.

A year ago he was stricken with paralysis. O

ONTARIO COLONIZATION ROADS

A Summary of the Work of the Past Season.

The season's work on the colonization roads in Northern Ontario has closed and the accounts are now being adjusted by the Provincial Public Works Department. These show an expenditure for the season of $726,550 on roads and $76,000 on bridges in connection therewith, a total of $802,550, which is about $50,000 more than the aggregate the government was called upon to meet for colonization road works last year. During the season about 5,000 men were employed, 350 miles of new road were constructed, and 600 miles of road cleared last year were graded, finished and repaired. All the large bridges constructed this year were of cement concrete and steel. One bridge at Massey, which is not yet finished, is of cement concrete reinforced with steel, is 170 feet over all, and has a central span of 100 feet. This will be the largest single-span cement concrete highway bridge in Canada.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenuous and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having served you as alderman for two years, and at the request of a large number of ratepayers, I once again offer myself as a candidate for re-election. It is only fair to assume that my two years' experience on the council board will stand me in good stead in the conduction of the municipal business of this prosperous and progressive city. I have always had the courage of my convictions in the past and in the future, if re-elected shall only support such measures as I consider to be in the best interests of the community as a whole. I shall always have due regard to economy in all branches of municipal work, and endeavor to make my two years experience as your servant count in your favor when questions of public interest arise.

Trusting that you may once again honor me with your confidence, believe me to remain,

Your obedient servant.

GEO. N. DUNCAN

To the Electors

ALLAN McCARTHY
FOR
Alderman for 1907

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I beg to solicit your vote and influence on my behalf at the coming Municipal Elections. If elected, I will use my best efforts in the interests of the community as a whole, especially so in the matter of economic government, and in support of all measures tending to municipal ownership of public utilities, in so far as the same can be applied to the advantage of the municipality generally. I am in favor of the construction of all permanent work, such as sidewalks and sewers, by day labor, providing said principle can be adopted at no loss to the city, and confer upon the workingman substantial benefit.

It is impossible for me to make a personal canvas of all the Electorate, therefor I take this means of soliciting your support.

Wishing you a glad and prosperous New Year, believe me to remain,

Yours faithfully,

ALLAN McCARTHY

W. H. BRADBURN

—AS—

ALDERMAN FOR 1907

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I solicit your vote and influence in my favor as a candidate for election to the City Council.

With compliments of the season.

Yours respectfully.

W. H. BRADBURN

CARD TO THE ELECTORS!

Ladies and Gentlemen. — Having been nominated as one of many to represent you at your Council Board, for this present year, I take this opportunity of soliciting your votes.

I am a firm believer, that to have a good representative council, that the office should seek the man, instead of the man seeking the office.

When an alderman gives the time and attention that is required of him, if he represents the electors, it is quite sufficient, without spending his time, (which was always very valuable to him) in canvassing votes.

As I am opening up a business to become one of your merchants, my time for the future will be spent in your city, therefore, at the services of the ratepayers.

I shall devote my energies to serve the ratepayers faithfully, as I have no axe to grind.

Having made a success of my own business, I think I am capable of assisting to manage that of our progressive young city.

It shall be my duty to procure municipal ownership in all cases where our public thoroughfares are utilized. I have visited a large number of towns and cities during the last two years, and I have yet to find one instance when it has been a failure.

It shall be my duty to assist in the careful expenditure of money, consistent with the advancement of our city.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours very Truly.

R. H. LEARY

CARD TO THE ELECTORS!

GEO. J. TOVEY
For Alderman

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been once again nominated as your representative on the Aldermanic Board for the year 1907, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence at the coming elections. In the future as in the past if elected, I shall always advocate as economical a civic government as consistent with public needs, and devote my services in the interests of the whole community; I shall support all measures leading to municipal ownership of public utilities, providing the operation of the same will assure to the citizens maximum results at a minimum expenditure of public monies, and at the same time furnish sufficient surplus revenue to pay off the capital invested. I am strongly in favor of this city acquiring its own electric power, in which event Peterborough will be in a position to guarantee new industries all the power they need at the lowest possible price.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year, I remain,

Your obedient servant,

GEO. J. TOVEY

FOR WATER COMMISSIONER

ADDRESS OF

Mr. E. F. MASON

A Candidate, to the Ratepayers:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I respectfully offer my services to the ratepayers of the city, and am a candidate for election by you to the position of Water Commissioner, now vacant. I do this at the urgent request of many ratepayers, who are good enough to say that my services as Alderman and experience on the City Council qualifies me to render intelligent and helpful service in the interest of the city.

I believe it to be a fact, and it is endorsed by others, that in no way may a citizen receive the information and be in a position to appreciate the needs of the municipality as by service on your Council Board.

Should you see fit to elect me, you will please remember in so doing that I am thoroughly in touch with municipal matters, having held the important position of Chairman of the Finance Committee for the last two years. It is admittedly the most important committee of the Council, and one requiring considerable time at the hands of its members and particularly so of its chairman.

I believe I can truly say that I understand the financial position and needs of the city thoroughly. In so far as your City Water Department is concerned, I promise, if elected, to faithfully perform the duties of the position and to bear in mind the needs of the city, as implied in the carrying on of the department and its extension in future years.

I may call attention to the legislation which Mr. Moore, the retiring member of the Commission, is drafting out and which it is proposed to ask for at the next session of the Legislative Assembly:—

(a) To constitute the Water Commissioners of the said City of Peterborough a body corporate.

(b) To authorize the said Water Commissioners to levy and collect a water rate upon properties fronting on streets along which water mains are laid, and to provide that all water rates shall be a lien on properties served with water or mains; with the right of distress and sale as in the case of unpaid taxes.

I do not favor such drastic legislation and am thoroughly convinced that the people should be asked first to endorse this proposition and, if elected, will endeavor to have this matter submitted to vote before making application for such a sweeping change in the policy, system and conduct of the Water Commission.

I may not be able to personally wait on all ratepayers before polling day, but I solicit their votes and influence. I trust that my candidature will receive a hearty and successful support and I will be proud to be elected.

Very respectfully,

E. F. MASON

ADDRESS TO THE ELECTORS

OF THE

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

To the Electors of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In compliance with the request of a large number of influential ratepayers, I have decided to offer myself as a candidate for the mayoralty of Peterborough for the year 1907. I assure you that, in aspiring to the position of Mayor, I appreciate the responsibility of being intrusted with the duty of promoting the interests of a city of whose position and progress, I, in common with every other citizen, am justly proud.

Identity of Interests

All my material and business interests and their betterment and advancement are centred in, and bound up with the good government, good standing and progress of Peterborough. Therefore, to put the matter upon no higher ground, if I receive the honour of being elected Mayor, it will be to my interest to do all in my power for the growth, up-building and general welfare of my home City, in which I received my education in the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute, and in which, as remarked, my present and future are centred.

Systematize Municipal Work

As a member of the Council for the past three years I have endeavoured to serve the interests of the ratepayers faithfully, and the knowledge gained by service on all the committees of the Council, and, for the past two years, respectively, as chairman of the Manufacturers Committee and Board of Works, and the careful study I have devoted to all municipal questions, give me such experience as will place me in a position to so systematize the operations of the machinery of municipal government as to give the best results for the least expenditure of money.

General Policy

My policy for the coming year can be briefly stated — promoting the interests of the general mass of the ratepayers which is the first consideration — a liberal and prudent attitude of encouragement to industries to establish themselves in Peterborough, and the adoption of a general policy looking to making Peterborough the industrial and commercial centre, and the rallying point for the Midland District and Eastern Ontario. This would involve the provision of accommodation, within reasonable limits, for conventions gatherings — district, Provincial and Dominion—dealing with the agricultural, dairying and other interests of the district of which Peterborough is the natural centre.

Exemption Conditions

My policy in regard to the improvement of conditions in the City will be a continuance of that I have advocated in Council and which has been adopted in principle by the Council.

In regard to the exemption of, or fixed assessment for, industrial establishments, I have advocated, and still advocate, the adoption of conditions which will require such establishments, not to obstruct local improvements, such as sidewalks or sewers, but, on the contrary, require them to bear their proportion of the cost.

Permanency of Improvements

With regard to pending street extensions, I shall continue the policy, adopted by the Council and put into motion by myself, till Aylmer street as well as George street (which is practically open now) is extended to the southern boundary of the city.

I firmly believe that all expenditure of money upon streets should be, as far as possible, for works of a permanent character. In the building of permanent pavements, I hold that the policy I advocated (which was adopted by the Council,) of building crossings at street intersections at the same time as the general work is done, should be continued.

With a full appreciation of the great injury done to our streets by promiscuous disturbance of the surface, I introduced a bylaw providing for the laying of connections to the street line at the time of sewer construction, thus avoiding the necessity of digging up the streets at frequent intervals. In this connection I will, if elected, use my influence to make financial and executive provision to restore the streets disturbed by sewer, waterworks, gas, and other excavation operations to their original condition, with the least possible delay and at the minimum of expense to the general ratepayers, so that the public for whose use the streets are intended will have the advantage of the best street conditions.

Surface Drainage

In the interests of the business men and citizens generally, I regard the proper care of our streets as of the utmost importance, and as proper surface drainage is one of the easiest and most essential means of maintaining them in good condition, and as this can be effected with comparatively trifling expenditure, I shall, if honoured with your confidence, make it a point to provide the best condition of surface drainage possible.

Municipal Ownership

In regard to the question of municipal ownership and operation of public utilities in general use, I am in favour of the principle, subject to the condition that, as Mayor of the city, if elected, I must be convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that the acquirement and operation of any public utility will be in the interests of the citizens at large and reasonably certain of yielding satisfactory results. This covers my position, in regard to the general principle, as well as to the electric lighting, gas, and power propositions now before the public. The acquirement of such utilities should be done on purely business principles—the city should not, because it is a corporation, pay one cent more or one cent less than their carefully ascertained value.

To Get Good Advice

To this end I would advocate the constitution of an Advisory Board, to consist of representatives of the Trades and Labour Council, of the Manufacturers' Association, of the Board of Trade and of the Water Commissioners, such Advisory Board in consultation with the City Council, or Manufacturers' Committee, to pass upon the details of any proposition before its submission to the people.

In respectfully soliciting your votes and influence, I might say in summary, that in addition to what I have specified, I shall use my best efforts if elected, to so discharge my duties as to promote the best interests and progress of the city, and to creditably and satisfactorily represent the citizens, without distinction of class or interest.

Yours very faithfully

ROBT. HICKS

Invest in Coal Stocks

More money has been made from investing in Coal stock at the first prices than from any other class of investment.

We advise the purchase in

BRITISH COLUMBIA AMALGAMATED COAL CO. STOCK

AT 15 CENTS PER SHARE

as we are watching the development of this property very closely.

This Company controls about 17,000 acres of Coal lands in the famous Nicola Valley, British Columbia, about 170 miles from the City of Vancouver. Having first-class shipping facilities and an unlimited market, they will no doubt be among the heaviest producers in the Province within 12 months.

To any one who intends investing in these shares, we advise you to wire us at once, stating the number of shares you desire, then remit either by bank draft or express order immediately.

Write for our Booklet describing the Coal fields of the Nicola Valley; also our weekly Market letter. It will keep you posted.

For further information write or wire us immediately.

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having been a member of the Aldermanic Board for two years, I believe I am qualified by experience to serve your best interests during another term. As alderman last year I have been honored with the chairmanship of important special committees, taking up work in the interests of the whole community, and I am convinced that the experience so acquired will stand my fellow citizens and myself in good stead should I once again be vested with the responsibilities resting upon a representative of the public on the aldermanic board. I strongly advocate a policy of sanitary measures which shall assure to the city the highest possible standard of health at a minimum expenditure of public monies.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I remain,

Yours faithfully.

$75,000,000 IN COPPER DIVIDENDS

This stupendous sum will be paid to the lucky holders of Copper Stocks during 1907—so say the world's highest authorities.

Lluvia de Cobre Stockholders will Soon Share in These Profits

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM THE COPPER BELT OF SONORA.

A New Copper Mine that is Destined to Rank Among Mexico's Greatest.

Hermosillo, Mexico, November 20.—Local investors are showing unusual interest in copper stocks—particularly in the stocks of Sonora properties that have passed beyond the stage of mere prospects.

The property that is the strongest in public favor is the Lluvia de Cobre, located about 50 miles north from Hermosillo and about 30 miles west from Carbo on the Sonora Railway. This is considered one of the most valuable copper properties in the state, and much of the stock is held by the most conservative local investors. Business, banking and mining men of Hermosillo look with much favor upon this property, and the general prediction is that the Lluvia will very soon develop into one of the state's largest producers.

The property has been examined and reported on by some of the best known copper experts and engineers in the South-West—among the most prominent being Messrs. J. J. Wood and Thomas Bentley, well known as expert assayers through their work in this line for the Banco de Sonora, one of the largest banking institutions of Mexico. Exhaustive reports are also made by D. J. Thompson, L. Ib Jansen, and others. The verdict of all is that this is a property of great value, and that from every indication it is soon to become another Greene Consolidated. Those familiar with the great Greene property say that no two properties in America are so nearly alike in every way as are these two kings of Sonora.

During the past month sensational developments have been made almost daily. The big strike of sulphide ore which was made in the Josephine shaft some weeks ago was one of unusual richness. The ore was encountered near the 350-foot level and penetrated for something near 70 feet, averaging from 7 1-2 per cent. to 25 per cent. in copper, and is one of the very best smelting ores, as it carries its own fluxes.

Following this rich strike the shaft penetrated an excellent deposit of iron sprinkled throughout with native copper, and just a few days ago went into the second layer of sulphides and with every indication present that the permanent sulphide bed will be reached at almost any moment. When that is accomplished the stock of this company should, and no doubt will, advance to far above its par value of $1.00 per share.

The company has been selling some of its stock for development purposes during the past two months, and the first block, offered at 25 cents, was quickly taken up and the price was just recently advanced to 35 cents per share. Conservative investors are taking up this second offering very rapidly, confident that this price will be more than doubled at a very early date.

The president vice-president and other officers and directors of the Lluvia de Cobra Mining Co., of Kansas City, Mo., recently spent several days at Camp Lluvia, and were more than gratified with the progress that is being made. Mr. W. T. Lake is in charge of the office at Hermosillo, and Mr. J. C. Worthington, General Manager, is directing the work at the mine.

The property is well equipped for present needs with steam hoist and other modern machinery. The assay office, tool house, shaft house, store house, and the homes for the workers are all well built and in first class condition. A full crew of men is working in two shifts, and the work of sinking the Josephine shaft on through to the permanent sulphide bed is being rushed with all possible speed. The miners are of the better class of Mexican laborers, are trained workmen, well paid and well satisfied with the treatment they are receiving from Manager Worthington. In this section of Mexico labor troubles are unknown.

The original holdings of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. consisted of about 165 acres, but 120 acres of valuable adjoining property was added by the officers on their recent visit, making the present holdings 285 acres. This additional territory will mean much to the future of this already valuable property. Before the present offering of stock was placed on the market the officers of the company had already been developing the property for two years and had spent thousands of dollars of their own money in carrying the work to its present stage. The company needs larger equipment to carry on the larger work outlined, and for that purpose stock is now being sold.

A smelter will probably be a proposition of the early future; but for the present, Green's big custom smelter at Guaymas will handle all the ore when shipments begin. The ore can be milled at a very small cost, owing to its unusually fine smelting qualities. Good wagon roads lead direct from the mine to Carbo, and the ore can be transported at a very reasonable cost.

Timber, fuel and water are near at hand and can be had at very small cost. In fact, everything is present in the Lluvia for the making of a very great mine—and that it will become such in the very early days of the future is the prediction of men in a position to know—the best and most expert mining engineers of Mexico.

LLUVIA DE COBRE HAS HIGH VALUE ORES.

The average of the many assays made on ores taken from all parts of the Lluvia de Cobre property, show an unusually high value.

Some of the most capable and experienced mining engineers in this country and Mexico have examined the Lluvia de Cobre property, and it is the general opinion of all that Lluvia de Cobre ores will run probably higher in value than the ores from many of the world's other greatest copper mines.

Following is a list of some of the world's greatest copper producers and the average value of the ores handled:

Anaconda	1.35
Calumet & Hecla	3.5
Greene Consolidated	7.1
Quincy	1.5
Rio Tinto	2.10
United Verde	7.
Osceola	1.
Parrot	2.

When it is remembered that all these properties are valued at millions of dollars and have paid dividends of many millions more, and that the average valuation of the ores produced by these eight big properties is less than 3.5 per cent., it will readily be seen what a valuable property we have in the Lluvia de Cobre, with the possibility of opening up an enormous body of ore averaging probably double this amount.

A BIG, NEW SMELTER CLOSE AT HAND.

Colonel Greene is now building a large custom smelter at Guaymas on the coast of the Gulf of California. This will be one of the largest and most modern smelters in the State of Sonora, and as it is directly south of our property and at the terminus of the Sonora Railway, it will give us excellent smelting facilities until such time as we have our own smelter in operation.

MINING ACTIVITY IN MEXICO.

(From 1906 Edition of Stevens Copper Handbook, the world's most eminent authority on Copper).

MEXICO—The Republic of Mexico has made relatively greater strides in copper production during the past five years than any other country in the world. Not only has there been a most remarkable relative gain, but the actual gain in output puts Mexico an exceedingly close second to the United States in point of increase. That Mexico will soon lead Spain, and rank second only to the United States, seems assured. The Boleo has long been an important mine, but the copper production of all other Mexican mines was but 1,300 tons so recently as 1896. Since that time the Greene, Inguarran, Dandela, Moctezuma and other great properties have been developed. Those interested in copper will do well to keep an eye on Mexico for the next two years.

Mexico has upwards of 200 smelters of all sorts, mostly very crude, but with a few of the most modern type and of immense size, notable among the latter being the fine plants of the American Smelting and Refining Co. at Aguascalientes, Monterey and San Luis Potosi. There are also fine reduction plants of the Boleo, Green Consolidated, Descubridora and other copper mines of the country.

WATER AND FUEL.

In the development of the Greene property one of the most serious problems that presented itself was the water supply.

No such difficulties are encountered at the Lluvia de Cobre. The property is located in a draw, and water can be secured in sufficient quantities to supply all possible needs at any time in the future.

Fuel timber grows in abundance in the immediate neighborhood and can be cut and prepared for use at a very small cost.

Expert Testimony as to the Lluvia de Cobre Mine

FROM A PROMINENT MINING ENGINEER.

"I have visited the Lluvia de Cobre property various times. My opinion has always been that it was valuable mineral ground. Subsequent development work has proven this opinion to be correct."

H. H. LIGHT, E. M., Hermosillo, Mex.

FROM THE MANAGER OF WELLS-FARGO EXPRESS CO. FOR THE STATE OF SONORA.

"I have been to the Lluvia de Cobre properties and can say that in my opinion they have a fine future, with very little development work. I have talked the matter over with expert mining men and find that my opinion is well based and would not be surprised to see this property rise to be among the biggest in the state."

L. P. GAXIOLA, Hermosillo, Mex.

FROM THE HERMOSILLO MANAGER OF THE LLUVIA DE COBRE MINE.

"I had one of the most beautiful homes in this city, and exchanged it for a block of Lluvia de Cobre stock before there was any amount of work done, and can now get my home back in exchange for ONE-FIFTH of the same stock that I received for the property, so you see that our people here think well of the Lluvia's future."

W. T. LAKE.

The Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. is really a close corporation, the controlling interest being held by well known Kansas City business men. As to the business standing and integrity of the Officers and Directors of this Company we refer by special permission to The Fidelity Trust Company or The Union Avenue Bank of Commerce, both of Kansas City, Mo.

LLUVIA DE COBRE Stock now 35 Cents a Share - - Par Value $1.00

The original incorporators of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Company have already expended thousands of dollars of their own money in the purchase and development of the property to its present stage.

These developments prove that the Lluvia de Cobre is destined to become one of the world's leading copper producers, and that it justifies much more extensive and more rapid development than it is now receiving. We want money in order that we may greatly increase the working force, purchase more machinery and equipment of all kinds. We want to rush the work of sinking the Josephine shaft (which at this time has reached a depth of 350 feet), push our crosscutting operations. We want to thoroughly open up this big property and then install mills, smelters, additional work houses, store houses—everything necessary to make this the really big mine that it can surely be made with the necessary capital behind it.

Only 400,000 shares are to be sold for this purpose, as this will secure sufficient money to meet all requirements. 100,000 shares of this stock will be sold at 35 cents per share. It is no reflection upon the value of this great property to admit that we must seek outside financial assistance. The great Greene Consolidated would not be the immense property it is today had it not been for the aid of the investing public. The Calumet and Hecla, Anaconda, Boston and Montana—these and all other big mining properties owe their present greatness to the co-operation and assistance of the "outside investor."

COPPER IS THE WORLD'S GREATEST FORTUNE MAKER.

Every argument that could be desired points to copper as the king of all mining investments.

Electricity, the one great factor in the modernization of the world, is believed to be only in its infancy—and even now the world's supply of copper is not sufficient to supply the demand for this one industry alone.

"Never in memory has copper mining been as profitable as it is today. Not only has the increasing consumption and high market prices initiated prosperity, but the improvements in mining methods have made it possible to handle all grades of ore economically."—The Mining World, March 31, 1906.

"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world today."—Thomas W. Lawson.

"Lawson, we have verified your conclusions as to the value of copper stocks as an investment."—H. H. Rogers.

No investment is so safe, so permanent, so profitable, so sure and tain, as copper!

My Personal Guarantee to Investors

I have told you just what must necessarily be done before this property can be made the big producer that I feel it is destined to become. I have told you why this company needs more money to obtain these results and why you are given the opportunity to assist in furnishing it. I believe this proposition offers far greater returns per dollar invested than any other investment proposition on the market.

So confident am I of the future of this great property that I have this proposition to make to you:

Subscribe at once for as much of this stock as you feel that you can carry. Investigate the mine and the men behind it in any and every way you please for thirty days. If you are not entirely satisfied with your investment at the end of that time, you have but to write me to that effect and I will return every cent of your money.

I want you to feel that you positively cannot go wrong by making an investment in Lluvia de Cobre stock. I want you to decide the question of making this investment, and I want you to give me your order at the earliest possible moment.

Weigh this proposition in the balance—let the facts in the case, as they impress you, decide its true worth. I leave it to your good judgment as to whether you shall be one of the chosen few who shall make of the Lluvia de Cobre another Greene Consolidated.

Officers and Directors

The success of any mining company depends first, of course, upon the property itself, but next, and of almost equal importance, is the personnel of the men back of the whole proposition.

We publish herewith a complete list of the officers and directors of the Lluvia de Cobre Mining Co. We do not believe a more trustworthy or more efficient organization was ever effected. Each and every man has made a pronounced and unusual success in some one particular line of business endeavor and is exceptionally well suited to the duties required by his connection with this company.

Investigate this proposition and the men behind it in any and every way you please—and let the verdict of those who know assist you in deciding whether or not these gentlemen are worthy of your trust and confidence.

The Worst Snowstorm the West Has Had for Years

Winnipeg, Jan. 4—One of the worst snowstorms which has struck Winnipeg in years has been in progress for the past few days. The present winter is, according to the oldtimers who can hark back to the days of Fort Garry, one of the heaviest for generations. The railroads are being taxed to the utmost in fighting the snow, and today all trains are late or abandoned entirely.

The C.P.R. state that the last snow storm, when eight inches fell within forty-eight hours, cost them $250,000. The Canadian Northern this winter is costing $12,000 a day more than in the summer time to operate, not counting the loss of traffic.

The nearest approach to the snowfall figures of this year were in 1886, when 23 inches fell. Last year was an exceptional year, very little snow falling. Oldtimers state that even the record of 1879, when the town was snowed in for nearly a month, has been beaten.

Two Hundred Million Bushels of Grain

Western Canada's Enormous Grain Yield of 1906

Winnipeg, January 4.—Figures which have been compiled here indicating the agricultural progress of the Canadian West during the past year, show that the grain crop of the three provinces totalled 201,830,153 bushels, and that up to date 63,789,100 bushels of wheat have been marketed. There are 1,200 interior elevators, and yet these are insufficient to handle the grain crop with the present car supply of the railways.

The cattle industry also is a very important factor in the country's wealth, $4,689,635 net having been paid to ranchers alone last year, the prices ruling fairly high, an average of over $7 per head for export steers being paid. Some 130,000 head of cattle were received at the Winnipeg stock yards, and nearly 85,000 were carried to the seaboard over the C. P. R., an increase of 27,000 compared with the previous year.

The supply of hogs was altogether inadequate to meet the demands of the market, and an average price of $7.11 per hundred weight prevailed.

The supply of sheep is much below the requirements of the market.

Cold Trip, no Boots.

Windsor, Jan. 1.—J. H. McConnel, a former Windsor alderman, who was in the railway wreck at Komoka, has arrived here. In order to help bring relief to the passengers, he, with some others, undertook a trip of three miles across the snow in his stocking feet with the mercury down to 20 below zero and had both feet frozen.

Jealousy.

"That word 'communist,' my dear," observed the young husband, correcting her, "has the accent on the first syllable."

"How do you know?"

"The dictionary says so."

"I never saw a man as prejudiced in favor of dictionaries as you are!" exclaimed the young wife. "I wish you had married a dictionary!"

Too Much at Stake to Forget.

"When you are absorbed in your business cares downtown today, Herbert, you will forget your little wife entirely."

Glace Bay Mine Still Burning

OCEAN IS NOT FLOODING IT

May Be Useless for a Year

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 4.—The problem of flooding the Hub Colliery at Glace Bay is proving far more serious than was at first anticipated, and officials of the company who held out that the fire would be extinguished within two weeks or so were somewhat wide of the mark in their prophecy. Three weeks have already passed since the fire started, and hundreds of thousands of gallons of water have been poured into the smoldering volcano, and many thousands more will have to flow in before it can be said that the fire is out to a certainty. It was reported that at high tides water from the 'Atlantic was' flowing into the mine through two openings made in the cliff at Table Head. This is ascertained now not to be the case. The water flowed into the openings; and up the slopes but only a few waves flowed into the pit. The water in order to get into the mine, would have to go up an incline above high tide level. All water that has gone into the mine so far has been from the reservoir at No. 2. This has been flowing in only at the rate of 2,500 gallons per hour. The water is still hundreds of feet from the pit bottom, where the fire is believed to be still burning. A pump is now being placed at the reservoir, in order to increase the flow. The question arises, how long will this limited reservoir supply hold out? The drain upon it is very heavy, and a severe frost will probably cut off its resources.

Experienced miners say that the pit will not be recovered inside of a year. They do not think the fire is making any great gain now, but that it would nevertheless be fatal to open the colliery, as in that event smoldering coals would break out into fresh flames.

LONDON'S GREAT SCHEME.

Ultimate Cost Will Probably Be $115,000,000 to Supply Electricity—Covers 451 Square Miles.

A great anti-trust move is proposed by the London County Council, which, if it can obtain the consent of Parliament, is going to spend $20,250,000 on a huge scheme for supplying London and the surrounding country with electricity. This would kill the threatened formation of a trust which is looming ahead with its inevitable accompaniment of increased rates.

It is proposed to cover an area of 451 square miles, comprising the County of London and parts of Middlesex, Essex, Kent and Surrey with the Council's system. A great central generating station will be built on the banks of the Thames below the city at a cost of $7,000,000, and the other $13,250,000 will be spent on the transmission and distribution of the power.

The majority of the London County Council is Progressive (Municipal-Socialist), and the scheme is opposed by the Moderates (Conservatives) on the Council, who favor another scheme for leasing the right to supply the whole London district with electricity to a corporation. In other words, the Moderates are backing the trust proposition.

Their corporation would simply be the controlling centre, which would combine all the existing electricity corporations in London, eliminate competition, regulate wages, and fix the rates to consumers at its own figure.

London hopes to be saved from the clutches of an electricity trust by the bold schemes of the County Council. The proposal, although it came late, was made a prominent issue in the London municipal elections, and gained the Progressives, who were threatened with a landslide, many votes.

If the Council does not take up the control of the electricity supply, it will fall into the hands of the trust, which, after running it for some years, will sell it back to the Council at a huge profit.

The Parliamentary Committee which considered the question of London's electricity supply last session decided that it was desirable that the Council should have control of the whole undertaking, and the big Liberal majority in the Commons, which is opposed to the trust interest, is certain to carry the scheme through. The only thing the bill will have to fear then is the House of Lords, which has already attempted to wreck some of the Council's improvement schemes.

In 1910, if the scheme goes through, the first two sections of the generating station will be working, and a great impetus will be given to the industries of London by a cheap and plentiful supply of power. The Council is confident that the revenue derived from the undertaking will be more than sufficient to cover the expenditure, including the charges for sinking fund and interest on capital, so that the Council's successful street car and other undertakings are likely to be followed by another great object lesson in municipal ownership.

A Distinguished Trio.

The Hon. Joseph Chamberlain is fond of relating an incident that occurred while he and Lord Rosebery were returning from the theatre one night. While crossing the street they were accosted by a ragged boy who, after sweeping the mud from their path, asked for alms.

Lord Rosebery was about to give the boy a coin when an idea struck him. "My boy," said Rosebery, "if you will hit that policeman a swat I will give you ten shillings." Prompt to the word, the boy crept in back of the officer, and, raising his broom struck him in the back, then turned and ran, but to the dismay of Rosebery, the officer caught the boy after a chase of a few yards.

Not wanting to leave the boy in a fix Rosebery tried to fix things up with the officer, but the worthy gentleman would not listen, and took them all three up to the station.

They were then taken before the judge of the station, and after surveying them through his glasses, he took down a book and, turning to Chamberlain, asked his name. "Hon. Joseph Chamberlain," was the reply, and the judge smiled.

Rosebery responded also with his full title, "Lord Rosebery."

The boy was next, and stepping to the front he drew himself up to his full height, and waited for the usual question, "Your name?"

"My name," said the boy, "Well, judge, I'm not the kind as what goes back on me pals. I'm the 'Duke of Wellington.'"

Faithful to Her Love.

Few people are aware of the reasons which bind Queen Alexandra and the beautiful Duchess of Aosta in such close friendship. The Duchess, who has been visiting the Queen, is a sister of the Queen of Portugal, and a daughter of the late Comte de Paris. As the beautiful Orleans Princess she was a playmate and companion in England of the late Prince "Eddie," the King's eldest son, and when she grew up the affection between the two ripened into love.

Queen Alexandra would have much liked to have seen the two united, but at that time the marriage between the heir to the British throne and a Catholic princess was deemed to be out of the question. Whenever Queen Alexandra deposits on the day of her eldest son's death a wreath on his tomb at Windsor, there can always be found another from the Duchess d'Aosta.

The other day the Duchess made a special trip to Windsor with another wreath to lay on the Prince's tomb, although it was not the anniversary of his death.

Irish Wit.

An Englishman traveling in Ireland complained that he could find none of the famous Irish wits of whom he had heard. He was advised to speak to the next farmer or teamster he met.

A little later he encountered a peasant leading a horse with a load of turf. The horse had a blazed face.

"What a white face your horse has, my man!" said the Englishman, by way of an opening.

"Sure," replied the Irishman, "your own will be as white when it has been as long in the halter."

Curious Coincidences.

When the Ring theater, in Vienna, was burned, with great loss of life, one of the other playhouses of the Austrian capital was playing Pailleron's "Le Monde ou l'on S'Ennuie;" when the Stadt theater, in Vienna, was burned another theater in that city was playing "Le Monde ou l'on S'Ennuie," and on the evening of the day when the fire in the charity bazaar in Paris took place the Theatre Francais was announced to play "Le Monde ou l'on S'Ennuie."

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Simple Way to Overcome the Dangers of this Disagreeable Disease.

Catarrh is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, with many annoying symptoms. In this climate there are few who do not suffer from this disagreeable disease, often in a chronic and dangerous state.

Fortunately, within the last few years, a simple and reliable treatment for catarrhal troubles has been found—Hyomei, a combination of healing and germ-killing balsams, that, when breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaches the tiniest cells in the respiratory organs, carrying its healing and health-giving properties to every part where the catarrhal poison is present.

Used in this way, Hyomei kills all catarrhal germs, drives the poison from the system and heals all irritation that may be present in the mucous membrane.

If you have the ordinary catarrhal symptoms, such as offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, cough, raising of mucous, difficulty in breathing, sneezing, hoarseness, discharge from the nose, droppings in the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hyomei at once.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for the symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,600 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

If you want to invest in a MINE with vast possibilities, let us hear from you at once and we will send detailed information.

The New Eve Has Located in Windsor

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Mason, who accompanied D. L. McKay to this country from England, has assumed control of the Israelite colony in this city, and styles herself the "New Eve, Mother of the House of Israel." She recently paid an old fine imposed on one member of the colony, and displayed a roll of bills that dazzled the officers. She claims to have unlimited resources, and will establish a new headquarters at Kingsville, where she is negotiating to purchase the old Metawas property. At present Mrs. Mason is fighting to secure the admittance of McKay, her private secretary, to the United States. He has been barred by the Immigration Department, and is now in Montreal awaiting the outcome.

London Streets.

Miles lane is a corruption of St. Michael's lane; Mark lane for Mort (market) lane; Sermon lane for Shermonier lane, the locality of the "sheremoneyers," who sheared or clipped bullion into shape for coining at the exchange near by; Sise lane for St. Osyth's lane; Gutter lane for Guthrun lane, from a Dane who owned the property there.

Perspiration.

Human perspiration if injected into dogs or rabbits acts like a deadly poison. Perspiration secreted during hard muscular work has more toxic power than the ordinary kind, while that obtained from subjects whose secretion has been checked by cold is very poisonous.

Venetian Glass.

Venetian glass is not made in Venice, but in the island of Murano.

Snappy Seeds.

The seed vessels of wild peas and beans when dry open and curl up with a sudden snap which expels the seeds sometimes to a distance of twelve to twenty feet. Indications of this habit are seen in the cultivated varieties, the seed pods of which often curl with a snap when opened.

Discovered by Accident.

The vast collection of the state papers of Thurloe, Cromwell's state secretary, which make about 700 volumes, was discovered by accident. They had been hidden in the false ceiling of a room in Lincoln's inn. By accident, the fastenings having rusted away, the ceiling fell, and this precious collection came to light.

The Flounder.

The flounder is an industrious fish and lays 7,000,000 eggs in a year.

White Ants.

The white ants of Ceylon are very industrious. Their hillocks are about the size of a cocoanut and contain sponge-like nests, each inhabited by thousands of ants. Pinhead nodules of white fungus are cultivated in these nests as food.

Plums.

More energy can be extracted from one pound of plums than can be got from a pound of fresh pears or even from a pound of dried figs or a pound of prunes.

Whole Wheat.

It is a recommendation from a dietetic authority that whole wheat grains are an excellent pick me up between meals when the craving for a bit of food is strong. The wheat kernels should be well chewed and are better, according to the dictum quoted, than the usual cracker taken at such times.

Alligator and Crocodile.

Among the many differences between the alligator and the crocodile there is a striking one—the alligator never leaves fresh water, while the crocodile often goes to sea.

Nosebleed.

When the nose is bleeding never hold it over a basin or hold the head down in any way. This only causes further rush of blood to the broken tissues in the nose. The head should be held up and back, the flow being caught in handkerchiefs or cloths. One of the most effective and simple means of checking a nosebleed is to press on the upper lip.

Common Names.

Mary is the most common Christian name. Out of every thousand English people 68 are named Mary, 66 William, 62 John and 60 Eliza.

New York's Chamber of Commerce.

New York city has the oldest commercial corporation in the United States, the chamber of commerce, organized May 5, 1768, in historic Fraunce's tavern, where Washington had his headquarters and where he bid farewell to his officers after the Revolution.

Cats' Fur.

Cats' fur has no oily substance in it and consequently is more easily wetted through than that of most other animals.

Panama Jungle Animals.

Among the animals in the Panama jungles and swamps are deer, wild hogs, turkeys, pigeons, partridges, woodcock, rabbits, tapirs, monkeys, pumas, leopards, as well as some tigers and lions.

Lemons.

Before grating lemons it is well to wash them in a basin of lukewarm water, for on examination it will be found that the outside of a lemon is anything but clean, and if put under a microscope it will be discovered to have tiny black specks on it, which are the minute eggs of an insect.

Winnipeg Is Buried Under Deep Snow

Washington, Jan. 4.—Not in recent years, except in war time, has the U.S. Army been so badly in need of men as at present. A recent circular, addressed to all officers of the recruiting service, calls attention to the fact that recruits are needed in large numbers for the coast artillery, the field artillery, the white infantry, and the white cavalry. Recruiting officers are enjoined to redouble their efforts.

Officers on duty at the War Department admit that the situation is one calling for the most extraordinary efforts to get more men, not only to fill vacancies that now exist, but also those which will occur during the present year among the three-year men who enlisted in 1904.

It is declared at the War Department that the present prosperity and the labor famine of the country are more or less responsible for the condition, and it is also stated that on account of the lack of the canteen, many men were refusing to re-enlist.

Incidentally, it was stated, an effort will be made to make army life more attractive, and to impress the men with the idea that they are enlisted as soldiers, and not as laboring men.

Change in Selling Rink Tickets

The management of the rink and Hockey Club have decided that in future the plan of the reserved seats for hockey games, as well as general admission tickets shall be on sale at the rink instead of in stores down town, as has been the custom in the past.

THE ONLY PACKERS OF BEEF, PORK AND OTHER FOOD PRODUCTS OF THE RANCHES AND FARMS OF WESTERN CANADA.

This Company has already about 1,000 shareholders, all of whom have paid for their shares in cash on equal terms, and shares are allotted by priority of application.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary;—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 30c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 200,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold; the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid may into 10 fully paid $100-share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions ($20,000,000), or in other words, nineteen fully paid $100-Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalisation, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

EXTRACT FROM REPORT, JUNE 30TH, 1905.

"An interesting brochure published by Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, give statistics of the past year's business. The total sales for the year aggregated over $[illegible],000,000, representing shipments of 80 carloads daily. In a single day were slaughtered in the company's seven packing plants 11,875 cattle 16,583 sheep and 34,[illegible] hogs.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present; The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs. J. A. Banfield, F. R. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION;

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 375 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 35 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

Review of 1906 and Announcement for 1907

Bulletin No. 475.—New York, December 8th, 1906

To the Field Force

GENTLEMEN:

It is our custom to address you each year at the time of our annual Superintendents' Convention. Usually this is held about the middle of January, and the Topic of the BULLETIN is naturally the Annual Statement of the Company. This year the Superintendents meet in convention the middle of December, and obviously the record of the year is not made up, and it would be premature to set forth the progress of the Company in its business and finances. We shall have something very pleasant to say to you before we close about what you have accomplished; but our immediate object is to tell you about our plans for next year.

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT

You have known from numerous addresses, both oral and written, what our ambition has been for years in the Industrial part of our business. You will bear us witness that our treatment of the policy-holders has been one of progressive liberality ever since the present administration of the Company began. The very first year of its incumbency Paid up policies—theretofore unknown to Industrial insurance in this country—were announced; and every year since then something has been done for Industrial policy-holders beyond any promise made it the policies. Bulletin No. 195 set forth these concessions and bounties up to its date and since then the successive years have been marked by progressive gifts and benefits offered to policy-holders; and this year the Company has been disbursing the enormous sum of ABOUT TWO MILLIONS OF DOLLARS in voluntary dividends upon non-participating Industrial policies; bringing the total amount of UNPROMISED DIVIDENDS in twelve years to about TEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS to Industrial policy-holders in the form of dividends on premiums, dividends on death claims and increases of benefits upon existing policies.

We have been enabled to accomplish this work all these years by steady improvements in business methods, by steady extensions of business territory, by steady additions to insurance in force, by watchfulness in writing and taking care of business, resulting in a decreasing death rate, decreasing lapse rate and decreasing expense rate. These improvements we have announced to you from year to year; but perhaps from this very fact—their gradual, steady progressiveness—you have failed to grasp their full significance. Yet year by year we have told you our aim—to reduce expenses, to improve the death rate, to better the policies, to distribute the surplus, so that each year a larger proportionate amount could be returned to policy-holders and a smaller proportionate amount used in expenses.

Within the last few years our disbursements for death claims have been so continuously and markedly less in proporation to income and our improvements in ratio of expenses shown so steady an improvement, that we thought the time had come to make a scientific resurvey, so to speak, of the technical features of the business. We have made investigations into our mortality and drawn off into various periods our experience of mortality. The mortality tables upon which our present tables are founded were taken from the experience of 1890-1894. A comparison of this with tables taken from the experience of other periods has shown a steady improvement in morality. In the case of children the result is really startling. Take, for instance, age two next birthday. Our present table shows 49.3 deaths per thousand; a table 1886-1905 shows but 31.9; age three the figures are respectively 32 and 24.3; age five 16 and 9.8; age ten 5.5 and 3.8, and this improvement runs through the Infantile table. As to adults there is also a marked improvement.

These facts convince us that the time has come to construct new tables of benefits founded upon our experience of 1886-1905; and we are confirmed in our conviction by the fact that a table drawn from the years 1901-1905 shows a better experience than that of the full decade. And it seems to us just to base these tables upon the experience of white lives; and to give benefits based upon the improvement which we feel certain is permanent. How great this improvement is we illustrate by a few figures comparing the table upon which our present benefits are based with a table of white lives for the last ten years. Deaths per thousand: age two next birthday 49.3 reduced to 34.7; age three 32 to 22.5; age four 21.5 to 13.2; age five 16 to 9.5; age ten 5.5 to 3.4; age twenty 10.5 to 7.1; age thirty 15.7 to 11.1; age forty 19.3 to 14.3. The other element besides mortality involved in a table of benefits is of course the expense. As you know, our ratio of expense to premium income has been falling for some years; this year the reduction has been phenomenal and will reach, we think, by the end of the year, THREE PER CENT.! This alone means a saving of nearly one and a half millions of dollars! We shall show a lower ratio of expense for 1906 than has been experienced by any Industrial company in the world.

One other element goes into the construction of tables of benefits; and that is the maturity of the policies. When we made up our present table we were convinced that the public was enamored of endowments. Our industrial business has been issued for ten years, as you know, mainly upon Endowment tables—Increasing Life and Endowment policies and Twenty-year Endowments forming a very large proportion, in some years over 90 per cent. of our total business. One disadvantage of this table has been that it largely increases the reserve. Our Children's Increasing Life and Endowment policies have been endowments payable after periods of 47 years and upwards according to age at issue. Compared with the Whole Life tables issued by other companies these have made necessary the accumulation of an increase of many millions of dollars in reserve. Unthinking persons come to the conclusion that this piles up the WEALTH of the Company, forgetting that along with the increase of assets runs the increase of liabilities, and that the WEALTH of a company consists in its SURPLUS; and completely overlooking the remarkable fact that we have deliberately kept down our surplus to about ten per cent. of our assets by annual distributions of the excess of surplus earned to the policy-holders who contributed to it. Public opinion has changed and now cares more for death benefits than endowments. We are in business to please the public. We have a good deal of evidence that Ordinary Life and Limited Payment Life contracts are thought preferable to Endowments. We have resolved therefore to discontinue our Increasing Life and Endowment policies, which were designed to meet the public demand formerly existing, and which, were, we believe, the first tables ever really scientifically constructed for Industrial policies. Our new Industrial policies will therefore be Whole Life contracts. But we think that as to these there are signs of a belief on the part of the public that payment of premiums ought to cease with old age. It is hard for people to see what to any mathematician is self-evident, that in life insurance the companies are enabled to pay the policies in full on lives of those who die soon after insurance only by the receipt of premiums from those who live out and beyond their expectations;" and that the apparent hardship upon those who live long is only the contribution to the unfortunate which is the essential basis of life insurance. However, it is possible of course to make tables for limited payments, and the problem is therefore to fix an age that shall not be so young as to raise the premiums or (what is the same in Industrial insurance where the unit is the premium and not the amount of insurance) to reduce the benefits unduly; and on the other hand to fix the age not so old that the benefits of the limits of payment of premiums shall be lost. We have fixed age 75 as the limit of payment of premiums because at that age we are enabled to only slightly reduce the benefits during life and because we have not received many complaints of the necessity of paying premiums up to that age. And to the occasional complaint that "people never live to such old age," we may answer that in 1906 we shall have voluntarily, as matter of grace, paid about 2,700 claims as ENDOWMENTS on policies issued as WHOLE LIFE on persons reaching age 80 after paying premiums for 15 years or over.

Constructing a table of benefits upon these four principles—Whole Life instead of Endowments; our recent mortality experience instead of our old; a loading proportioned to our reduced expenses; and the payment of premiums ceasing at age 75—we shall put forth for 1907 new tables in the Industrial department which which are better than any company has heretofore issued and better than we have ever before this felt it safe to issue.

The most striking change is in the Infantile table, because there we substitute Life tables with payment of premiums limited to age 75 for our comparatively short Increasing Endowment tables now in use; and are therefore enabled to pay in benefits what we have been compelled to hold as reserve liability upon the endowment features.

OUR NEW INFANTILE TABLES WILL PAY NEARLY AS MUCH IN DEATH BENEFITS FOR A WEEKLY PREMIUM OF FIVE CENTS AS WE HAVE HERETOFORE PAID FOR A WEEKLY PREMIUM OF TEN CENTS. It is of course understood that the law fixes a maximum of benefits payable upon children and this we cannot exceed. We have therefore increased the benefits at the later ages for persistence. Thus at age two at entry the benefit in case of death at age nine is $173, while the benefit at age three at entry dying at age nine is $169, and the benefit at age four at entry dying at age nine is $165, and so on. This is a recognition of the additional additional years for which premiums have been paid by those entering at earlier ages when death occurs at the same age. It follows from this large increase of benefits for five cents that hereafter no policy will be issued under the Infantile tables for a total premium of more than five cents. And to meet a desire for less insurance, especially in large families, we have a table with proportionate benefits for a weekly premium of three cents.

OUR ADULT TABLES SHOW AN INCREASE OF BENEFITS FOR THE SAME PREMIUM based strictly upon our tables of mortality. At age ten the increase is 12½ per cent. over our present Life table and nearly 18 per cent. over our Increasing Life and Endowment table. At age 20 the increase is over nine per cent. and over 23 per cent. respectively; at age 30 the increase is nearly six per cent. and nearly 20 per cent. respectively; at age 40 the increase is two per cent. and over 18 per cent. respectively, and so on. And in comparing these tables with our present Whole Life tables (and with those of most of the other Industrial companies) it must not be forgotten that these old tables provide for payment of premium during the whole of life, while under our new tables payment of premiums ceases at age 75.

We have increased the immediate benefits under all of these policies in accordance with the rule we made retroactive this year, to half-benefits during the first six months and full benefits thereafter.

We have introduced into all of these policies new features in the way of surrender values. Paid-up policies will be granted after THREE years instead of five; extended insurance will be granted after three years at the option of the holder; and cash surrenders will be paid after ten years. The policies will be in new and attractive forms, with three pages instead of two, in order to set forth all of the concessions, making the rights of the policy-holders so plain that any one will be able to tell what he is entitled to. And the whole contract will be expressed in the policy, doing away entirely with the necessity of a copy of the application, using the form in this respect for ALL policies which we adopted many years ago for policies under $300.

ORDINARY DEPARTMENT.

One of the most striking results of the Armstrong Investigation was the adoption of a provision restricting expenses for the first year of the life of the policy. And what is most interesting as well as complimentary to the METROPOLITAN is the fact, which appeared in the newspaper discussion at the time of the adoption of the report and bills, that this restriction by law was justified by the experience of this Company in the matter of expense as shown by an analysis of its annual reports. It is true that this Company kept its expenses almost within the limit prescribed by the new statute. But the statute is a penal one and we cannot run any risk of over-running the limit of expense. This necessitates a reduction of commissions, but the reduction will be very much less than that made necessary by the companies issuing participating policies. THIS COMPANY WILL NOT ISSUE AFTER THIS YEAR ANY OTHER THAN NON PARTICIPATING POLICIES. In fact, in the true sense of the term we have not issued any other for nearly fifteen years; for, as we have often explained, the Intermediate and Special Class policies were based upon stock or a non-participating loading and the dividends promised, if earned, were expected to be derived from the mortality. These policies were entirely novel and we had little experience to guide us. The Intermediate policies were based upon our Industrial table of mortality and were designed for Industrial risks who could afford to pay annual instead of weekly premiums; and the mortality of such a class could not be foretold. The Special Class policies were for sub-standard risks as to which the mortality could not be accurately predicted. What we undertook to do was to pay back to the policy-holders the gain from such improvement in mortality over the expected as should be actually experienced. As participating policies are based upon a higher or so-called mutual loading out of which dividends are expected to be earned, we claim that our Intermediate and Special Class policies based upon a stock loading were in principle non-participating. All of our other policies in the Ordinary Department were by their terms non-participating. The law has justified us in the principles we adopted fifteen years ago, and to-day the Armstrong laws and the similar ones prepared for other States are a vindication of the METROPOLITAN principles in which you have been trained. We have now an experience of Intermediate and Special Class risks which enable us to prepare non-participating tables. The tables of premiums as to these policies have heretofore been completely readjusted. We think you will find them most attractive.

We realize that we shall henceforth have more competition in non-participating policies. Other companies have announced their purpose to restrict their issue to this form. We have therefore thought it in your interest as well as our own and in the interest of the public, which is superior to both, to use a part of the reduction of commission to effect some reduction of premium. New tables have been prepared which we think will be attractive to our customers and which therefore will be profitable to you. In adjusting these commissions we have thought it only just to restore to the Superintendents an interest in them which we were compelled to withdraw a few years ago and which you remember the Vice-President promised at the time to restore when we should be able to arrange it. And we have also recognized the good work of Assistant Superintendents by giving them an interest in the work of their agents. We realize that the duties of Superintendents and Assistants include the instruction and training of Industrial agents in the work of the Ordinary Department. We want all of our agents to be all around insurance men. Our Superintendents and Assistants have imposed upon them as a duty the supervision, the constant help and encouragement and the education of their agents. We have made it an interest as well as a duty.

Our new policies will be found most attractive in form and even more attractive in substance. They contain all of the advantages and concessions which we can afford to give and which the public have a right to expect. The surrender values will be found to be generous and take the optional forms of extended insurance, paid-up insurance and cash. They are the standard forms of the New York Department, the work of experts which has legislative approval. They are as plain to the understanding as they can be made. We have discontinued many plans as unnecessary. We shall issue Ordinary Life, Limited Payment, Endowment and Term Plans; and we have applied for permission and hope to issue in addition three plans which the public have stamped with their approval—namely, the Optional Life or Endowment, under a new name, the Modified Endowment with Life Option; the Guaranteed Dividend, also under a new and more descriptive name, the Guaranteed Increased Endowment; and the Reduced Premium Life under its new name, Life with Reduced Premium after 20 years.

Gentlemen, we are entitled to say that the Armstrong Investigation was a vindication of the methods and practises of the METROPOLITAN LIFE. The Armstrong laws are in many respects a distinct recognition of the work we have done together these many years. See that you appreciate this fact to the utmost. Show that you do by making the year 1907 an unexampled year for the issue of more policies, for larger insurance, for greater gain, for less lapses and not-takens, at a less expense, at a greater return to policy-holders than you have ever done. Live up to your blessings! Show that you appreciate the reward which the Legislature has conferred upon your good work of the past! Make 1907 the greatest because the best year in the Company's History!

THIS YEAR, 1906

You have started well. Last year, the year of the investigation, you did the largest business we had ever done. The first part of the year the paralysis which seemed, unreasonably and unnecessarily, to have fallen upon the business in general, appeared to have effected even you—even more unreasonably and unnecessarily. Finding this to be the fact, the Vice-President appealed to you in personal conferences with the Superintendents in little groups all over the country; pointed out to you the facts and conclusions of the Armstrong inquiry and the results as embodied in legislation; showed you the essential approval we had received in our work in both departments, and asked you to respond to all this for the remainder of the year by making the best record you had ever made. This was in May and June. It would be most ungrateful not to make this public and general acknowledgment of your response to the appeal, and on behalf of the Vice-President I give you his personal thanks and add our official acknowledgments. The year is not yet ended and we cannot therefore tell the whole story. But for the months July to November, inclusive, compared with the same months of previous years:

You made the largest amount of Industrial increase which the Company ever made, except in 1901 and 1903.

The agents wrote the largest amount of Industrial business average per man, of any of the last ten years.

The average increase per man was larger than for any of the past ten years.

The ratio of lapses was the third lowest for ten years past.

The number of transferred accounts was the lowest for eight years, notwithstanding the larger force of men with which we started and the larger reduction in the force we have made this year.

The collections were the best in the manner of [illegible]

The death claims reached the lowest ratio for the last 25 years—notwithstanding the increased average age of the policy-holders.

The special salary to agents AVERAGED the largest amount in the last ten years; and yet we saved $100,000 in the total compared with last year

The saving in total cost in these items alone, medical fees (because of a reduction in number of applications), Assistants' salaries and special salary, was at the rate of a million dollars a year.

We may add that the Pacific Coast kept up with the procession by the remarkable feat of covering for the year the enormous lapse caused by the earthquake and is certain to close the year with a handsome increase.

In the Ordinary Department September about equalled September of last year, while October and November largely exceeded the corresponding months of last year, and December promises to be a record-breaker!

And taking the last six months for comparison—June to November inclusive—you wrote more business than ever was written by the Company in the corresponding months and exceeded 1905 by over six millions and a half; and this it must be remembered by more than 3,000 less men.

We are proud of this record and we are grateful to you for your generous response. We cannot say more than to wish for you and yours the happiest and most prosperous year of your lives in 1907!

Very sincerely yours,

John R. Hegeman

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having been duly nominated a second time as alderman for the progressive City of Peterborough, I once again solicit your vote and influence at the coming elections, January 7th. In the future, as in the past, if elected, I shall always advocate the policy of municipal ownership of all public utilities, strongly believing such principles to be in the best interests of the general public. During the past year I have consistently supported and advanced such measures as would secure to the ratepayers economic civic government, and municipal control of public services. If once more honored with your confidence, such measures will receive from me unqualified support, and I shall make it my business to see that permanent improvements are equally distributed throughout the whole city, and that the expenditure of public monies is commensurate with value received.

Do You Want a Modern Collegiate Institute

If so Don't Overlook the Bylaw Today---Dr. Morrison's Reason's Why Bylaw Should Carry.

So much has been said in the press in favor of the Collegiate Institute bylaw that today no further comment is needed other than the publication below of the opinions of three more representative citizens as to why this measure should carry.

DR MORRISON'S VIEWS.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir—The Board of Education is asking the ratepayers for a further sum of $21,000 with which to erect a Collegiate Institute building, for which there is admitted to be a pressing necessity.

A bylaw authorizing the expenditure of this sum is to be submitted on Monday next, and the Board respectfully asks for it careful consideration, being fully confident that then all will be convinced of its merits, give it their support, and assist it with their influence.

As has been pointed out on several occasions, Peterborough has never had a Collegiate Institute building—the one now used having been rented for many years from the Public Schools. This is now required by these schools for their own purposes, and, even were it not so required, it is altogether inadequate to meet the demands of the rapidly increasing attendance. In the present building there are but six rooms for seven classes. There is no general assembly room which can be utilized for lectures, addresses, literary meetings and the like, and there is no satisfactory equipment for teaching Physical Science and giving much instruction in Technical education.

With the building of the new Normal School it will be made possible for a student to receive in Peterborough a complete course of instruction in Kindergarten, Public School, High School and Normal School classes. This advantage will undoubtedly attract many outsiders to our city, and provision must necessarily be made for the increased attendance thus occasioned.

It is argued that relief might be had by the establishing of a Fifth Form in the Public Schools. Such a course would be inadvisable and expensive, and at best only transfers the provision for accommodation from one school to another. It is the intention of the Board, however, to make the First Form of the Collegiate free and thus the question of extra cost will disappear.

To enter the Public School Fifth Form it is necessary to pass the Entrance examination, and the courses in the Public School are largely obligatory, while in the High School the principal is allowed considerable latitude. Under the regulations of the Educational Department, no pupil is required, unless it is the wish of his parents, to study any language except English, and other subjects may be omitted with the consent of the High School principal. Indeed, it is possible for a parent to select for his child such a course as may best prepare him for the future he may have in view; so that when it is kept in view that the teaching in the Collegiate Institute is largely in the hands of specialists, the advantage of a course in the High School First Form as compared with one in a Public School Fifth Form, is at once evident.

The Board believes that the citizens take considerable pride in their schools, and that they will mark their appreciation of them by granting the means whereby the work done can be made much more efficient—more especially as the additional cost will bear but lightly upon the ratepayers in view of the fact that, through the improved accommodation and equipment, the Provincial Government will contribute a much larger grant than at present.

Plans for the proposed structure have been prepared with due regard to economy in all its appointments, care being taken to provide only what is absolutely necessary and reasonable.

The estimates have been furnished by experienced representatives of all the trades involved, and the total amount asked for can, therefore, be accepted as thoroughly reliable, and must be considered as very moderate when compared with the cost of similar buildings recently erected throughout the Province.

Peterborough ranks high industrially and the ratepayers will be doing only justice to her fair fame by letting it be known that she can provide for the education of the children of all present and intending citizens facilities elsewhere unexcelled.

A vote for the bylaw is a vote to assist in the educational progress of the city.

I am, yours etc.,
M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman of Building Committee.

J. COYLE BROWN'S VIEWS.

The freeholders of the city should on Monday vote in favor of the Collegiate Institute bylaw. The value of every parcel of land in the city, and its neighborhood, will be increased by having a commodious and well equipped institute building. The staff of the institute will be able in various ways to do better work for the students under their charge Composed, as that staff is, of persons of literary and scientific attainments courses of lectures, essays, readings, etc., can be given, particularly during the winter months, and thus the benefits of the institute distributed to the citizens generally, instead of being confined to the students, as hitherto. The desirability, or otherwise of a place of residence depends to a very great extent on its intellectual and moral atmosphere. An institute, properly constructed, and run on the lines mentioned, would have a decided tendency upward, intellectually and morally. By all means let us vote for the bylaw.

ADAM DAWSON'S VIEWS.

Mr. Adam Dawson is one of the strongest supporters of the bylaw to provide $21,000 additional to enable the Board of Education to complete the erection of their new building. Mr. Dawson said: "I believe the Collegiate Institute is of more benefit to the poor man's children than it is to the rich man's, and I have no sympathy with the cry raised in certain quarters about educating the rich man's son at the expense of the poor man. I personally know of forty young people, all children of poor, but honest parents, who are doing well in various professions today and where did they get their start? Why, at the Collegiate Institute in Peterborough, and if we had not such a school these people would not have been enabled to go ahead and make the success of life that they have. Yes, sir, I am a strong advocate of a larger and properly equipped Collegiate Institute, and I do not consider that education is too dear no matter at what price you get it."

Local Hotel Rumor Is Contradicted

The rumors currently heard throughout the city recently to the effect that Mr. P. Clunan is the real owner of the Hotel Royal, and that Mr. Kelly, the ostensible purchaser, is only a figurehead, are hereby flatly contradicted. Whilst Mr. Clunan is a well-posted hotelman, a square sport and gentleman well known in Peterborough, it is only fair to say that Mr. Kelly the ostensible owner is the real owner. Mr. Kelly, we ascertain disposed of a valuable farm, near Downeyville, and purchased the hotel outright. At the same time Mr. Clunan's large connection in the city, cannot but result a large trade for the hotel.

Look here, Mr. Workingman, Mr. McWilliams' has been largely instrumental in increasing your wages, thus enabling you to keep your families in these days of high prices. Thank Mr. McWilliams by voting for him today.

Ald. McIntyre Slated a Winning Candidate

It is generally conceded that when a man makes a success of his own business, the best interests of the community would be served by his election as alderman of that city, in which he has so much at stake. That Ald. McIntyre, a popular builder and contractor has had an eminently successful business career in Peterborough goes without saying. The Y.M.C.A., and Y.W.C.A. sections of the Central Milling Company's mills; Peterborough Cereal Co's buildings; Shovel factory and Cordage Works, to say nothing of the many handsome residential structures, stand today monuments to Ald. McIntyre's business skill, and qualifications.

During his two years' service on the aldermanic board he has exercised that sane energy and business perception that has stood him in such good stead in his own personal affairs, always advocating and advancing without fear of favor such municipal measures as would contribute to the public weal in general. As builder and contractor, he has always accorded those in his employ, fair and generous treatment; as alderman his record is resplendent, as a faithful and conscientious servant of his fellow citizens, and one in whom their trust has been well placed.

Ald McIntyre is tenacious of purpose, as evidenced in the milk bylaw he fathered. This measure was not taken very seriously at first, by some, but Ald. McIntyre, with the Board of Health at his back, and also other city's experiences, stuck to his self-imposed task until he succeeded in having this bylaw put into force in the interest of health.

Ald. McIntyre is slated as a winning candidate, and will undoubtedly in his third term of office, take to the council renewed energy, and those desirable qualifications that have secured his success in business.

Harry Morgan

Is a candidate for alderman of the City of Peterborough, and respectfully solicits the votes of the ratepayers On the subject of municipal ownership Mr. Morgan is in favor of such, but only so far as consistent with the interests of our city.

CARD TO THE ELECTORS

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

W. J. Johnston

Respectfully solicits your Vote and Influence for

Alderman for 1907

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having served you as alderman for two years, and at the request of a large number of ratepayers, I once again offer myself as a candidate for re-election. It is only fair to assume that my two years' experience on the council board will stand me in good stead in the conduction of the municipal business of this prosperous and progressive city. I have always had the courage of my convictions in the past, and in the future, if re-elected shall only support such measures as I consider to be in the best interests of the community as a whole. I shall always have due regard to economy in all branches of municipal work, and endeavor to make my two years experience as your servant count in your favor when questions of public interest arise.

Trusting that you may once again honor me with your confidence, believe me to remain,

Your obedient servant,
GEO. H. DUNCAN

The Candidates for Aldermanic Honors

The aldermen seeking re-election are men of experience that would count heavily on council board of 1907. They should all be re-elected in the city's interest, as they are men in whom the electors in any place entire confidence. Some we have alluded to at length either in this or other issues; the others we briefly draw attention to below;

ALD GEO. E. ELLIOTT has made exceedingly good last year and his election should be sure. He believes in municipal ownership where practicable in all interests, and is anxious to put into effect his much needed measure of political scavengering under the supervision of a sanitary inspector to assure a higher standard of public health.

ALD. JOHNSTON was chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and inaugurated the movement which resulted in the erection of the new fire hall, for which he worked hard and long. Prior to his connection with the city council he was a member of the council of the village of Ashburnham, and is, therefore familiar with municipal affairs.

ALD. BALL is a strong man, having the courage of his convictions under all circumstances. He raised the question of municipal ownership years ago, but was not taken seriously Today he has the satisfaction of seeing that principle applied very satisfactory to the waterworks, and that policy urged for other public utilities. He has a strong following behind him, and his services would be missed in the council should he not be elected.

GEO J. TOVEY is a good reliable man to have in the council. His policy includes municipal ownership, permanent improvements on our streets without favor and the best fire protection available. He with Ald. McWilliams took energetic action toward securing the so much needed postal delivery. His highest ambition is to see the city of his adoption secure more industries and progress in every way possible.

ALD THOS. J. WILSON has made a very efficient servant of the public. He is a broad principled, fair-minded man. Mr. Wilson has had almost a year's experience on the board, filling the vacancy caused by the death of the late Thomas Kelly. The work done by him in council should entitle him to another term as alderman.

THE NEW MEN.

The following are the new candidates this year;
W. G. Morrow.
R. H. Leary.
W. H. Bradburn.
Arthur Stevenson.
John H. Smith.
Harry Morgan.
Wm. Hartley.
John Sawers.
Harry Phelan.
Allan McCarthy.

Should the old aldermen be re-elected five of the above will serve on the council this year.

ROBERT H. LEARY, after having been out of the council for one year, through choice, is again a candidate for a position on that body. By reason of his long residence in the city, and his business associations with the majority of the electors Mr. Leary is quite well known and those who know him have only kind things to say of him. During the year that he spent as a member of the council Mr. Leary proved himself an apt student of municipal affairs, and with the knowledge thus gained he hopes to be able to serve the electors to their satisfaction.

W. G. MORROW, W. H. BRADBURN, and ARTHUR STEVENSON are so highly esteemed as energetic business men that their election is pretty generally taken for granted. They are too well known to need further comment.

MR. HARRY MORGAN is one of the new candidates for the aldermanic board, but although he has never served on the council, he has been the servant of the public in various capacities. He was for some years a member of the Ashburnham Council, and also a member of the village school board. Two years ago he was a member of the Board of Education of Peterborough. Mr. Morgan has considerable business qualifications which would stand the community in good stead on the council.

MR J. H. SMITH is another Ashburnham man who is seeking election. He has served on the village council for four or five years, and for one year occupied the position of reeve of the village. He feels that the experience thus gained will enable him to be a valuable member of the council.

WM HARTLEY is not so well known as other candidates, but in the north ward he is considered a young man of considerable promise.

HARRY PHELAN served on the council years ago when the ward system was in force, and is not a stranger to the electorate.

JOHN SAWERS has also served on the town council, and his services are too well-known to need comment.

ALLAN M'CARTHY is no stranger to the city, and has run for municipal honors in the village of Ashburnham. He feels encouraged in his canvas for support in this election.

Ald. McWilliams promises that if elected, he will see that the city has a good, clean, economical government.

Too Light Weight

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—Why is it everybody north of Dublin street is so angry about the handling of the Smith street bridge? There are two reasons, or rather one in two: The interests of the property owners were sacrificed to the ambition of those councillors who wanted to build up a reputation for a low tax rate. The bridge did not decay in an hour. Anything with the head of a pin could see for years past that it has been like an old pair of breeks saved for use by patch on patch. A wise man would have foreseen what was coming. A stupid or a cunning man would not. Here we have Ald. Mason pointing to the $2,000 surplus as a reason for his election He ought to point to the filthy condition of Water St. north, and the rottenness of the bridge as a reason for hiding his head in a coal hole. No one blames the engineer. You cannot get a man to do all the work for half nothing in any trade. Incapacity and inaction that will sacrifice the north-enders is the cause of the whole trouble. Ald. Hicks is apparently too light a weight. Ald. McWilliams was all in favor of an energetic policy in connection with that miserable bridge. Chickens are sure to come home to roost!

CITIZEN.

Geo. H. Duncan a Very Capable Alderman

Today is a day for business men in municipal circles. There are many large propositions before the city council, and the people want business men to handle them. Therefore the best men of the seventeen nominated should be chosen.

Among those should be included the aldermen who have had experience in the council, and who have proven themselves capable in their own business and the city's business. All the aldermen of last year's council worked hard all year and gave their very best service to the people. Ald. George H. Duncan, while one of the youngest members of the council, is looked upon as one of the most promising. He is a young man, but has made a success in life. He is a contractor and decorator with 18 years' experience, and he never took a contract which he did not make some money on. As a result of his careful and business-like manner in tendering, he has been able to invest a considerable sum of money in real estate in the city. He owns several houses and is greatly concerned in the progress and development of the city.

Since he was elected to the council last January he has served on several committees, and has done good work. He is anxious to remain in the council, and believes that he will be of much greater value to the city than he could expect to have been last year. He is fairly entitled to another term, and there is no doubt at all but what he will get it.

Put a man into the Mayor's chair who has no connection with the trusts or combines of any kind. Mr. McWilliams is that man.

Rapid Tool Co. Bylaw Should Carry Today

New Industries Must be Encouraged to Assure City's Progress.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—I have been shown an item in the Examiner, saying that Mr. Keadry's brother was in Mr. Hicks committee rooms Friday night and that the cordial manner in which he shook hands with Mr. Hicks showed that he did not support his brother James. As I am the brother referred to I want to say that I went to Mr. Hicks committee rooms with a friend, and met him there and told him that I was supporting McWilliams. I also talked to some of his workers, and told them that McWilliams would be elected by 400 majority. I think the Examiner should have told the whole truth.

Yours Truly,
T. E. KENDRY.

Ottawa Man Is Seeking a Fortune

Ernest Shipman who Has Prospered in Theatricals now Wants to Get Uncle's Estate.

New York, Jan. 6.—Ernest Shipman of the firm of Sweaty, Shipman & Co., has left for Chicago, where he intends to wage a vigorous contest for a share in an estate worth more than a million dollars.

Despatches from Chicago early in the week stated that by the will of Daniel R. Shipman of that city $1,300,000 was to be divided equally among five charitable institutions. An estate amounting to that sum had been left in trust to the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank for distribution.

Daniel Shipman is Ernest Shipman's great-uncle, and although the two never met, the nephew is displaying a great respect for the elder man's memory. Within a year Ernest Shipman's mother received a letter from Daniel Shipman stating that he intended to divide his estate equally between charity and his relatives. It is believed that such a provision has been made either by a new will or a codicil to the original one.

Ernest Shipman was born in Ottawa, Canada, Dec. 16, 1871. He came to New York with $600 eight years ago to break into the theatrical game, and is worth now about $100,000, controlling nine big attractions.

Daniel Shipman was strongly set against Ernest Shipman and his brother having anything to do with theatricals, even of the highest order, and declared all his wealth should go to charity.

Arthur Montague Shipman, however, followed the wishes of his mother's heart and entered the ministry. He graduated from Upper Canada College, Toronto, and had charges of churches at Scarboro and other places in Ontario. He preached special sermons at Elm street Methodist church, Toronto, and finally had a prosperous call from the Ohio Conference. This fact greatly pleased Daniel Shipman, and when he learned that Ernest Shipman had helped his brother through college, etc., he wrote Mrs. M. A. B. Shipman, the mother of the boys, to say that he would revoke his will and give half to charity and half to relatives.

E. W. S. S. Shipman of Chicago, once of Toronto, is also a beneficiary.

Ship Wrecked With 112 Souls on Board

Wreckage Found Which May Have Been Swept Overboard or Vessel May Have Foundered.

San Francisco, Jan. 6.—A report was received here late last night that several life rafts and other wreckage with the name "City of Panama" on them came ashore at Wardell beach last evening. The City of Panama sailed from here December 31 for the Isthmus. Among her passengers was Dr. Henry Waldo Coe of Portland, who was booked through to New York, and while at Panama was to have investigated the hygienic surroundings as far as they affect labor. He was to have reported to the Medical Editors' Association, of which he is president, and to President Roosevelt. Mrs. Coe was with him, and a number of prominent Oregonians also.

In addition to her cabin passengers the City of Panama carried 25 Chinese and 20 persons in the steerage.

Her cabin passengers were James Bowbry, W. G. McPherson, R. G. McPherson Dr. E. Rutherford and wife, Dr. W. H. Dee and wife, T. E. Prince, Frank J. Gluyas, Thomas Clark, Chas. L. Shafford, J. H. Coney, and Harry Cooper, wife and child.

Wardell beach is on the coast of Santa Cruz County, about 90 miles north of Santa Cruz city, and very remote from any telegraph or telephone communication.

McWilliams to be Elected by 400 Majority

So Thinks Mr. T. E. Kendry, Whom The Examiner Claimed to be Supporting Mr. Hicks.

The Rapid Tool Company's bylaw is an important feature in the municipal campaign. The company is composed wholly of local men and it is controlled by local men. They asked the council for a free site valued at $1,200, and a fixed assessment for ten years.

The ratepayers know the circumstances which existed at the time the vote on this bylaw was taken and why a sufficient number of votes were not polled. The council then promised the company that if they proceeded with the works the bylaw would be voted on again at the general election when many more ratepayers would turn out. This the company agreed to, and today their factory is completed and twenty men are employed at good wages. In two weeks time at least ten more men will be at work making a total of thirty. The company is manufacturing auger bits now and the number of hands employed will be rapidly increased, as all who have tried the bits state that they are the best on the market.

The company represents all local capital.

Only a free site to cost $1,200 and a fixed assessment is asked.

Twenty men are now employed.

The request is very modest and should certainly be granted. Other industries have been assisted to a much greater extent and were not of the same importance.

Vote for the Rapid Tool Company bylaw and the progress of Peterborough as a manufacturing center.

Last Gun in the Mayoralty Election Today

Roland F. McWilliams Has Many Excellent Qualifications for Mayor---Both Candidates Are Confident.

The Examiner of Friday made the startling announcement that a "Laboring Man" will vote for Mr. Hicks At least one is forced to conclude that the Examiner was astonished to find that even one laboring man had signified his intention of supporting Mr. Hicks. In as much as not content with captioning the article with a big scare heading, they deemed the news to be sufficiently startling to even emphasize the particular class of voter alluded to thus; a "LABORING MAN." Surely it must have been gratifying to Mr Hicks to learn from our esteemed up-town contemporary that he had at least gained one labor vote. We venture to say that there does not exist sufficient question of Roland F. McWilliams standing with the laboring man to call for any special emphasis on the term in the way of quotations. We can see no special reason why each candidate should not claim consideration at the hands of all classes of the community; as the interests of Peterborough as a whole are effected by the council's legislation. But one thing is quite certain, and that is, Roland F. McWilliams has always championed the laboring men's cause.

Again, a "Ratepayer" writes—by the by it is a significant fact that all bouquets thrown at Mr. Hicks in the Examiner, commenced, "To the Editor Examiner," "Ladies and Gentlemen," or "Dear Sirs" and concluded "Yours etc.," "Ratepayer," "Business Man," or in some such equally unofficial, open and above-board manner. Well, this particular "ratepayer" apparently considers Mr. Roland F McWilliams to be lacking in qualifications for mayor because he is lowery of speech—he forgot to add the term "weighty." Another anonymous writer—he's a "Ward two Business Man" this time—Ahem!—doesn't deny Mr. McWilliams considerable verbal ability and ambition. One would think it to be a pretty generally acknowledged fact these days that if a man aspires to serve his fellow citizens in public office he must necessarily be ambitious, and in order to climb the ladder of fame as a leader of men he must have considerable verbal ability. History doesn't show that the 'gift of the gab' has seriously impeded men's progress in public affairs, or that executive qualifications cannot be adjuncts to "flowery speech." Canada can boast of some living and deceased examples to the contrary, for instance; Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier Whitney, Hon G. W. Ross, Sir Oliver Mowat, and hundreds of others. And just figure out how many of these were and are of the legal profession. Therefore it hardly seems fair to assume that Roland F. McWilliams eloquence should be any drawback in his aspirations to the chief office in this city's gift.

On the council board "verbal ability" is much sought after and brought into requisition to advance and carry weighty measures, for which reason, coupled with commendable energy, and sound reasoning powers, Roland F. McWilliams was given the chairmanship of the important committee, as that of Manufactures. There can be no question that Mr. McWilliams would serve this city as mayor with dignity and ability, even though he did sometimes affect "Ward two Business Man" with a little of his verbal ability and flowery speech.

Both candidates have served the city faithfully and well as chairmen of their respective committees. Each were given the office to which his dominating talents would most apply. Ald. McWilliams, as chairman of the Manufactures' Committee, did all that lay in his power in the direction of securing new industries, to say nothing of his general interest as a member of other committees, coupled with his at all times sought after legal advice in critical situations. Ald. Hicks, as chairman Board of Works, also concentrated his business energies on the task allotted him, and to good advantage. You are not asked today to judge the candidates only on their record in their respective committees, but are given an opportunity to vote for the man you think will best fill the chief magistrate's chair with that degree of dignity looked for from a city like Peterborough, and who is best qualified to safeguard and advance your interests as presiding officer over a council board of 12 aldermen.

On Saturday and yesterday from current remarks on the streets everything pointed to Roland F. McWilliams being returned today for mayor. He is not a member of any trust or combine, it is argued; he is a young man with the cleanest of characters; he stands high in the estimation of all classes; he has a keen executive ability, and his inherent eloquence so lightly alluded to in our evening contemporary, together with his pleasing oratorical talent, would at important public functions, and on deputations where valuable concessions are at stake, stand himself and his native city in good stead.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

No more spells of tiredness, but bounding, joyful health when you take Ferrozone, of which Mrs. H. S. Gold, of Bowsman, Man., speaks in the following words of praise:

"I state my case because I think it may assist other women to health. A year ago I was almost a wreck. I was pale and emaciated, suffering from nervousness and hysteria. Little things going wrong in the house bothered me. The doctor advised different treatments but they didn't help. He said my low condition was due to weakness that might never be cured. Ferrozone had a peculiar grateful effect and built me up quickly. The ills I suffered from are cured. I am now strong and vigorous and was made so by Ferrozone."

The Collegiate Institute By-laws

Should be Carried by a Substantial Majority in the Interest of the Whole Comunity.

We herewith republish Ald. Johnston's views on the Collegiate Institute bylaw. It seems to us that his broad principles on this question clearly set forth that the demands of higher education call for a new and modern institute in the interest of the whole community, rich and poor alike. The local High School is really within the reach of the vast majority of citizens:

Ald Johnston, chairman of the City Fire, Water and Light Committee, expressed to a newspaper man yesterday his unqualified support of the bylaw to raise an additional $21,000, for Collegiate Institute purposes. Higher education, he said, is the rock upon which the rising generation must rely for the betterment of mankind in general. He had no patience with people who because they either would not or could not give their children a high school education, denounced any measure tending to improve advantages and accommodation in educational courses beyond those of the public schools.

When asked what he thought of Peterborough's public buildings, generally, Ald. Johnston replied that while Peterborough poses as the banner baby city of this Province, she is away behind many other communities in the way of public buildings of any kind. In fact, he said, our new fire hall is the only real up-to-date building we have, and that is a creditable beginning along a line of public structures which shall prove a credit to this city, and in keeping with its past and future progress in other respects. When we are going to erect a Collegiate Institute, and not before it is wanted, the Electric City should, he urged, see to it that the structure is modern and presentable in its architectural design, and not wanting in approved 20 century appointments. He could not understand why Peterborough should be behind all surrounding small towns in the matter of magnificent schools and institutes, and said he was strongly in favor of the place of his birth enjoying all the advantages of a good up-to-the-times high school, as such an institution offers that class of education needed, and which must be available. If Peterborough is to keep pace in educational matters with other localities of less importance than the Electric City.

The press representative next asked the worthy alderman if he considered a Collegiate Institute education of sufficient importance to citizens as a whole to warrant the expenditure of $61,000 on the proposed building.

Ald. Johnston replied that it is the desire of every parent to give at least some of the family such educational advantages as will enable them to make substantial progress to distinction amongst their fellow citizens. Such men and women are needed and sought after, and no municipality can afford to be without them. And there is no cheaper stepping stone toward higher educational attainments than a good Collegiate Institute. It stands between the public schools and the universities, and thousands who could not afford a course at one of the latter institutions, have by matriculating at a high school carved out for themselves an eminently successful and honorable career. Therefore, he said, I am not going to be one to stand aside and criticize my fellow citizen who has been fortunate in securing the benefits of an education I did not get myself, and who rightly contends that the interests of higher education should be promoted at any cost.

Ald. Johnston was here asked if he thought a Collegiate Institute course was within the reach, and taken advantage of by the poor.

Why, he replied, I could name families in this city today, who have struggled manfully against tremendous odds in the battle for family necessities, supplementing their incomes in divers ways, and as a result have given from one to four of their children a collegiate education. And those children are now a credit to their parents, the community, and to themselves. A great many people have attained to high callings in our land by struggling with all manner of difficulties to educate themselves. Thousands who could not afford to give their children a university course have managed to put them through the Collegiate Institute, and thus placed them in a position to earn a better living than otherwise attainable, and to make further advance in education if they desire to do so.

Then you think the new institute is needed? was next asked.

I should say so, answered Ald. Johnston. I see a great need of bettering our educational facilities as we grow in size. We cannot reasonably expect the schools of thirty, twenty, or even ten years ago, to accommodate our present needs. Why should not the institute be erected next year? We have the land to build on, not a better site can be found anywhere; we have the plans of the building required; and now we (the people) have the opportunity of saying by our votes on January 7th, whether we are to at last experience the realization of our hopes by having a building constructed in the Central Park for Collegiate Institute purposes that will answer the requirements of higher education for years to come.

That bylaw should carry, and by a big majority, concluded the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee.

The January Rod and Gun

There is a wonderful blending of eastern and western Canada, not omitting the central portions, in the stories appearing in the January number of "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada," published by W. J. Taylor at Woodstock, Ontario. Nova Scotia and Quebec have some of their attractions told about in pleasant stories, while the wonderful charms of the Muskoka and Temagami districts of Ontario continue to be described in a manner than is ever fresh, owing to the fact that their multifarious attractions are seen from different standpoints by their numerous devotees. A bit of exploration on the Mississaga, one of the wonderful rivers of Canada, about which much will be heard in the near future, is interesting. An account of a ladies' trip to those marvelous caves in the heart of the Selkirks, which in all probability will be known to future generations as the Caves of Cheops, is pleasantly and [illegible] The scientific work of the Alpine Club of Canada is described in popular language by the President. Papers showing the success of the licensing system for big game, and the distribution and migration of ducks, with special reference to Canada's interest in these fine game birds, ought to be read not only by every sportsman but also by the general reader who has a deep concern in these matters. There are numerous other stories, including an account of Lord Grey's western home, while the departments are all up to date, and such as to render the best of service to sportsmen consulting them.

Average lbs. milk to lb. cheese, 10.62

Average price to patrons per 3000 lbs. milk, $28.23.

New Brunswick Prospering.

St. John, N. B., January 4.—The past year has been one of steady progress in New Brunswick, and of remarkable prosperity in all branches of industry. Perhaps the most important industrial undertaking is the construction of the large power plant at the Aroostook Falls, which will be completed next summer. The New Brunswick Railway in the Upper Counties is also approaching completion. In education there has been a marked advance in the policy of providing technical training. Politically there has been no important change, but it is anticipated that the New Year will see a party organization of the Government. All the industries have prospered and in agriculture there has been a big advance in the river counties.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys surely point to weak Kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine smells, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

Chicago, January 4.—A New Year's gift of nearly $3,000,000 from John D. Rockefeller to the University of Chicago was announced Monday night. This is the largest single contribution from Mr. Rockefeller to the institution and brings his total benefactions to the university up to $19,416,922.

Announcement of the largest donation was contained in a letter from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to acting President Harry Pratt Judson. The majority of the New Year's gift is to go to the permanent endowment fund of the university for this purpose; securities with a value of $2,000,000 are provided.

The remainder of the gift, $217,000, is to make up the year's deficit, to provide for an increase in the salaries of educators, and allow appropriations for various purposes. The addition of $2,750,000 to the endowment brings this fund to $10,462,616.

The gift provides for an annual increase of $50,000 in the salaries of instructors. It follows a visit to New York recently by acting President Judson, several trustees, and Manager Wallace Heckman, who went over the budget with Mr. Rockefeller.

SMART SET'S LOAD.

Women Who Follow Fashion Will Have Big Burden.

A course of physical culture may be necessary for the smart woman this winter if she hopes to endure the extraordinary load that fashion is laying on her form from the lobes of her ears to the toes of her feet. Even her picture hat, light as it is, compared to its size, is so large that it must make itself felt to an extent that no hat should do.

The old-fashioned two-button glove is no longer seen on the smart woman's hands. Twenty or twenty-four buttons measure the exaggerated length of her driving, morning or scented white kid "at home" gloves. Boots have doubled their height, while the simple laces on walking shoes have been replaced by ribbons tied in enormous bows.

A reporter who visited well-known London forms to learn the extent of this craze for magnificent adornments was met by the information that the demand for exaggeration is likely to increase.

"Picture hats are assuming the most extraordinary proportions," a Bond street milliner confessed, "but the most noticeable point is the gigantic shapes of the floral trimmings. A cabbage rose in pink velvet is becoming perilously near the size of a real cabbage. Bunches of grapes adorn the newest hats, each grape being about double the circumference of the genuine fruit.

"Veils are following the fashion in hats. The minute chenille spot is replaced by black velvet patches the size of a sixpenny piece, and as for hat-pins, I doubt if they can increase in size. Most of the latest patterns are adorned with knobs which would not make insignificant door handles."

"The tendency in jewelry is to adopt distinctly exaggerated styles," a well-known jeweler in Regent street said—"Large Oriental rings, heavily studded with jewels, are in great demand. Drop earrings, which weigh down the lobes of the wearer's ears, are made in a most massive pattern.

"Jeweled muff chains can rightly be termed 'fashion's fetters.' The tiny beads or crystals between the links of the chain have been replaced by lumps of turquoise, opal or amethyst in the rough. Cable chain bracelets bear a close resemblance to handcuffs in their proportions.

"We have noticed several points which show how the Brobdignagian mania has affected drapery goods," the manager of an Oxford street firm said. "The tiny glove handkerchief is quite out of date, and has been replaced by silk and cambric of much larger proportions. In the haberdashery departments buttons resemble five shilling pieces, made of paste, glass, silver or leather."

Unrehearsed Effects.

Some stories which Mr. Charles Manners of the Moody-Manners Opera, told the other day concerning incidents on the stage which upset the gravity of the players, and well-nigh wrecked important scenes, remind "P.T.O." of several similar contretemps. Miss Julia Neilson tells of some curious experiences in unrehearsed effects on the stage. "I remember," she told an interviewer once, "on one occasion playing in Dublin. It was Juliet. In the death scene, when I seized the dagger and stabbed myself, a very excited Irishman in the pit, overcome with sympathy and terror, shrieked 'Oh! Jim, she's done it!' I was so convulsed with laughter that I could only get up a giggle for the death struggle. And again, I was playing Pauline in 'The Lady of Lyons' with a weak Claude. He had been sick, and was not strong, so I told him when I rushed to him I would clasp my arms around him, and he must just give way a little. I flew to his embrace, and he gave way indeed, and down to the floor we both went together entangled in my train. We gathered ourselves up as best we could, and I caught him again with fervor, and the audience tried to stifle their laughter, when Claude's next words brought down the house: 'This is the heaviest blow of all.'"

William IV.'s Shampoo.

Wilhelmina Countess of Munster, who died recently, published two years ago a volume, entitled "My Memories and Miscellanies," in which she tells the following story of William IV at Windsor: "Every morning my brother and sister used to be sent for by King William for us to see his kind, cheery face and head washed by his old valet, Jemmett, in a large silver ewer in the most delicious rosewater. The ceremony used always to be performed by Jemmett, who had lived with the King for years. A fresh bottle was used each time, being uncorked in the room; the King, whose hair was short and quite white, would place his head over the ewer, a large towel having been tied around his neck, and the sweet water was poured over it, into the ewer, and then a sponging process used to go on for some moments, filling the room with delicious odor. I think at that moment I wished I was King more than at any other time. After the ablution came the drying on a soft towel; then the coat and waistcoat were donned, and with a rosy and sweet-smelling face, the old King, after kissing his small children, would walk into the breakfast room, and for a time we saw him no more."

He Knew.

A married woman owned a pet dog of a particularly vicious temper. It had even bitten her husband on more than one occasion. At last, however, the dog disappeared.

The husband offered a reward of £25 for the dog's return. His friends were amazed.

"I thought," said a friend to him, "that you hated that dog?"

"I do," the man admitted.

"Why, then, do you offer such a large reward for his return?"

"To please my wife."

"But you're foolish," said the other. "Such a large reward will be sure to bring it back."

"No," said the man with a knowing smile. "You see, I happen to have learned that it's dead."—Cardiff Times.

A Daring Wasp.

Some wasps live in part upon honey, which they collect from the most open petaled flowers, and thus to a very moderate extent they may be regarded in the light of flower fertilisers. Kirkland says in the first volume of the American Naturalist that "the paper hornet (Vespa maculata) often enters my nucleus hives when I am rearing Italian queen bees and captures the young queen in the midst of her little colony, usually just after she has commenced her first laying. I have seen this depredator enter the small hive, drag out the queen and fly away with her to the woods" (page 52). Some of the species of the genus polistes store up honey which is poisonous, from the fact that it has been collected from poisonous flowers. They are found in South America, where also species of the genus chartergus occur—wasps that make a very remarkable and tough nest, with funnel shaped combs inside, arranged one inside of another, nest fashion, but not in contact except at their points of suspension. At the apexes of these cones occur the apertures of entrance for the inmates to pass up among the conical tiers.

Steering the Ship.

The work of steering a great ship, even with the aid of modern machinery, is much more delicate than one would imagine. The larger and faster the ship the greater is the difficulty. It is not enough to hold the wheel in the same position to keep the ship on her course, for the wind and waves and the currents of the ocean tend constantly to knock the ship off her course. The great wall of steel (for the hull may be 700 feet long and sixty feet high) offers a broad target for the wind and waves. The art in steering is to humor the ship to these forces and when she is deflected bring her back quickly to her course. If you could watch the binnacle, especially in bad weather, you would see the needle of the compass constantly shifting from side to side, which means that the great steel prow is not going forward in a perfectly straight line.—Francis Arnold Collins in St. Nicholas.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH

Cure Catarrh by Breathing Hyomei Sold Under Guarantee.

The only scientific and common sense way to treat catarrh of the nose and throat is by a local application that will kill the catarrhal germs.

Ordinary stomach dosing is worse than useless. Taking medicine into the stomach to cure catarrh of the head can have no good effect, and often leads to serious derangement of the digestive organs.

By breathing Hyomei three or four times daily through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, its medicated, healing air penetrates to the most remote parts of the nose, throat and lungs, searches out and kills all catarrhal germs, and soothes and heals any irritation in the mucous membrane.

Our faith in the wonderful merit of Hyomei as a cure for catarrh is shown by the guarantee given with every Hyomei outfit that the money will be refunded unless the treatment gives satisfaction.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Two Miles of Development

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite. No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,000 feet of drifts, levels and other workings. We have a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

If you want to invest in a MINE with vast possibilities, let us hear from you at once and we will send detailed information.

Sin Against Health

Why the Usefulness of All Organs is Destroyed by Costiveness.

Most important to health and comfort is the proper action of the bowels.

By nature these organs are intended for the removal of the waste particles of matter which accumulate in the system.

Retain these wastes and you poison the blood, ruin digestion, bring on nervousness and anaemia.

Habitual costiveness is best overcome by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which establish regularity that is exactly consistent with nature.

Not a drastic purgative—not even a pain or sensation of grip, because Dr. Hamilton's Pills are vegetable and free from irritating widely advertised remedies.

In every case Dr. Hamilton's Pills do cure and bring sure relief from headache, biliousness and other manifestations of constipation.

Jas. McConnell, of Walkerton, writes; "Since I was comparatively a young man I have not enjoyed real good health.

"My appetite was good and strength kept up, yet I knew something was wrong.

"Frequently I took bilious attacks and violent headaches. My stomach was disordered, skin was murky, under my eyes were heavy dark rings.

"Last winter I read through the Poison's almanac and decided my trouble was constipation. I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and can hardly tell the help they have been. I am now as fresh, strong and well as a boy."

Just try the wonderful magic of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Sold by all dealers 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

LOCAL INCIDENTS

By The Times Man on the Street

—Colored stereoscope views, eight for 25 cents at Times Bookstore.

—This is the liveryman's harvest from the candidates' pockets.

—Today's vote will probably be the largest municipal battle of the ballots in many years.

—A small leather bag, found near the post office, awaits a claimant at the police station.

—The Collegiate Institute bylaw comes before the ratepayers today. Much interest has been taken over this bylaw, and the omens seem to point towards it being carried by a large majority.

—This is the day that many a mother-familias, whilst missing the youngsters' faces around the house, figures sisters' faces round the house, forgives herself for sighing with relief that the schools are to re-open.

—We are requested by the police to note that if the boy who picked up a letter on Water street on Wednesday afternoon last, addressed to Miss Glad, 25 Louis street, does not return same to the police station or to its rightful owner he will get into trouble.

—Many pools were made up on Saturday on the mayoralty majority, irrespective of which man wins. Strange to say three pools formed by men advocating either candidate, in the guesses plotted, ran into figures averaging over $00. This shows the confidence shown by partisans of both candidates.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

On Saturday the lethargy for some days surrounding local police circles, was dispelled. On Saturday Seymour Forsythe, of Bridgenorth, was fined $2 and costs, amounting to $7.50 for celebrating New Year's Day too freely. He resisted arrest, and with the interference of others, eluded the officers for the time being. This added to his fine, and Saturday morning he had to make good.

"THE CRISIS IN FRANCE."

Lecture by Rev. Father McColl, Rector of St. Peter's Cathedral on Question of General Interest.

This lecture which is announced for Tuesday evening, Jan. 8th, in the Grand Opera House, will no doubt be attended by a large audience. Rev. E. F. Torrance, D. D., will occupy the chair. The lecture will be preceded by a musical program of exceptional excellence, the following artists appearing: Miss Davies, Mr. W. H. Dunham, Mr. Firth and Messrs. Mendel, and Clarke. The Smith Street Bridge.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir—The Smith street bridge will lead to a riot yet. No bylaw for it has been submitted to the people or prepared even. The repairs made to it so reluctantly by the Board of Works, of which Ald. Hicks is chairman, will last only a short time, and if the business men on each side of the river are to be subjected to a toss like that of last summer, amounting to several thousand dollars, there's going to be trouble. Mr. Hicks may bluff the "pretended" excitement off as he likes, but does he think that inefficiency such as he displayed is going to please the north ward? Another such summer and the north ward might close up. No wonder Mr. Kendry is angry. Who isn't? The people will not stand bluff and oppression always.

ELECTOR.

Enormous Mails.

The largest mail ever received by one firm in the big city of Montreal was that for the Family Herald and Weekly Star on the closing day of the year. It is said the subscriptions for the Family Herald and Weekly Star on that day alone would exceed all the subscriptions for any other paper in Canada for the whole month of December. A day and a night staff are at work all the time entering renewals and new subscriptions. The increase in the Family Herald's subscription business is phenomenal. It is said their picture this year and Ralph Connor's new story "The Doctor," have won them thousands of new readers, but the Family Herald and Weekly Star alone at one dollar per year is big value, and its wonderful success is well deserved.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Miss Annie Gorman of Toronto, is visiting at her home in the east ward.

—Mr. Thompson of Parry Sound has joined the staff of the Bank of Ottawa as second teller.

—Miss Minnie Craig has returned from Buffalo, where she spent the holiday with friends.

—Miss Mary Chanaghan has returned to Toronto, after spending a week with Mrs. Collins, east ward.

—Mrs. Cecil Carl Forsyth will receive at her residence, 431 Stewart St. tomorrow afternoon, Jan. 8th.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Sheridan and Miss Pearl, returned on Saturday from a two weeks' visit to Toronto, Dunkirk and Buffalo, N.Y.

—The friends of Mrs. A. M. Harmer, Charlotte street, will be glad to know she is convalescing after a severe attack of appendicitis.

—Dr. MacNaughton, of the Asylum for Insane, Mimico, and his wife, have returned after spending the holidays with the doctor's sister, Mrs. Gabriel Learmouth, Stewart street.

Is Race Suicide Affecting Burleigh?

Only two marriages took place in Burleigh and Anstruther during the past twelve months. It looks like these townships will have to invite President Roosevelt or some other race suicide opponent to make a house to house canvas and get things going better. Whilst there are many good citizens, of both sexes in Burleigh and Anstruther, we may be pardoned for asking what the —— is the matter with the boys out there. The girls, we venture to say are willing, and if the young fellows are so infernally shy they had better come to the city for a few weeks and get pointers from a few of our happy, though perhaps bald-headed benedicts.

Facts About Repairs to the Smith St. Bridge

City Engineer Gives His Data as to Time Occupied in Repairing This Structure.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—In view of the fact that reports are being circulated by Mr. Kendry or his friends alleging that undue delays were caused in the repairs to the Smith street bridge, I enclose herewith correspondence between Mr. Hay, the city engineer, and myself on this question. It is self-explanatory;—

Peterborough, Jan. 5th.

T. A. S. Hay, Esq., Peterborough;

Dear Sir,—I understand that Mr. Kendry is taking round a petition in the north ward, claiming that I as chairman of the Board of Works was the cause of unnecessary delay in repairing the Smith street bridge, after the timbers and material were on the ground.

Will you be good enough to give me any dates which you may have with regard to the time when the material was ready for the repairs, and also the date when these repairs were commenced; and oblige.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HICKS.

Peterborough, Jan. 5th.

R. H. Hicks, Esq., Peterborough;

Dear Sir,—In reply to your letter of today, asking for data as to time occupied in making repairs to Smith street bridge after material had been delivered, I beg to report as follows:—

The timber was delivered between June 20th and 28th. The man I had engaged to do the work notified me that he could not undertake it. After considerable inquiry, I engaged another man on June 29th, who commenced work with six men on July 2nd, and completed it and opened the bridge for traffic on July 24th.

Yours truly,
T. A. S. HAY,
City Engineer.

This should effectually settle the matter in the minds of all fair-minded persons.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HICKS.

Mrs. G. Schneider's Funeral Today

This afternoon, at 2.30, the last mortal remains of Mrs. George Schneider, will be laid to rest in the Little Lake cemetery, the funeral being private.

Mrs. Schneider, who was 69 years of age, died from anaemia. She was the daughter of the late James Alexander, and leaves a sister, Miss Rhoda Alexander, and a brother, A. Alexander, both of this city. Besides the bereaved husband, there are also a daughter and two sons to mourn her loss. They are Mrs. Chas. Richer and Messrs. Frank and George, all of Peterborough.

January Canadian Magazine.

Eight illustrated articles and four articles without illustration, all by specialists and writers of note, together with six short, snappy stories by leading writers of fiction in Canada, besides a liberal insertion of poetry and light material, is the programme furnished by The Canadian Magazine for the first month of 1907. There are as well the usual reviews and comment. The stories are by such well-known writers as W. A. Fraser, Isabel E. MacKay, Bradford K. Daniels, Mabel Burkholder and Thomas F. Astle. Lieut.-Col. W. Hamilton Merritt contributes the first of two articles on "Patriotic Militia Service," and under the heading "The King's Highway" Jane Lavender presents a novel appreciation of an ancient and honorable institution. "Canadian Artists Abroad" is an appreciation of the work of two eminent Canadian artists Morrice and Hill, the latter a sculptor. The January number is, therefore, an excellent start for the new year. According to the announcement page, the February number will contain a decided feature in the form of an article entitled "The Stage of Former Days," by Goldwin Smith, with portraits of leading players of about a half-century ago.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the Wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

I strongly advocate a policy of sanitary measures which shall assure to the city the highest possible standard of health at a minimum expenditure of public monies.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I remain,

Yours faithfully.

WATER COMMISSIONER

ADDRESS OF

Mr. E. F. MASON

A Candidate, to the Ratepayers:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I respectfully offer my services to the ratepayers of the city, and am a candidate for election by you to the position of Water Commissioner, now vacant. I do this at the urgent request of many ratepayers, who are good enough to say that my services as Alderman and experience on the City Council qualifies me to render intelligent and helpful service in the interests of the city.

I believe it to be a fact, and it is endorsed by others, that in no way may a citizen receive the information and be in a position to appreciate the needs of the municipality as by service on your Council Board.

Should you see fit to elect me, you will please remember in so doing that I am thoroughly in touch with municipal matters, having held the important position of Chairman of the Finance Committee for the last two years. It is admittedly the most important committee of the Council, and one requiring considerable time at the hands of its members and particularly so of its chairman.

I believe I can truly say that I understand the financial position and needs of the city thoroughly. In so far as your City Water Department is concerned, I promise, if elected, to faithfully perform the duties of the position and to bear in mind the needs of the city, as implied in the carrying on of the department and its extension in future years.

I may call attention to the legislation which Mr. Moore, the retiring member of the Commission, is drafting out and which it is proposed to ask for at the next session of the Legislative Assembly:—

(a) To constitute the Water Commissioners of the said City of Peterborough a body corporate.

(b) To authorize the said Water Commissioners to levy and collect a water rate upon properties fronting on streets along which water mains are laid, and to provide that all water rates shall be a lien on properties served with water or mains; with the right of distress and sale as in the case of unpaid taxes.

I do not favor such drastic legislation and am thoroughly convinced that the people should be asked first to endorse this proposition and, if elected, will endeavor to have this matter submitted to vote before making application for such a sweeping change in the policy, system and conduct of the Water Commission.

I may not be able to personally wait on all ratepayers before polling day, but I solicit their votes and influence. I trust that my candidature will receive a hearty and successful support and I will be proud to be elected.

Very respectfully,

E. F. MASON

To the Electors

ALLAN McCARTHY

FOR

Alderman for 1907

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I beg to solicit your vote and influence on my behalf at the coming Municipal Elections. If elected, I shall use my best efforts in the interests of the community as a whole, especially so in the matter of economic government, and in support of all measures tending to municipal ownership of public utilities, in so far as the same can be applied to the advantage of the municipality generally. I am in favor of the construction of all permanent work, such as sidewalks and sewers, by day labor, providing said principle can be adopted at no loss to the city, and confer upon the workingman substantial benefit.

It is impossible for me to make a personal canvas of all the Electorate, therefor I take this means of soliciting your support.

Wishing you a glad and prosperous New Year, believe me to remain.

Yours faithfully,

ALLAN McCARTHY

CARD TO THE ELECTORS!

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having been nominated as one of many to represent you at your Council Board, for this present year, I take this opportunity of soliciting your votes.

I am a firm believer, that to have a good representative council, that the office should seek the man, instead of the man seeking the office.

When an alderman gives the time and attention that is required of him, if he represents the electors, it is quite sufficient, without spending his time, (which was always very valuable to him) in canvassing votes.

As I am opening up a business to become one of your merchants, my time for the future will be spent in your city, therefore, at the services of the ratepayers.

I shall devote my energies to serve the ratepayers faithfully, as I have no axe to grind.

Having made a success of my own business, I think I am capable of assisting to manage that of our progressive young city.

It shall be my duty to procure municipal ownership in all cases where our public thoroughfares are utilized. I have visited a large number of towns and cities during the last two years, and I have yet to find one instance when it has been a failure.

It shall be my duty to assist in the careful expenditure of money, consistent with the advancement of our city.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours very truly,

R. H. LEARY

CARD TO THE ELECTORS!

CEO. J. TOVEY

For Alderman

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been once again nominated as your representative on the Aldermanic Board for the year 1907, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence at the coming elections. In the future as in the past if elected, I shall always advocate as economical a civic government as consistent with public needs, and devote my services in the interests of the whole community; I shall support all measures leading to municipal ownership of public utilities, providing the operation of the same will assure to the citizens maximum results at a minimum expenditure of public monies, and at the same time furnish sufficient surplus revenue to pay off the capital invested. I am strongly in favor of this city acquiring its own electric power, in which event Peterborough will be in a position to guarantee new industries all the power they need at the lowest possible price.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year, I remain,

Your obedient servant,

GEO. J. TOVEY

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen, — Having been duly nominated a second time as alderman for the progressive City of Peterborough, I once again solicit your vote and influence at the coming elections, January 7th. In the future, as in the past, if elected, I shall always advocate the policy of municipal ownership of all public utilities, strongly believing such principles to be in the best interests of the general public. During the past year I have consistently supported and advanced such measures as would assure to the ratepayers economic civic government, and municipal control of public services. If once more honored with your confidence, such measures will receive from me unqualified support, and I shall make it my business to see that permanent improvements are equally distributed throughout the whole city, and that the expenditure of public monies is commensurate with value received.

Wishing you all a Happy New Year, and relying upon your support at the coming elections, I am,

Yours faithfully,

GEO. BALL

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I hereby beg to announce that I am a candidate for member of the Board of Water Commissioners. I submit that my business experience subjoined with my desire to serve the interests of Peterborough in the most effective and beneficial manner constitute a reasonable claim upon your confidence and support. I may say that I have made a study of the details of the management of this public utility; and if honored with election by the ratepayers, it shall be my constant aim and endeavor to continue and improve upon, so far as possible, the valuable water service which this city possesses.

Respectfully soliciting your vote and influence, I remain,

VOL XXXV. NO. 6 — PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JANUARY 8 1907 — PRICE TWO CENTS

Roland F. McWilliams The People's Choice

For Mayor, W. H. Moore is Water Commissioner--- All the Old Aldermen Elected With Splendid New Blood for This Year's Council.

Yesterday morning shortly after the various returning officers had got down to business and had their clerks settled to work the free and independent electors began to pour in to perform their duties to the city. Never perhaps in a municipal campaign for years have the voters turned out so early in such large numbers. Throughout the day rigs flew here, there, and everywhere, their speed and excitement of the drivers increasing as the day grew older. The main center of excitement, as judged by the number of rigs of all kinds being sent after voters, located in front of Candidate R. Hicks' committee rooms on George reet Unfortunately for this candidate it was later ob, ain the returns came in, shrewdly suspected that many an ostensible Hicks' supporter was driven from these rooms, or sent for, only to vote for Mr. McWilliams.

Shortly after five o'clock an immense crowd collected in front of our George street contemporary's office, to watch the limelight bulletins thrown against a sheet hung across the street. By eight o'clock the crowd had trebled, and was as great as that ever seen at a parliamentary election.

As the returns came in, from one sub-division after another, it was soon apparent that Ald. McWilliams was the choice of the city. Ald. Hicks, the defeated candidate, with commendable pluck, instead of sneaking home after a defeat, waited in his committee rooms, surrounded by sympathizing friends. Mr. Hicks fought a good fight, had good organization, and, as did his competitor and voter, refrained throughout the whole campaign from mud-slinging or personalities.

The fight was a clean one on the part of both victor and vanquished, and both emerged from a hard-fought contest with as friendly feelings towards one another as before the contest started. The whole matter in a nutshell is that the city wanted to give Messrs. McWilliams as mayor, both the contestants for civic honors are young, smart, respected citizens, and what the city gained in Mr. McWilliams, in some respects, it lost in Mr. Hicks.

Mr. McWilliams is a well educated, reasonably ambitious young man who has had much experience in civic government and will doubtless bring all his energy and talents to bear on advancing the interests of the city which elected him by the handsome majority of 227.

MARCH OF TRIUMPH.

At about eight o'clock yesterday evening, the mayor-elect, Roland F. McWilliams was shouldered by his admirers and carried from his office around the main streets in triumph amid the hearty cheers and hurrahs of thousands of spectators. In the face of this defeat two years ago for the local legislature his success of yesterday is considered to be a marvellous achievement.

Mayor McWilliams last evening thanked The Times for the appreciated manner in which this paper had supported him. In the campaign brought to a successful issue yesterday.

He laid special emphasis on the fact that The Times was the only journal that championed his cause.

We venture to offer that this city yesterday did it duty in returning for mayor, a gentleman who will fill the chief magistrate's position with credit not only to himself, but also to the progressive city of which he is head.

The Times was also successful in stating all the winning candidates for aldermen but one.

Mr. V. Eastwood Now a Bank Manager

Local Hardware Man to Take Charge of Royal Bank Here.

One of Peterborough's smartest and most progressive business men of the younger generation, Mr. Vincent Eastwood, for the past six years manager and chief shareholder of the Peterborough Hardware Company, has been appointed local manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, and will assume his new duties about the middle of February.

Mr. Eastwood is now making arrangements to dispose of his great interests in this Peterborough's largest hardware house, and when this is done will devote his whole time and attention to his banking duties.

Mr. Eastwood the new manager is not only a successful business man, but has a host of friends in the city and county, so that the Royal Bank is, by its recent move assured of a large slice of Peterborough's banking business.

Tells How They do in Philadelphia

Doubtless Heaven will be full of surprise at what simple things had formerly made us happy and unhappy!

If a man insisted on taking salsoda dissolved in his drinking water day after day and wondered why his stomach was irritated, people would think he was crazy. It's about as bad to take the drug that's in coffee, into your stomach although it's an old time-honored habit to do so.

"I used to be a great coffee drinker and thought there was nothing so nourishing as coffee except milk. But I was sickly, with hollow cheeks and headache about all the time," said a Phila. man the other day.

"Still I kept on drinking coffee, never suspecting it was the cause of my ills and wondered if I was doomed to be sick all the time, and never enjoy life like other folks. It was as if I was taking poison in little quantities every day and wondering why I was sick.

"Many times I read about Postum Food Coffee, but thought it was one of the fakes palmed off on the people. I wouldn't try it at first, but left off coffee to see if Postum people were right about its being injurious.

"You may well guess I was surprised when my headaches were few and far between and I felt as if a load had been taken off my stomach.

"When I was thus half convinced that coffee had done me harm, I thought I'd try a package of Postum. I made it carefully according to directions, and it was simply great!

"It is delicious when made right, and beats coffee all hollow in taste, let alone wholesomeness. Leaving off coffee after it has become a fixed habit, is hard, but Postum makes it an easy matter. There's no greater lover or champion of Postum now than I am, for I have learned how to be well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Former Local Man Has Resigned Position

Hon Robt. Green's Administration of Lands and Works Dept., Praised

It will be of local interest to learn that a former resident of Peterborough, has after a long and honorable career in the politics of British Columbia, resigned the responsible position he held in that Province.

Many of our older citizens will remember that some years ago Mr. Robert Green, a son of Mr. Benjamin Green of this city, went to British Columbia and there, by industry and intelligence, subsequently became a member of the McBride Government as Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works.

Hon. Mr. Green has now retired voluntarily for his important position to engage in business. The Victoria Times, although politically opposed to the government of which Hon. Mr. Green was a member notes that he has most efficiently administered his department.

A New Hotel to be Built at Quebec

Quebec, January 7.—There is a report here, which is partially substantiated, that the Grand Trunk Railway people are about to erect a large hotel in Quebec, and that the locality chosen is the site of the block overlooking the Governor's garden, the Terrace, and the River, but farther back from the Terrace than the site of the Chateau Frontenac.

The block in question is enclosed between Avenue Ste. Genevieve, Laporte, Mount Carmel and des Grisons streets, and will involve the tearing down of a block of modern dwelling houses.

Spanish Papers Begin the Boycott

Lisbon, January 8.—An interesting struggle is on foot here between the Government and the newspapers, which promises exciting developments. Recently the Government brought forward a bill in Parliament regulating the rights and the liberties of the press, which was generally condemned as being of a reactionary nature. The second act in the drama took place when the proprietors and political directors of nearly all the Lisbon papers held a meeting, after which they came to the following agreement: "That anyone aiding in any way to carry this bill into law shall be ignored in the public press and shall be regarded as non-existent."

The significance of this step is that neither the persons nor the speeches of the members of the Government will be mentioned in the Lisbon press, and only the speeches of the Opposition will be reported. All of the principal newspapers both in Lisbon and the provinces have adhered to this resolution. The fall of the Government is even predicted if the bill is not quickly withdrawn.

Late Mr. J. Cahill Kindly Spoken Of

Speaking of the death of Mr. Jos. Cahill, laid to rest here on Sunday, the Winnipeg Free Press of Thursday, Jan. 3rd, says in part;

Joseph W. Cahill, one of the most popular commercial travellers in the west, died this morning at the Drinkwater hospital, of pneumonia.

Deceased had been in the employ of the Ashdown Hardware Company for the past eight years, and was a general favorite. The territory covered by the deceased in his business was along the main line as far west as Medicine Hat, over the Prince Albert branch and along the Manitoba and Northwestern.

The funeral took place last evening to the Canadian Pacific Railway depot and thence to Peterborough. The funeral was largely attended by the deceased's many friends, the employees of the Jos. Ashdown Company, and representatives of the Commercial Travellers' Association. Mayor Ashdown, in whose employ the deceased had been for the past eight years, was among those present. Among the flowers were wreaths from the employes of the Ashdown company, and the Commercial Travellers' Association.

English Peeress Is Heartbroken

New York, January 7.—A cable despatch from London says Lady Yarmouth, who was Alice Cornelia Thaw, a sister of Harry K. Thaw, has confined herself in almost nun-like seclusion since her brother killed Stanford White.

Suffering her anguish alone, cutting herself off from the society of her friends and the brilliant life to which her position as a peeress entitles her, she has grown thin and lost the piquancy of expression that her friends remember in her. Since the tragedy of last June she has not been seen in London and has shut herself up in the Yarmouth county estate, at Park Hall, Salford Priority. Queen Alexandra herself was so touched by the evident anguish of the young peeress that she sent a personal message of sympathy to her.

Collegiate Institute Bylaw Was Carried

Rapid Tool Co. Bylaw Lost---Result of Voting on Other Measures---Two Polling Divisions to Hear From.

Up to a very late hour last night the returns from the voting on the five bylaws showed the results as given below, with two subdivisions to hear from. Subdivision No. one neglected to take a memorandum of votes cast, so the results from that division cannot be ascertained, until the ballot boxes are opened today. Wm. Lees, at subdivision No. 9 also did not get his returns in in time for our presses.

The Collegiate Institute bylaw is safe with a majority as far as heard from of 170. The drainage bylaw is probably lost. The bridge bylaw has a substantial majority of 230. The sewer bylaw has so far a majority of seven against it. The Rapid Tool bylaw with a present majority of 49 is voted down, as this measure requires a two-third vote to carry it.

Mr. K. Eardley-Wilmot is Very Highly Honored

Fitting Tribute Paid Last Night to Popular Manager of Bank of Montreal who is Leaving.

Last night one of the most important, interesting and representative social events, (lectures, however by an invisible but tangible cloud of regret was held in the Montreal (formerly Ontario) Bank Chambers. This was a farewell presentation to one of the most popular bank managers that ever assisted in the financial regime of Peterborough, viz., Mr. K. Eardley-Wilmott, for some years local manager of the Bank of Montreal, but who will, on Saturday, leave for Perth, being succeeded here by Mr Montgambert, formerly manager of this bank at Lindsay.

The business of the Bank of Montreal at Perth, has, for various reasons, of late somewhat declined, and Mr. Wilmott has been chosen by the bank to reestablish and improve their business at that point.

Last night's proceedings, although involving the practical saying of farewell and god-speed to Mr. Wilmott, and the presentation of most valuable tokens of esteem to both Mr. and Mrs. Eardley-Wilmott, were of an informal nature.

As can be judged by the names of subscribers to the presentation, appended below, the meeting was not only well attended, but of a most representative character. The chair was most acceptably filled by Hon. J. R Stratton, who in his opening remarks referred in most eulogistic and kindly terms of the opinion in which the guest of the evening was held, both soci ally and in business circles.

Mr. Louis M. Hayes, of Messrs. Hall & Hayes, after the chairman had closed his remarks, stepped forward and read the address. This was in itself a work of art, being handsomely surrounded by an elegant border, the whole document being in gilt lettering and executed by Mr. Pringle, proprietor of the Peterborough Business College in his inimitable style.

The address read as follows:

Kenred Eardley-Wilmot, Esq., Manager Bank of Montreal, Peterborough.

Dear Sir—Some of your numerous friends have assembled this evening to wish you a regretful farewell on your departure from Peterborough. When only a few short years ago you came amongst us a comparative stranger, little did we anticipate how quickly you would secure to yourself, and gain as you have gained, the esteem and respect of the whole community but what is still better, and more precious, you won and will forever retain, the deep, warm-hearted affection of a multitude of friends. Nor are your admirers confined to those of your intimate acquaintance, many of our humble citizens have learned to appreciate your worth and to feel grateful for your many acts of unostentatious kindness. Your courtesy to the clientele of your Bank and the deep interest you take in their business affairs are widely known.

As Secretary of the Agricultural Society you rendered most valuable services both to Town and County;

As Church Warden of St. John's Church you voluntarily sacrificed time;

As a valued member of the Peterborough Board of Trade you gave great assistance and counsel to that useful institution;

As a citizen of Peterborough you have ever taken a keen interest in all things tending to promote the welfare of the community;

In your many good works you have enjoyed the active support and assistance of your most estimable wife and to Mrs Eardley-Wilmot we desire to express our profound sorrow at her departure. Her charming manner, great charity and activity in all good deeds, will long be remembered by many warm friends. Sir, we wish you and Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot God-speed and may you both enjoy together many years of happiness.

As a mark of the real esteem and deep affection of your friends and acquaintances we ask your acceptance of this cabinet of silver for yourself, and to Mrs Eardley-Wilmot we beg to offer this case of dessert knives and forks.

Signed on behalf of the Committee,

LOUIS M. HAYES, Secretary.
D. HUGHES-CHARLES, Treasurer.

After Mr. Hayes had finished reading the illuminated address, the tangible tokens of regard for Mr. Wilmot were then presented and consisted of a handsome large oak cabinet, suitably lined and fitted up, which contained a full outfit of solid silver ware. There were one dozen of each size of silver forks, spoons, knives, etc., of great value and surpassing beauty.

For Mrs. Wilmot was a case containing a beautiful set of pearl-handled silver dessert knives and forks, both purchased from Messrs. W. A. Sanderson & Co.

Mr. Wilmot, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Wilmot, made a most feeling response thanking his donors and friends for their splendid gifts and especially for the kind sentiments expressed. He would always have the kindliest remembrances of Peterborough and her citizens.

After the presentation and addresses, etc., had been completed, a most enjoyable evening was passed with vocal and instrumental music, a piano having been specially placed for the evening. Such talented vocalists as Messrs. Alex. Elliott, John Crane, and Wm. Mellroy taking part.

Big Hostlery at Ottawa.

Ottawa, January 8.—The agreement between the Dominion Government and the Grand Trunk for the construction of a grand new central depot in Ottawa, with a hotel second to none in Canada, has been approved. The depot and hotel will be constructed on the site of the present central depot, which was secured by the Grand Trunk Railway with the Canada Atlantic Railway. Some $80,000 has been paid by the Government to the Sparks estate for a clear title deed to the land alongside the canal. This has enabled the Government to hand over a clear title deed to the railway company of the land which is required for hotel and railway purposes.

Card of Thanks

I desire to return my heartiest thanks to my many friends and supporters who rolled up so handsome a vote for me yesterday, resulting in my return to the city council for a third term as alderman. In the future as in the past I shall use my best efforts in the interest of the whole community on all occasions.

Your obedient servant.

WHY SO WEARY?

Always Restless and Weak Isn't Natural—But It's Dangerous.

You have to work hard. This uses up lost of nerve force and tears down the body faster than it can build up. The result is a half-dead feeling you can't shake off. The water in your blood must be turned into nutriment and building material.

This is just what happens in using Ferrozone, which renews the blood and nerves, and makes each organ do the work that nature expects of it.

Ferrozone quickly increases your weight, brings appetite and healthy color, instills a reserve of vigor into the system that defies weariness, exhaustion, debility, or sickness of any kind.

The enormous strengthening power of Ferrozone is proved in the case of Mrs. Edward Hill, of Orr Lake, Ont., who says:

"Two years ago I had a nervous breakdown. At night I tossed restlessly in bed, unable to get any rest from sleep. In the morning I suffered from over-powering weakness. My appetite was poor. I grew pale, thin and despondent. A slight hacking cough also added to my burden.

"My doctor said to try Ferrozone, and it did me good in a few days. I increased in strength, the nervous sensations disappeared, and with my appetite came back my color and good spirits. I have gained over ten pounds in weight, and as my age is 56 I consider Ferrozone is a marvel." (Signed) Mrs. Edward Hill.

REMEMBER THIS: Ferrozone is a true tonic—not an alcoholic stimulant. Fifty chocolate-coated tablets in a box for fifty cents, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

JAPANNING KOREA

The migration of Japanese to Korea is said to be going on at the rate of 2,000 or 2,500 a month. The islanders who cross the strait to the peninsula are men of the kind who would be most useful to Japan in case of trouble with the Koreans. They are making their impress, deep and strong, upon the less advanced and feebler people among whom they live.

Meanwhile the Japanese projects which deal with the fortification of strategic garrison points in Korea and the gridironing of the country with railroads and military highways go forward steadily. It will soon be possible to ride from the capital of Korea to Mukden, in Manchuria, over a Japanese railway which will cross the Yalu River on a bridge that will cost a million dollars.

Such incidents in the Japanning of Korea show how fast the process of converting a kingdom into a dependency of the Japanese Empire is going on. It will not be long before Korea, already shorn of most of the attributes of sovereignty, will cease to be thought of anywhere except as virtually a part of Japan's populous domain.

Every such extension of Japanese power and sovereignty means another step toward the time when Japan will be prepared to announce and enforce, as to Eastern Asia, a sort of new Monroe doctrine—Asia for Asiatics. Predatory European powers have had their day of opportunity in rich and tempting regions within the scope of Japanese influence. It is gone, not to return.

A SUFFERING THEORY

It is perhaps not surprising that some of the advocates of municipal ownership of public utilities allow their zeal for their favorite theory to affect their accuracy of statement. For instance, at a recent meeting of the London County Council it was made to appear that the municipal tramway service south of the Thames had been handsomely profitable. It was shown that the Inland Revenue Office had assessed income taxes on the profits of the tramways, the profits being $446,265 in 1899, gradually falling to $344,610 in 1903, and then steadily and rapidly rising to the splendid amount of $1,019,150 in 1905. Such a statement was calculated to mark municipal ownership and operation of the tramways as a great success. Literally accurate, however, the statement appears to have been altogether misleading, for the reason that these ostensible "profits" were simply the gross profits, or excess of receipts above working expenses. The net showing, after payment of interest, depreciation charges, sinking fund, etc., according to the County Council's own books, is very different. Thus in 1899 the actual profit, instead of $446,265, was $274,235, which was still a good showing. But at the low-water mark in 1902, instead of a profit of $344,610, there was a deficit of $11,255. The next year, instead of an increased profit of $362,965 there was an increased deficit of $41,415; and finally in 1905, instead of the magnificent profit of $1,019,150 there was an actual profit of only $11,469, a poor showing on a capital expenditure of more than $15,000,000.

This is a condition in collision with a theory, and the theory suffers.

France Will Likely Give Up Islands

Recent Dispatches Indicate That She Will Sell St Pierre and Miquelon.

London, Jan. 5.—The London Globe says: "It seems there are rumors in various quarters that France will likely give up St. Pierre and Miquelon."

Recent despatches have indicated that there was great depression and absence of profitable labor on the islands, and an exodus of the population which totalled over 6,000. These islands have been the source of a good deal of annoyance to Britain in the past. They are the sole relics of France's former great empire in North America, with the exception of some islands in the West Indies. St. Pierre and Miquelon are the principal islands of the groups off the south-east coast of Newfoundland. Their combined area is about 95 square miles. The inhabitants are mostly cod fishermen. Canada or Newfoundland would doubtless be glad to extend jurisdiction over them.

Serious Duel Takes Place in France

New York, Jan. 5.—A despatch from Paris says: A real duel took place Wednesday at Sablere, Versailles, and, as usual, on the rare occasions, when such meetings are serious, nothing is being allowed to become known beyond the fact that the principals were young French officers, Lieut. Spitzer and Lieut. Andreal, previously the closest friends, the former of whom received a serious wound in the abdomen. Regulation army revolvers were used, and each combatant was allowed to fire as many of the 25 cartridges with which each was provided as he could.

The adversaries were placed thirty metres apart, and six shots were fired, when Lieut. Spitzer staggered, dropped his revolver and fell into the arms of his second. Lieut. Andreal quickly departed.

Lieut. Spitzer was taken to a private hospital in Paris.

He is the son of a St. Petersburg banker, and his mother is well known in the highest Paris society, nothing has transpired as to the cause of the duel.

As to Mining Booms.

These are the days of mining booms, which said booms have led to any amount of sage reflections of the Sanford and Marion type. We hear again Mark Twain's description of a mine: "A hole in the ground owned by a liar." The Wall Street Journal repeats the warning "Mine, miner, minus," while other financial Sherlock Holmes perceive that Ontario people have more money than they know what to do with. All these are very wise observations, and no doubt a lot of people are going to lose money in mines. But here is a point that is generally overlooked that it is only recently in Canada that the art of mining began to be taught. We had schools of oratory and art and theology and law and medicine and dramatic art and what not, but while Canada had more undeveloped resources than any other country on the globe we had no schools to teach us how to develop them. With wealth lying at our feet, with young men eager for the freedom and the health of an outdoor life we turned them back into overcrowded cities and made them believe that nobody but boors cultivated the land and that nobody but thieves did the mining. Even now, more enlightened though we are, we have just opened our third school of agriculture, and have but two or three schools of mining and practically no schools of forestry. Mining will never be as regular and sedate a business as farming, but the more the people know about it the less likely they will be to be taken in by lying prospectuses.

Her Majesty the Hen.

Eggs are dear because the hens are not laying, and a poultry expert says hens are not laying in Ontario yet this autumn because they moulted so very late. Further than this, the man of scientific and deductive knowledge will not go, but the wiseacres say that this moulting of the hens so late is an indication of a mild winter. Whether that be so or not, a poultry show at Berlin, Ont., last week showed a large proportion of the hens to be still moulting. Eggs are just now so scarce that a leading egg producer was offered at this show fifty cents per dozen for all the eggs from his poultry plant. While eggs are dear, poultry is for the moment slightly cheaper, because with the first snap of cold weather farmers killed considerable poultry and sent it to market.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary:—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 10c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 200,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold, the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid (say into 10 fully paid $100 share for each Share held), and I may mention that our firm, amongst several others in the United States in our interest, have subdivided their stock in my time, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions (20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100-Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

EXTRACT FROM REPORT, JUNE 30TH, 1906.

"An interesting brochure published by Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, give statistics of the past year's business. The total sales for the year aggregated over $700,000,000, representing shipments of 250 carloads daily. In a single day were slaughtered in the company's seven packing plants 11,873 cattle, 16,513 sheep and 34,262 hogs.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure, Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present: The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs. J. A. Banfield, F. B. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first Cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

Also requests for same by letter or postcard will be at once despatched to applicants from the Company's Offices in Winnipeg.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were smart and skilful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."

BIG CHANCES FOR MAIDS

MAKERS OF COBALT THOUSANDS LIVE LONELY LIVES.

Rich Bachelors of New Liskeard—Fortunes in a Few Years—Murdock Macleod, the Prospector-Capitalist—The Making of a Syrian Financier, and Some Other True Stories and Romances of Cobalt Camp.

Humbly domiciled in a lonely bachelor's shack on the outskirts of New Liskeard town is Murdock Macleod, prospector and capitalist. There are prospectors who have become capitalists, and capitalists who have become prospectors; but seldom does one man possess the financial strength of the moneyed promoter as well as the physical essentials of the pioneer in the mining reserve wilds. Still less frequently does one meet with one man who is active as a capitalist as well as a prospector.

A Prospector-Capitalist.

Such a man is "Murdie" Macleod, of New Liskeard. Four years ago he was merely a prospector. He had tried his luck in many mineral fields, but it always failed him. It is said that he arrived in the Cobalt region with scarcely a copper to "spin for direction." He knew good-looking indications when he saw them, and spotted a couple of claims east of the Cobalt Lake, just about as close to the Nipissing mine as he could get them. They turned out to be good. His luck had taken a twist. To-day he counts his wealth in the hundreds of thousands. Some folks say he is worth a million, but he modestly disclaims the title of millionaire. A stranger passing his shack would scarcely look therein for a moneyed man, unless he had previous knowledge of the occupant.

Prefers the North Country.

However, that is where Murdock Macleod lives when he is at home. Sometimes he is down at the King Edward Hotel, in Toronto, talking in thousands and millions about the companies and the mining properties in which he is interested. It is quite likely that these short business trips to Toronto, with the smoke, the rattling street cars, the soft-cushioned chairs, and other elements of civilization, are decidedly irksome to Murdie. His fellow townsfolk of Liskeard observe with pleasure that their bachelor millionaire always hikes back to his home town at the earliest opportunity. His shack on the bank of the muddy Wabi is palatial enough for him, and much more to his taste.

Simply because the padlock is out on Macleod's shack is no sure evidence that the householder has gone to the city to float a mining company. It is more than likely that he has strapped his prospector's pack over his shoulders and departed for the woods near Cobalt or Haileybury to make a personal inspection of a claim somebody wants him to take an interest in. Murdock Macleod is never fooled by "wild cats." He picks and blasts the surface veins till he is assured that the claim is either a bonanza, a "fair" thing, or a valueless acreage of rock. At times he is away for weeks on such prospective expeditions.

The Wealthy Ritchies.

Down in what is known in Liskeard as the East Road is an unpretentious farm house, the abode of S. S. Ritchie and family, nearly every member of which is wealthy in his or her own right, as the result of the Cobalt boom. They all "got in on the ground floor" in the Temiskaming and Hudson Bay Co., the mining venture which has made about a score of Liskearders comparatively wealthy. The eight thousand shares of this company were sold originally at $1 each. At various periods, during the infancy of Cobalt, when things looked rather blue, many of the New Liskeard holders of T. and H. B. would have been glad to unload at 50 per cent. discount. The Ritchies were among those who held on, probably because they couldn't sell out. They have now had the pleasure of seeing the stock advance from a 40-cent market valuation to $135 a share. Part of their property was recently sold to the Cobalt Silver Queen people for $815,000. Did any company ever pay such dividends? The last received by the T. and H. B. shareholders was at the rate of 4,500 per cent. There had been several previously on the thousand per cent. basis, in which the Ritchies shared to a large extent. S. S. Ritchie, the head of the house, is credited with saying, on one occasion, "Millions may come and millions may go out of this house, but you'll still find me working at the farm."

The T. and H. B. still possesses over 800 acres of central property in the mining region. The paid-up capitalization of the concern remains at $8,000, and the miners are producing good paying ore.

The Syrian's Luck.

One of New Liskeard's most prominent and wealthy citizens is K. Farah, proprietor of the Canada Hotel and chief stockholder in the New Liskeard Electric Light Co. Mr. Farah is a gentleman of Syria, and started business life in New Liskeard as a merchant. He also stumbled over a couple of good claims north of Cobalt Lake, and one day he opened up his stock and found himself wealthy. He sold one of them for a good price, still holds another, and is now busy fighting law suits — a privilege that smacks of a fortune of which somebody is envious. Mr. Farah holds the respect of the community in which he resides, and when he was down in Toronto the other day, he hobnobbed with the biggest financiers of old Ontario. From an itinerant merchant to wealthy capitalist—such has been the career of K. Farah, in less than half a dozen short years.

Many Men "Well-Fixed."

In a recent issue discussing the citizens of New Liskeard who were in the "well-fixed" class, the progressive little "Herald," of which Mr. A. W. Roebuck is editor, estimates that nine men of the town were worth over $20,000, and at least eleven over $10,000. Much of this was the result of investment in the T. H. and B. Mining Co. They include A. Burwash, J. P., Indian Agent at Temiskaming; A. A. McKelvie, lumberman and mayor of the town; D. T. K. McEwan, barrister; Thomas McCamus, Mr McKelvie's partner; and F. M. Ferguson, miner.

A Chance For the Girls.

The fact that most of the well-to-do men of New Liskeard are bachelors caused the bachelor editor of The New Liskeard Herald recently to dilate on the matrimonial opportunities for young women. No such fish ever swam in the sea of celibacy, wrote the editor, as awaited the bait of the ladies of Liskeard, or others who might cast a hook into the town bachelor preserves. In towns of three thousand inhabitants, said Mr. Roebuck, no such opportunities existed in the world.

MME. DONALDA.

Facts About the Singer's Discovery and Early Training.

Mrs. Mendola de Sola of Montreal writes this of Mme. Donalda, the Canadian prima donna:

"At a rehearsal of a Zionist entertainment, the music of which I had undertaken to superintend, I heard Pauline Lightstone for the first time singing in a chorus, and in the timbre of her voice immediately recognized the material from which great singers are made. In the course of a few days I took her to Miss Lichtenstein, who tried her voice, and at once coincided with my opinion. Through the influence of Mr. Peterson, to whom representations were made by Miss Lichtenstein and myself, the board of governors of McGill was induced to receive the young girl as a free partial student at the Royal Victoria College, this being the first time such a concession had been granted. After studying there with Miss Lichtenstein little more than a year, Mrs. Semlein took Pauline to New York, where she was heard by Saligmac, Dufriche and others, who, pronouncing the same judgment as I had, advised her to lose no time, to go at once to Paris and study for grand opera. On her return from New York she came at once to tell me all about the matter, and I well remember her excitement, alternating with despair, when she considered how impossible it would be for any member of her family to find the means for her long sojourn in Paris. However, I assured her she need not worry—that I would obtain the wherewithal to send and keep her there until she was ready to make her debut. In a very few hours I was able to interest some of Montreal's well known philanthropists in her case, and in possession of sufficient funds to cover her requirements for the first year, and subsequently Lord Strathcona was induced to undertake the bulk of the expense. For three years she studied in Paris under Duvernoy, who gave her her entire instruction free.

"At last the time arrived when Pauline Lightstone was ready to commence her career, and she adopted the stage name of Donalda in recognition of the Royal Victoria College and its generous founder. It was at this time that I gave her a letter to my life-long friend, Hope Temple, asking her to induce her husband, Andre Messager, one of the conductors of the Royal Italian Opera at Covent Garden, and manager of the Syndicate, to hear Donalda, and if he thought well of her voice to give her an engagement. Messager heard her, and after some further correspondence with me one of my dearest ambitions for her was realized. Pauline Donalda obtained a three years' engagement at Covent Garden in her first season.

"With such phenomenal opportunities it was an easy matter for the young aspirant to fame quickly to gain her place amongst the foremost singers of the time, and to-day she bids fair to shed lustre upon the Dominion of Canada."

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well. Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,600 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

House of Refuge Opened Next Week

It is now thought that the members of the county council for 1906 should have the honor of opening the House of Refuge, now completed. Mr. H. C. Garbutt, chairman of the special committee has done his work well and deserves great credit. He will meet Warden Johnston, and ex-Warden Burk in Lakefield today, and settle upon a date for the formal opening. It is likely that Hon. Canada's Train-de-Luxe.

The "International Limited" is the appropriate name by which one of the swell trains of the Grand Trunk Railway System is known. In addition to the many Canadians who travel by this flyer its passengers include men and women of international reputation, for the reason that it merits its world wide reputation as the train-de-luxe of Canada. When we recall that the Grand Trunk is Canada's double track railway between Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls and other principal cities, and that its roadbed is the best in the Dominion it is certainly a matter of congratulation. This great system is the longest double track in the world under one management. The "International Limited" leaves Montreal every morning at 9 o'clock, and runs over the splendid double track system from Montreal to Chicago. Its stops being limited to the chief points along the route. It is the finest and fastest train in the Dominion, where it is known as the "Railway Greyhound of Canada."

Those who travel should not miss the opportunity of riding on this train when they are going West. Through sleeping cars, cafe and library cars are part of the equipment of this magnificent train.

Danny Simons Interviewed at Length

The Daily Journal of Biddeford, Maine, contains an article a column and a half in length, devoted to the theatrical history and stage success of a Peterborough boy, who has a host of friends here. Mr. Danny Simons, son of Mr. Pete Simons, the George street tailor.

The article is in the form of a protracted interview with Mr. Simons. In this Danny noted that he had begun his stage career by giving exhibitions in barns, charging his boy friends and the "kids" so many pins per head for admission. He first got the "stage fever" in Oswego, N.Y., and as he grew older the desire for theatrical success grew on him. Mr. Simon's first travelled with Sells Bros. circus, before that combination was consolidated with Forepaugh, as one of the clowns in the F. E. Dutton horseback act, this was in his 15th year. He also did double somersault acts from a spring-board. While with the circus he visited Australia, returning via San Francisco. On arrival at Frisco he joined J. M. Kelly the actor and playwright. After this he played with many other companies always rising in his art. Danny's history as presented in the interview noted is most amusing as well as interesting.

Danny has now been for two years with the Adam Good Company, his act, "Teddy Roosevelt in the charge up San Juan Hill," having "caught on" and drawing large audiences Danny's description of how he originated the act being typical of this clever comedian. One day at noon as the clock struck 12, and the men were leaving the stage for dinner, a stage carpenter straddled a wooden horse, on which he had been sawing a board, and galloped off to the side scenery. This gave Danny a hint and thus originated the San Juan charge.

We are pleased to see another Peterborough boy rise in his profession and congratulate Mr. Simons on his success.

Ministerial Assn. Met Yesterday

The regular monthly meeting of the Ministerial Association was held yesterday morning with the following members present; Revs. Canon Davidson, J. G. Lewis, Dr. Torrance, J. G. Potter, Dr. Crothers, L. McKinnon and A. H. Brace.

Mr. Lees, inspector of Public schools was present and referred to the Teachers' Training class about to be organized and open to all and work to be done in the interests of S.S. work. Hearty support was pledged Mr. Lees in the promotion of this important work of the Sunday schools.

The arrangements for the week of prayer were completed. Rev. Dr. Torrance and others spoke in St. Andrew's last night; Revs. Canon Davidson and J. G. Lewis will speak in George street on Wednesday evening, and Revs. Dr. Crothers and Canon Davidson in Mark street. Revs. Dr. Torrance and J. G. Potter will be the speakers in Park street on Friday evening.

The municipal service was appointed for St. Andrew's church, when Rev. Mr. Potter will preach. The new council being invited to attend.

Rev Dr. Torrance gave an admirable paper on "The Signs of the Times." Many of the members expressed their views as believing the action of the French Government was not intended as a thrust at religion.

Fell Overboard and Drowned

New York, Jan. 7.—Albert Steele of Portland, Maine, an electrician, fell overboard from the hurricane deck of the steamer Maine while off Block Island yesterday and drowned.

The vessel was stopped, but Patrick Duffy, who witnessed the accident, said it was too rough to launch the boats, and that the Maine simply waited for Steele to overtake her by swimming.

Encircled by Molten Iron.

Buffalo, Jan. 6.—With the flesh burned off his back, exposing the spine, and scarcely a shred left on his arm Thos. Friend, head roller at the Lackawanna Steel plant, lies dying at the Mercy Taylor Hospital. Friend was standing in position at one of the mills where the molten metal was being transformed into rails when a large piece of it shot out of the machine and wound round him like coils of a huge serpent. When a crane lifted the mass of metal from the floor, Friend slid from the center still alive, but horribly burned.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retro-version or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native, medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

Only one case was tried at yesterday's session of the police court, viz., an express driver who was charged with allowing a runner to solicit baggage at the depot on January 4, contrary to the bylaw which forbids expressmen and hackmen going beyond a certain line in soliciting baggage and passengers. The driver was fined one dollar and in future the bylaw will be enforced.

Senator George A. Cox Resigns the Presidency

Of The Canadian Bank of Commerce---The Senator Will Retain Office Positions Only in Central Canada and Canada Life.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—At the annual meeting of the Canadian Bank of Commerce yesterday morning Senator George A. Cox announced his retirement not only from the presidency of that great financial institution, but also, he said, "from a number of positions which I feel can now be better filled by younger and more energetic men." The decision involves his resignation of all offices except that of director in companies of which he is now an official, save in the case of the Canada Life and the Central Canada Loan, at the helm of which he will continue to stand. He will, of course, remain upon the directorates of the companies with which he is identified, but not as an office-holder, or member of the executive. He will be succeeded as president of the Bank of Commerce by Mr. Byron E. Walker, now the general manager, and Mr. Alex. Laird, now assistant general manager, will take the place vacated by Mr. Walker.

SENATOR COX'S STATEMENT.

In announcing his decision in regards the Bank of Commerce, and in recommending as his successor, Mr. Walker, Senator Cox recalled the fact that his decision was not made suddenly. Indeed, for the past five years, he said, he had been promising his family and friends that he would abate the strenuosity of his business life. This step he is now taking after half a century of active business for twenty-one years of which he has been a director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, occupying the vice-president's chair for two years and the president's for seventeen years. At the time of his becoming a director, in 1881, the total assets were but slightly more than the increase in assets reported for the year just closed.

In intimating his willingness to continue on the bank's directorate, Senator Cox expressed the hope that he might thus "assist in some measure in securing for it the continued growth and prosperity which await it, and which, I venture to predict will be greater in the next ten years than it has been in the last twenty."

WIDE INTERESTS.

Hon. George A. Cox, who yesterday announced his resignation from the presidency of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, has filled that office for the past 16 years. It is announced, too, that he will resign from all the other executive positions he holds, with the exception of the presidency of the Canada Life and of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, and Loan Company of Peterborough. It is not his present purpose to resign directorships of which he holds 28, including many of the most important business institutions of Canada. He joined the directorate of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in 1865, became vice-president in 1889, and president in 1891.

Senator Cox will retain the presidency of the Canada Life Assurance Company, the institution with which he has been longest and most intimately connected. He joined the staff of this company in 1861, when he was 21 years old. At that time he was a telegraph operator in Peterborough, whither he had come a few years earlier from Colborne, his birthplace. He continued to reside in Peterborough for almost 30 years, and occupied a high position in the municipal and political as well as the commercial life of the district. One of the large enterprises with which he was associated in the early days was the Midland Railway, now a portion of the Grand Trunk System.

Outside business, Senator Cox has wide activities which may now be expected to grow even larger. He is a warm supporter of the Methodist Church, a large but unostentatious giver to charities, and a supporter of the cause of temperance. He is prominently connected with Victoria University, Whitby Ladies' College, and is one of the founders of the Dominion Sanitarium. Politically a Liberal, he was appointed to the Senate in 1896. In his legislative duties, he may also now be able to give more attention.

At the present time Senator Cox holds 28 directorships, the largest number held by any Canadian. They are as follows:

President Lorain America Assurance Co.
Director Canada Cycle and Motor Company.
Director Canada Foundry Co.
President Canada Life Assurance Company.
President Canadian Bank of Commerce.
Director Canadian General Electric Company.
Director Canadian Shipbuilding Co.
President Central Canada Loan and Savings Co.
President Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company.
Director Dominion Coal Co.
Director Dominion Iron and Steel Company.
President Dominion Securities Corporation.
Director Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Co.
Director Electrical Development Company.
Director Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co.
Vice-president Imperial Guarantee and Accident Insurance Co.
Director London Electric Co.
Director National Trust Co.
Director Ottawa Electric Railway Company.
President Provident Investment Co.
Director Sao Paulo Tramway, Light and Power Co.
Director Toronto and Niagara Power Co.
Director Toronto and York Radial Railway Co.
Director Toronto Electric Light Company.
Director Toronto Land and Investment Corporation.
Director Toronto Railway Co.
President Toronto Savings and Loan Co.
President Western Assurance Co.

No Limit to Surgery's Ambition.

Berlin, January 9.—Dr. Posner, a well-known professor of surgery, at the Berlin University, writing in the Carlenlaube, says that surgery is making such progress that he quite looks forward to the time, when surgeons will be able to attach an artificial arm or leg to the body. He even goes further, and says that in the future surgeons will find no difficulty in attaching a beheaded head to the trunk, provided the operation is carried out expediously enough.

The Virtue of Mastication

(From "The Tribune" Correspondent.)

New York, Oct. 6th.

Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale University, has been conducting experiments upon nine Yale students since last January in order to determine the effects of the thorough mastication of food. He has found that their endurance is increased 50 per cent., although they took no more exercise than before the experiments, and although they diminished their consumption of flesh foods to one-sixth the original quantity.

These experiments emphasize advantages of the scientific food, GRAPE-NUTS, which, when eaten properly—that is, crisp and dry, direct from the package, with a little cream or milk—requires thorough "chewing."

Grape-Nuts food comes in delicate crisp granules, intended to be ground up by the teeth. The work not only preserves the teeth but brings down the saliva from the gums so necessary in the primary work of digestion.

If your teeth are fit, chew, chew, chew until the food is liquid and insists on being swallowed.

If teeth are faulty, soften Grape-Nuts with cream or hot or cold milk and allow to stand a minute soaking, but even then don't forget to chew.

Many people say (and it is true) that when they eat Grape-Nuts they seem able to digest not only that food but other kinds which formerly seemed indigestible.

"There's a Reason" for

Grape-Nuts

Most of English Baronets Frauds

Whitaker Says That Only a Few Can Show Right to Title.

London, January 9.—A pointed reference to the many bogus users of the title of baronet is made in the preface for Whitaker's Peerage for 1907.

"There are possibly a few among the aspirants to the dignity of a baronetcy," says the editor, "who are genuinely entitled to the style which they claim, but taking them in the bulk it is evidently safe to say that those who are not downright impostors are the deluded victims of an impractical idea.

"The modus operandi of these latter is apparently this: They become aware of a lapsed baronetcy of their own surname, the last holder of which was either certainly or possibly a relative. No one else has assumed the title, so why should not they?

"The other class, believing that a baronet's title will give them a standing or get them longer credit from tradesmen, hunt up some name in Burke's 'Extinct Baronetcies' (if it does not happen to be their own, what is easier than to make it such?) give it out that the latest holder left a son or brother whose name was never registered, and from that son or brother themselves are descended.

"Servants and shopkeepers have perforce to give them their title and thus a fictitious title is secured which probably suffices for the main purpose of most of them."

Another passage from the preface is amusing.

"During the past autumn," the editor writes, "we have forwarded between two and three thousand proofs to peers, baronets, widows, and others. From a large number of these we have received the most valuable and courteous information.

"One elderly peer takes the pains to send us this fatherly admonition. 'Would it not save your time and postage if you looked at the published roll of the House of Lords?'

Reported That Cuba Is Still Unsettled

New York, January 9.—Rumors of a conspiracy against the peace of Cuba are again rife in this city. Three persons mentioned in connection with the plan again to foment trouble in the Island were office holders of the Palma Administration, two of whom are now in New York and the other in Europe.

According to these reports, arms and ammunition have been shipped clandestinely from this port to Cuba for possible future use.

While with Governor Magoon at the head of the insular government there is not likely to be any armed movement that would be dangerous or even serious, the dissatisfied politicians seem to be planning far ahead.

Mr. Chas. McGill Was Committed

A Toronto despatch says:

Charles McGill, (ex-general manager of the Ontario Bank, was committed for trial by Magistrate Denison in the police court yesterday morning on the charge of making false returns to the government in connection with the funds of the bank. It is likely that on Thursday the preliminary hearing of the theft charges will be concluded and yesterday it was intimated that another committment will be registered. The grand jury now in session at the Assize court will hear the first charge this week if possible. Mr. McGill was allowed out on the same bail.

Relatives Want Thaw To Plead Insanity

New York, Jan. 8.—According to a Pittsburg despatch to the Times, acting upon the advice of some of the most famous legal lights in the country, both as attorneys and friends, Mrs. Mary Thaw, mother of Harry Kendall Thaw, has decided that to save her son a plea of insanity will have to be entered for him. The latest persons to advise Mrs. Thaw to follow this course are U.S. Senator P. C. Knox of Pennsylvania and Justice McKenna of the U.S. Supreme Court. This information comes from a person who is very close to the Thaw family. Mrs. Thaw has at last decided to adopt this course if it is possible. Harry Thaw is not to be told of it until the last moment. Then it will be made plain to him that the insanity plea is the only one that is safe for him. If he does not consent to adopt it, his relatives, it is said, will withdraw from the case.

Senator Knox and Justice McKenna are both old friends of the Thaw family. Mrs. Thaw visited them and pleaded with them to advise her, not as attorneys, but as friends, to the best course to pursue.

Chinese Ancestors Are Holy No More

Singapore, January 8.—The reports that the Chinese here, to the number of nearly 200,000, have decided to abandon ancestor worship, including feasts and public processions, and to devote the money thus saved to educational purposes, are confirmed. It is estimated that a sum of more than $100,000 will thus become at once available for education. Ancestor worship is the most deep-seated religious rite in China. Every house has a shrine with ancestral tablets and when a man dies his tablet is put upon the shrine.

In the spring and the autumn there are two grand festivals in which the whole family gathers at the shrine to pay reverence to the dead. The worship of ancestors is closely connected with the idea of filial piety so strongly insisted upon by Confucius. A Chinaman believes firmly in his ancestors and sacrifices to them.

Kitchener to Get Still Freer Hand

Will Have More Authority Than Ever Over the Military Government of India.

Calcutta, January 8.—And now it is reported that Lord Kitchener is to be given a greater authority in connection with the military government of India. The troubles in this connection between Lord Kitchener and Lord Curzon, will be remembered by all. It was at that time supposed that the Home Office had done all that could possibly be done along these lines, and the suggestion is made that if things continue in this direction much longer, the Viceroy will have little real power left, except that which clings round the title.

On the occasion of his visit to the great Mohammedan College at Aligarh Lord Kitchener made a pleasant reference to the associations which he had formed with Mohammedans all over the world, in the course of his career. He added: "It is very satisfactory to see that the education given here tends to increase the feelings of devotion and loyalty to the King-Emperor, and that spirit for military service which distinguished your forefathers in the past. As you are aware a large proportion of the Indian Army consists of Mohammedan officers and men. These constitute some of the finest and bravest soldiers I have the honor to command and worthily maintain the credit and reputation of the Mohammedan races of India.

"As president of the Gordon College in Khartoum I wish to thank you for the kind expressions you have used about that institution. Of course, it is a small one compared with Aligarh, but I continue to receive excellent reports of the progress that is being made and the enthusiasm of the Mohammedan population, and I hope in the course of time the students of the Gordon College will rival Aligarh in competition for university honors."

Many Changes in The County Council

Some change, with an accent upon the word "some," has been made by Monday's election in the county council, as the council for this year will contain only one member of the 1906 Council, viz., Mr. Robert Shaw. Mr. Dennis Moloney, in Douro, and Mr. S. Stinson, in Smith, were candidates, but were defeated. Fifteen of the sixteen men who will compose the council for this year are known, the sixteenth, the reeve of Chandos. With this exception, the County Council will be as follows:

J. Fife, Reeve of Otonabee.
W. J. Porter, Deputy Reeve of Otonabee.
John Brown, Reeve of North Monaghan.
Robert Scott, Reeve of Smith.
C. J. Darling, Reeve of Dummer.
Patrick McNulty, Reeve of Asphodel.
Samuel Killen, Reeve of Enniskillen.
Dr. J. A. Burgess, Reeve of Lakefield.
A. Breault, Reeve of Norwood.
Jas. Thompson, Reeve of Havelock.
Frank Moher, Reeve of Douro.
Robert Johnston, Reeve of Belmont and Methuen.
Robert Shaw, Reeve of Harvey.
C. R. D. Booth, Reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther.
Chas. Coben, Reeve of Galway and Cavendish.

Cows Go Mad and Bite One Another

Saginaw, Mich., January 9.—Smith's Crossing, five miles beyond Freeland, this county, is in a turmoil of excitement over an epidemic of hydrophobia. Eight weeks ago a mad dog came down the river road from the direction of Midland biting everything in its path. It was finally dispatched by a farmer, whom it attacked, after a fierce battle. So vicious was the dog that the farmer's horses would not pass it in the road, trembling in their tracks. He beat it off and later with a neighbor killed the animal.

Within the last few days every dog in the hamlet has gone mad, four foaming-mouthed canines being killed in one day. Three hogs belonging to one man went mad from hydrophobia and five cows owned by another villager have become rabid. The cows went rearing and plunging about the barnyard, bellowing with all their might and biting each other. It is believed that many other cattle and hogs, and possibly horses, have been bitten.

Toronto Runaway Boy Is Shot In New York

Comrade Only 15 Years Old Fired Off Revolver During a Dispute.

New York, Jan. 9.—Herbert Coburn, 15 years old, of 427 West 35th street, was arrested last night charged with killing William Gearon, 17 years old, the son of a policeman of Toronto, Canada. Gearon and a boy named Charles Ferran, 17 years old, also of Toronto, ran away from home about four months ago, and came to this city, where they managed to make a living selling papers.

The boys prospered, and about two weeks ago they hired a furnished room from Mrs. Mary Goff, at 484 Eighth avenue. They made the acquaintance of the Coburn boy, and the three boys hatched up a plan to go to Texas and become ranchers. Gearon provided himself with a revolver in preparation for the journey, and showed it to Coburn. Late in the afternoon, while Ferran was out Coburn visited Gearon and produced a revolver.

Exactly what happened after this the police don't know, but they assert that the boys started an argument as to the merits of their weapons.

Mary Smith, a daughter of Mrs. Goff, heard a shot fired, and almost immediately after the Coburn boy came to her and said:

"You had better call an ambulance. Gearon is hurt."

Policeman Sullivan summoned Dr. Drennan from Roosevelt hospital, who said that Gearon had died instantly from a bullet in the brain.

The police arrested Coburn, who denied that he had shot Gearon, but an examination of his revolver showed one discharged cartridge, while Gearon's revolver was fully loaded.

The Coburn boy was turned over into the custody of the Gerry Society until the coroner makes an investigation. Meanwhile the police insist the shooting was the result of a dispute and charge the boy with homicide.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—Policeman Edward Gearon is attached to No. 5 Division, and resides at 127 Amelia st.

William Gearon was 15 years of age in October 13 last. He was born in Toronto. Before leaving for New York he was learning the printing trade in the offices of the Douglas-Ford Company.

Charlie Ferran, the lad who ran away with him, is not known to Gearon's family.

Marlboroughs Have Kissed and Made Up

New York, January 8.—According to a despatch to The Herald from London, a reconciliation has taken place between the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, and on Boxing Day (the day after Christmas) they came together again. "King Edward has extended the area of his influence," says the despatch, "and his functions as peacemaker, and has been chiefly instrumental in effecting the reunion. There were faults on both sides, but sins of omission and commission have been mutually forgiven."

G. T. R. Ready to Build New Line at Once

Montreal, Jan. 8.—The Grand Trunk Railway officially announced today that if permission to construct the new line from Port Union into Toronto along the lake front is secured from the Railway Commission, they will go ahead with the construction work at once.

The Grand Trunk has a special staff on the plans of the new line, but state they cannot give them out till they are submitted to the Railway Commission.

The Grand Trunk is preparing for a strong fight from the C.P.R., and C.N.R. as well as from the property owners at the different localities east of Toronto.

Mrs. J. Fanning in Nichols Hospital

Peace Leaves Out God.

Paris, Jan. 9.—Finance Minister Caillaux has directed the authorities of the mint to substitute on all coins the words, "Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity," for the old device of "God Protect France," in accordance with the amendment to the budget appropriation, forming a coin which was adopted by the Chamber of Deputies.

Find Body From Steamer Jones

Penetanguishene, Jan 9.—Some Indians on Christian Island, found one of the bodies, with a life-preserver on, from the ill-fated steamer Jones. They brought the body here and telephoned to Wiarton, and it is understood that Captain Crawford's brother will arrive here today to identify the body. The Indians are out looking for any more bodies that may come ashore.

Rev. Dr. McColl On The Crisis in France

Eloquent Local Priest Gives Intelligent and Interesting Lecture before Large Audience in Grand Opera House.

Last night the Grand Opera house was well filled, when Rev. Dr. McColl delivered his long heralded and most admirably delivered lecture on "The Crisis in France." Dr. McColl in his remarks displayed a broad, cultured and studied knowledge of the vast subject treated.

Before the lecture began Miss McCollum played a selection on the piano with good effect.

When the curtain rose the orchestra chairs and parquet were well filled as was the first gallery, and Mr. Girth started proceedings by rendering a vocal solo in good style.

After this initial number had been received with cheers Messrs. Frank Clarke and Smith gave a duet on banjo and zither, that was well received. Mr. Denham of the Quaker Oats Company, next rendered a vocal solo in his usual magnificent bass style and voice.

At this juncture Rev. D. Torrance took the chair, accompanied on the stage by the talented and rev. speaker, Rev. Father McColl.

The chairman expressed his regrets that Miss Davies could not be present owing to a severe cold. The chairman in a few well chosen words then introduced the speaker of the evening.

Rev. Dr. McColl started out by saying that the crisis in France was a subject of interest to the whole christian world. When we consider the present crisis in France, we find that instead of the Government's present action being one actuated by "liberty," it is an act of oppression. The history of France for the past 25 years displays not freedom but slavery and banishing Christ from the country. The speaker then read a quotation from a celebrated French politician, Ferdinand Faure, in 1885, in which the latter said that the reign of Christ should be abolished.

He then went on to speak regarding the statements of a well known socialist, Jaures, who thought God should not appear as a master, but an equal, showing how a leading politician of France used such impious words. Father McColl hoped to prove before his conclusion that the present bill is not one of equity but of oppression and injustice.

The relation which exists between the Church and France has no parallel in this country. To understand this relationship it is necessary to make some investigation. Religion has not been free for over 300 years in France. The ruler of that time, Louis XIV. was a great victor in his wars, but interfered with matters of the church and tried to usurp the functions of the Church. It was necessary to his ends to take over the affairs of the Church. It is necessary for the Church to take control, entirely of the spiritual affairs of the country. The ruler referred to, banished several of the Church's orders and monasteries, and raised the taxes of the people for the wars he then carried on. His successor Louis XV. banished the priests and his life was one of great immorality, and he encouraged such infidels as Voltaire, and allowed immoral literature to be disseminated. Father McColl then went on to speak of the terrible state of affairs of that time as regards religious matters. Noting that the misrule of these two sovereigns brought on the terrible French revolution, during which time the church property of all classes was confiscated.

Napoleon saw that such action, as existed at the revolution, viz., among others, the worship of an immoral woman, as "The Goddess of Reason," was hurting both the country and the people of France, decided to stop such impiety. It was impossible for him to do as he considered right, at once, so took a middle course, whereby the clergy would get what was due them in the way of salaries, etc. In any event the country was simply giving back what really belonged to the church. There are 10,000 churches and priests' houses belonging to the church in France, of which only some 300 were erected by the assistance of the State. Thus, the rev. speaker proved by several strong arguments.

Regarding the appointment of bishops, Father McColl explained how, in the country, the nominees are sent to Rome for approval. He then explained the different system under Napoleon, showing how the power of nominating the bishops was in his (Napoleon's) power, but subject to approval of the Pope. Napoleon wanted to rule both church and State. Under his rule the people could leave his own diocese without permission of the State or send letters from one to another, in fact all freedom was curtailed.

As advocated by Napoleon, restored to the Church all Church property that it was in his power to do. In order to make restitution for property not restored he agreed to pay certain salaries to the bishops and priests, which would amount to one per cent. on the property confiscated.

Under the administration of Waldick Rousseau, the Pope was obliged to reject certain candidates nominated for bishops.

The Government then withdrew these candidates, but Combes, his successor insisted that all these rejected candidates be appointed as toto. This the Church refused. This left 15 dioceses open at the time the law of separation was passed.

The immediate cause of the present separation law was because the Pope "for good reasons" refused to sanction the resignation of two bishops against the wish of the French Government. The Government claimed the Pope had no right to dismiss these prelates without its consent. This was clearly an unjust interference of the State in spiritual affairs, but the State made it the pretext of breaking the concordat, and passing the law of cultual associations. This law places all church property in the hand of these associations which may be composed of infidels, atheists or Jews. These associations would have power to select clergymen, determine their functions, designate the time and conditions for holding services, in a word regulate religion itself as well as administer its temporalities. In fact they would have control of the administration of sacraments and of the entire discipline and doctrine of the Church. This is an entire opposition to the organization of the Church, and it would place the spiritual authority in the hands of associations responsible to the Government only.

The rev. speaker expressed his opinion that the outcome of the present difficulty would be the victory of religion. No Catholic layman attempted to form these associations, showing that the laymen are in union with priests and the eighty-six bishops of France, under leadership of the Pope, which makes it difficult to understand how their plans could fail.

Rev. Dr. Torrance in a few well chosen words thanked the talented speaker for the interesting historical and able lecture given to those present.

Mr. Nicholls Declines The Barrie Franchise

Toronto, Jan. 9.—Mr. Frederic Nicholls has declined to take up the franchise for the construction of a street railway in Barrie, as offered him by the electorate of the town Monday by a narrow majority of forty-five. Mr. Nicholls says he is willing to help in the development of the railway, because of sentimental reasons—his summer home being located near there. However, he was never very anxious about the matter. Street railways, in small towns, were not always satisfactory investments. The population of the town was only 5,300, and it would cost $225,000 to finance the railway.

"I was under the impression," said Mr. Nicholls, "from the information given me, that the people of Barrie would consider it a public benefit if a street railway were constructed. Had the vote evidenced the fact that the people believed that I was sincerely endeavoring to do my best to aid, on a reasonable basis, in the development of the town, I should have endeavored to carry the project, part of which was to give the town railway connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is about six miles distant to a conclusion. The town is at present only served by the Grand Trunk Railway.

Were Jap Soldiers.

Honolulu, Jan. 9.—Although most of the 760 Japanese laborers arriving on the steamer Chiuan were classed as laborers in search of employment, none have gone to the plantations. It has been discovered that many of them are former soldiers, who brought with them their uniforms. All are now scattered in Oriental quarters.

Woman Badly Burned.

Toronto, Jan. 8.—Very serious burned, Mrs Susan Fennell, a widow, 60 years of age, living on Lee avenue, north of Queen street, was taken to the General Hospital in an ambulance last night.

In the absence of her daughter, Mrs. Fennell, who is almost helpless from paralysis, attempted to get some matches from a box on a shelf. Some fell to the floor, and becoming ignited, set fire to her clothing. Mr. C. James was passing, and hearing her screams, rushed to her assistance. He wrapped a table cloth about her and thus put out the flames. Mrs. Fennell was badly burned about the limbs, back, and face.

She spent a quiet night, and appears much better today.

—Messrs. Duncan Johnston, Hick Baker left yesterday afternoon to attend the Harwood ball.

—Mr. J. B. McColl, Cobourg, M.P. for West Northumberland, was the guest yesterday of his brother Rev. Father McColl.

PALE AND ANXIOUS

Your Countenance Indicates the Body's Awful Struggle for Health.

Impossible to work or think clearly when there is no reserve of vigor, no nourishment in the blood, no supply of nerve energy.

The life of the half-sick man is pitiful, in fact, almost criminal, when bounding strength is so quickly derived from Ferrosone.

This nutritive tonic is guaranteed to strengthen all men, women and children. Weak organs get new force, vital energy is generated. Muscle and fat are added, healthy color is restored, and the blood fairly tingles with new-found life.

Read the evidence of Jno. Carter, of 434 King St. East, Toronto, who says:

"After a severe attack of Grippe my health was almost shattered. I suffered constantly from nervousness and dyspepsia. At night I would waken with terrible palpitation and heart pains. Work became a great effort. At ten in the morning I was so tired and weak I could hardly work another minute.

"Then came a bad attack of rheumatism, which laid me up in bed. I could scarcely lift the weight of a pound, and to stoop or bend was impossible. My druggist recommended Ferrosone, and he knew what he was talking about, for it rebuilt my strength, gave me abundant appetite, better blood, and new nerve energy. The rheumatism has disappeared. I weigh more, feel refreshed and vigorous, and am able to work ten hours a day. Ferrosone did it all."

You will be steadied, toned and strengthened for all time to come with Ferrosone. Get the genuine in 50c boxes or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

TAMING A PRINCE

Emperor William shares honors with no other earthly monarch when it comes to exacting obedience to his imperial will. The "Roosevelt of Europe," as he is called—and a term, by the way, to which he has no objection—stands forth in august majesty as master of his people, which, of course, includes his own family. When this high sovereign decided it was time for the crown prince to marry, the marriage of the crown prince became only a matter of arrangement. The unfortunate prince had nothing to say about it. The edict was issued and there was no earthly power to stay the royal wish.

But something has occurred of late that appears to have taxed the German kaiser's resources to the limit. That he has arisen grandly to the occasion only establishes more incontestably his reputation for infallibility. The emperor's youngest son, Prince August William, according to time-honored precedent, was sent to school at Bonn, and while there he became imbued with socialistic sentiments. So alarming was this son's defection from the principle of the divine right of kings that the strenuous father was hard put to it. That a son of the reigning house of confederated Germany should have joined the propaganda of liberty and equality was enough to set the emperor by the ears. The prince was called into the awful presence and roundly admonished that he must reform. It did no good. Back went the prince to the rathskeller and his fellow socialists. Again was the obstinate youngster called to account, and for the second time did he disobey the imperial commands. It was a desperate condition of affairs, but William proved himself equal to even this grave emergency.

After every means of ordinary procedure had been exhausted in trying to haul the recalcitrant princeling back to the royal preserves, the emperor hit upon an ingenious plan. There is a certain self-willed girl in Europe who basks beneath the terrifying name of Princess Alexandra Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein-Sondenburg-Glucksburg, and it was to this girl that the emperor turned in his extremity. He would marry his son to the Princess Alexandra, etc., who would tame him and subdue him and convert him to tractability. Thus has the emperor employed the world-old method of heaven-sent authority in the subjugation of mankind. Prince Augustus William may defy the emperor, but he must inevitably bow in submission before his strong-minded wife. He will learn the lesson that wiser men have learned, that though kings, emperors, principalities and militant powers may fall in breaking the spirit of a prince, yet masculine independence must at last, with prince or pauper, break before a determined wife's decision.

HIS HONOR JUDGE MACTAVISH.

Sketch of the Life and Career of Chairman Insurance Commission.

His Honor Judge MacTavish, as Chairman of the Royal Insurance Commission, has had heavy work and great responsibility. Fortunately his is a temperament on which burdens may rest without perceptible ruffling of temper. Calm and judicial by nature, he faces each difficulty as it arises, and sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. In numberless instances the right of the commission to demand information was questioned by witnesses, but the Chairman was firm in his insistence on what Parliament and the people should know. His manner in the commission has been that of a dignified gentleman; the order of a court room was maintained without any of the airs or pomposity which some judges assume.

Judge MacTavish is a Canadian by birth, and has lived all his life in this country. His father, the late Alexander MacTavish, was a native of Perthshire, Scotland, but the future judge was born in the township of Osgoode, Carleton county, in 1850. He was educated in Metcalf and Ottawa High Schools, and at Queen's University, graduating B.A., in 1870, and M.A. in 1873. He decided on the profession of law and studied first in Ottawa, and later in Toronto. In this city he was associated with the firm of Mowat, Maclennan & Downey. On being called to the Bar in 1877, he began to practice in Ottawa. He was appointed solicitor for the Corporation of Ottawa in 1888, and held that position until his appointment to the Bench of Carleton county in 1897. In 1890 he was created a Q. C. Judge MacTavish is quiet and domestic in his habits, but he has been President of the County Law Association, President of the St. Andrew's Society, and manages to give some time to the Rideau Club, and to golf on the Aylmer links. He is also a member of the Collegiate Institute Board in Ottawa. Personally, Judge MacTavish is one of the most affable of men, a fact which has contributed not a little to the smooth working of the Insurance Commission during its lengthy inquiry.

Mr. Mackenzie's Pet Scheme.

The Winnipeg Telegram views the linking of Toronto with Parry Sound by the Canadian Northern as an event which means much to the Canadian West. It sees the early linking up of this line with the main line west of the lakes. It says: "The despatches which hint at the ultimate linking up of the Toronto and Parry Sound road with the Canadian Northern system at the head of the lakes are not to be doubted. The genius of William Mackenzie is not likely to be stopped by the formidable aspect of the gap between Parry Sound and Fort William. These points must in the natural order of things be connected, either by a fleet of steamers fitted for both summer and winter traffic or by a stretch of railroad. The former is known to be one of William Mackenzie's pet schemes."

New York's Cab Drivers.

A driver has to have a license. That mysterious official, the mayor's marshal, grants one upon the payment of 25 cents and two written testimonials of honesty. A man may come out of Sing Sing, whither he has been sent for highway robbery or stoning the minister's cat or any other crime, if he presents two greasy letters—one of any Jones and the other of any Smith—stating that he is an honest fellow he will get a license. No inquiry is made. His references are never looked up. Indeed, if you are a desperate criminal—guilty of murder or failure to pay alimony—you can do no better than take out a license and hide on top of a cab. So into the business drift all sorts and conditions of rogues. Under the aegis of the law (the aegis being a twenty-five cent badge) they rob you and me.—Vance Thompson in Outing Magazine.

The Hessians Played.

It is a matter of record that upon the first official celebration of Independence day by the Continental congress music was secured for the occasion by forcing the Hessian band, which had been captured by George Washington at Trenton in the previous December, to play in the public square all day, to the great delight and amusement of the people. It is also stated that these involuntary celebrants were obliged to practice appropriate airs for three weeks previously in order that they could not plead ignorance as an excuse.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds it strengthens: it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $13 a week in a machine before treatment. Now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

BIG ENGINEERING FEAT.

Water to Be Transported 325 Miles to the Western Gold Region At a Cost of Fourteen Million Dollars.

It is expected that the next few years will witness the development of the most remarkable system of water carrying in Western Australia that has ever been seen. The plan is to repeat, again and again, the successful engineering work that is now supplying the great gold mining region of Coolgardie, far out in the desert of the interior, with plenty of water brought from the coast mountains, 325 miles away.

The Western Australia desert contains perhaps the largest waterless regions in the world. When David W. Carnegie made his second journey across it, several years ago, he traveled 900 miles without finding anything that suggested a permanent source of water For many days he saw nothing but prickly spinifex covering the sand ridges, which were 40 to 50 feet in height, and extended east and west, parallel with one another. He wrote that he crossed more than 80 of these sand ridges in eight hours' travel.

Great Thirst Region.

But under repellent sands lie the great gold resources of Western Australia that are now supplying more of the metal every year than all the rest of the Commonwealth When the rush of miners to this great thirst region began, the eager search and the frantic strife for water were sometimes tragical.

The Government sought for underground sources of supply, but most of this water was found to be so impregnated with salts that it was unfit for use. Engineers finally devised a plan of water delivery from the western coast mountains, about twenty miles to the south of Perth, which involved the largest pumping scheme that has yet been carried into operation in any part of the world.

The works were completed only two years ago, and they are attracting all the more attention because the population that is paying $14,000,000 for them is still small.

The amount of rainfall in the basin of the Helena river, which flows through the Canning Hills south of Perth, is about thirty inches a year. It was found that by impounding the river a supply of 5,000,000 gallons a day would be available for transportation into the interior.

Pipe On Surface.

The problem was to transport this water a distance of 350 miles, for it was proposed to extend the aqueduct to the Kalgoorlie diggings, east of Coolgardie, and this has been done. Mundaring, the place where the Helena River was dammed, is only about thirty feet above the sea, but the surface of the desert to which the water was to be carried is about 1,650 feet above sea level, so the water was not only to be transported as far as from New York city to Lake Erie, but to be lifted during the process about 1,300 feet.

The water which collects back of the dam in the Helena River forms a fine lake seven miles in length. The big delivery pipe that carries the water is not buried in the soil, but lies on the surface or in open trenches, for there is no danger of freezing.

There are eight pumping stations, a little more than forty miles apart, and the water is kept moving up the long but very gentle incline. It finally reaches a reservoir many miles west of Coolgardie, and from this point gravitation takes it to the 454,000 inhabitants of the Coolgardie mining camps and to the Kalgoorlie region beyond.

Mr. Keir Hardie, M.P.

Mr. Keir Hardie, M. P., who has just publicly celebrated his jubilee, has had a harder life than most of his Parliamentary confreres. His wage-earning career commenced just after his seventh birthday, says M. A. P., when for the weekly salary of three shillings he became errand boy to the Glasgow branch of the Anchor Line Shipping Co. At eight years of age he assisted a lithographer at a weekly remuneration of four shillings, and at nine he became a "trapper" in a coal mine, working his way gradually until he became a full-fledged miner at fifteen shillings a week. He worked in the mines, scarcely seeing daylight, save on Sunday, until his twenty-fourth year, when he was elected Secretary to the Miners' Union. With this appointment began his political birth, and his progress is now modern history. His unconventional views have earned for him the nicknames of "Queer Hardie" and "Don't Keir Hardie." His unparliamentary garb occasionally gets him into amusing situations. It is only a few weeks since a constable in the House took him for a plumber, and in Belgium not many years ago, despite his particularly Scottish face, he was arrested as a confederate of Rubini, the Anarchist, and "all the King's horses and all the King's men" had to be moved before his release was secured Quite recently he surprised the House by invading its sacred precincts in sandals. Such a thing had never been known, and many of the constables on duty were uncertain whether they ought to have barred his entrance.

Club For Sweethearts.

"Eligible" clubs are booming, for despite the criticism that the original club at Hampstead has aroused, the "eligibles" of Brixton are to have a club in which they will be well looked after in the Brixton Parish Institute.

"One of my principal objects in starting the club," said its founder, the Rev. A. J. Waldron, the Vicar of Brixton, "is to give the younger men a comfortable place where they can bring their girl friends.

"Now there is over an acre of beautiful laid-out garden attached to the club where they can walk and sit in the summer, and where we shall organize garden-parties, and every Sunday evening the recreation rooms of the club will be at the disposal of the members and their sweethearts."

The entrance fee is half a crown, and the annual subscription, payable quarterly or yearly, fifteen shillings.

The Real Boss.

"Do you mind the motion of the ship much?"

"No, I don't, but I haven't heard from the inner man yet."

London Streets.

Miles lane is a corruption of St. Michael's lane; Mark lane for Mort (market) lane; Sermon lane for Shermonger lane, the locality of the "shermongers," who sheared or clipped bullion into shape for coining at the exchange near by; Slee lane for St. Osyth's lane; Gutter lane for Guthrun lane, from a Dane who owned the property there.

THE FINANCE MINISTER.

Early Days of the Hon. W. S. Fielding—Received the Training of a Journalist—Stories of Him.

As a little boy, the Hon. W. S. Fielding, Finance Minister of Canada, came in from the country in the outskirts of Halifax, and went into the office of the "Morning Chronicle." From office boy, he became reporter, and one of his earliest triumphs was a magnificent piece of news which he managed to get in connection with a shipwreck, in which many lives were lost near Halifax, and he will tell you this story to-day with a chuckle of pleasure.

In the early eighties, the Liberal party of Nova Scotia was practically leaderless. Mr. Fielding was asked to stand for Halifax, and was elected. Subsequently he was offered the leadership of the party, but refused. A little later, however, he was again made the offer, and this time accepted, upon the retirement of Hon Mr. Pipes, of Cumberland County. Since then he has had a remarkably successful career. Giving up the Premiership of the province in 1896, when the Laurier administration came into power, he became Minister of Finance.

There are many amusing stories told of Fielding. When running for his first election, some years ago, he was informed that a prominent elector had become sulky about something. Mr. Fielding was asked to see him, as the man "had his back up." Mr. Fielding saw him, and after a few pleasant words the man was conciliated, and became as active as ever. But, at the next election, Mr. Fielding was informed that the man was sulking again, and that it would be necessary to visit him and humor him, as "his back was up again."

"Then his back can stay up," was the answer, "as I will not see him again." And he did not.

In Mr. Fielding's early days, when he was managing editor of "The Chronicle," it is said that he would never leave the office in the morning until the first paper was off the press. He feared that something might turn up which would call for his attention, and not until there was no possibility of this happening, would he leave his desk. In those days, it is related that he would often assist in carrying the papers to the mail, in order that the morning deliveries would not be late.

Mr. Fielding, on several occasions, it is stated, has been asked by the Imperial authorities to accept the honor of knighthood. On one occasion, a message was sent to him by a well-known imperial statesman, strongly urging Mr. Fielding to accept the honor. When he again declined, a friend asked him the reason.

"Well," said Mr. Fielding, with a twinkle in his eye, "the fact is that when I receive a bill from my tailor now I can take a little delay in paying it, but if it came addressed to "Sir William Fielding" I would feel that I could not allow any delay under the circumstances."

HARMFUL STOMACH DOSING

No Need of it When Hyomei is Used to Cure Catarrh.

Physicians and specialists agree that the less medicine one swallows, the better. It is in keeping with this idea that Hyomei is recommended by leading physicians throughout this and other catarrhal sections.

When this treatment is used in catarrhal troubles, there is no stomach dosing, for the medicine is taken in with the air you breathe, and goes right to the spot where the catarrhal germs are present, healing the inflamed and irritated mucous membrane, killing the disease germs and entering the blood with the oxygen, driving all catarrhal germs from the system.

Do not try to cure catarrh of the head by putting medicine into your stomach—this is neither a scientific nor common-sense treatment. Breathe the healing balsams of Hyomei and in a few days you will notice relief, and its continued use will result in a complete and lasting cure.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Says cards Are Sinful.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—A despatch from Des Moines, Iowa, says: Before a congregation of nearly a thousand persons, and while the preacher was in the midst of his sermon, Mrs. A. B. Sims, a society woman and holder of the national woman's whist championship, arose Sunday in the University Church of Christ and denounced card-playing as a sin. Two years ago Mrs. Sims won the first prize for women in the whist tournament held at Cleveland. Last year at St. Louis she won the national woman's championship.

It is said that the recent evangelical meetings held in the city are responsible for the change in Mrs. Sim's ideas.

Two Miles of Development

Several Thousand Tons of Gold Ore Taken From Veins at Tunnel Level, and Waste Rock Removed in Driving Tunnel.

Mine making is not child's play. It is a serious business. It is not easy to correct an error made in granite No mistakes have been made in driving our tunnel, which will be used for transportation as well as for mining purposes.

Briefly we have not merely a mining proposition, but one embodying the industrial features as well Here are some of the main points:

We have 66 lode claims on Palmer Mountain near Loomis, Okanogan county, Washington. We have a main cross-cut tunnel, 9x9 in the clear, driven into the mountain 4,000 feet. We have 5,600 feet of drifts, laterals and other workings. We have a 750 H. P. Turbine Electric plant. We have able and capable men in the management. We have large bodies of milling gold ore, and a good deal of high grade ore opened up. Recent surface developements show a strong probability that before our tunnel is extended 2500 feet further we shall open up an enormous body of copper ore.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

New Weights and Measures Inspector

Mr G. H. Howson, of this city, was yesterday morning installed as assistant inspector of weights and measures for the Belleville district, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. R. W. Errett, Mr R. R. Hall, M.P., has insisted on the office being filled as speedily as possible.

G.T.R. Dining Car Service.

The general passenger department of the Grand Trunk Railway System are in receipt of a letter from a Chicago gentleman who travelled over the Grand Trunk recently, and who speaks in eulogistic terms of the service he found on the train, especially the dining car service. He says: "It was after about one hundred and twenty people had been served that I could secure a table for myself and a friend in the dining car. Our supper was as good a one as I have ever had on a railway. Our table was so situated that I could make a close observation of the general service, and we were surprised at what we saw. Dishes like sliced tomatoes, ice cream and other delicacies which so much depend upon the way in which they are served, were certainly never put on a table in a more dainty manner. The service was prompt, and everyone connected with it pleasant and agreeable, and I wish to congratulate you on the satisfactory way in which you take care of your patrons."

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

● ● ● ● ● ●

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

After the prevailing excitement on election day here, where so strenuous efforts were put forth by both candidates, that no more arrests were made, shows that Peterborough is morally correct. The only case tried was that of a young lad named Davidson, who was charged with annoying people, in company with several of his pals. The chief considered that a little discipline would do the boy good so had him haled before the "Beak."

The lad was given a heart to heart talk by the magistrate and allowed to go with a warning.

Horticultural Society Holds Annual Meeting

Officers Were Elected, Prospects and Plans For Next Summer Discussed---D. W. Dumble In The Chair.

Last night the annual meeting of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, to whose strenuous endeavors and intelligent manipulation this city owes the present beautiful central park system, and the growing interest taken in adorning private gardens and yards is due, was held in the council chamber with Mr. D. W. Dumble, president of the society in the chair.

Mr. Dumble said that judging by the small attendance last night the public might think there was little interest taken in the society. This he explained was no indication of the membership or interest taken in the Horticultural Society as, (and this was endorsed by Secretary H. Beal) last year 164 members paid their subscription for the year of $1 each. There were present Messrs. T. A. S. Hay, Dr. Morrison, Dr. Burnham, Jas. Stevenson, S. Jordan, Peter Campbell, H. Nesbitt Jas. English and others.

The president went on to speak of the distribution of bulbs and plants to the public. This he said had resulted in the front and back yards of local residences being much better decorated this year than ever before He said the traveling agent of the Canadian Horticulturist had been here recently, and that this gentlemen, well qualified in such matters, highly complimented Peterborough on the splendid condition of her lawns and gardens which were away ahead of most places the size of this city.

Mr. Harry Beal, secretary-treasurer, was then called on, and read the duly audited financial report as given below.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Chairman Dumble said that he would, as present president like to see a change in the personel of the directorate as its chief executive. It was moved by Mr. T. A. S. Hay, after Mr. Hay declined the nomination, that Mr. Dumble be re-elected president. Carried unanimously with applause.

Mr. Dumble said that he would like to see a change in the directorate, and suggested that Mr. Hay be 1st vice-president. Carried unanimously. It was moved on Mr. Hay's declining, that Mr. P. Campbell be 1st vice president. Carried.

Mr. James Stevenson was unanimously chosen as 2nd vice-president. Mr. Harry Beal was unanimously re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

The directorate was elected as follows;—Hon. J. R. Stratton, president; Jas. English, W. H. Moore, Col. H. C. Rogers, D. Cooney, S. Jordan, H. Nesbitt, A. Sanders, T. A. S. Hay, W. Pringle, Adam Hall, Dr. Burnham, W. H. Hill, F. Wise.

PARK COMMITTEE.

It was unanimously decided that the committee of last year be re-appointed as follows; W. H. Hill, H. Nesbitt, F. Wise, S. Jordan and Dr. Burnham.

Auditors—T. A. S. Hay, Arthur Stevenson.

The chairman noted that the county council of last year did not do as much as could be expected for the society. The association has a 31-year lease of the grounds, and he expected that the recently elected county council would do better for them.

Dr. Burnham brought up the matter of the walkway through Victoria Park. He thought it was unreasonable to ask the association under existing conditions to go to this expenses. A member suggested that the association, the city and county council should share this xpense. Mr. Dumble explained that until Mr. Dunlop came to the aid of the association, things were going backward.

Mr. James Stevenson then asked if the county did not last year, give $75 towards the association. President Dumble showed how last year's county council did nothing for the association.

President Dumble noted that last year the association asked the city council for the street scrapings, but this request was ignored, the parks thus losing much valuable manure, etc.

Mr. Wise noted that the school children were running over the beds in Victoria Park. Mr. Dumble replied that he had spoken to Inspector Walker, and, like the children in American schools, local children would soon be trained to respect the park. Mr. Walker told him, he would call the various teachers attention to this matter. The president explained that barbed wire fences if placed in Victoria park might injure the school children.

It was moved that an ordinary wire be stretched to protect Victoria park and its flower beds. Mr. Wise then proceeded to strongly advocate the purchase of the Canadian Horticulturist for use of the local society. Mr. Dumble, whilst not opposing the motion, noted that the paper mentioned was too scientific in its tone, and possibly too advanced to be appreciated by the average reader.

It was resolved afterwards to take this paper for one year.

The matter of Mr. Cooney's resolve to quit work in the parks was considered, and the appointment of a new caretaker was left to the directors to decide.

It was moved by Mr. P. Campbell that the meeting adjourn.—Carried.

A BANKER'S NERVE

Broken by Coffee and Restored by Postum.

A banker needs perfect control of the nerves and a clear, quick, accurate brain. A prominent banker of Chattanooga tells how he keeps himself in condition:

"Up to 17 years of age I was not allowed to drink coffee, but as soon as I got out into the world I began to use it and grew very fond of it. For some years I noticed no bad effects from its use, but in time it began to affect me unfavorably. My hands trembled, the muscles of my face twitched, my mental processes seemed slow and in other ways my system got out of order. These conditions grew so bad at last that I had to give up the coffee altogether.

"My attention having been drawn to Postum Coffee Food, I began its use on leaving off the old kind, and it gives me pleasure to testify to its value. I find it a delicious beverage; like it just as well as I did coffee, and during the years that I have used Postum I have been free from the distressing symptoms that accompanied the use of coffee. The nervousness has entirely disappeared, and I am as steady of hand as a boy of 25, though I am more than 50 years old. I owe all this to Postum Food Coffee." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason" Read the little book "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs. All grocers.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

Thomas Blaker, the Indian, who was charged with stealing a sum of money from Johnston, another Indian, came before County Magistrate Edmison yesterday morning, and was acquitted.

The case of Curtis, the young man from Douro, charged with attempting to defraud an insurance company, came up before County Magistrate Edmison yesterday, and was enlarged until January 17th.

William Quinlivan, of Percy township has been brought to Peterborough and given quarters in the jail here, charged with having committed rape upon a young girl. The alleged victim of the assault was Myrtle Merrill, who is under fourteen years old, and the daughter of Jas. Merrill, of Percy township. The offence is alleged to have been committed on January 3rd, at the home of John Warran.

Yesterday a charge of assault was laid against P. Clunan, the bartender at the Royal Hotel, by an Indian named Cornelius.

Cornelius said he came to the city by train and went to the Royal. From there he went to the Southern Hotel with a young man named Leary. Had no drinks then and returned to the Royal where he with a man named Cleary, had three drinks.

He and Cleary started to go and see a man they were going to cut wood for. Cleary left him, and he went shopping. Met Cleary afterwards at the Royal. Cleary wanted to treat, but the proprietor said he had had enough already. As witness was standing by the barroom stove, Cleary was making a noise and was ordered out. Cleary shortly afterwards entered the bar and suggested their having dinner together. However the bartender ordered him to "take a walk," and gave him a shove. The bartender then raised his arm and hit him with a policeman's baton, as he backed towards the door. Mr. Kelly, the proprietor, then came up behind Clunan, and kicked witness His head was cut to the skull; the doctor put some stitches in each of two cuts on the head.

To Mr. Hatton, witness said Kelly was behind the bar when he first went in. When he went in the second time Kelly was still there. Stood in the bar for over an hour but did not drink anything during that time.

"Don't you know that it is against the law for an Indian to get liquor, after living round here for 20 years."

"No. I always get what I want, but I never want any more."

"You are a grateful man to have a man up who sells you liquor," retorted Mr. Hatton.

Witness continued that just at dinner time he had a cigar, and was then told to take a walk. After the assault he and Tom Cleary walked to Dr. Greer's. After being out cut he tried to re-enter but Tom Cleary held him. He kicked the door but did not smash it.

David Cleary said he got off the train with Cornelius, and went to Nixon's hotel. Was there 20 minutes and then went to the Royal. Had three drinks of whiskey himself, but did not know what the others drank. Went shopping and after a time returned to the Royal.

Saw no disturbance there. Did not see Cornelius with his head split open until yesterday morning. He was drunk all day yesterday so does not remember much that took place. Saw Cornelius put out, but did not see the blow struck.

Here the court adjourned as Cleary, who had been subpoenaed was not present. It was decided to postpone the trial until next Monday.

AFTERNOON.

A short session of the court was held at 3 p.m.

A man named Dugan was present in the Royal Hotel, but did not see the assault. Had been drinking. Saw Cornelius bleeding after the assault.

For the defence, Ed. Wilson, a plumber, said he was in the Royal Hotel, fixing a tap. Was in the hotel from eight to twelve noon. Saw the Indian and another man enter the bar. One of them asked for Scotch whiskey and later for gin. The proprietor in every case told the Indian he could not get liquor there. The Indian pounded the bar with his fist, saying he was not afraid of anyone; he also called the bartender names. The bartender told the Indian to get out, but the latter hung on to the bar. The bartender tried to put him out, the Indian resisting. The landlord assisted at the door in putting the Indian out. At the door, the Indian struck at the barkeep, when the latter struck him.

To Mr. Wood—After being put out the Indian kicked the front hotel door for five minutes.

To Mr. Hatton—The Indian tore off his coat and hat and jumped on the bar.

Dr. Greer, who attended the Indian's wounds, which were an inch and a quarter long and down to the bone from the contusion about the wounds a blunt hard instrument must have been used.

He had to ligature an artery, and put in several stitches. The wound on the left side was different in its character from that on the right, showing more contusion and less bleeding.

Michael English, a boarder at the Royal, saw part of the scrap. "At heard both proprietor and bartenddinner time he was in the bar and or refuse to sell liquor to the Indian. The rest of his evidence was substantially the same as that of the former one. The bartender first saw the Indian at the bar a few minutes before 12 o'clock. The Indian tried to buy a drink, but he would not sell to him or his pal. He asked the Indian several times to leave the place, and he refused. After the Indian got abusive he put him out. At the door the Indian struck him on the head to be used he'ub as return.

His Worship in summing up said an assault was committed, a wanton attack. It is very easy to call the police in case of trouble. Mr. Clunan was right in not giving him liquor. He found the defendant guilty. Kelly did wrong in giving liquor to the Indian.

Ber: Mr. Hatton asked his Worship, where it was shown that the Indian had bought any liquor. Mr. Dunble said the Indian had sworn to having three glasses of liquor, and none of the other witnesses contradicted this statement.

His Worship said he found Mr Clunan guilty of the assault and would decide upon the amount of penalty this morning.

SHAH OF PERSIA DIED LAST NIGHT

Doors of Harem Closed Few Minutes After Six O'clock.

SPLIT IN THE ASSEMBLY

Extremists Want Immediate Reforms But Moderists Would Wait Several Years.

London, Jan. 10.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Teheran in a telegram sent last night at 11.50 o'clock says;

"The Shah of Persia died this evening. All the Shah's vital functions were suspended. The women of the palace have began preparations for mourning.

"Soon after sunset the doors of the harem were closed. This was the sign that all was over."

ASSEMBLY IS DIVIDED.

New York, Jan. 10. —A Teheran cable despatch to the Herald states that the Assembly is split into two parties. The Extremists demand immediate reform, because of the scandals shown by the former Persian Minister at Brussels; the Moderates want reform, but propose a scheme extending over several years.

Muzaffar Ed Din, born March 25, 1853, at Heheran, was the second son of Nasr Ed Din, who was assassinated in 1896. He was the fifth Shah of the Kadjan dynasty, was a good Mussulman, but had broad and liberal ideas. He was the richest of monarchs, and is said to have been more learned than any other ruler of today.

Though shut up almost alone for 30 years in Tabris, the residence of the heirs of the throne, the Prince did his utmost to gain a knowledge of the colossal mechanism of the life in Europe. There was probably no one in the Orient who had a more thorough knowledge of the classical literature of the East. He also studied the philosophy of the West.

Besides a collection of jewels valued at $20,000,000, money estimated at $200,000,000 is contained in the palace vaults which are guarded day and night by sentinels, and over which were the Shah's apartments.

On ascending the throne the Shah abolished all taxes on meat and bread and he made several improvements in Persia after touring Europe. The expenses of his trips were large because of his immense revenue. Once, in Paris, an attempt was made on his life.

Although the Shah practised his religion devoutly he refused to become a polygamist, thus disregarding the permission of the Prophet and the temptations of his position. He had had altogether six sons and eleven daughters.

The Shah observed with the utmost scrupulousness the rules laid down by the Koran. Five times a day he went through his ablutions and recited the prayers obligatory on all faithful Islamites.

He was a lover of outdoor sports, and was a first-class rifle shot as well as a bold hunter. He was a big man, with a handsome face, and long, black moustache. He was also a magnificent rider and a good soldier.

The Shah, unlike his father, was never a robust man, and to Bright's disease were added gout and paralysis. A year ago the trouble became acute, and since then fortunes have been spent in the attempt to prolong the Shah's life. Seventeen doctors of as many nationalities were enlisted in the fight.

THE MIKADO

The quaint love story of Nanki-Poo and Yum-Yum as told in song and prose in one of the most famous of Gilbert & Sullivan's operas, "The Mikado," is to be reproduced at the Grand Opera House tonight, Friday and Saturday of this week. Nanki-Poo the son of "The Mikado," is pestered with the attentions of an elderly lady of the court named Kalisha and escapes from her in the disguise of a strolling musician, meeting Yum-Yum, a girl ward of Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner. An attachment is formed, frustrating Ko-Ko, who intended Yum-Yum for himself. Kalisha appears on the scene and a complicated situation ads in Ko-Ko surrendering Yum-Yum and a defiance of Kalisha, who flies off in a rage to bring the Mikado. A false certificate of the pretended execution of Nanki-Poo nearly brings Ko-Ko, Patti-Sing and Pooh-Ba to grief, which ends in Ko-Ko marrying Katisha and Nanki-Poo meeting the Mikado with his bride. The opera abounds with songs, duetts, part songs and choruses, which will be well rendered under the skilful training of Mr. R. J. Devey, with the assistance of an augmented orchestra.

NEVER TIRES

Of The Food That Restored Her To Health.

"My food was killing me and I didn't know the cause," writes a Colo. young lady: "For two years I was thin and sickly, suffering from indigestion and inflammatory rheumatism.

"I had tried different kinds of diet, plain living, and many of the remedies recommended, but got no better.

"Finally, about five weeks ago, mother suggested that I try Grape-Nuts, and I began at once, eating it with a little cream or milk. A change for the better began at once.

"Today I am well and am gaining weight and strength all the time. I've gained 10 lbs. in the last five weeks and do not suffer any more from indigestion and the rheumatism is all gone.

"I know it is to Grape-Nuts alone that I owe my restored health. I still eat the food twice a day and never tire of it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The flavor of Grape-Nuts is peculiar to itself. It is neutral, not too sweet and has an agreeable, healthful quality that never grows tiresome.

One of the sources of rheumatism is from overloading the system with acid material, the result of imperfect digestion and assimilation.

As soon as improper food is abandoned and Grape-Nuts is taken regularly, digestion is made strong, the organs do their work of building up good red blood cells and of carrying away the excess of disease-making material from the system.

The result is a certain and steady return to normal health and mental activity. "There's a reason." Read the little book "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

Assassin's Have Begun a Reign of Terrorism

Seven Bullets End Life of General Pavloff---Widespread Treachery Shown---Court Thrown Into Consternation.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 10.— General Pavloff, judge advocate-general, was shot and mortally wounded at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in front of the Military Court buildings. The assassin was captured after wounding a policeman.

General Pavloff was prominent during the sitting of the last Parliament in answering interpellations. He especially execrated the revolutionists. The allegation has been made that he delayed the reprieve of a number of the Baltic mutineers, who had been convicted by drumhead court-martial, until the men were executed.

Later—General Pavloff has been generally known since the late Parliament as "Hangman" Pavloff, from the epithet constantly applied to him by the radical deputies. He was shot and killed about ten o'clock, while walking in the garden of the chief Military Court Building, near the Moika Canal. The assassin, who apparently was disguised as a workman, was captured after a long chase through the crowded city street, during which he fired about forty shots from two revolvers which he carried, killing a policeman accidentally wounding a boy.

FLATTENED THE BULLETS.

The crime showed evidence of the same careful preparation which was characteristic of the murderers of General Alexis Ignatieff and Von De Launits, and was undoubtedly carried out by the same organization which has sentenced Emperor Nicholas and several of the Ministers to death. The assassin, who wore the uniform of a military clerk attached to the court, obtained an entrance to the garden under the pretext of submitting a report to the military procurator. He approached the unsuspecting general within an arm's length, drew a rapid fire pistol, and fired the whole load, seven shots, into Pavloff's body. Every shot was well aimed, and two of them tore a gaping wound in his breast. The general expired while being carried to his apartments in the same building. From the nature of the wounds it appeared that the steel-jacketed bullets were flattened in order that they might inflict more serious wounds.

A HOT PURSUIT.

Hastily slipping another "clip" of cartridges into his revolver and drawing a second weapon, the assassin ran across the garden to the carriage entrance, threatened the porter with his pistols, and dashed down Glinka street past the Imperial Opera House, with a crowd of thirty house porters and court attaches in close pursuit. A policeman stationed in front of the opera house attempted to seize the assassin, but was shot down by the latter, who also wounded a boy. The terrorist then resumed his flight, firing at the police officers and house porters who attempted to bar his way. His ammunition became exhausted, and he was intercepted and captured when he reached Lantern lane.

The entire career of General Pavloff, who was 55 years old, married and had two children, was spent in the judicial department of the army. After serving several years as a military judge he was appointed judge advocate-general of the war ministry, and later procurator of the supreme military court.

WAS TOO COLD-BLOODED.

Gen Pavloff was delegated by War Minister Rediger to answer the interpellations of the government in the lower house of parliament in regard to the courts-martial and executions in the Baltic provinces and in Poland. The military procurator justified these acts with such cold-bloodedness and disregard of the sentiments of the members that it aroused the indignation of almost the entire house, and he was driven from the rostrum with cries of 'murderer,' 'hangman,' 'assassin.' He was not allowed to speak again.

The murdered general was a large landowner. After the dissolution of parliament, he organized the 'Protective Political League, to combat radical projects for the expropriation of landed estates.

The police have established that a youth who was killed yesterday after he had made a bonfire of his papers, and started firing a revolver through the door of his room, was a terrorist.

GREATEST ALARM FELT.

The information which the Social Revolutionists have been able to acquire of the movements of the marked victims indicates the existence of widespread treachery in the military court, and the greatest alarm is felt in official circles, where it is believed that a reign of terror has begun.

The assassin of General Pavloff was apparently informed by an accomplice among the court attaches that the general was in the garden at that hour, as the garden is entirely enclosed, and yesterday being a holiday, the military procurator therefore not following his usual routine.

33 Inches of Snow on the Prairies

Winnipeg, Jan. 9.—Thirty-three inches of snow, an amount greater than that of any full winter in the last decade, is shown by the Government observatory records to have fallen so far this season. The railroads have had a hard long battle which has been worse than usual on account of the intense cold, the mercury having touched 35 below zero at the observatory on Sunday night. The C.P.R. has been able to maintain a fair service, but the branch lines of the C.N.R., are almost out of commission in spite of the constant work of eight snow plows.

CATTLE PERISH.

Medicine Hat, Jan. 9.—Between 500 and 1,000 head of cattle belonging to George Lane, who has a 300,000-acre ranch, have drifted into the C.P.R. fences and have perished. Thousands of antelope are walking up and down these fences trying to work their way further south. The loss of cattle this year, however, is not by any means general, though the animals have suffered from the cold.

No Boat Was Found.

Christiania, Jan. 10.—Captain Roold Amundsen declares the statement that Captain Bernier discovered two boats belonging to Franklin at Krebus Bay must be based on a misunderstanding, as only available remains, iron bolts and parts of boathooks had been brought back to civilization by the Gjoa.

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Simple Way to Overcome the Dangers of this Disagreeable Disease.

Catarrh is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, with many annoying symptoms. In this climate there are few who do not suffer from this disagreeable disease, often in a chronic and dangerous state.

Fortunately, within the last few years, a simple and reliable treatment for catarrhal troubles has been found—Hyomei, a combination of healing and germ-killing balsams, that, when breathed through the vest pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaches the tiniest cells in the respiratory organs, carrying its healing and health-giving properties to every part where the catarrhal poison is present.

Used in this way, Hyomei kills all catarrhal germs, drives the poison from the system and heals all irritations that may be present in the mucous membrane.

If you have the ordinary catarrhal symptoms, such as offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, cough, raising of mucous, difficulty in breathing, sneezing, hoarseness, discharge from the nose, droppings in the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hyomei at once.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for the symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case his best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

NOW CONSUMPTION STARTS

Tired When You Waken—Languid All Day—Nerves Worn Out—Snap All Gone.

Your limbs feel "draggy" and excessively weak. A night's sleep seldom brings satisfying rest. Continuous headaches, exhaustion and nervous sensations destroy your health. Soon every spark of vitality is used up Then you catch tuberculosis.

Start today. Build up, get new nerve force, and overcome this process of decay. Use Ferrozone, which physicians consider the most vitalizing, upliftling tonic ever made.

Ferrozone cures because it can furnish the body with sufficient nutriment and building material.

Think of the instant effect—at once the appetite increases, delightful color in the cheeks proves that rich, red blood is being circulated. Tired muscles are invigorated, flesh and weight are added. Nerve force develops, and bounding, joyous health is firmly established.

This is certain—Ferrozone restores failing strength from any cause. The experience of Mr. Thos. Dowd, of Schreiber, Ont., proves this.

"Household worries and cares had about exhausted my strength. I was weak and miserable. My cheeks lacked the color of health, and occasionally I had spells of rheumatism. Then my appetite fell off, and nothing could tempt me to eat. Worn-out feelings, chills and despondency filled my very being. I became anaemic and dwindled down to a shadow. Consumption was very near. Ferrozone put strength in my body with a rush. It built me up, strong, virile and happy, and I have been well ever since."

Ferrozone cures sickness by curing the real cause—lack of blood and nerve tone. It keeps people at their best—fit, ready and anxious for work. In 50c. boxes only, six for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 8, 1907

TROUBLES AHEAD IN EUROPE

At least three of the great European nations are not looking forward through the new year with unmixed confidence. For England, France and Germany the prospects for 1907 are not as bright as they might be.

England is uneasy in regard to its domestic policies. Public sentiment is turning against the present condition of internal affairs in an unmistakable manner. There is a swiftly rising tide of revolt against municipal extravagance in all parts of the country. A great deal of this is due to the price the people have had to pay for unsuccessful experiments in municipal trading and ownership of public utilities. The commercial outlook is good so far as the promises of business is concerned. But the financeris fear a money crisis which may inflict great damage. The danger, they apprehend, will come from over speculation in America.

France is apprehensive of excesses in the present democratic movement completely to overturn the old regime. The manner of the forcible separation of church and state will be felt for a long time to come. The extreme Socialists are bent upon pressing the war against capital to the uttermost. Therein the financial crippling of the nation may be brought about. There is a decided feeling of nervousness over the situation among the more intelligent and well-informed Frenchmen.

Germany is gloomy. Much of the nation's fortune during 1907 will depend upon the relations which will exist between the government and the next Reichstag. The people are discontented over the meat famine, the increase in the prices of nearly everything, more especially raw materials and the necessaries of life, and the heavy demands for money for the navy and colonial purposes. If the government does not make concessions to the popular demand for a more genuine constitutional rule the discontent will increase and may assume grave proportions.

Shah Very Low.

Teheran, Jan. 9—The Shah's illness took a decided turn for the worse yesterday, at late last night his majesty was declared to be in a critical condition.

Mexican Mob Set Fire to Property

Strikerers Reject Settlement and Become Violent.

City of Mexico, Jan. 9.—Late yesterday word was received here that the textile workers in the mills in the city of Orizaba, State of Vera Cruz, who are on a strike, had burned a company store connected with one of the establishments, and were threatening to destroy the mills. Two regiments of soldiers were assembled and rushed to the scene aboard a special train.

The mills where the trouble occurred employ about 5,000 men. For some time none of these have been working because of a dispute with the owners. On last Friday it was announced that the strike of the textile workers which had spread throughout the republic, had been settled, owing to the intervention of President Diaz and Vice-President Corrales. The Workingmen's Committee announced that all of the 28,000 men would return to work today.

The first news of disturbances came in a telegram, which stated that a riot was on, and that the company store at the Rio Blanco mills was in flames. Soldiers were then rushed to the scene.

General Martinez is in command of the troops. The owner of the property thus far destroyed is Eduardo Garcia, a citizen of France.

The trouble started on Saturday morning when 2,000 workers met in Rio Blanco, near Orizaba, and voted not to accept the award of President Diaz. Violent speeches were made, and the men, arming themselves with sticks and stones, looted the company's store, destroyed it, and confiscated thousands of dollars in money and goods. They then pillaged private houses and Government shops.

WHERE LOVE IS.

When I come home at night, and she
My wife, with old-time, girlish art,
Meets me, and folds her hand in mine
And says "The day was long, dear heart."
Then does my day again grow bright,
And life once more seems strangely sweet,
While all the cares that thronged my way
Have turned to blossoms at my feet.
What matter that across the way
My neighbor dines on princely fare?
I dine on herbs with love and Her,
A king—what do I know of care?

PARENTS' MISTAKES.

Lord Lytton Takes Them to Task For False Ideas.

"Let girls marry at eighteen and boys at twenty, and the world will be relieved of some of its gravest problems." This was the advice given by a speaker at a conference of the Parents' National Educational Union at Brighton recently, following an address by Lord Lytton.

Lord Lytton gave what he called "A young man's lecture to his parents."

"The time has come for parents to realize they have made some grave mistakes," he said. "In the first place, it is a mistake for a rich father to bring up his son in ignorance of the responsibilities of an inheritance. Some fathers go on as if they expected to live for ever. Every boy should be taught how to handle money, not alone for his own sake, but because he may some time have charge of other people's money.

"But a question more vital still is that of sex. There is a tendency among parents nowadays to assume an unwise timidity in speaking of such matters. If instead of being timid and obscure in their advice parents would be quite frank it would prevent much evil from which the world now suffers. To many girls the real meaning of marriage is a sealed book, and this is largely the fault of their mothers. From whom can they better look for advice than from their mothers? Yet the latter often remain silent because of a want of courage to speak plainly.

"Society is full of misery due to the blunders of parents in failing to speak out. How much of the evil in our great cities comes from this it would be dismal to contemplate. As a young man, I say to fathers, 'Speak to your sons, and remember that the best education a father can give is in the example of your own life.'"

It was here that M. Roger Gooft Hampson, a Belgian professor, suggested fixing marriageable ages at eighteen for girls and twenty for boys. "With this encouraged by parents, all the evils we have been talking of would disappear," he said. "The great trouble is that men and women marry too late in life. Let us urge them to marry earlier."

Lady Campbell suggested that there was a growing disinclination to marry among girls. "It is due to a selfish love of luxury and a dislike to begin married life in a humble way," she said. "Girls want to begin where their parents left off, and not at the beginning. If it were not for this selfish consideration of luxury, we should perhaps have earlier marriages."

Ferry Steamers Run

Kingston, Jan. 9.—The ferry steamers have resumed work. The heavy northwest wind of the night broke up the ice and drove it into the lake or piled it against the Wolfe Island shore. The Pierrepont went to Cape Vincent. Last year the ice broke in February, and it may do so again this year.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

CANADIAN SHIPS.

Some Famous Sailing Craft Which Gleaned Fortunes From the Sea —A Blue-Nose Designer.

Time was when Canadian sailing ships swarmed the great highways of all the seas and floated proudly in ports in far corners of the earth. Time was when the Maritime Provinces owned more ships in proportion to their population than any other country in the world; when their shipwrights had a reputation second to none for the speed and beauty of the ships they built, and their shipmasters were as redoubtable a class of seamen as ever sailed the seas—men celebrated for courage and competency, and, it must be confessed, for cruelty.

Times Have Changed.

But times change. Shipyards whence in former years were launched clippers of fame, are now overgrown with grass and the shipwrights who once filled them with the bustle of their activities—over many of them, too, the grass grows green. And hundreds of the white-winged clippers that once lived in the boisterous life of the winds, skimming big fortunes from the foam of the sea, now lie at rest in the port of missing ships—broken, rotting hulks festooned with long sea grass.

Here and there, however, shipyards still resound to the blows of the axe, the ring of the saw, the urgent clamor, of caulking irons, the thrill and joyousness of creative efforts; here and there shipwrights are still busily fashioning the fabrics of ships whose defiant and tragic beauty of line and form seem to symbolize the struggle of their art to reconcile the pride of their traditions with the practical demands of the times. And here and there an old clipper survives to keep green the memories of other days.

A Blue-Nose Designer.

Of all the sailing ships celebrated in song and story, probably none compare either in beauty or speed with the clippers built at East Boston by Donald McKay, a blue-nose, who, before he went to the States, built ships in Nova Scotia. The Sovereign of the Seas, the swiftest sailing ship that ever ploughed the deep was built by Donald McKay, and sailed by his brother, Laughlin McKay, to victory in many a famous ocean race. On one occasion this ship, an extreme clipper of 2,400 tons, made 436 knots in 24 hours, an average of over 18 knots, or 21 statute miles an hour; a record that has never been equalled by any sailing ship, and is only surpassed by a few steamers. On another voyage she averaged 364 knots for 11 consecutive days. In one of his books, Frank Bullock, the English writer of sea tales, referring to this ship, remarks that "a man who had once sailed in such a flyer as the Sovereign of the Seas was wont to brag of it ever after, while the fact that he had survived the hardships of such a passage gave him brevet rank among the men of the sea."

Another Famous Greyhound.

Another famous greyhound of the seas built by Donald McKay was the Great Republic, a model of which, exhibited at the Paris Exposition, was pronounced to be the finest piece of marine architecture then extant. She was a four-masted ship, the largest merchantman afloat for many years, and the first vessel to be provided with double topsail yards, an invention which rendered possible a great reduction in the number of the crew, and has greatly lessened the labors of the sailor men. The Donald McKay, the length of whose mainyard is still a standard of measurement; the Flying Cloud, which logged 427 knots in 24 hours, and made the voyage from New York to Frisco in 89 days; the Golden Fleece, Star of Empire, Westward Ho, Bald Eagle—these and many another famous China clipper Western Ocean packet, whose performances are still celebrated in the songs and chanties of blue water sailors, were built by this Blue-nose.

Another Famous Builder.

Another famous shipbuilder was Capt. George Mackenzie, of Pictou, whose enterprise gave a strong impetus to the upbuilding of the shipping industry of the province. It is worthy of remark that one of his ships, the Hamilton-Campbell Kidston, was, as late as 1860, hailed with enthusiasm at Glasgow as the largest which had hitherto sailed up the Clyde.

Of late years the only vessels built in Canada have been small barquentines, tern schooners, and fishing craft. Although the fore and aft schooner is primarily a Yankee product, Nova Scotia builds vessels of this type equal in point of seaworthiness and speed, to those built in Yankee yards. The schooners used in the fisheries now have as fine lines as a racing yacht, and many of them would, in heavy weather, outfoot some of the modern racing machines. Some of the clipper schooners built at Shelburne, N. S., for the Canadian Fishery Protection Service were remarkably smart vessels, as their ability to capture the Yankee poachers, built especially for speed, fully-shows. The Osprey, the last sailing vessel built for the service, was in her time admittedly the fastest craft on the Atlantic coast, and could easily log 14 or 15 knots—tall traveling for a craft of one hundred tons.

Name Your Farm.

The Belleville Intelligencer makes a capital suggestion, or perhaps reiterates an old one, that farmers should name their farms. Some people name their houses in a city, and this, though it has its advantages to the owner, is of little use in locating the property. But out in the townships everybody would profit by the movement. It would help to break up the monotony which is one of the foes of country life, and it would tend to make the country a pleasanter place to live in. As The Intelligencer says: "Mountain View Farm sounds much better than Old Sam Jones' place, and it's better business, too."

Fact and Fancy.

"To hear that man talk you would suppose he could beat an army by himself."

"Yes, and if he ever got into action he would think himself lucky if he could beat a retreat."

Historic Old New York.

Greenwich village, in New York city, was first brought into prominence when Sir Peter Warren, descended from an ancient Irish family and vice admiral of the British fleet, settled there in 1744. He married Susannah De Lancey and settled on a fine estate of more than 500 acres, running from Christopher street to West Twenty first. It was laid out like an English park, with splendid hedges and avenues of trees and a fine old mansion, which was the resort of all the quality of old New York. His three daughters all made brilliant marriages in England. One became the Countess of Abingdon, and her name is preserved in Abingdon square. On the division of the estate at Sir Peter's death the homestead fell to her. She sold it to Abijah Hammond, who sold it to Abraham Van Nest, and it is still remembered by many as the old Van Nest house, demolished in 1865. Among other distinguished persons who have lived in Greenwich were Oliver De Lancey, William Bayard, Washington, Vice President and Mrs. John Adams, Aaron Burr and Tom Paine. Barrow street was originally named Reason street in compliment to the great infidel's best known book, "Age of Reason."

Useful Teeth.

Many different reasons are assigned by people for their unwillingness to submit to the extraction of teeth. But it was no fear of pain which was uppermost in the mind of Miss Mehitable Lamson of Willowby when told by the dentist that she would be much benefited by the loss of two of her prominent teeth.

"You say they can't be filled," she said, in evident distress, "and you couldn't get any others in for me for more'n a fortnight?"

The dentist admitted reluctantly that it was so.

"Well, then, I suppose I'll have to get on as best I can." And Miss Mehitable seated herself in the torture chair. "But I don't see how I shall make out. Here I am, chambermaid to the Willowby inn during the summer, and it's chock full of folks, with lots o' transients coming and going, and those are my pillowcase teeth!"

Weight of the Brain.

There is just five ounces less amount of brain matter needed to keep a woman from idiocy than there is needed for a man. The average weight of a man's brain is forty-nine and one-half ounces and that of a woman forty-four ounces. When a brain falls below thirty-seven and a half ounces in a man idiocy usually occurs. A woman's brain has to fall to thirty-two and one-half ounces before she reaches the same condition. Man has a larger brain in proportion to his stature than woman, while, on the other hand, woman has a larger brain in proportion to her weight. The female brain begins to lose weight after the age of thirty; that of the man not till ten or fifteen years later. The loss in a woman is slight, however, and she keeps up a high brain weight much later than a man.

The Deadly Dull Bachelor.

"It is always easy to see how long a couple have been married by noting whether the house is full of his friends or hers," according to a writer in the London Ladies' Field. "A man invariably begins by inviting all his bachelor friends to his house. He is anxious to show off his wife, and he fondly imagines that they will like her and that she will like them, which rarely happens." The writer then goes on to dissect the bachelor and concludes, "I don't know why one's husband's bachelor chums should, as a rule, be so deadly dull, but they usually are, and, as a matter of fact, it was probably their dullness which originally drove him into matrimony, only he has not the sense to see it." There would be fewer married if it weren't for the bachelors.

THE ONLY PACKERS OF BEEF, PORK AND OTHER FOOD PRODUCTS OF THE RANCHES AND FARMS OF WESTERN CANADA.

This Company has already about 1,000 shareholders, all of whom have paid for their shares in cash on equal terms, and shares are allotted by priority of application.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary;—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 500,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad, at the finest advantage. This should be enclosed for cow pasturage, and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold, the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid (say into 10 fully paid $100-Share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally (twenty millions ($20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100-Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

EXTRACT FROM REPORT, JUNE 30TH, 1905.

"An interesting brochure published by Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, give statistics of the past year's business. The total sales for the year aggregated over $[illegible],000,000, representing shipments of 350 carloads daily. In a single day were slaughtered in the company's seven packing plants 11,575 cattle 18,313 sheep and 34,062 hogs.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present; The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs J. A. Banfield, F. B. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 80 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. B. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

Proper Medicine For The Blood

Drives Away That Tired Feeling; Makes You Feel Brisk.

To every one is sure to come that tired, exhausted feeling.

When the blood is weak, thin and debilitated, circulation is slow, and in consequence the system is congested with poisons and wastes that should be driven off.

The sensible person acts on the teachings of experience and cleanses his system with a course of Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

No medicine can be more certain to quickly cure. Convenient to take, just one pill at bedtime; safe, because entirely vegetable; unfailing, because proved by thousands that Dr. Hamilton's Pills set you up in a few days.

From Cheboque Pt., N. S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds: "A year ago my health began to fail, I lost appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and had black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when springtime arrived I was in the "Blues." I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The newly elected members were then installed by Past County Master Bro. J. B. McWilliams. After which refreshments were served. God Save the King.

Chairmen Named For the Committees

As noted elsewhere in this issue the newly elected City Council will hold their first meeting on Monday next. It may be that the modus operandi of last year, viz., having the city's work done by four standing committees will be changed to having six do the work. Whilst it is premature to prophecy either the personal or respected chairmen of the various committees, it has been rumored that the various chairmen may be as follows: Ald. Johnston for the Fire, Water and Light; Ald. Morrow for the Manufacturers; Ald. Bradburn for the Finance; Ald. McIntyre for one of the new committees.

This however, as noted is only rumor, and not any possible suggestion.

Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot's Services Appreciated

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. John's church will hold a tea this afternoon from four to six o'clock in the interest of the Doreas work of the Auxiliary.

This body of active church workers has passed a resolution of appreciation in reference to the services of Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmot, the retiring president. It was moved by Mrs. Archer and seconded by Mrs. R. A. Dutton. Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot has been president for two years and her work was duly appreciated. The resolution expressed the hope that Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot might enjoy every prosperity and happiness in her new home in Perth.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held in March, when a new president will be elected to succeed Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot.

Rapid Tool Co. Bonus May be Given

Since Monday's election the general talk of the city has been in regret that the Rapid Tool Co. bylaw, was not carried by a sufficient majority to validate the bonus. It will be remembered that the council last year passed a resolution agreeing to ask the legislature to confirm the bylaw in case the required vote was not polled, and it is the intention of the company to request the new council to stand by the promise of the old council.

The Council to Meet on Monday.

The new City Council will hold its first meeting in the city council chamber on Monday morning next, January 14, at eleven o'clock, when all the members, having subscribed to the oath of office will take their place.

Mayor-elect R. F. McWilliams will deliver his inaugural address and outline his policy for the year. The principal business besides this will be making appointments to the Board of Health, the appointment of auditors and the striking of the various standing committees for 1907.

Do You Think For Yourself?

Or, do you open your mouth like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you?

If you are an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest medicine or nerve corporation, sold by druggists for the cure of woman's ills.

The makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible indorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper.

The formula of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will bear the most critical examination of medical experts, for it contains no alcohol, narcotics, harmful, or habit-forming drugs, and no agent enters into it that is not highly recommended by the most advanced and leading medical teachers and authorities of their several schools of practice. These authorities recommend the ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of exactly the same ailments for which this world-famed medicine is advised.

No other medicine for woman's ills has any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has received, in the unqualified recommendation of each of its several ingredients by scores of leading medical men of all the schools of practice. Is such an endorsement not worthy of your consideration?

A booklet of ingredients, with numerous authoritative professional endorsements by the leading medical authorities of this country, will be mailed free to any one sending name and address with request for same. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Board of Education Hold First Meeting

Board Met Last Night and Struck the Standing Committees and Transacted Other Business.

Last night the Board of Education held their first meeting of the present year. There were present Messrs. Dumble, Ackerman, Burnham, Pringle, Robinson (the new member) Hayes, Fair and Hill.

Chairman G. W. Morrow first read the names of the members recently elected and duly sworn in.

A vote was taken to establish the chairmanship for the coming year. This resulted in Mr. Robt. Fair being unanimously elected chairman.

Mr. Fair thanked the members for the honor done him, and referred to the important matters to be dealt with this year, including the Collegiate Institute, King Edward school, etc.

Dr. Burnham moved that a committee, composed of Messrs. Pringle, Hill, Ackerman, Hayes and the mover be appointed to strike the standing committees.—Carried.

These gentlemen retired and nominated the following committees, viz:

Property — Ackerman, Dumble, Crane, Morrison. Mr Ackerman chairman.

Finance—Hayes, Robinson, Ackerman and Crane. Mr. Hayes chairman.

Supervision—Pringle, Hill, Burnham and Morrison. Mr. Pringle chairman.

Committee on Appointments—Composed of the whole board. Mr. Hill, chairman.

Mr. Hill moved that the next regular meeting of the Board of Education be held on Tuesday instead of Monday as heretofore.

Dr. Morrison suggested that the special committee to look after the Collegiate Institute be named.

Mr. Hayes moved that the old committee, viz., Messrs. Grace, Hayes, Dumble, Hill and Morrison be appointed.—Carried.

The committee to look after the south ward was appointed, viz., the same as last year, only changing Mr. Robinson's name for that of Chairman Fair.

The meeting then adjourned.

SPORTING TOPICS

THE TURF.

Since the posters regarding the local Turf Club races, beginning Jan. 22d, were issued a change has been made in one race. What is noted on these bills as a 2.18 class race, has been changed to a 2.17 class race. This will result in several fast .17 class horses coming here that under the original notice would have been debarred.

* * * * *

The Peterborough Turf Club will put off their races this month beginning on the 22d. From correspondence received from leading horsemen the races this month will be first-class and a large gate is expected. Under the well-known climatic disadvantages that handicapped the New Year's meeting, the reorganized club broke even on the date. There is every reason to believe that the races to come will not only have a better competition, but will be attended by a still larger crowd. The fact that Picton races clash, will not in any way interfere with the horses that were supposed, or will, come here.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH

Cure Catarrh by Breathing Hyomei Sold Under Guarantee.

The only scientific and common sense way to treat catarrh of the nose and throat is by a local application that will kill the catarrhal germs.

Ordinary stomach dosing is worse than useless. Taking medicine into the stomach to cure catarrh of the head can have no good effect, and often leads to serious derangement of the digestive organs.

By breathing Hyomei three or four times daily through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, its medicated, healing air penetrates to the most remote parts of the nose, throat and lungs, searches out and kills all catarrhal germs, and soothes and heals any irritation in the mucous membrane.

Our faith in the wonderful merit of Hyomei as a cure for catarrh is shown by the guarantee given with every Hyomei outfit that the money will be refunded unless the treatment gives satisfaction.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, if needed, 50 cents. We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. When you fill in and return to us the symptom blank, our consulting physician will give your case the best care and attention, and write you a letter of advice without charge. Local Hotelman Is Taken to Jail

Shortly before six o'clock last night, the chief and his brigade swooped down on a local hotel in smart time, and relieved the house of the well-known person of Patrick Cluman, who, it is alleged, was trying to evade the sentence imposed upon him by the magistrate yesterday morning. Patrick was arrested by P. C. Newtnall and taken to the county jail to commence his new duties behind the bars.

A Fast Steamship Line to Canada

London, Jan. 11.—An important scheme for the development of British routes, the far East is likely to be produced at the coming Parliamentary session.

Its object, says the Tribune, is to accelerate the carriage of mail by establishing a packet station at a point in the British Isles nearest Canada, viz., Blacksod Bay, Mayo, where there are a deep and spacious harbor, a railway ferry, and steamers to carry mails and passengers across to Ireland.

It is stated if 25-knot steamers are used, Halifax can be reached over the route in four days. The capital required is £1,250,000.

New Baptist Pastor Is Highly Honored

Rev J. R. Webb, the retiring pastor of the Point St. Charles Baptist church, and Mrs. Webb, are expected to arrive in Peterborough today. Mr. Webb will preach his first sermons as pastor of the Murray street Baptist church on Sunday next.

Last Monday night the Point St. Charles congregation tendered a farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Webb and was presented with a casket filled with gold and Mrs. Webb with a valuable cocoa set and a teacher's Bible.

The Montreal Witness gives the following report of the presentation:

An event that will live long in the memories of the Point St. Charles Baptist congregation and of their retiring pastor, took place last evening, when a large gathering assembled in the lecture room of the church to show the Rev. Mr. Webb some tangible evidence of their esteem. It was to the regret of all that Mrs. Webb was too ill to be present. Dr. Griffiths presided, and the devotional exercises were led by the Rev. Mr. Bosworth.

The Rev. T. B. Brown, Sherbrooke, upon being called upon spoke very flatteringly of Mr. Webb's work at the "Point," and paid tribute to him as a pastor and a Christian man.

Archdeacon Ker followed with a humorous speech in which he told of Mr. Webb's cordiality and breadth of view and sympathies, and even hinted at exchange of ideas for their sermons.

The Rev. J. A. Gordon, D.D., was reminiscent, and had some very encouraging things to say. He remarked that Mr. Webb would be missed as a member of the Quebec Baptist Union, as secretary of the Grande Ligne Mission, and in many branches of Christian and reform work of the city.

The Rev. Prof. Mackenzie, the Rev. Mr. Therrien, Mr. R. E. Tyddenham, the Rev. A. W. Main, the Rev. J. E. Mavety, and the Rev. Dr. Thomas also spoke eloquently and earnestly of Mr. Webb's splendid work in Point St. Charles.

The Rev. K. J. Macdonald read an address which was signed by all the ministers of Point St. Charles, expressing their best wishes for his future success.

Mr. H. A. Hodgson, who was called upon to represent Westmount Baptists, took the opportunity to present Mr. Webb with a casket filled with gold, amounting, he said, sufficient to take him to Peterborough and back ten times.

Mr. Webb made a brief but very appropriate and feeling reply.

Mrs. Webb was made the recipient on Friday last of a valuable cocoa set of Haviland ware, accompanied by a letter of appreciation at a meeting of the Ladies' Aid, The Mission Band presented her with a handsome teacher's Bible, and her Sunday school class gave her a travelling satchel.

Mr. Webb leaves for Peterborough at the end of the week.

The "Mikado" Is a Big Success

Splendid Production of This Charming Opera at the Opera House Last Night.

A good audience greeted the first presentation in Peterborough, at the Grand Opera House last night, of Gilbert & Sullivan's world-famed opera, "The Mikado." This, perhaps the most fascinating of all operas, was sung by a company composed of purely local talent, under the direction of Mr. Richard J. Devey. The presentation was one that reflects considerable credit on Mrs. Devey, and judging of the applause prevalent throughout the entire opera, met with a full measure of appreciation from those present. The costumes were truly Japanese in every respect, and considerable skill was manifested in staging the piece, which during the evening presented many charmingly picturesque scenes. The presentation last night was one that should bespeak crowded houses tomorrow night and Saturday matinee, both in encouragement of local efforts and from a standpoint of excellence and merit. It is seldom one sits before so highly creditable and pleasing a production by amateurs as the Mikado now before Peterborough's lovers of high-class entertainments.

The principals last night sustained their characters very well indeed, especially so in the case of Mr. N. Greenhalgh, who sang the Mikado of Japan. His conception of this splendid character was of a nature that might well be acceptable to many a professional company. His voice is full and clear, and his articulation perfect. His bearing is that which one might well expect from his majesty of Japan, and altogether his efforts last night were unusually pleasing and acceptable. Mr. John Hogan makes a capital Pooh-Bah, and did himself credit. The three sisters, wards of Koko, were charmingly attractive, while Mrs. R. J. Devey's interpretation of the difficult character of Katisha was extremely good. Mr. N. Morphet's presentation of Pish-Tush was highly commendable. Mr. Geo Chandler sang Nanki-Poo in splendid style, having a voice well suited to the character. The work of the big chorus of ladies and gentlemen cannot be spoken too highly of and all were very ably supported by a p.o.t.d by a full orchestra.

This presentation is one which deserves to be very largely patronized this evening and tomorrow afternoon.

CANADIAN LINES ARE PROSPEROUS

Railway Earnings Larger for 1906 Than Ever Before in History of Dominion.

COUNTRY GROWING RICHER

Banks Now Show Deposits of $92 Per Capita, as Against $38 for Ten Years Ago.

Ottawa, January 10.—Never in the history of the Dominion have the railways of this country had such a year of rich earnings, profits and expansion as the year just closed. Increases of income have been the rule from the smallest single-car line to the great system that spans the continent.

The year of 1906 made an excellent start, from the railway viewpoint. There was scarcely any severe weather and comparatively little snow during the winter and consequently the snowplows were not called into service. This fact represented hundreds of thousands of dollars saved in operating expenses so far as the big railway systems were concerned. As the calendar year and the railway year do not synchronize, and as the railways will not themselves have available for some time yet anything like accurate returns of the earnings in full for the second half of the past calendar year, a complete statement of the result cannot be given. This much, however, can be said, that the results have been remarkable as regards the roads operating in the West, East, and middle of the country, and this is in the main attributed to the continuance of widespread prosperity in Canada.

SHOW BIG PROFITS.

The Intercolonial Railway, the Government system, heretofore a yearly producer of big deficits, has now become a profitmaker of great health and promise. The Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk have surpassed all former records, and the Canadian Northern has shown that, as one of Canada's great steam highways, it must now be seriously reckoned with.

It is not by the earning capacity alone that the railways are to be judged, although it will be generally conceded that the financial result is the final test of success. The fact that upward of 4,000 miles of new line have been under construction during the year is also a most notable feature in Canada's railroading. The greater part of this is in the West, yet even in the older provinces the new mileage is considerable. Another marked feature of the year has been the increased haulage capacity through the gradual enlargement of the trains. The rapid development of the country by expanding industries and areas of settlement has entailed upon the railway companies enormous expenditures in rolling stock, the Canadian Pacific alone expending $7,000,000.

PACKERS ARE INVESTIGATED.

The government legislation respecting the inspection of Canadian packing-house and cannery products, just introduced into Dominion Parliament, may be said to be a direct outcome of the Chicago revelations last year. When it became evident that the allegations against the Chicago packers was about to be substantiated by the investigating commission of the Washington government, the Canadian government took up the matter, very quietly, to ascertain whether similar charges could be brought against the packing-houses in this country.

Fortunately for the Canadian packing industry, the reports were, in the main, quite satisfactory, but in the interest of the public and of the export trade in such commodities it was deemed expedient to provide against any such lapses in Canada. It is proposed in the bill now before parliament to have inspectors always in attendance at the meat-packing establishments.

WHOLE COUNTRY PROSPERS.

That the past year's prosperity in the Dominion has been substantial requires no better nor satisfactory proof beyond the fact of the increase of over $71,000,000 in deposits of the people in Canadian banks. Canadian depositors have now in the safe keeping of the banks almost $96,000,000, or $92 per head of the population, as against $58 per head ten years ago. The banks have used these increased funds to assist commercial and industrial undertakings and to thereby earn handsome profits for themselves.

Veteran Journalist Dies In Press Rooms

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—Mr. John A. Phillips, the veteran journalist and author, died suddenly in the press rooms of the House of Commons last night. He visited the newspaper headquarters about noon and said his heart was troubling him. In the evening he returned shortly after eight o'clock and again complained of pains in the region of the heart. Suddenly he put out his hands to two of the correspondents and said goodbye, and collapsed. Medical attendance was speedily procured, and, although two doctors arrived, they could render him no assistance, and in a few minutes he expired.

He was born in Liverpool, England, Feb. 25, 1842. He commenced his journalistic career in New York, January, 1865, and in 1870 joined the Montreal Star staff. He was editor of the Ottawa Citizen for years, and represented the Montreal Gazette here for 14 years. He was the author of many short stories and an illustrated history of Canada.

He also was the author of a patriotic song, "The Flag for Me." He was president of the press gallery in 1896.

Both Coffins on the Same Train

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Mrs. Edwin H. Smith of Denver, died in the Union station yesterday just after being removed from a train, in the baggage car of which was her husband's body. The painful duty of bringing the body halfway across the continent that it might be buried in Baltimore, their home city, was too much for Mrs. Smith's strength. The train which she intended to take for the East bore two coffins instead of one.

Ten years ago Smith was one of the leading lawyers of Baltimore, prominent socially and wealthy. He was stricken with consumption, and went to Denver with his wife. He built up an extensive practice in Denver before he succumbed to the disease. He was a member of the prominent Marshall family of Virginia, being a grandson of Chief Justice Marshall. Mrs. Smith was a daughter of the late John E. Hurst, wholesale dry goods merchant of Baltimore. She was 35 years old. In 1895 her father was the Democratic candidate for Governor of Maryland.

EARTH TREMORS ARE FELT

Shocks are Felt in Three Countries in Europe and in the U. S.

Williamsport, Pa., Jan. 11.—A series of shocks, evidently earthquakes, were felt in this section from 4.45 to 5.50 a.m., yesterday. Buildings shook so that the families were awakened and rumbling sounds were heard over an area of about 20 miles.

SWEDEN ALARMED.

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 11. —Two distinct and sharp earthquake shocks were felt at several points in Sweden at 1.30 this morning.

Despatches received from Arvika, Mellerud, and Stromstad report that the rocking of houses at those places caused a hasty exodus of the alarmed inhabitants.

RAMBLINGS IN NORWAY.

Christiania, Norway, Jan. 11.—Two severe shocks of earthquake were felt at 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning, accompanied by rumblings like thunder. Telegrams received here show that the shocks were felt in other towns in Norway. The disturbances caused considerable alarm, but no damage has been reported.

RUSSIA IS SHOCKED.

Yekaterinoslav, Russia, Jan. 10.—Two earthquake shocks were felt here early yesterday morning.

Mistake Made by a Returning Officer

It now seems that the returning officer in one of the local polling division at Monday's election, refused two members of the Roman Catholic faith, the privelege of voting on the Collegiate Institute bylaw, whereby those in charge of this important and desired acquisition to our local educational institutions, asked and got $25,000 more towards erecting the building.

It seems that the deputy returning officer was not well-informed on the matter and thought that the bylaw could only be voted on by the public school supporters. The two electors in question afterwards informed one of the city aldermen of the occurrence, with the result that he showed the returning officer his mistake. The two voters were later allowed to mark their ballots on the collegiate bylaw.

Boys Charged With Arson.

As noted in a former issue of The Times a serious charge was laid some days ago, against two young men of Cordova, who it is alleged set fire to some straw stacks there. County Magistrate Edmison will go to Havelock Tuesday next. The case came up some time ago, but was enlarged owing to the illness of one of the boys.

McGill is Committed on the Theft Charge

Evidence Taken In New York Was Not Read In The Court---Defendant Agreed to Accept It as Read.

Toronto, Jan. 11.—Charles McGill was yesterday morning in the police court here committed for trial on two charges—of stealing $136,000 and $1,150,000 from the Ontario Bank.

Very little additional evidence was taken, as the facts had already been pretty well elicited.

At the outset of the proceedings, Mr. Gideon Grant, who appeared for Mr. McGill, stated several objections which the defence had to the commission that recently sat in New York in connection with the Ontario Bank affairs.

OBJECTED TO COMMISSION.

"We object," he said, "on the ground that the commission was improperly issued and that the manner in which it was obtained was irregular. No notice of the application for the order for the commission was served on Mr. McGill. No notice of the issue or of the execution of the commission was served on him. Nor was he notified of the taking of the evidence, which was secured in his absence. Being under bonds to appear in the police court here, while the commission was sitting in New York, it was impossible for him to be present."

"Are those all the legal objections you have?" inquired the magistrate.

"Those are all I think of at present," replied Mr. Grant.

"Well," pursued the magistrate, "you had better think of some more. We will give you a chance to register them later on."

EVIDENCE NOT READ.

Magistrate Denison was about to proceed with a reading of the result of the commission's work, when Mr. Grant said that it might be taken as read.

Crown Attorney Corley interposed that the evidence taken should be read, otherwise objection might arise in the higher court.

"I understand," said Mr. Grant, "that no objection will be taken at a later stage in the proceedings over the fact that the evidence has not been read in full on this occasion."

"I would like," pursued Mr. Corley, "to have that from Mr. McGill's own lips. Mr. Grant's firm objects that they were not notified of the issuing of the commission. If they are not going to admit service on his behalf in that connection, perhaps we had better assume that they do not represent him now."

"What do you say about that?" asked the magistrate.

"I have no objection to waiving the reading of the evidence," replied Mr. McGill, "but I would like to have a copy of it."

"You will get that," assured the magistrate.

WHO IS M. S. McGILL?

Mr. Corley pointed out that the commission had found that on March 10, 1906, a sum of $2,000 had been paid to M. S. McGill.

"We would like to know who M. S. McGill is?" he said.

"It may be Mrs. McGill," replied the witness. "Her initials are M.S."

"I would like to ask for a committal on this charge as well," said Mr. Corley.

"Yes, there is ample evidence," concluded the magistrate.

Ontario Booksellers Will Lodge a Protest

Toronto, Jan. 11.—The booksellers of Ontario will meet in Toronto on Jan. 15, to protest against any move on the part of the Ontario Government, whereby the distribution of school books might be taken out of the hands of the bookselling trade and administered by the Government. The booksellers mean to wait upon the Government before it commits itself to this policy. They will interview the Minister of Education at the Normal school there at 11.30 a.m. on the date mentioned. They will gather at the Queen's Hotel at nine a.m. for a council of war. They will be guests of the Bookseller and Stationer for dinner, the present campaign being strongly supported by that magazine.

The objections of booksellers to Government distribution of school books are fourfold; 1. That the loss of revenue would cripple larger bookstores and ruin smaller ones. 2. That by striking such a blow at bookstores the Government will deprive certain centers of necessary conveniences. 3. That it would have a deterrent effect upon private enterprise in the Province in general. 4. That it would involve the Government in a difficult and unprofitable enterprise.

Second Odd Death In the Same House

Toronto, Jan. 11.—Lying in bed, her body contorted, Mrs. Mary Duffy was found about ten o'clock yesterday morning at her home, in the rear of 238 1-2 King street east, by her husband. Dr. St. Charles was called in, and said that death had taken place a few hours previous. The chief coroner was then notified.

Duffy asserts that his wife was in good health last night when she retired, but during the night had been up a couple of times. When he left he supposed she was sleeping, and thinks death must have taken place about 7.30 o'clock. She had not been drinking, he said, and also told the police that she had been suffering from asthma, but did not take medicine for it, with the exception of a small dose of liquor occasionally.

This death recalls another that The Times noted last week, when Mrs. Annie McDermott, formerly of Peterborough, was found dead just Thursday, after imbibing too freely. The place is a very small shack, and the police assert has not been kept very clean.

Shot Innocents, Missed Assassin

Lodz, Russian Poland, Jan. 11.—Col. Patko Andrieff, chief of the gendarmes of the Lodz district, was shot and killed yesterday morning on Polodnowa street. A passing infantry patrol fired a volley at the assassin, but only wounded several innocent bystanders. The assassin escaped. The booksellers mean to wait upon the Government before it commits itself to this policy. They will interview the Minister of Education at the Normal school there at 11.30 a.m. on the date mentioned. They will gather at the Queen's Hotel at nine a.m. for a council of war. They will be guests of the Bookseller and Stationer for dinner, the present campaign being strongly supported by that magazine.

ON THE DEATH LIST.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 11.—Vice-Admiral Doubassoff, ex-Governor-General of Moscow, and at present a member of the Council of Empire, has received notification that another attempt will be made upon his life.

This Young Child Died of Old Age

Chicago, Jan. 11.—A despatch from Minneapolis says:

"James Anderson who died here yesterday, aged 11 years and two months, was in the opinion of physicians, at least 60 years old, so far as the condition of his vital organs determine the age of a man. When six years old his hair began to turn grey, his eyesight beginning to fail, and he walked with the deliberate care of a person who is advanced in years. As a young child he was exceptionally bright, but his mental faculties were gradually failing for the last two years, so newsa little better than a person in his dotage during the last few months.

New Shah Will be Enthroned Feb. 2nd

Teheran, Jan. 11.—On February 2, the anniversary of the day upon which the prophet, standing at the side of the lake, proclaimed that Mohammed Ali Mirza was his own flesh and blood, will occur the enthronement of Mohammed Ali Mirza, the new Shah. That is also the day of the Chadir festival, the festival of the lake. The peacock throne, which the new ruler will ascend, is valued at from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000. Another royal treasure is the late Shah's terrestrial globe of gold set with 51,000 precious stones, Persia being marked with turquoises.

At the palace soon after the official announcement of the Shah's death, the new ruler was acknowledged as Shah by the grand vizier, other princes of the royal family and many officials.

Must Have the Midway.

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—The directors of the Central Canadian Exhibition Association have decided that if the fair is to be a success financially, the "Midway" must again become a feature. In the annual report just issued, they say "the cutting out of the Midway was a front, the public seeming to prefer the street of tents, with their varied freaks to the high class vaudeville." The report intimates that the Midway will be again a feature of the fair next season.

THE SCOURGE OF CONSUMPTION

Thousands Are Dying—If Tired, Languid or Run Down Get Protection Before Too Late.

No child, man or woman is safe from consumption unless their blood is pure, rich and nourishing.

Allow the blood to become thin, and immediately the whole system grows weak. The lungs are deprived of resisting power and the ever-present tubercular bacilli develops.

The most positive protection against consumption is Ferrozone, which restores the blood to full strength. Weak organs are instantly strengthened. Worn-out tissues are rebuilt. New life is given to the lungs and all danger of consumption is destroyed.

Mrs. E. J. Richardson, Manotick, Ont., tells as follows of her enormous gain in health from Ferrozone: "For two years I was not well. I was thin and anaemic. Towards spring I fell into a condition of nervous exhaustion. A dead tiredness hung over me like a load of lead. Housework of any kind I simply couldn't do. A bad cough developed that worried me greatly for I thought it might be tubercular. When I first read of Ferrozone I was convinced it was good. I took it regularly for eight weeks and the change in my condition was wonderful. My cheeks filled out and became clear and rosy. I gained eight pounds and now am strong and vigorous as possible."

Ferrozone feeds, nourishes and tones up the body—it sends the thrill and vim of robust health from head to foot—makes you feel better at once. Won't you use Ferrozone? Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

AUSSIA FACING FAMINE

The Russian peasant is facing one of the worst famines that country has known in twenty years. According to the preliminary report of the Central Statistical Committee, Russia's entire crop of winter wheat equals 238,000,000 bushels, of spring wheat, 299,000,000 bushels, and the rye crop is 633,000,000 bushels. This makes the wheat crop 100,000,000 bushels short of last year, and over 130,000,000 below that of 1904; the wheat crop of 1906 is the smallest Russia has had since 1901.

From the standpoint of national consumption the shortage in rye is much more alarming. While the crop of 1905 was 280,000,000 bushels short of 1904, this year's crop is 74,000,000 bushels short of 1905, or 354,000,000 bushels short of 1904. It is 400,000,000 bushels below the 1901 crop, and is even smaller than the famine crop of 1897.

Tax officers estimate the total crop of cereals at about 3,019,000,000 centals of grain, which is 156,000,000 centals less than the 1905 harvest. Stocks in farmers' hands at the end of the crop year, July 15, 1906, were only 144,000,000 centals, or 44,000,000 centals less than the preceding year, making the total shortage this year no less than 212,000,000 centals.

The necessity for government aid has been recognized in over twenty provinces, and an appropriation of 75,000,000 rubles for that purpose will, according to the statements of many Zemstvos, prove insufficient. Besides requests for financial aid heavy requests are made for grain for seed purposes, aggregating fully 20,700,000 centals.

As more than 30 per cent. of Russia's net wheat crop goes to supply the international market, this Russian shortage means a good deal (benefit ially) to the American farmer.

Russian wheat experts in September and October fell off from an average for five years of 40,000,000 bushels to 23,000,000 bushels. During the current commercial year the export drop will be from 193,000,000 bushels in 1904 to 80,000,000 bushels, less than half. This applies to spring wheat, the crop of which has fallen off 16,000,000 bushels since 1904, or 36 per cent. Winter wheat, which is grown in Western Russia only, is a somewhat larger crop than in 1904 and 1905.

THE LOVING LEAVES.

Brown is the hill where the maples grow,
So brown, so calm, so cold and still;
But the loving leaves creep snug and close,
And warm the feet of my dear old hill.

And they don't forget the violets small,
Shivering and cold in the damp and wet,
They cover them up in blankets brown,
Whispering, "Darlings, we love you yet!"

Down in the hollow amid the ferns,
Their billowy wraps they wreath and roll,
And they spread a carpet, rich and warm,
To keep the snow from the mouse's hole.

And the lady-slipper—so shy and weak—
They wrap a muffler about her throat;
And the maiden's-hair they cover deep
And furnish the moss with an overcoat.

MRS. PAGET'S MISSION.

Studied Ancient Lore of the Indians For the Government.

After a three months' trip through Saskatchewan, which included twelve hundred miles of driving by themselves, Mrs. F. H. Paget and Miss Mabel Ferguson returned recently to Winnipeg from a summer spent among the Indians of the Cree, Saulteaux and Assiniboine tribes.

Mrs. Paget is a resident of Ottawa, but was, before her marriage, Miss McLean, of Winnipeg, and has been heartily welcomed by her many friends in the city.

Her father, Mr. W. J. McLean, was for many years in charge of the Hudson Bay Post at Fort Qu'Appelle. Accompanied by Miss Mabel Ferguson, of Ottawa, Mrs. Paget went up to the File Hills on July 19, and made that district her headquarters. The Indians there are Crees, occupying three reserves.

She undertook the journey at the instance of the Dominion Government, as owing to the fact that she speaks the Cree and Saulteaux languages, she was thoroughly qualified for the work of research, which was that of studying the Indian folk-lore and obtaining records of the early history and customs of these tribes. She traveled over familiar ground, as in her childhood every aspect of the country was familiar to her, and it will be remembered that she with the other members of Mr. McLean's family were taken prisoners by the Indians during the Rebellion. Miss Ferguson accompanied her and acted as her secretary.

Mrs. Paget found the space of time all too short in which to gather the material, there was so much that had never been touched on, and her interviews with the Indians were full of possibilities in the way of historical matter along many interesting lines besides those to which she confined herself.

The Indians would not talk freely in the presence of a third person, so Mrs. Paget took her notes alone, while the story-teller (like all Redmen very good in narrative)—told her what she wished to know. Sometimes three or four women were called in and asked to corroborate some date, but as a rule the one Indian took up the burden of the tale. An Indian is never interrupted once he begins his story. When he is done, there is a pause and then another may speak, but to break into a monologue by asking questions would at once place a rash person in great disfavor.

It was necessary to talk with a great many Indians to get all the facts. Mrs. Paget endeavored to find out whether they had any idea where their people came from originally; with what other Indians they had at any time been at war; and what had been their early customs. The one thing found impossible to secure was the telling of any of their fairy stories, owing to an amusing superstition. They never tell these stories except in winter, saying that if they were to take time to tell them in warm weather a lizard would come and suck their blood, meaning by this that the summer is no time for loafing. The Indians have a series of such stories dating back to the flood. Mrs. Paget used to hear them in her childhood, and she is able to write many of them from memory, but it would be necessary for her to visit the people in the winter to get them to tell the old tales over again.

Stained Ivory.

Spots or yellow stains on ivory can be removed by one or more applications of sawdust very slightly damped with water and made into a paste by adding lemon juice squeezed from a fresh lemon. The paste should be laid over the surface and allowed to dry thoroughly, after which it must be brushed off, or moisten a piece of flannel with water, dip it in finely crushed table salt and rub gently.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and disharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing strength restored, strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use no well

"This agreement is subject to the regulations now in force, or which may at any time hereafter be in force during the construction of the works hereby contracted for, made under the authority of the Department of Labour, and which are or shall be applicable to such works." (The schedule of Minimum wages determined upon by said department will form part of the contract).

"The contractor shall, in connection with the whole of said work as far as practicable, use only material, machinery, plant, supplies and rolling stock manufactured or produced in Canada, provided the same can be obtained as cheaply and upon as good terms in Canada as elsewhere, having regard to quality and price."

The right is reserved to reject any or all tenders.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $30 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

When Annie Played Gooseberry

By Ethel Barrington

Copyright, 1905, by Homer Sprague

Blackberries hedged the road on either side as it wound higher and higher toward the Berkshires. Here and there some belated strawberries, tiny specks of crimson in the grass, joined their fragrance to the invigorating breath of the pines. From an unpainted barn came the persistent click-clack, thud-thud of a loom, where Miss Lettice was weaving yards of carpet from little balls of colored rag. A voice sharp enough to the verge of displeasure startled her.

"Will you finish tomorrow, sister?"

"I—it doesn't hardly seem possible"—

"'Twas promised. 'Pears to me you're uncommon slow. Surely you're not such a fool as to be thinking o' William Henderson and such nonsense at your age."

Miss Lettice's hand involuntarily sought the fastening of her bodice, but the faint crackle of the secreted paper was too imperceptible to reach Mrs. Allen's ears.

"The letter was delayed. He's going away tomorrow"—

"Lettice Howard, he's no man for you. We settled that years ago. I'm ashamed for you—that you so much as think on him now."

"He's free again"— Miss Lettice spoke deprecatingly.

"Free, is it? If he wasn't good enough for you when he was young, a widower with three children certainly ain't no gain." With a toss of the head Mrs. Allen recrossed the road to her cottage.

Miss Lettice sat miserably uncertain, her hands idle in her lap. She forgot the loom and Mrs. Harris, who was counting on the finished carpet. Her thoughts were with the curly headed lad from whom her sister had separated her because he failed to settle in the town where he was born, but, like a rolling stone, was forever wandering, apparently gathering little o' this world's goods. Now he had returned and wanted to see her. It seemed a cruel prank of fate to have joined forces with her sister and in the form of delayed mail prevent their meeting. A tear gathered beneath her lashes, but before it fell a pair of warm arms wound themselves around her neck.

"Aunt Lettice, you're in love, in love! Don't ask me how I know, because you are. You don't listen to what folks are saying, and as to the carpet"—

"Yes, dear, the carpet." Miss Lettice seized the shuttle and sent it flying through the shed of warp threads. Her feet mechanically worked the treadle shifting the heddles; then with the batten she bent the woof of rag into place again and again.

"We can't talk through that noise," she remarked plaintively.

"My dear, there is nothing"—

"There is, you darling. Come, 'fess up. I'm not to be put off. It's fellow sympathy." The crimson deepened in the laughing face, and with soft wheedling she gained the desired confidence, and Miss Lettice surrendered her letter.

It was in no sense a love letter, yet it was the nearest approach that the spinster had ever received. Possibly she read between the lines:

Dear Lettice—I am visiting my brother Joe till Wednesday. I want so much to see you. If it'd be welcome send me word. Yours, as ever, WILLIAM.

"I—I only got it last night"—

"It's too late to write now," her niece hurried on, "but you must go to Chatham to see him. Make believe you're shopping. Jennie's going tomorrow. I'll have Rob ask her to stop for you."

"Sister would never listen. Besides, it's not the carrier's day."

"She's making a special trip for Rob's mother. Just to think"—the girl rose excitedly—"it must be ten years"—

"Twelve."

"And you've cared all this time! Oh, Aunt Lettice, how could you bear it? Mother's good as she can be, only she's had so much trouble it's made her a little hard. Do as I say and I'll play gooseberry for you. After breakfast come over here, as usual. About 10 walk down the road till the carrier overtakes you, then to Chatham with her and to Joe Henderson's, ask for William and you'll have hours together. Jennie will pick you up on her homeward trip. You'll be back to supper. Mother need never know unless you choose to tell her."

"But the carpet! If she doesn't hear the loom she'll come over to find out what's wrong."

"Leave that to me. I've got to think, but I'll fix it somehow."

During supper Mrs. Allen glanced anxiously at her sister's flushed cheeks and untouched plate. With the morrow William would be gone, then Lettice would return to her normal self.

Later, when Annie wandered down the road with Rob, the moonlight showed their heads very close together, while now and again the girl broke into a ripple of mischievous laughter. Watching, the mother felt a pang of jealousy. Rob was a good match, yet she dreaded the day she must yield her daughter to another, and tonight the time seemed very near. She went several times to her room for forgotten trifles, and each time there showed a line of light beneath her sister's door.

"Seems to me you're a long time getting to bed," she admonished.

"I—I'm most ready," came the reply. If Miss Lettice's voice sounded less even than usual Mrs. Allen was not herself sufficiently calm to notice.

As was customary in the morning, Miss Lettice betook herself to the barn, and the working of the loom broke familiarly on the quiet air. Shortly after 10 Mrs. Allen, attracted by the rumble of wheels on the road, saw that the carrier was making an extra trip. She spoke of it to Annie, who came in hot and tired to noon day dinner.

"Call your aunt," she continued. "The pork will be cold. I got it specially to tempt her. She's eaten nothing these two days."

"Rob's mother invited her"— began Annie nervously.

"What for?" Mrs. Allen turned sharply, dish in hand.

"She has some rags for carpet weaving. Rob told me about it."

Mrs. Allen sniffed, disgruntled. "Your aunt had to go traipsing off without telling me. Besides, there's none too much daylight to finish Mrs. Harris' piece."

In the afternoon she was too busy preserving to notice Annie's absence or give thought of her sister, but when the last jar of jelly was sealed she caught up her sunbonnet and crossed the road to relieve Lettice.

As she entered the barn the glare from the outside sunlight blinded her, but even when that passed she doubted her own sight. Rob was working the loom while Annie, rosy and tender, hung over the back of his chair. Miss Lettice was nowhere to be seen, but the carpet was completed. Even as she entered Rob threw down the shuttle and caught Annie around the waist.

"Now, my reward!" he cried, his lips seeking hers lovingly.

"Annie!" At Mrs. Allen's cry the young people turned, but Rob did not release the girl.

"Mrs. Allen, she's promised—that is, with your approval. I love her. I'll be as good to her as I know how."

"Say yes, mother. I'm so happy"—

There was a painful silence before Mrs. Allen reluctantly gave consent; then her bitterness sought an outlet.

"Where is your aunt?"

"The carpet's done," explained Rob cheerfully.

"Done, is it? By whom?"

"Mis' Allen, Mis' Allen"— The carrier drew her horse up at the barn and on Mrs. Allen's appearance thrust a note into her hand and hastened on.

"Daughter, did you know of this?" Mrs. Allen's voice shook as she passed the paper to the girl, who read aloud:

"Sister, don't be angry. I just had to see William, and he could not bear that we should part again. I'm very happy.

LETTICE HENDERSON.

"She's married, mother dear. Now it's done won't you be glad too?"

But Mrs. Allen turned and walked silently over to the cottage.

"It's a bit rough on her losing you both the same day," admitted Rob, drawing the girl's hand into his, "but we'll make it all up to her in the future."

The Telltale Cloak.

In the old days men and boys wore rather long cloaks in the winter time. They were black and were lined with very bright and showy Scotch plaids. One winter's night when I was starting to church to square a crime of some kind committed during the week I hid my cloak near the gate and went off and played with the other boys until church was over. Then I returned home. But in the dark I put the cloak on wrong side out, entered the room, threw the cloak aside and then stood the usual examination. I got along very well until the temperature of the church was mentioned. My mother said:

"It must have been impossible to keep warm there on such a night."

I didn't see the art of that remark and was foolish enough to explain that I wore my cloak all the time I was in church. She asked if I kept it on from church home too. I didn't see the bearing of that remark. I said that was what I had done. She said:

"You were in church with that red Scotch plaid outside and glaring? Didn't that attract any attention?"

Of course to continue such a dialogue would have been tedious and unprofitable, and I let it go and took the consequences.—From Mark Twain's Autobiography in North American Review.

DANGERS FROM DYSPEPSIA

Imperfect Digestion Most Prolific Cause of Serious Disease.

Few people seem to realize the real dangers in disturbed, deficient or defective digestion.

While health reports do not give indigestion as a cause of death, yet it is in reality often fatal, as it so weakens the stomach that one becomes readily susceptible to an attack of typhoid fever, kidney disease, nervous prostration or other serious or fatal disease.

At the first symptoms of indigestion, Mi-o-na stomach tablets should be used. If there is a feeling of heaviness in the stomach, distress after eating, nervousness, dizziness, nausea, headaches, sleeplessness, pains in the side and limbs, specks before the eyes, or a peevish, irritable condition, with debility and weakness, begin the use of Mi-o-na at once.

It will build up the stomach and digestive organs so that you can eat anything at any time without fear of distress or indigestion.

A 50-cent box of Mi-o-na tablets will, in most cases, give prompt relief and cure, although in chronic and long-standing weakness of the stomach, two boxes or more are sometimes needed, but we guarantee Mi-o-na will cure, in all cases, no matter how chronic or serious, or money will be refunded. You run no risk whatever in buying Mi-o-na.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail, on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ONLY PACKERS OF BEEF, PORK AND OTHER FOOD PRODUCTS OF THE RANCHES AND FARMS OF WESTERN CANADA.

This Company has already about 1,000 shareholders, all of whom have paid for their shares in cash on equal terms, and shares are allotted by priority of application.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary:—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 20c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and if will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning Industry (Packing Town, Chicago, has a population exceeding 200,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold; the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid annually to 10 fully paid $100 Share for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions ($20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100-Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalization, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

EXTRACT FROM REPORT, JUNE 30TH, 1905.

"An interesting brochure published by Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, give statistics of the past year's business. The total sales for the year aggregated over $[illegible], representing shipments of 35 carloads daily. In a single day were slaughtered in the company's seven packing plants 11,675 cattle 16,513 sheep and 34,563 hogs.

AUDITOR'S AND FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant, now read his financial report and Statement confirming the Secretary's Report, and the Share Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure Subscriptions, Receipts and Expenditure to date.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a full meeting of our Board of Directors, the following gentlemen being present; The Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, Messrs. J. A. Banfield, F. R. Warren, Dr. R. M. Simpson, W. M. Gibson, W. W. Richardson, T. H. Gilmour and F. H. Malcolm, Mr. D. A. Pender, Chartered Accountant (the Company's Auditor), being also present.

RESOLUTION:

Moved by the Hon. Hugh J. Macdonald, seconded by Mr. J. A. Banfield.

"That after hearing the report of the Company's Secretary, and of the Company's Auditor, the Directors are satisfied that ample capital has been already subscribed to justify the commencement of active operations in the direction of immediately purchasing land (from the Government or C.P.R.), and erecting and equipping the first Cannery of the Company." Carried.

DIRECTORS' MEETING

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the next call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $16,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

It will be thus evident that the Company is very much in earnest, and will commence active packing operations at the earliest possible moment.

NOTE—Preference Shares in the Company may still be obtained, but they are going very rapidly, subscriptions averaging about $3,000 daily. The Shares are $100 each, payable in $10 calls at intervals of two months.

F. H. MALCOLM, Acting Secretary.

Local Men Busy in Ottawa.

As is known to our readers Mr. S. J. Sheridan and his associates, operated a most successful and paying roller skating rink business in the Charlotte street rink up to the time Jack Frost enabled the curlers to get their lungs, brooms and stones into operation. These roller skating men have secured control of the biggest skating rink in Ottawa—Dey's Arena—which they have leased and will turn into a roller skating rink just as soon as the skating season is over. This will be the only roller skating rink so far established in Ottawa. The place is able to accommodate nearly 2,000 skaters.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

In yesterday's issue we gave a full account of the trial of Patrick Cluman, a bartender in the Royal Hotel, charged with assaulting an Indian named Cornelius, by striking him over the head with a policeman's baton. The defendant was found guilty and sentence deferred until yesterday morning's session of the police court.

The magistrate yesterday gave the following judgment;

"In this case an Indian, with two other men, went to the Royal Hotel, and there had three rounds of whiskey. Then they separated and about noon the Indian returned to the hotel and remained for the others, by appointment. The Indian wished more whiskey but was refused. He persisted in his demand and being refused he said some rude things to the keeper of the hotel, Mr. Kelly, and to the manager, Mr. Cluman. His language was offensive, but such as is too frequently heard in bar rooms. Mr. Cluman several times ordered the Indian to leave the room but the refused. Then Cluman took from the drawer a policeman's baton and using it, repeated his order; then seized the Indian by the coat and forced him back to the door. Kelly came from behind the bar, opened the door and took hold of the Indian and pulled, while Cluman forced the Indian into the porch and finally out of doors. Mr. Cluman says the Indian raised his hand and struck him, but a sworn view, on the head, which did not hurt him. The Indian says Cluman twice struck him on the head with his club and that Kelly kicked him. Cluman definitely striking twice with his club. The two blows cut the Indian down to the skull. One wound, an inch and a quarter long, cut an artery, which Dr. Greet says would have caused the Indian to bleed to death had he not got prompt medical attention. The other wound was also to the bone. The charge is of an aggravated assault. I find the charge proven.

The sale of liquor to the Indian is unlawful, and the man who sells liquor to anyone must do very indulgent to him, whose consequent bad behavior he has helped to make. If the Indian was offensive it was for Cluman either to endure it or 'phone for the police. He only 'phoned after the assault instead of before. The Indian was not violent before the clubbing. If it was necessary to put him out, the two men could easily, with gentle hands have removed him. To club a man as this man was clubbed was a cruel and wanton act, without excuse or decency. Hotelmen owe it to the public to be very gentle with drunken men, and I cannot encourage them in the idea that they may club every poor drunken fellow, whose wit liquor has deprived him of.

"The judgment of the court is that Mr. Cluman be confined in the county jail for one month and that he pay a fine of one hundred dollars. In default of payment that he be confined in said jail for one month from the termination of the first month's confinement.

Mr. Walker to Start the Meetings

In accordance with a resolution of the City Sunday School Association, a Teachers' Training Class will be conducted at the Y.M.C.A., beginning on Friday, January 11th, at eight o'clock. The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients — Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical writers, teachers and writers on Materia Medica who recommend them as the very best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

VOL XXXV, NO. 10 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JANUARY 12 1907 PRICE TWO CENTS

Two Splendid New Palatial Steamers

Otonabee Navigation Co. to Place Large Boats on the Rice Lake and Kawartha Systems.

For many years the beauties of the lower Otonabee and Rice Lake waters have given pleasure to thousands of tourists, and now it will be possible for those desiring a beautiful scenic trip to travel on steamers that will be second to none in the Dominion of their size.

The Otonabee Navigation Co. has been

W. H. ROBERTSON
President, Otonabee Navigation Company

formed with a capital stock of $40,000. This company propose to build two palatial steamers, with the most perfect compound engines and twin screws. These boats will be lighted throughout by modern and most complete electric light systems, and will each have a powerful bow searchlight, so that on the return trip to the city by night the beauties of the river will be displayed most distinctly. The boats will be built as large as consistent with possibility of getting through the local locks. One steamer is now under construction and will be ready for next summer's business. This boat is being built at the East Ward wharf, which has been acquired by

J. E. HENDERSON
Passenger and Traffic Manager, Otonabee Navigation Company

the company. The new steamer will have a carrying capacity of at least 700. Its extreme length will be about 115 feet, with a breath of 21 feet; or, for the sake of comparison, about 20 feet longer and some 3 feet greater in beam than the steamer City of Peterborough; her speed will, it is calculated, be eleven miles an hour, the propelling power being 110 horse-power. Next year the company will build another steamer of equal size and power, and will have any improvements that experience with the first boat may suggest.

The company have, in addition to their enterprise in building these boats, acquired possession of that beautiful summer resort known as Idyl Wyld, including the hotel there. With these fine new steamers and the possession of Idyl Wyld, there is every reason to believe that not only will the Otonabee Navigation Co. prove a money-making investment, but thousands of our citizens will be enabled at small cost to enjoy to the utmost many a happy day during the summer months.

As the steamers will be under the direct management and actual supervision of those most interested in the company, the boats will be kept scrupulously clean and in first class order. The down stream Otonabee trip is too well known to most of our readers to require comment. With the new steamers that will now quickly and safely convey passengers to and from Rice Lake points, this lovely, never ending vista of wild woodland and waving reed-lined shores will be seen and enjoyed by thousands of people throughout the summer months.

The company is composed as follows:

President—W. H. Robertson.
General Manager—Capt. W. H. White.
Passenger and Traffic Manager—E. J. Henderson.
Solicitor—R. E. McWilliams.
Secretary-Treasurer—Miss K. Campbell.

Not only will the company own and control the steamers as noted, but they have acquired the popular steamer Water Lily from Capt. White and all the barges and equipment used by this well known local navigator.

The company propose to operate an auto-bus line between Cobourg and Harwood for the accommodation of American visitors who throng that town during the summer months, and will issue through tickets between Cobourg and all points on Rice Lake and Otonabee River, including Peterborough.

The company will have two, if not three, steamers in commission during the present season, so that the opportunity for enjoying a sail on these beautiful waters will be vastly increased.

Rural Deanery Has Finished Its Work

The Rural Deanery of Northumberland and Peterborough, as noted in yesterday's Times was held at the residence of Rev. Wm. Major, rector of All Saints' church.

Rev. Canon Davidson, Rural Dean, occupied the chair, and Rev. E. W. Pickford, of Norwood, acted as secretary.

At the morning session Rev. A. J. Reid, of Campbellford, read a paper on "Parochial Appointments." Mr. Reid, in his paper, compared different modes in the different dioces of Canada. A discussion, in which all present took part, followed the reading of this paper.

Routine business in connection with the Deanery, was then taken up. The mission of South Burleigh and Young's Point has been without a clergyman, and efforts will be made to have one appointed. Mr. Batterby is acting as lay reader at Young's Point, and Mr. Bradshaw at Buckhorn. Rev. C. Lord reported on the mission of Apsley. A new church has been built and is almost paid for.

Since last meeting Ven. Archdeacon Warren has left Lakefield, his place being taken by Rev. W. J. Creighton, of Bobcaygeon. Rev. A. J. Fiddler, of Colborne, has been removed to Toronto, and his place being filled by Rev. H. F. Morgan.

The delegates were entertained at luncheon by the W.A. of All Saints' church.

In the afternoon a good paper was read by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt on "The Historic Episcopate." The paper was followed by a discussion and the points emphasized in the paper were strongly agreed upon by those present.

In the evening a public service was well attended. The service was conducted by Rev. Wm. Burns, of Hastings, while the lessons were read by Rev. E. W. Pickford, of Norwood, and Rev. C. Lord, of Apsley. Rev. Canon Spragg, rector of Cobourg, preached an able sermon on "Bible Truths."

Sporting Matters at the Local Y.M.C.A.

The Business Men's class at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium has steadily augmented its membership since the first of the year.

Many more of the business men have signified their intention to join the class which meets every Monday and Thursday from five to six. The working boys' class Thursday night from eight to nine-thirty, was also well attended. This was game night when the regular drill was dropped, and the whole evening was taken up in playing popular gymnasium games, which were thoroughly enjoyed by the boys.

Next Wednesday night two more basketball games will be played in the senior Y.M.C.A. league. At eight o'clock the Alerts play the O.F.C. and at nine the Arrows play the Harriers.

Something New in Mining History

Wonderful Success of the Mining Town and District of Joplin

Joplin, whilst in this part of the country a comparitively unknown word, in Missouri and Kansas, is synonymous with successful and lucrative mining investments. Joplin whilst, so far, is only a small city, is a restless sleepless center of the most strenuous and successful mining operations ever known on this continent. Enough lead and zinc are annually handled in Joplin to fill thousands of trains of cars annually. Although over $13,000,000 do lars worth of ore was handled there last year there are still hundreds of acres of valuable mineral lands in that section awaiting the work of human hands and intelligence, to give up still more million of dollars to how willing and able to prospect and work them. There is still sufficient lead and zinc ores actually in sight to keep vast crowds of men at work night and day for the next half century. Joplin now produces enough lead for anti-fouling purposes done to keep the telephone systems of the world going and her zinc production would supply the stereotyping industries of the world fully supplied dustries of the world fully supplied.

The Integrity Mining & Milling Co., conceived by practical business men, not mere speculators, is capitalized at $500,000 and incorporated under the laws of Missouri. Its officers are all known as well known and proven successful business men. The company now controls three proven mines 30 acres altogether. Their mines are the "Gladstone," "Federal" and "Dixie." The company are offering for a limited time only their stock at 25 cents per share, par value $1. The second installment will be placed at 45 cents and the third at 50 cents per share. After these three installments have been taken up the company will hold the balance of their stock at par.

To Avert Collisions.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Experiments conducted by the Lighthouse Board of the United States, the British Admiralty, and the Danish Government supplemented by some smaller tests made by Rear-Admiral Evans have satisfied the Navy Department of the value of the system of submarine signalling by means of bells to insure the approach of a ship in thick weather or nightfall to the shore, and steps are being taken to equip most of the vessels of the navy with the proper device for transmitting and receiving the bell sign beneath water. It is believed that this will reduce largely the chances of stranding and collision.

BEWARE

What a Little Tick on the Ticker May Spell.

Peterborough Wins First Senior O.H.A. League Game

Defeated the Fast Kingston Seven in a Speedy Game on Good Ice by a Score of 7 to 3.

Last night the Brock street rink was crowded to its utmost capacity, the attraction being the first O.H.A. senior championship game.

The game was between the 14th Regiment of Kingston and the Peterborough seniors. The ice was in splendid condition and the game was exceedingly fast from the first blow given the puck to when Peterborough was declared a winner. Both teams started off for blood, the Limestone City men, by Richardson secured the first goal, when within sixty seconds Whitcroft, for the locals put the rubber in the Kingston net. Shortly after this, after a series of combination plays, Morgan lodged another goal for Peterborough.

Van Norman the Kingston goal umpire for alleged unfair decision was promptly sent to the penalties, Van Norman taking his place. Peterborough promptly got two more goals in the first half, these being made by Whitcroft and Miller. This made the score at half-time 4—1 in favor of Peterborough.

When the second half opened both teams started off at a fast clip. Moore ran into a heudson collision with Richardson, and was knocked out for a few minutes. Miller on a pass from Whitcroft, by a clever play scored for the locals, and after about a minutes play Whitcroft scored, Crowley repeating the trick shortly afterwards Richardson of Kingston then scored for the soldiers making the score 7—3 in favor of Peterborough.

The teams lined up as follows;

Peterborough		Kingston
	Goal.
Lang		Biscoik
	Point.
Glover		J. Richardson
	C. Point.
Crowley ...		Van Horne
	Rover.
Whitcroft		Bernier
	Center.
Morgan		Potter
	R. Wing.
Moore		Powell
	L. Wing.
Miller		T. Richardson

Mr. F. C. Waghorne of Toronto, made a capable referee.

Ireland to Canada in Three and a Half Days

Montreal, Jan. 12.—To give a fast service between Halifax and Blackwood Bay, on the west coast of Ireland, to establish ferries between the east coasts of Ireland and England, and to construct a railroad across Ireland are the objects aimed at by the shipping and financial men who are behind the scheme for a new fast steamship line between Canada and Great Britain. The company is called the Great Britain, Ireland and Canada Express Route, and its promoters claim that passenger and mail can be landed in Halifax and sent on to Chicago by the time the best New York steamers reach that port. With 25-knot steamers the 2,100 miles between Blackwood and Halifax would be covered in three and a half days, and the 664 miles between Blackwood and London in about 14 hours.

PRELIMINARY WORK.

London, Jan. 12.—Mr. John Dillon, M.P., has promised to support a bill which it is proposed to submit to Parliament, and which is entitled the Collooney-Ballina-Belmullet Railways bill, for the construction of railway in Sligo and Mayo, and the construction of a deep-water pier at Blackood Bay preliminary to running a fast line of steamers to Canada.

The approximate capital authorised by the bill is £125,000. Regarding the trans-Atlantic service, it is estimated that a weekly service of three steamers of 24 1-2 knots would cost two and one-quarter millions. A bi-weekly service and two additional steamers would bring the cost to about four millions.

Twenty Killed in Explosion

Strassburg, Germany, Jan. 12. — Twenty persons were killed yesterday by the explosion of a vat of boiling celluloid in a bookbindery at Geispolsheim owned by an English firm, Houdert and Company. The flaming liquid was thrown over rooms where many men and women were at work, and caused such instantaneous ignition of everything with which it came in contact that all the exits were cut off. Some of those who escaped from the burning rooms were terribly scalded.

South Saskatchewan May Burst Its Banks

Winnipeg, Jan. 12.—The fuel famine is again threatening in many districts which are already practically without supplies of coal and wood. Through passenger trains are days behind. The traffic is demoralized as it has not been in twenty years. Now grave fears are being expressed over possibilities of flood in the spring, and the Manitoba Government is in receipt of a letter from an engineer urging the Government to enquire into the truth of a report that the South Saskatchewan is liable to burst its banks at the present and flow into the Qu'Appelle, which means, he asserts, that Winnipeg will see the most disastrous of floods.

Intimidate Court

Jackson, Ky., Jan. 12.—This city is excited over the trial of ex-County Judge Hargis and ex-Sheriff Callaghan on the charge of murdering Dr. B. D. Cox four years ago. Judge Cornes, specially assigned to try the case, has appealed to the Governor for troops to protect him. A jury cannot be selected here, as it seems twelve men cannot be found in the county who will pass judgment on the prisoners. An effort will be made to have the trial held elsewhere. The city is full of armed mountaineers, and attorneys on both sides have been warned to be careful. Armed men throng the court room during the sessions. The Governor has sent militia officers here to investigate.

Many Drown in Tidal Wave

The Hague, Jan. 12.—A tidal wave has devasted some of the Dutch East Indian Islands south of Aden. The loss is great. According to a brief official despatch, 300 persons perished on the Island of Tana, while 40 others are known to have been drowned at the Island of Simalu.

Pope Sends Address to the French Church

Does Not Wish Persecution for Them But Glad They Are United---Certain of Final Victory.

Rome, Jan. 21.—The Observatore Romano yesterday published the text of an important encyclical addressed by the Pope to the French Catholics. In this document The Pontiff said that his chief object in addressing the faithful in France was to comfort them in their sufferings, which he felt deeply. There was, however, great consolation in the fact that the Catholics of France were united.

The French Government's declaration of war was not only against the Christian faith, but against all spiritual ideas. The French Catholics must be prepared for all sorts of trials, but they were certain of final victory. This meant the maintenance of their union with the Holy See, which was of the greatest importance, as shown by the efforts of the enemies of the Church to dissolve this union.

Contrary to the statements made on the subject, the Church did not desire a religious war, involving violent persecutions. Being a messenger of peace, and carrying out her mission loyally, the Church did not willingly expose herself to war and persecutions as she did not desire to see her children suffering.

A DIVINE INSTITUTION.

Regarding the ecclesiastical properties, the encyclical said the Pope had not abandoned them. The French Government had imposed on French Catholics an organization which the Church was unable to accept without implying its existence as a Divine institution. The statement that the Government disposed of the "abandoned" properties of the Church was odious, designed to spoliation.

It was false to state that the Pontiff condemned in France what he approved in Germany, as the German cultural associations were merely tolerated, although they recognized the hierarchy, which was not done in France. The new bill amending the separation law of 1905 was simply a law of confiscation, and in regard to the exercise of public worship it was an anarchical measure. Therefore the Pope condemned it.

In conclusion the Pope appealed to the judgment of history, which, he said, will recognize that the Papacy did not wish to humiliate any trivial officials or oppose any form of government, but defended the work of the Divine founder of the Church, demanding respect for the hierarchy and the inviolability of its property and liberty."

Amassing Great Fortunes is Ignoble

London, Jan. 12.—The Review of Reviews prints a striking article by Andrew Carnegie, entitled "My Partners the People." It expresses the belief that a millionaire ought to share his wealth with the poor, but with the limitation that his fortune should not be divided before the millionaire's death. Then the community should exact a large share, graduated in increasing proportion to the extent of the deceased's wealth. After advocating the British graduated death duties as a "basis for distribution," Mr. Carnegie says,

"Such contributions from the estates of enormous fortunes at their death would do much to reconcile dissatisfied, but unreasoning people to the alarmingly unequal distribution of wealth arising from the new industrial conditions of our day. We shall ultimately have to consider the adoption of some such scheme as a progressive tax on all fortunes beyond a certain amount, either given as life or bequeathed at death, so that it will be impossible for the owners of enormous fortunes to hand on more than a certain amount or more than a certain income to any individual."

Mr. Carnegie humbly deprecates the claim of the merely wealthy to fame. They have no place with inventive men, and they occupy a lower plane intellectually. In the coming day brain will stand above dollars, and conduct above cash. The making of money as an aim will then be rated as an ignoble ambition.

One Killed and Others Injured in Large Fire

Montreal, Jan. 12.—Several members of the Ben Hur Company were more or less injured in making their escape from a burning building where they were boarding. One life was lost and ten people painfully injured. The fire broke out in the grocery store of L. R. Baker & Co., corner of St. Catherine street west and Fort street. The man killed was Emil Greene, aged 26, son of the principal of the High School, St. John's, Que. He died in his bed-room, probably being overcome by the smoke. Margaret Beguin, who came here from Sweden to be married, forced herself through a window and fell head first into the snow, but she says the wedding will take place tonight.

A Dear Case.

Port Arthur, Jan. 12.—After a legal contest, extending over two years, involving a recount, three trials, and four appeals, Mr. W. A. Preston, who according to the official count at the last elections for the Legislature, was defeated by H. W. Kennedy, the Liberal candidate, has at last won the seat. The case, which has been in progress for several days, came to a close near midnight Wednesday night, when Judges Teetzel and Anglin declared that Mr. Preston had been elected by a majority of 15.

The cost of the case will exceed $15,000. The judges will make their report to the Speaker of the Legislature, and Mr. Preston will take his seat as representative the coming session.

Tried to Murder Her

London, Jan. 12.—At a new confrontation of Dr. Herbert with Madame Guerin the woman was effusively affectionate and sought to embrace the doctor. She handed a "complete history of the affair" to the magistrate, in which she said the doctor had tried to murder her, and Cambron, her salaried protector, believing her life in danger, had shot the doctor. Dr. Herbert calmly described the tale as a lie.

Parliament Should Conclude by April

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—The prevailing impression in parliamentary circles is that in the present session three or three and a half months will afford ample time to deal with all the legislation that is likely to be proposed.

"I know of no reason," said one leading member of the Opposition, "why we should not have everything finished up by April at the latest." The Opposition is not likely to spend a great deal of time on the tariff schedules, for Oppositionists have a declaration to go into details on any matter of this sort. The other items of the Ministerial program are all ready for presentation, so there will be no undue delay on that score. Wednesdays will very shortly be taken for government orders.

Volcanoes Show Signs of Activity

Honolulu, Jan. 12.—The crater on the summit of the volcano of Mauna Loa broke out at midnight Thursday. The eruption forms a magnificent spectacle, which is visible for one hundred miles.

Catania, Sicily, Jan. 12.—Mount Aetna is evidencing signs of activity. Ashes and flames are emerging from the top of the volcano, which is covered with snow, and the people of Catania are showing considerable apprehension. The spectacle is magnificent. The men attached to the Mount Aetna Observatory, located at an elevation of 9,000 feet, are at a point 3,000 feet below the observatory held by the snow.

Warsaw, Jan. 12.—Nearly 100 terrorists were arrested in this city yesterday by the police, who also seized many rifles and revolvers. Five terrorists were tried by drumhead court martial and condemned to death.

OUT OF SORTS

People Not Really Sick Are Often Most In Need of Care.

The people who actually are most in need of kind words and medical treatment are not those who are really sick, but just "out of sorts."

The old-time energy, force, strength and happy spirits are lacking, the physical and mental powers are lagging, there is poor appetite, and they cannot get the good out of the food they eat. In nine cases out of ten, this results directly from a weakened stomach, and no other treatment equals Mi-o-na to restore strength and health.

When the nerves and muscles are weak, if there is sleeplessness, irritability, and specks before the eyes, when the head aches and there is a dull pain in the back, and there is any dizziness and heariness in the stomach, dizziness, and sometimes nausea, the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets for a few days will make a world of improvement, and continued use for a reasonable time will restore perfect health.

These tablets are not mere digestives; they absolutely strengthen all the organs of digestion, so that there is good appetite, perfect digestion and strong nerves, when they are used.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Write today for a free sample package, and also give us your symptoms, and one of the best known stomach specialists will give your case his careful and personal attention without charge. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 12, 1907

NOT ALL CLEAR YET

The proper study of Mankind is Man, and not a little attention has been paid to that study. But the subject isn't exhausted yet, as a little tale which comes from Cleveland, Ohio, indicates. Leo Dean of that city is a bad boy again. He used to be a bad boy, and he went careering through juvenile courts, reformatories and other places where they renovate and repair young human nature. He stayed bad until a wise man discovered that his perversity dated from a whack on the head. Brain surgery for the correction of mental abnormalities was just coming into vogue, and through the instrumentality of the juvenile court Leo became one of the first subjects experimented upon. Dr. George W. Crile and Dr. Harry S. Drysdale relieved Leo's brain pressure, and he got to be a very good boy. One day he saw some men taking down an awning. He stood gazing upward. A hammer fell and cracked Leo on the head in the exact spot where fate had buffeted him in childhood, changing the course of his life. He is now as tough as they make 'em, and there is solemn talk of fixing his head so that he will again be good.

It looks very much as if the powers that be intended the Leo should be bad, but the poet says that Man can half control his fate, and it may be that Leo's fate will yet be fixed by more surgery. Anyhow, there may be a successful operation, even if it kills him.

STUPIDITY VS. INTUITION

Strange how stupid Man continues to misunderstand lovely and lively Woman. In Paris some wideawake women have taken a notion that they want to drive cabs for a living. But all the women who have thus far sought licenses from the Parisian authorities have failed to pass the required examinations. There were all familiar with the fares to be charged, but seven slipped up on the topography of Paris streets when asked to name the shortest routes between given points. Two were deficient in knowledge of how to put a fallen horse on its feet again, and two more failed to harness and unharness horses in the required time limit.

Of course the error in all this is in the notion that Woman needs to know things as Man does. She has intuition, which makes her a surer and safer being than Man, with all his study and fuss. Without "knowledge" women could drive cabs in Paris so much better than the men that they would soon drive the men out. Perhaps that explains why "knowledge is demanded of them.

FISHERMEN.

There Are Two Classes, the Genuine and the Pretenders.

It has sometimes been said that fishermen cannot be manufactured. This is true to the extent that nothing can supply the lack of certain inherent, constitutional and inborn qualities or traits which are absolutely necessary to a fisherman's makeup. Of course there are many who call themselves fishermen and who insist upon their membership in the fraternity who have not in their veins a drop of legitimate fisherman blood. Their self asserted relationship is nevertheless sometimes seized upon by malicious or ignorant critics as permitting the assumption that the weaknesses and sins of these pretenders are the weaknesses and sins of genuine fishermen. But in truth these pretenders are only interlopers who have learned a little fish language, who love to fish only "when they bite," who whine at bad luck, who betray incredulity when they hear a rousing fish story and who do or leave undone many other things fatal to good and regular standing. They are like certain whites called squaw men who hang about Indian reservations and gain certain advantages in the tribes by marrying full blooded Indian women. Surely no just person would for a moment suppose that genuine Indians could be treated fairly by measuring them according to a squaw man standard. Neither can genuine fishermen be fairly treated by judging them according to the standards presented by squaw fishermen.—From "Fishing and Shooting Sketches," by Grover Cleveland.

FORCE OF WATER.

The Great Power That Is Exerted by a Six Inch Stream.

The effect of the hydraulic motor, which is now used for the purpose of removing masses of earth, well nigh passes belief. A stream of water issuing from a pipe six inches in diameter, with a fall behind it of 375 feet, will carry away a solid rock weighing a ton or more to a distance of fifty or a hundred feet. The velocity of the stream is terrific, and the column of water projected is so solid that if a crowbar or other heavy object be thrust against it the impinging object will be hurled a considerable distance. By this stream of water a man would be instantly killed if he came in contact with it even at a distance of a couple of hundred feet. At 200 feet from the nozzle a six inch stream, with a 375 foot fall, projected momentarily against the trunk of a tree will in a second denude it of the heaviest bark as cleanly as if it had been cut with an ax. Whenever such a stream is turned against a bank it cuts and burrows it in every direction, hollowing out great caves and causing tons of earth to melt and fall and be washed away in the sluices.

The Eye of a Child.

Who can explain or fathom the wondrous instinct of the child? Lying in the arms of its nurse, in its carriage or elsewhere, its large, round, wondering eyes roam over a sea of faces till suddenly its features break into a sweet smile, a baby laugh dances in its eyes, perhaps the tiny hands are extended, and the little body gives a bound as though it would throw itself through space. What has happened? It has recognized a friend, nothing more and nothing less. It makes no mistake. Wiser, perchance, in that moment of inexperienced helplessness than it will be years afterward, when the world and its inmates have been studied in the light of instruction and experience, its love offering is seldom if ever mistakenly presented. By what power is this child love directed? By what subtle influence does it see and know what in after years it may strive in vain to discern?

Carlyle and the Ax.

Carlyle as a schoolmaster was a terror to evildoers. Even the biggest and boldest boys wilted when he growled out "dunce" or "blockhead." He did not thrash often, as his scowl was enough to hush a whole school, but when he did thrash he meant business. One day a joiner passing along the road heard the most piteous howls and cries for mercy and help coming from the schoolhouse. Rushing in and handing his ax to Carlyle, he exclaimed:

"Jist doo't cotricht, mon, and no mince maitters."

Ingratitude.

"Were you ever really glad to hang a man?"

"Only once," answered the sheriff. "I had prepared him a hearty breakfast of steak, eggs, potatoes, waffles and coffee."

"Yes?"

"And the infernal ingrate demanded stewed oats instead."

Bad Society.

What you learn from bad habits in bad society you will never forget, and it will be a lasting pang to you. I tell you in all sincerity, not as in the excitement of speech, but as I would confess and have confessed before God, I would give my right hand if could forget that which I have learned in bad society.

FRIENDS ADVISED USE OF PE-RU-NA.

MR. RAOUL PILON

Suffered Much—Catarrh Affected Throat and Nose—Pe-ru-na Proves Highly Satisfactory.

Mr. Raoul Pilon, 116 Rue Notre Dame, Lachine, P. Q., writes:

"I write you a few words to express to you my satisfaction at being cured.

"I was afflicted with catarrh of the throat and nose and suffered much.

"I was greatly discouraged.

"I had a bad breath and a bad taste in my mouth in the morning.

"I took treatment for some time without obtaining relief.

"At the advice of friends I tried Peruna and the results have been highly satisfactory.

"At the end of four months I was completely cured."

Neglected catarrh becomes chronic. Having developed into the chronic stage, a longer and more persistent treatment will be required to cure it than if the disease were treated at the onset.

However, Peruna will bring relief, whether the catarrh is acute or chronic. If you are wise you will keep Peruna on hand and take a few doses at the first appearance of a cold or rough, and thus save yourself both suffering and expense.

Ask your Druggist for Free Peruna Almanac for 1907.

His Reason.

"Halfback Smashum says that football players should not be allowed to wear head protections."

"On what does he base his argument?"

"Why, he is out of the game with a lame foot, the result of kicking one of his opponents on the nose gear."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

As a Last Extreme.

Once a number of legal lights in Washington were gathered in the smoking room of a lawyers' club when the talk turned to a discussion of the veracity of lawyers. "The average man," remarked one disciple of Blackstone, "seems only too ready to assume we are all liars, a very unjust position, it seems to me. Do we not sometimes tell the truth?" he asked of his neighbor, a well known criminal lawyer.

"Certainly," promptly responded the latter. "We will do anything sometimes to win a case."

Same Thing.

Mrs. Scribbles—I believe the butcher is knocking at the door with his bill, Ferdinand. Scribbles—Tell him I am sorry, but I've just paid the rent and am short. Mrs. Scribbles—But it may be the landlord, Ferdy. Scribbles—Well, then tell him I'm sorry, but I've just paid the butcher and am short.—London Fun.

Making It Clear.

He—Will you marry me? She—No; I'm not a clergyman. He—Well, will you permit a clergyman to marry us? She—Yes; you to somebody else, and me to—well, somebody else.—London Tit-Bits.

Exhausting.

"They say early rising is very unhealthy."

"Of course. Many a woman has broken down her constitution getting her husband up in time for breakfast."

An Added Supply of Talk.

"I've had to get a new barber."

"Your old one getting careless?"

"No, but his baby is beginning to say cute things."

DARKEST TORONTO.

The Making of a Pauper Told By Sympathetic Writer.

The dictionary defines a pauper as "an indigent person supported by alms." Here in Toronto the meaning might be enlarged. A pauper may be a person who works hard for his living, says a writer in The Toronto News. He may earn nine dollars a week, and neither drink, gamble or otherwise waste his substance, and yet be a pauper. If he has seven children and a wife, and pays ten dollars a month for the four rooms they live in, he can scarcely help being a person who require alms. It is not that the rooms are a steam-heated flat, or on a scale out of ratio with his wage? They are—four certain rooms at such a rental—up a rickety old stairway, and cover, all told, about the space of an ordinary drawing-room. There is a departure from the perpendicular in the flooring, that, by the law of gravitation, encourages a congestion of occupants, furniture, and, most especially, any unwary visitors, towards the lower end of the incline. The walls carry out the same trend of architecture, and the ceilings harmonize. City water is obtained from a tap somewhere below. It is shared with ten other tenants of the premises, about twenty-five in number.

The certain man who lives in this particular abode earns nine dollars a week and has eight children. He is an honest, sturdy-looking chap, and his wife a bright, thrifty little creature, and it seems as though something is wrong somewhere that they have not enough to eat.

When you drop in to see them you fancy they are giving a children's party, and that all the neighborhood is present. The eldest child is only eleven, so that it is quite a task to arrange the others consequentively, for the one seven years old is taller than the one that is nine, and the one that is six is just the height exactly of the one that is eight. The two babies might be taken for twins. If it were not for a look in the woman's eyes, and a glimpse of some carefully hoarded bones and crusts, you would not come away with a choke in your throat. The youngsters have rounder cheeks and hardier, straighter little bodies than many a carefully-tended, scientifically-fed "only child" that we know. They have thatches of golden hair befitting cherubs. It seems all the greater pity they should be starved—bodily and morally.

Big families and big rents are not the only means of making a worker a pauper. There is another person who is one because she hasn't a kitchen stove. She is a poor, lonely old colored lady that reminds you of hoe cakes and stories of the Civil War, and laundries as well as you could wish. Unfortunately she is deaf as the proverbial post, and, more unfortunately, possessed of an uncertain temper addicted to sudden and violent squalls. They are harmless, but apt to prove somewhat terrifying to a timid employer, and her engagements consequently are few. Formerly she "took in" sufficient work to keep the bailiff and hunger from the door, but the infirmities of old age have gradually overtaken her stove, and nothing but a smoking, smouldering fire can be coaxed to boil the soap suds and heat the irons. A look at her arms convinces one that she is not lazy, and her unuttered invocations to all that is evil to descend upon the delapidated range were an ample testimony to the fact that she would rather have washing than charity. One could only bellow at her, by way of comfort, that perhaps Santa Claus would put a new one in her stocking at Christmas. If any tender-hearted friend of the working woman has a suggestion as to how this particular one might be aided, would they be kind enough to let us—or Miss McIntosh at the Mission Union on Hayter street—know it.

There is a woman who works in a down town restaurant from eight in the morning until eight at night, yet the only roof she could find to cover her head was the roof of a stable. You wade through mud and refuse to the ladder that leads to these filthy hayloft apartments, and wonder if Whitechapel could be very much worse. The rents would probably be lower. For these two bits of dark, damp cells she paid two dollars a week. Her wages at the restaurant were three. There was some small ground for clemency when one of her three children was arrested the other day for taking a drink from a neighbor's milk bottle. Through the efforts of the mission workers better quarters have been found, and the child brought back from the Shelter. But there is still only three dollars a week and left over scraps from the restaurant to shelter, clothe and feed four people. The husband eats opium and deserted some time ago. It is a fight against pretty stiff odds; and a woman's equipment for fighting at its best is frail. The weapons of a mother's love will not be laid down, but the arms that hold them are easily broken. A mother's arms were not meant to hold weapons.

Some people, even, possessed of the means to accede to the iniquitous rents, are wandering about homeless. No kind of decent quarters will be let to a family of children. A certain poor widow wandered not long ago up one street of the Ward and down another, across to the east end, and over again to the west, interviewing one obdurate landlord after another, in the vain endeavor to find an abiding place for herself and her six lusty offspring. Finally she was reduced to a gruesome strategem. She took the lusty six, led them to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, cast them within the gate, and repaired to the owner of a vacant cottage. And when he made question concerning her progeny, her eyes dropped, her countenance shrouded itself in gloom, and her voice quivered out the reply: "I have six in the graveyard, sir." She and the six are living in the house today.

Lives on Sweet Milk.

The case of Mrs. Joseph Mailloux of Stoney Point, Essex County, puzzles physicians. She is 64 years of age and has for the past 40 years lived wholly upon a diet of sweet milk, with a little sugar. She is unable to digest a particle of solid food, nevertheless, she is able to perform all the duties of a farmer's wife, is robust and is the mother of 11 children.

Must Have the Midway.

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—The directors of the Central Canadian Exhibition Association have decided that if the fair is to be a success financially, the "Midway" must again become a feature in the annual report just issued, they say "the cutting out of the Midway was a frost, the public seeming to prefer the street of tents, with their varied freaks to the high class vaudeville." The report intimates that the Midway will be again a feature of the fair next season.

In Harvest time the farmer gathers the fruits of his labors and lays by a portion for the winter—the time when all is going out and nothing coming in. This suggests the opportunity to all wage earners and others of taking advantage of their "harvest time"—that is the earning period—to lay by a portion of their incomes for "life's winter" when the earning power ceases and expenses continue.

THE FIRST DIRECTORY.

Quaint Olden Time New York Business and Social Addresses.

In the first directory of New York city, which was issued in 1786, there are some peculiar and quaint entries. For instance, in those days it was not uncommon for medical practitioners to sell drugs, as is shown by the following address, "Samuel Bredhurst, physician and apothecary, 64 Queen (now Pearl) street."

Clergymen of that period were exceedingly precise regarding their titles. Thus, "Abraham Bache, reverend of the Church of England, 20 Smith street," and "Jose Phelan, clergyman of the Church of Rome, 1 Beekman street."

Leon Rogers, tailor, of 8 Broadway, was described as a "breeches maker;" John Bean, 60 Broadway, as "surgeon and tooth puller;" S. Cryglen, 60 Cherry street, "punch and porter house;" Jo Delaplaine of 123 Queen street, "Quaker speaker;" D. Hitchcock, 89 Queen street, "house carpenter and undertaker;" John Hogland, 95 Queen street, "distiller, etc.;" Henry H. Kip, 25 King street, "inspector of pot and pearl ashes;" John Nitchie, 7 Garden street, "starch and hair powder maker;" Samuel B. Webb, 29 Lower Dock street, "gentleman."

In those days, too, there were a great many "gentlewomen" and a few "washwomen." All teachers were then addressed either as "schoolmasters" or "schoolmistresses." The retail dealers on Broadway and Wall and Queen streets called themselves "shopkeepers," the hotel men were "tavern keepers," and the policemen were "watchmen."

THE COLD WATER ORDEAL.

It Was Once an Important Test of Guilt or Innocence.

The cold water ordeal was one of the most important tests of guilt or innocence a few hundred years ago. If the accused floated, he was guilty; if he sank, he was innocent. In the twelfth century some altar vessels were stolen from the cathedral of Laon, and the learned Anselm proposed that a child from each parish and then a child from each household should be put to the test and so on until the guilty one was found. The proposition raised a great outcry, and the people clamored that those who had easiest access to the church be the first to undergo the ordeal.

This looked reasonable enough. So the bishop ordered the six priests of the cathedral to prepare for the test. In the meanwhile Anselm thought to try the experiment himself as a preliminary test. So he was bound and placed in a tub of water. To his great satisfaction as well as discomfort he promptly sank. The day arrived and with it an immense crowd to see the trial. The first priest sank, the second floated, the third sank, the fourth floated, the fifth sank, and then Anselm himself—wonder of wonders—in spite of experiments and protested innocence floated around with the buoyancy of an air bubble. While he was serving his sentence in prison Anselm found time to write a learned treatise on the "Inexpediency of the Water Ordeal and Its Failure In Many Cases."

New Zealand Hooking Birds.

The Poe honey eater is one of the commonest and at the same time handsomest of the New Zealand birds. The neck is ornamented with a frill of curly feathers of a greenish color with white centers, and the throat is adorned with a tuft of white feathers, which has gained for it the popular name of "parson bird," an appellation appropriate not only because of this decoration, but because of the resemblance of its peculiar attitudes when singing to the gesticulations indulged in by exuberant lecturers when wishing to drive home their points. The bird is an excellent mimic and can be taught to repeat short sentences with extraordinary clearness and also to whistle short songs quite as well as a parrot.

Queen Bess' Giant.

Queen Elizabeth had a Flemish porter who was over eight feet high and of great strength, and he was an extremely good natured man. Whenever he met any one who was abnormally tall he used to patronize him in a friendly sort of way, and on one occasion when he met at an inn two soldiers who were over six feet in height he said, "Come under my arms, my little fellows." And, taking them up, he walked down the room with them under his arms as if they had been children, much to their disgust.

Willing to Oblige.

Uncle (to little Bertie, aged five, who is being taken off to bed)—Good night, Bertie. Of course you always remember your aunts and uncles in your prayers? Bertie—Oh, yes, Uncle Felix! Shall I tell you what I say? I say, "God bless Aunty Kitty and make her thin, and God bless Uncle James and make him fat, and God bless Uncle Felix and"—which do you want to be, fat or thin?—Punch.

A Fast Train.

"Is this a fast train?" asked a passenger who was tired of looking at a station at which the train was not supposed to stop.

"Of course it is," was the conductor's reply.

"I thought so. Would you mind my getting out to see what it's fast to?"

Always the Same.

Tailor's Little Boy (walking with his father, sees a street roller)—What's that, papa? Tailor—The carpet's being newly ironed and pressed.—Figaro.

"Some men can take new furniture and make it look as if it was made a century ago," says a journalist. So can some children.

—Just in. A very fine lot of souvenir postal cards of all public places of interest. See them at Times Bookstore.

WANTED, A MAN

By Martha McCulloch-Williams

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

Orestes Magin stood twirling his red mustache, his eyes downcast, his heart beating like a trip hammer. Well might it beat fast! He had just asked Squire Malcom for his daughter. The squire was a choleric person at the best of times, but this morning his humor was fiendish. Orestes, of course, did not know that.

There was a reason for the mood, slight, to be sure, but any reason was sufficient when the time came for one of the old gentleman's rages. He was nearly as proud of his melon patch as of his daughter and felt it a personal insult if anybody else presumed to have melons earlier. Yet here were those miserable Dawsons, outlanders, city bred at that, sending him a melon fully ripe with their compliments and all because he had laughed at Dawson and his gardener when they had talked to him about a certain extra early kind.

Now, it would be quite ten days before he could return the sending.

"Want my girl, eh? Isn't there something else? Don't be mealy mouthed. Ask for my eyeteeth or the farm and all the money I've got in bank!" he roared at poor Orestes, who stood nervously shifting his feet. "By George, sir, I'm amazed at your moderation! Of course I've raised Edith just a-purpose to see her throw herself away. Don't interrupt me, sir! I know all you're going to say—you love her and don't care a bit that she'll have more money than any other girl around. I've heard that from better men than you are. I tell you, as I've told them, she's not for any such cattle. I want her myself yet awhile. When I give her up it's going to be to a man. Be off with you now, sir, and don't let me see you here again—not unless you're willing to swear there shall be no more of this nonsense."

"I'm going," Orestes said hoarsely, turning half about. "But what you call 'this nonsense' is going to last—with me and with Edith, too, I believe. We'll wait a year to fit you come to a better temper. But I'm going to see her across your gate every little while. I won't ever set foot on your land again, though, unless you ask it."

"Do you think I'll have such scandalous behavior?" the squire shouted. A hand fell over his lips. Edith had crept up behind him.

"Unless you will have it I shall go with Restes right straight off," she said, with a set of the mouth and a lowering of the brow that made of her her father's daughter. In suffocating anger that forbade speech the squire waved the pair away. Edith would not go. She held out her hand to Orestes, saying: "I'll be at the gate tonight. We'll settle things there." Then as the young fellow strode off she fetched cool water to bathe the squire's head, fanned him and made him sit under the grapevines, saying no word to him until he had come to a semblance of reason. When she saw his head droop thoughtfully and his cane make faint plunges into the turf she whispered: "Don't fret yourself sick, father. You know you can't really say anything against Restes. He's as good as he's ugly."

"He's a molly coddle, brought up at his granny's apron strings," the squire interrupted.

"Then I like molly coddles, and I've been brought up to know men," she said, running away to see about dinner. The squire looked after her with a scowl that softened at last to a sigh. He thought the world of her. Love was indeed at the bottom of his scorn for poor Orestes.

Fate had hard lines ahead of the squire. Edith went duly to the gate every Wednesday evening at sundown and spent an hour there in earnest talk with her sweetheart. Even the squire could not bring himself to ignore Orestes completely when they met, but he never went beyond the gruff nod all the three Sundays before he was laid by the heels. Obstinacy—of man and beast—brought that about. Blicky, the buggy mare, took occasion to balk just at the top of the lane hill, and, instead of humoring her by walking up what remained of the rise, her master sat tight and tried to make her pull him. The result was much backing, kicking and at last an upset vehicle and a broken leg for the squire with the prospect of spending a month at least flat on his back.

He roared and raged if by any chance Edith was out of his sight. For two weeks she did not see Orestes, but when the third Wednesday came she put on her bonnet with the air of a person not to be gainsaid. At the door of the squire's room she paused to say: "If you want anything, father, ring your bell—it's right there at hand—and Sally will come in. You'd better ring it every little while, else she'll go to sleep. I hate going, but there is no other way—not unless you"—

She stopped tentatively, her eyes wistful. The squire glared at her, his eyes full of fury. "So! This is your notion of duty," he said thickly. "Very well. Go your gait! I'm old and helpless, but there are a few things I can do."

"Yes, you can ring for Sally and scare her out of her wits," Edith said, trying to laugh as she walked away. At the doorstep she was tempted to go back, but the thought of Orestes waiting so patiently at the roadside was too much for her.

The squire lay for ten minutes tensely brooding, his face drawn and lined. Then he sat up and began recklessly to hitch himself out of bed. Within reach were the crutches which he was to essay tomorrow. Once he put out his hand to the bell, but drew it back, muttering: "No! By the Lord, I'll do it all myself! I'll show them they can't run over me—not quite." Then, still muttering and mumbling, he wrapped himself in his dressing gown, reached for the crutches and swayed and staggered across to the door.

The squire sat down heavily upon the second step of the broad stairway and began craftily going up backward. He lifted himself from tread to tread, then drew the crutches after him. By some whim he had kept his desk and all his papers in the big south chamber that had been his wife's. He was going there now. If he lived to come back from it, he would leave behind a new will, one that would come near to disinheriting his rebellious child. It would do more than that. It would set forth her rebellion, her neglect of him, in such fashion as to shame her, here where honor to parents was so vital a part of decency.

Painfully, with set teeth and agonized twinges, he won to his goal and sat in front of the opened desk. He found the will readily and tore it through angrily, then wrote upon the biggest fragment, "This is the work of a neglected father."

But all this had taken time, and dusk was falling rapidly.

He snatched up a fresh sheet and began to write, but the racing darkness was too quick for him. Before he was half through he stopped and looked about him, full of thwarted, impotent rage. He flung out his hand and struck it against a taper which had lain there so long he had forgotten it. By its feeble light he finished the new will and signed his name with a heavy, sprawling flourish.

Slowly, heavily, he got up and tried to steady himself while he put the crutches in place, but a sharp twinge made him stagger. He lost balance and fell prone, overturning the lighted taper and bringing it in contact with the contents of an open drawer. They blazed up merrily. In a wink the whole room was ablaze. As he lay helpless he saw the flames lick at the carvings on top of the desk. Then indeed the squire groaned aloud and dragged himself to the open window.

A wall of fire was behind him, before him a fall of almost twenty feet! To swing out and drop down below meant certain death even if he had strength for it. He shouted, but nothing came of it. Sally was really fast asleep in the cool back yard. He shut his eyes and thought of Edith's mother. In the great extremity there came a flash of comfort—when he was dead both wife would be burned, and Edith, his only child, would have everything. He ought to have been angry, but somehow he could not be. The mounting flames made his own wrath look poor and tame. He had given up and was waiting for the end when straight through the wall of fire there burst a slim figure, abested and blackened, but moving like the light itself. In a wink it had torn off the wet blankets protecting it, swathed the squire in them and was bearing him out to safety regardless of the flames that leaped at its own head. Once through the door other arms laid hold on him and helped to bear him down the stairs. When he came to himself fully he was stretched on the grass at a safe distance, while neighbors and farm folk fought the fire to a finish.

The squire lay very still, but kept his eyes on one slim scorched figure that led all the rest. When the danger was past he raised himself on his elbow and said, pointing to the slim leader: "Daughter, I take back everything. You've chosen a man."

Bancroft's Answer.

I have just heard a good mot—it is not more than a mot—of Bancroft, the American historian, who is now United States minister at Berlin. Lothus, our ambassador there, thought, I suppose, that the Yankee was a fair and would be an easy butt for the shafts of his peculiarly refined wit, so attacks him before a hundred listeners on some public occasion with "In God's name, Mr. Bancroft, why don't you Yankees send your representatives to court like Christians, in a proper uniform, instead of tarring them out all dressed in black, like so many undertakers?"

Whereto Bancroft replies: "Really, Lord Augustus, I am surprised that you, as ambassador of the queen of England and with those keen powers of penetration for which you are so generally distinguished, should have failed to perceive that we could not be more appropriately dressed than we are at European courts, where what we represent is the burial of monarchy."—From Letters of Lord Lytton.

HYOMEI CURES CATARRH

Costs Nothing Unless it Gives Relief—Sold Under Guarantee.

In many instances Hyomei has cured catarrh when the patient has suffered from childhood. Quite a few people in Peterborough, who have been unable for years to get a good night's sleep on account of the disagreeable tickling and dropping at the back of the throat, have obtained quick relief from a few treatments with Hyomei, and the continued use has made a complete and lasting cure.

There is no stomach dosing when one uses Hyomei. Simply breathe its medicated healing through the pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, and all catarrhal germs will be killed and the mucous membrance will be healed.

A complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, sufficient for at least two weeks treatment, making it one of the most economical methods of curing catarrh. If the outfit does not complete a cure, extra bottles of Hyomei, if needed, can be bought for 50 cents. Remember that there is no risk in buying Hyomei. It costs nothing unless it cures.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Write us today for a symptom blank, which we will send you free, together with treatise on Catarrh and how to cure it. VARICOCELE CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

CHAPTER I.

IT was the sort of window which was common in Paris about the end of the seventeenth century.

Inside the window was furnished with a broad bancal of brown stamped Spanish leather, where the family might recline and have an eye from behind the curtains on all that was going forward in the busy world beneath them. Two of them sat there now, a man and a woman, but their backs were turned to the spectacle and their faces to the large and richly furnished room. From time to time they stole a glance at each other, and their eyes told that they needed no other sight to make them happy.

Nor was it to be wondered at, for they were a well favored pair. She was very young, twenty at the most, with a face which was pale, indeed, and yet of a brilliant pallor, which was so clear and fresh and carried with it such a suggestion of purity and innocence that one would not wish its maiden grace to be marred by an intrusion of color. In her whole expression there was something quiet and subdued, which was accentuated by her simple dress of black taffeta. Such was Adele Catinat, the only daughter of the famous Huguenot cloth merchant.

But if her dress was somber it was atoned for by the magnificence of her companion. He was a man who might have been ten years her senior, with a keen soldier face, small well marked features, a carefully trimmed black mustache and a dark hazel eye which might harden to command a man or soften to supplicate a woman and be successful at either. Any Frenchman would have recognized his uniform as being that of an officer in the famous Blue guard of Louis XIV. A trim, dashing soldier he looked, with his curling black hair and well poised head. Such he had proved himself before now in the field, too, until the name of Amory de Catinat had become conspicuous among the thousands of the valiant lesser noblesse who had flocked into the service of the king.

They were first cousins, these two, and there was just sufficient resemblance in the clear cut features to recall the relationship. De Catinat was sprung from a noble Huguenot family, but, having lost his parents early, he had joined the army and had worked his way without influence and against all odds to his present position. His father's younger brother, however, finding every path to fortune barred to him through the persecution to which men of his faith were already subjected, had dropped the "de" which implied his noble descent and had taken to trade in the city of Paris, with such success that he was now one of the richest and most prominent citizens of the town.

"Tell me, Adele," said he, "why do you look troubled?"

"You leave me this evening."

"But only to return tomorrow."

"And must you really, really go tonight?"

"It would be as much as my commission is worth to be absent. Why, I am on duty tomorrow morning outside the king's bedroom! After chapel time Major de Brissac will take my place, and then I am free once more. But still that line upon your brow, dearest."

"I was wishing that father would return."

"And why? Are you so lonely, then?"

Her pale face lit up with a quick smile. "I shall not be lonely until tonight. But I am always uneasy when he is away. One hears so much new of the persecution of our poor brethren."

"Tut, my uncle can defy them."

"He has gone to the provost of the Mercer guild about this notice of the quartering of the dragoons."

"Ah, you have not told me of that."

"Here it is." She rose and took up a slip of blue paper with a red seal dangling from it which lay upon the table. His strong black brows knitted together as he glanced at it.

"Take notice," it ran, "that you, Theophile Catinat, cloth mercer of the Rue St. Martin, are hereby required to give shelter and rations to twenty men of the Languedoc Blue dragoons, under Captain Dalbert, until such time as you receive a further notice. [Signed] De Beaupre, commissioner of the king."

De Catinat knew well how this method of annoying Huguenots had been practiced all over France, but he had flattered himself that his own position at court would have insured his kinsman from such an outrage. He threw the paper down with an exclamation of anger.

"When do they come?"

"Father said tonight."

"Then they shall not be here long. Tomorrow I shall have an order to remove them. But the sun has sunk behind St. Martin's church, and I should already be upon my way."

"No, no; you must not go yet."

"I would that I could give you into your father's charge first, for I fear to leave you alone when these troopers may come. And yet no excuse will avail me if I am not at Versailles. But see; a horseman has stopped before the door. He is not in uniform. Perhaps he is a messenger."

The girl ran eagerly to the window and peered out.

"Ah!" she cried. "I had forgotten. It is the man from America. Father said that he would come today."

"The man from America!" repeated the soldier in a tone of surprise, and they both craned their necks from the window.

The horseman, a sturdy, broad shouldered young man, clean shaven and crop haired, turned his long, swarthy face and his bold features in their direction as he ran his eye over the front of the house. He had a soft brimmed gray hat of a shape which was strange to Parisian eyes, but his somber clothes and high boots were such as any citizen might have worn. Yet his general appearance was so unusual that a group of townsfolk had already assembled round him, staring with open mouth at his horse and himself. A battered gun with an extremely long barrel was fastened by the stock to his stirrup, while the muzzle stuck up into the air behind him. The rider, having satisfied himself as to the house, sprang lightly out of his saddle and, disengaging his gun, pushed his way unconcernedly through the gaping crowd and knocked loudly at the door.

His strong black brows knitted together as he glanced at it.

"Who is he, then?" asked De Catinat.

"A Canadian? I am almost one myself. I had as many friends on one side of the sea as on the other."

"Nay, he is from the Dauphin provinces, Amory. But he speaks our tongue. His mother was of our blood."

"And his name?"

"Is Amos—Amos—ah, those names! Yes, Green, that was it, Amos Green. His father and mine have done much trade together, and now his son, who, as I understand, has lived ever in the woods, is sent here to see something of men and cities."

The stranger entered and, having bowed to Adele, said to her companion, "Do I speak with my father's friend, M. Catinat?"

"No, monsieur," said the guardsman from the staircase, "my uncle is out, but I am Captain de Catinat, at your service, and here is Mlle. Catinat, who is your hostess."

"I am sorry my father is not here to welcome you, monsieur," she said; "but I do so very heartily in his place. Your room is above. Pierre will show it to you, if you wish."

"My room? For what?"

"Why, monsieur, to sleep in."

"And must I sleep in a room?"

De Catinat laughed at the gloomy face of the American. "You shall not sleep there if you do not wish," said he.

The other brightened at once, and stepped across to the farther window, which looked down upon the courtyard. "Ah!" he cried. "There is a beech tree there, mademoiselle, and if I might take my blanket out yonder I should like it better than any room."

"You are not from a town, then?" said De Catinat."

"My father lives in New York, two doors from the house of Peter Stuyvesant, of whom you must have heard. He is a very hardy man and he can do it, but I—even a few days of Albany or Schenectady are enough for me. My life has been in the woods."

"I am sure that my father would wish you to sleep where you like and to do what you like."

"I thank you, mademoiselle. Then I shall take my things out there, and I shall groom my horse."

"I will come with you," said De Catinat, "for I would have a word with you. Until tomorrow, then, Adele, farewell!"

The two young men passed downstairs together, and the guardsman followed the American out into the yard.

"You have had a long journey," he said. "Are you tired?"

"No; I am seldom tired."

"Remain with the lady, then, until her father comes back. I have to go and she might need a protector."

[To be continued]

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

DIRECTORS' MEETING REPORT

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3rd November, inst., duly confirmed by a resolution of the Board at a meeting held on the 20th November, inst., the following report was made by the Acting Secretary:—

The whole of our first issue has been subscribed in Western Canada; in fact, it was considerably over-applied for, and allotments have been made and Share Certificates issued for over $200,000 in the Capital Stock of the Company in Western Canada alone.

The Eastern issue, just made, is also going very rapidly, over $60,000 having already been subscribed, and applications for Shares are averaging over $3,000 daily.

I do not know that I can give you much further information than you already have, except to remark that the price of cattle, live weight, ranges in Western Canada from 2c to 2 1-2c per lb., with unlimited supplies available, against much higher prices in the United States.

When in the can it is worth from 16c to 30c per lb. and costs only the fraction of the value to put it there, cans and cases included.

The present price of canned beef is $12.50 per case of 4 dozen 2-lb. cans, 96 lbs. of beef being in each case, and as each of our Canneries will have a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, a slight calculation will demonstrate that substantial dividends may reasonably be expected.

The Company intends operating Canneries and Packing Houses in at least six of the principal cattle centers in Western Canada, two of which will be erected and equipped forthwith, and it will be observed that the Shareholders embrace a large percentage of the principal people in Western Canada, and though its membership the Company indirectly commands a large proportion of the cattle resources of Western Canada.

As considerable towns always arise in the vicinity of a large Packing and Canning industry (Packing Town Chicago, from a population of nothing 800,000 persons, and many others have from 2,000 to 5,000 inhabitants), this company should purchase at first cost one or two whole sections containing an area of one square mile each on the line of railroad with river frontage. This should be utilized for their factories and Canneries in each center and a considerable portion cut up into town lots and either leased or sold, the profits from which should largely supplement the Company's capital.

Judging from the results achieved by Packing Houses elsewhere it is probable that these shares can be subdivided within a year or so in order to avoid the appearance of excessive dividends being paid (say into 10 fully paid $100-shares for each Share held), and I may mention that one firm, amongst several others in the United States, I am informed, have subdivided their stock many times, until the original capital of $100,000 is now by subdivision nominally twenty millions (20,000,000), or, in other words, 200 Shares fully paid $100-Shares of bonus have been issued the holder of each original Share held, and for many years have paid, and are paying, substantial dividends upon that increased capitalisation, and the prospects with this Company are quite equal, both in quantity of cattle available and markets, to those of the Packing Houses on the other side of the line.

As an indication of the magnitude of operations involved in the meat-packing industry, it may be mentioned that one firm alone of the many operating in Chicago, and that by no means the largest, issued the following in their last annual report:—

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the Company's Offices on Friday last, the 23rd inst., Dr. J. Halpenny and Mr. J. McLaughlin, duly qualified foundation Shareholders, were elected Directors of the Company.

A Committee of three Directors was also appointed, with power to act, to inspect and investigate suitable localities for the immediate erection and equipment of the Company's Canneries and Packing Houses in Western Canada.

Plans of Cannery Buildings, with estimates of material and cost of erection, were also laid on the table.

Also details and estimates of the Plant, Machinery and Equipment for one Cannery having a capacity of 2,500 cases per day, considered by the meeting the Managing Director stating that with what funds the company has in hand, the first call upon the Shareholders would furnish all the capital needed for building and thoroughly equipping the first cannery of the Company with the modern and up-to-date machinery and equipment provided for in the estimates now before the meeting.

The estimates for the Company's first building unit provide for an erection 175 feet long, 60 feet wide, two stories of 15 feet each high.

The machinery equipment will be new and modern, thoroughly up-to-date, and will cost the Company about $15,000, and is to be ordered immediately the company's first site is chosen.

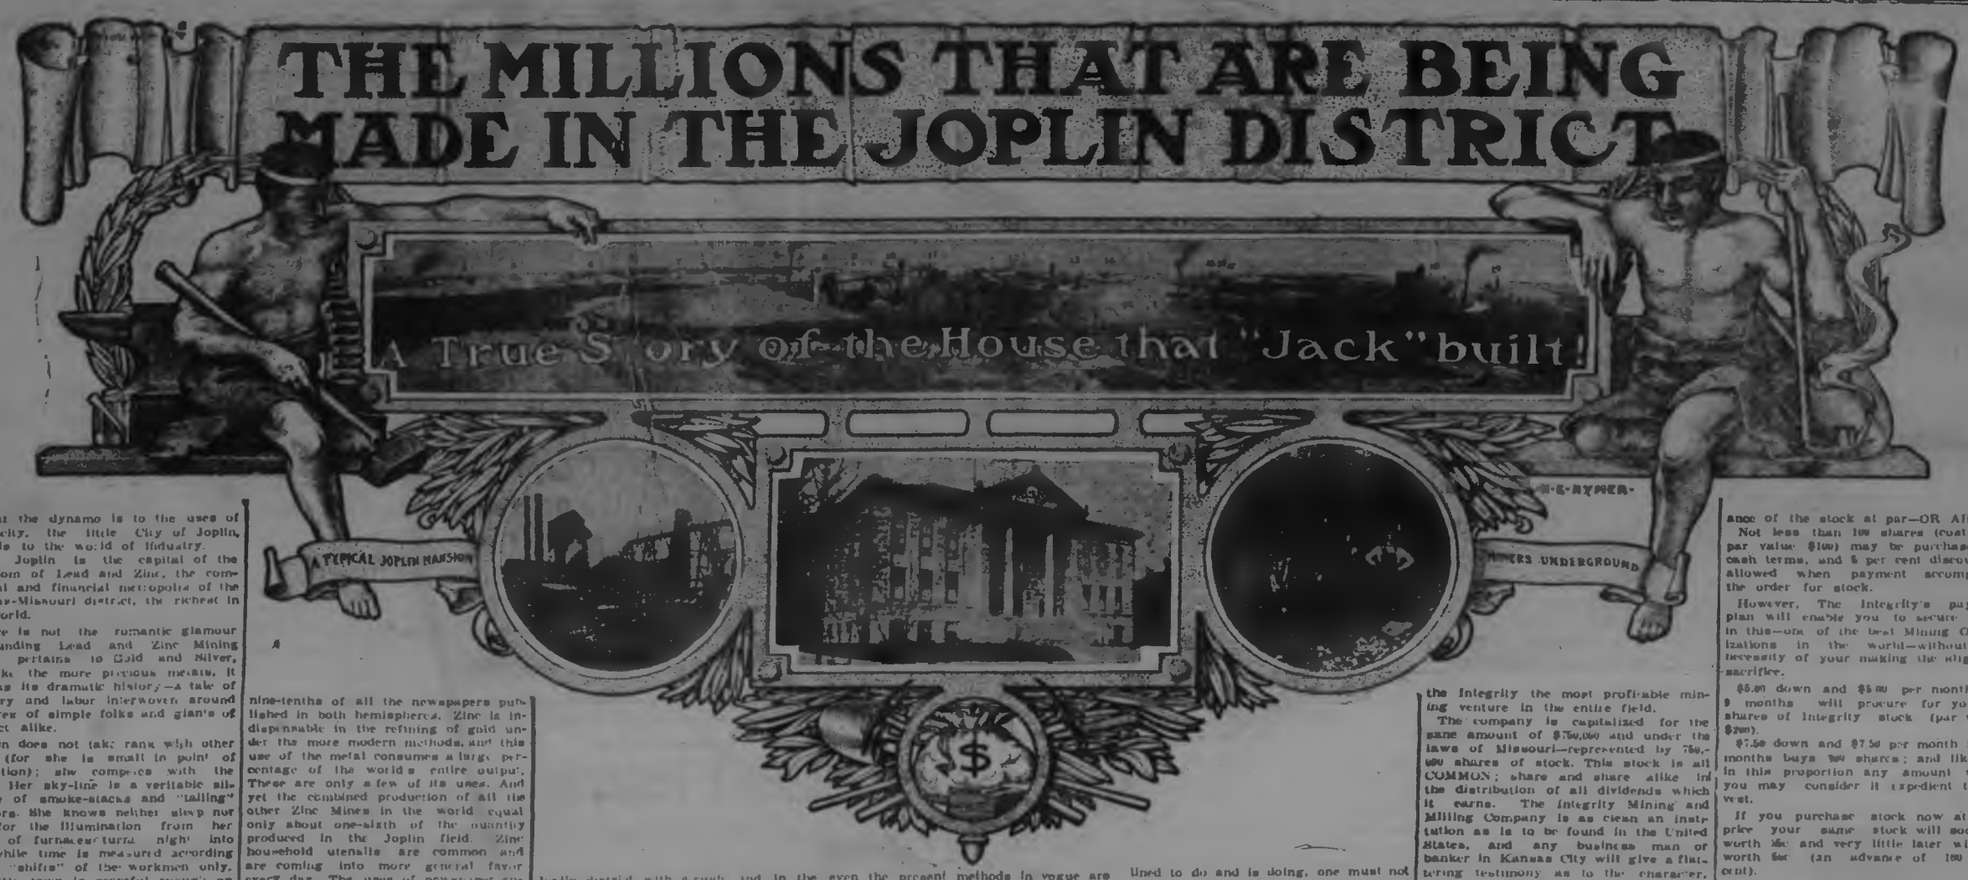
THE MILLIONS THAT ARE BEING MADE IN THE JOPLIN DISTRICT

A True Story of the House that "Jack" built



What the dynamo is to the uses of electricity, the little City of Joplin, Mo., is to the world of industry.

For Joplin is the capital of the Kingdom of Lead and Zinc, the commercial and financial metropolis of the Kansas-Missouri district, the richest in the world.

There is not the romantic glamour surrounding Lead and Zinc Mining which pertains to Gold and Silver, but like the more precious metals, it too has its dramatic history,—a tale of industry and labor interwoven around the lives of simple folks and giants of intellect alike.

Joplin does not take rank with other cities (for she is small in point of population); she competes with the world. Her sky-line is a veritable silhouette of smoke-stacks and "tailing" elevators. She knows neither sleep nor rest, for the illumination from her scores of furnaces turns night into day, while time is measured according to the "shifts" of the workmen only. The little town is peaceful enough on the surface; it is below its streets and alleys that the great pursuit of wealth goes on—that the wondrous, serious, all-absorbing work takes on the form of ceaseless activity. Here is the real City of Joplin; the houses and churches and avenues above are as a suburb merely when compared.

From out of the belly of the city fortune and fame are daily found—enough rich Lead and Zinc ore mined to fill thousands of trains of cars each year. And hundreds of acres of virgin land await the hand of man to bring an incalculable bounty of their great riches from earth to the light of day. Over 13,000,000 of dollars' worth of ore were mined in this district last year, and experts place the present year's production at a figure in excess of $15,000,000.

The known area of lands in the Joplin-Webb City district carrying Lead and Zinc ores is constantly being extended and each year more new mines are brought into production than there are old ones exhausted. Aside from that there is mineral enough in sight to keep every present miner in the district at work for fifty years, even if no more discoveries should be made. The real truth is that only the surface has been mined.

Joplin is already supplying the world with a goodly percentage of all the Lead it uses, and with 83 per cent. of the entire consumption of Zinc.

The output of Lead from the Joplin-Webb City-Carterville mines in the year alone is sufficient to equip and insulate all the 100,000 miles of telephone and telegraph wires in the world.

The Zinc produced in the Joplin field is used in the stereotying rooms of nine-tenths of all the newspapers published in both hemispheres. Zinc is indispensable in the refining of gold under the more modern methods, and this use of the metal consumes a large percentage of the world's entire output. These are only a few of its uses. And yet the combined production of all the other Zinc Mines in the world equal only about one-sixth of the quantity produced in the Joplin field. Zinc household utensils are common and are coming into more general favor every day. The uses of newspaper engraving demand Zinc alone, and the wondrous "Jack" is being found to have new and practical utility almost every day. The increasing demands, large though they be, for high-class "Jack" are not of a speculative character, either, but are due alone to natural conditions. Zinc roofing has assumed the magnitude of one of the large independent industries of the world—its popularity being international. The many new electrical appliances which are daily invented create additional demands for the metal.

Lead was first discovered in the district of Joplin in the year 1850—simultaneous with the discovery of gold in California. The first ore was shipped by wagon to Boonville, Mo., and thence to St. Louis Mining, however, was practically discontinued until the close of the Civil War.

Several years after work had been resumed in the Lead mines, the miners began to be greatly bothered by an apparently worthless mineral which the Lead miner considered in his way. That bothersome mineral was "Jack" unknown "Jack" was found in large quantities all over the district and was indiscriminately thrown away as so much trash by the busy miner.

Soon it became known that this curious by-product of the Lead mines was the very finest quality of "Jack" and buyers appeared offering from $2.00 to $3.00 a ton for it. The price advanced from $3.00 to $5.00, the miners being eager to part with the metal for a mess of pottage, figuratively speaking. Prices of Zinc ore, however, steadily advanced, and in the year 1905 reached the $60 a ton mark. The discovery of Zinc ore brought people into the Joplin district with a rush, and, in the words of a pioneer of the community, "They've been coming ever since."

While the average price of Lead per ton is somewhat higher than the price of Zinc, the Joplin district produces over ten times as much Zinc as Lead; it is, therefore, due to the marvelous Zinc output that Joplin has assumed her important position as the metropolis of the greatest mining district the world has ever known, and hence Joplin can fittingly be styled "The house that Jack built." It is indeed a creditable piece of architecture, outrivaling the proudest archievement of modern or mediæval masonry. Mere word-pictures cannot convey a true impression of the importance of the district to a person who has never visited it. All this, however, is merely a beginning, and Joplin is but in the tender years of its ascendency. The mining industry is in its crudest stage. It remains for brains to further build Joplin—rather than brawn.

"You people don't know how to mine," said a Western mine promoter recently when visiting the Joplin field. Incidentally, this man unconsciously, perhaps, struck the keynote of the situation. The fact is that large and rich deposits of low-grade ore are being developed in this great domain of "Jack"—also that there has been no deep mining in the district. No single mine in the entire field has been mined to a depth of 300 feet, and few indeed have gone as far as [illegible] feet. Yet the largest and richest bodies of ore lie at depths of from 300 to 400 feet—a fact that has been positively demonstrated.

Mining was here carried on for years in a desultory sort of way, and even the present methods in vogue are for the greater part primitive. The surface production (i.e. the ore found at a depth of from 40 to 150 feet) has been so rich and inexhaustible that owners of mines have had little disposition to go down to a depth of 300 to 400 feet, where the real fortunes lay.

Not only this, but local conditions have greatly retarded the growth of the mining industry—phenomenal even though it now is. Capital has oftimes been lacking, while the "leasing" system, which is largely prevalent, has tended to develop mining along a smaller scale. By this leasing system the owner of the ground lets the property out to the prospector under royalty, the latter paying the former a small percentage of the profits which accrue from this development and labor. Now it develops that a majority of these prospectors are lacking in means with which to develop these properties which they lease, so that many unusually rich mines are lying dormant for want of funds with which to equip them.

Taking advantage of this fact, a company has fully been formed, composed of business men, who are developing this incomparable field in a businesslike way confining their operations to the leasing of property to financially responsible prospectors, on the one hand, and buying and leasing other property from land-poor mine owners, on the other. The company develops this latter named land, sinking shafts, mining the ore and building mills as required. This plan constitutes the exact force which has so long been needed in the field. But in order to understand the magnitude of the work which this company has outlined to do and is doing, one must not confuse their mission with the ordinary pursuit of a mining enterprise. For while this company is truly a Mining and Milling Company of more than considerable importance, and while it is officered by men who are masters in the science of Lead and Zinc Mining, at the same time it must be considered that this organization is PRIMARILY ONE OF BRAINS.

This company—appropriately called the "Integrity"—aspires to the ultimate control of not one piece of mining property, but of such available claims lying within the district as may be deemed desirable. Those the company will fully develop under "royalty" system—a plan now under successful operation. This "royalty" system makes mining of this character an INVESTMENT of known value and fair dividends rather than speculation of unknown character, but with promise of rich rewards.

The company is certain to earn a goodly percentage. One mine alone may produce enough ore to enable the company to pay a 10 to 20 per cent. yearly dividend on its entire capital stock. Half a dozen such mines, collectively—each paying handsome profits—will yield a dividend of from 25 to 75 per cent., depending entirely upon the ability and the foresight of the men who are directing the company.

The Integrity Mining and Milling Company was conceived by practical and successful business men—and not by mining speculators. But these business men have called to their aid master miners, and this organization of brain and brawn and shrewdness are heartily united in the effort to make the Integrity the most profitable mining venture in the entire field.

The company is capitalized for the same amount of $750,000 and under the laws of Missouri—represented by 750,000 shares of stock. This stock is all COMMON; share and share alike in the distribution of all dividends which it earns. The Integrity Mining and Milling Company is as clean an institution as is to be found in the United States, and any business man or banker in Kansas City will give a flattering testimony as to the character, reputation and financial standing of its officers. The Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Norton Thayer, and the Vice President, Mr. George T. Moore, are both widely known in Eastern banking and financial circles.

President J. E. Myers is a thorough and practical mining developer and operator.

Mr. George T. Moore, Vice President, is also Vice President of the Weber Gas Engine Company of Kansas City.

Mr. Norton Thayer, Secretary-Treasurer, is the senior member of the Thayer-Moore Brokerage Company, one of the largest real estate and loan concerns in Kansas City.

The Integrity Mining and Milling Company control at present three proven mines—thirty acres, all told. These mines include "The Gladstone," "The Federal" and "The Dixie." (The picture above and to the left is a photographic reproduction of the mill situated on one of these mines—"The Federal;" the bird's-eye view shows "The Integrity's" "Gladstone" property in the foreground). The company publishes a magazine—"In the Rich Fields of Missouri"—which comprehensively describes these several properties and sets forth more fully the aims and purposes of the Integrity Mining and Milling Company.

The company has placed the first installment of stock on the market—100,000 shares, which is now selling at 75c (par value $1.00 per share). The second installment will be another 100,000 shares at 85c, and the third installment another 100,000 shares at 50c. After the third installment has been exhausted (i.e. after the first 300,000 shares have been realized on) the company expects to hold the balance of the stock at par—OR ABOVE.

Not less than 100 shares (cost $75, par value $100) may be purchased on cash terms, and 5 per cent discount is allowed when payment accompanies the order for stock.

However, The Integrity's payment plan will enable you to secure stock in the—one of the best Mining Organizations in the world—without the necessity of your making the slightest sacrifice.

$5.00 down and $5.00 per month for 9 months will procure for you 200 shares of Integrity stock (par value, $200).

$7.50 down and $7.50 per month for 9 months buys 300 shares; and likewise in this proportion any amount which you may consider it expedient to invest.

If you purchase stock now at this price your same stock will soon be worth 85c and very little later will be worth 50c (an advance of 100 per cent).

Every indication points to the probability of this stock being found at par within a twelvemonth. In the meantime, the investor should receive liberal dividends. However, the company does not urge its stock on the public, nor does it desire that anyone should buy until he or she has thoroughly investigated the matter from all standpoints. It has adopted this means of publicity in order to put itself in touch with a class of clean-cut investors and business men—people from out of all walks of life who are desirous of investing small or large sums in an institution whose aims and purposes are to make sound and substantial dividends out of a thoroughly legitimate undertaking.

You are invited to write and obtain a Free Copy of the book, "In the Rich Fields of Missouri"—a mere postal card request addressed to The Integrity Mining and Milling Company, 212 Heist Building, Kansas City, Mo., is all that is necessary. (Please address this office also in writing or in remitting for stock; make remittances to the Treasurer).

And if you are in the market for a high-class investment, better enter your subscription today, before the whole of this [illegible] stock is subscribed.

To invest in the capital stock of this company is to obtain a gilt-edged investment. And the personnel of the company—the unimpeachable characters and reputations of the men who are inviting you to invest your dollars with them—ought to be an absolute assurance of the sincerity of purpose underlying their efforts and a pledge of their ability to plant your money so that two dollars will spring forth where only one grew before.

Beware of Mercury

You May be Using this Harmful Drug and Not Know it.

A favorite method of administering this deleterious drug is in cathartic pills. Beware of "quick-result" articles, they may do more harm than good.

Drastic cathartics will weaken the strongest. With old people they are a positive menace to life.

Merely to restore normal bowel action and gently stimulate the liver is all that the wise physician recommends.

To keep the system pure and clean, nothing is so efficacious, as the vegetable pills of Dr. Hamilton, which are composed of such herbs as mandrake, butternut and dandelion; they contain not an atom of any substance that could injure even an infant.

By their certain action on the Liver Dr Hamilton's Pills cause bile to be secreted which forms the stimulus that moves the bowels; this is nature's own method and the best one.

Mr R. Hamlin, of French River, Ont., writes as follows; "I was inclined to bilious attacks and frequently was too ill to work. Most remedies purged and weakened my bowels, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills gently stimulated my liver, and by strengthening the stomach made a perfect cure. My health has been just splendid since I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills from your druggist or storekeeper. 25c per box or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

Central School Over-crowded

It is generally asserted that two rooms in the Central school are very much crowded. Mr. T. J. Wallace has over fifty students in his room, as compared with last year when there were only thirty-seven. This 50 children are in the space which previous to Christmas was not occupied by more than 37. It is high time the new Collegiate Institute were built to assist in reducing this over congestion.

An Ottawa despatch says:

"Mr R. R Hall, M.P., today introduced Mr. T H G. Denne, representing the American Cereal Co. Peterborough, to the Minister of Finance He asked for the removal of the duty on molasses, which enters into the manufacture of food products."

The Quaker Oats Co. use large quantities of molasses in the manufacture of stock food, which is known as Daisy and Molac Horse Food This food is one of the important branches of the product of the Quaker Oats Co., and molasses is purchased on the American side by the tank car load and brought over to Canada. At present the duty increases the cost of manufacture to a considerable extent and consequently reduces the profit.

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from liver or kidney heart disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or overbusy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up the treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but worse, on the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in [illegible]

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

Japan is Crowding Russia to the Wall

Demands of the Mikado Are Causing Serious Apprehensions to the Russian Government.

St. Petersburg, January 14.—The dispute between Russia and Japan is everywhere discussed with a measure of anxiety. The Russo-Japanese negotiations began at St. Petersburg apparently under favorable auspices, each party professing a desire to deal with outstanding questions in the spirit of give and take. Most questions were those which the Portsmouth treaty had referred to the good sense and good will of both governments, more particularly the conclusion of a commercial treaty and the definition of the fishing rights to be conferred upon Japanese subjects on the Pacific coast of Russia.

The Russian Government tackled the unpleasant task in the spirit of a self-respecting sportsman who having lost a certain sum regards it as a debt of honor, and proceeds to pay every penny, but naturally expects his obligations to extend no further than the debt incurred. Hence the negotiations opened well. Korea's international status being among the first topics dealt with Russia evinced a most liberal attitude, forgoing her right to question Japan's interpretations, the deductions and the practical consequences of which, were she animated by a desire of profiting by technical arguments in her favor, she might have done. Her motives were the desire of establishing a lasting peace and cultivating neighborly terms with her recent adversary. For the same reasons further exorbitant claims which the Mikado's Government advanced were regarded as mere desires, not as practical proposals, still less as irreducible demands.

JAPAN IS OBSTINATE.

This spirit it is claimed has not been appreciated. It is claimed that Japan insists upon inacceptable terms, the refusal of which by Russia may be arbitrarily interpreted as a refusal to observe the Portsmouth treaty, while their acceptance would trasform the peace between the two empires into the merest armistice. That is the present position and it is claimed that it deserves the attention of all of the sincere friends of peace.

In the first place then it appears that Japan requires the rivers Sungari and Amur to be opened to international navigation. Russia asking wherefore receives the answer: "Because the third clause of the Portsmouth treaty involves this act of self-denial and arrogates ipso facto the Aigun treaty by which China in 1858 conferred upon Russia the right of navigating those rivers, and also because last year Japan concluded a treaty with China by which the latter state throws open to her trade all commercial centers in the Amur and Sungari basin."

Here the Czar's jurisconsults join issue with the Japanese, pointing out that the Portsmouth treaty neither implies nor involves Russia's renunciation of special rights on the rivers aforesaid and can not possibly be taken to abrogate the treaty concluded by China and Russia because international treaties are annulled in a different way. In the third clause of the Portsmouth treaty the Russian Government declares that she possesses in Manchuria no territorial privileges or preferential or exceptional concessions calculated to infringe upon China's sovereign rights or incompatible with the principle of equality of rights.

NOT INCLUDED IN TREATY.

Now the authorization to navigate the Amur and the Sungari rivers is not included by that declaration because it is not a mining, railway or agraria privilege, neither does it encroach upon China's sovereign rights any more than the navigation of the Prussian stretch of the river Vistula by Russian steamers would be a violation of the King of Prussia's sovereign rights. Riverain peoples are accustomed to accord each other navigating privileges on the river systems that traverse both countries. These rights are the outcome of geographical situations and are bestowed only by neighbors upon each other. As the Portsmouth treaty could not abrogate the Aigun treaty, neither could last year's agreement between China and Japan abrogate it, and in neither document is the Aigun treaty mentioned. The first clause of the China-Japanese treaty provides for the opening of various Manchurian centers to international commerce. To this Russia has offered no objection, although the term for the evacuation has not yet expired. Nor does it affect the river navigation.

The complaints which are now being uttered, that Russia is slow to evacuate Manchuria and that the foreign powers are indifferent to her procrastination, are deeply to be regretted because, being utterly groundless, they betray a spirit which would not be conducive to such relations between the two countries as would guarantee lasting peace in the Far East. The truth is that it is conceded quite generally that Russia has withdrawn her troops with commendable promptitude, and so much more quickly than Japan that at present her military establishment there is numerically less, much less, than that of her neighbor; indeed, Japan has about twice as many soldiers as Russia there.

FISHERIES QUESTION SETTLED.

The dissatisfaction expressed at Russia's attitude on the question of the Saghalien fisheries is equally unfounded. So scrupulously has the Russian Government acted in this matter, and so anxious has she been not to prejudge any ostentatious point that even where she might reasonably farm out the fisheries to her own subjects on long leases, as heretofore, she has declined to grant leases for longer than a twelve month. On the other hand, she has not published complaints, although her subjects have not yet received either fishery rights in Southern Saghalien or the property which was seized there. And yet the tenth clause of the Portsmouth treaty completely guarantees those rights.

Outsiders who stand up for the open door and equal opportunities, have suggested that as a new conciliatory element of the discussion that Russia should give way on the subject of the navigation of the Sungari and Amur; accept Japan's contention and eschewing precedents, consider the Aigun treaty abrogated by the one sided interpretation put upon the Portsmouth treaty. But apart from the bitter humiliation involved, which would rankle in the minds of the Russians and hinder a lasting peace, this line of action would run counter to all diplomatic traditions and principles of international law. The renunciation of the right of navigating the Sungari and Dmur would, it is believed, be welcomed by all commercial nations, and it is even said that Russia will gladly discuss the matter along those lines, but cannot entertain it as a corollary of the Portsmouth treaty, nor a subject of negotiations with Japan. It is claimed that t would be as pertinent to demand that Odessa be declared a free port.

Though it has been repeatedly telegraphed out from St. Petersburg and from Tokio that arrangements have been made satisfactory to Russia and Japan, it may be taken for granted that arrangements can never be made satisfactory to the Russians.

Bigamist at the Local Carpet Works

It now seems that Peterborough contains the culmination of a multi-matrimonial drama, in which John Williams, a designer, employed at the Brinton Carpet Works for some six weeks during the latter part of 1906, was, according to the testimony of his first, the chief actor.

It would seem from correspondence received by Williams' boarding house keeper, sent by Williams first wife, who lives in Thompsonville, Conn., that Williams is a muchly married man. This woman states that she and Williams were married in Great Britain, and subsequently came to the United States. According to this correspondence Williams during a trip to Scotland, which outing he took advantage of to induce another woman to fly with him, as his wife. A photograph alleged to be that of wife No. two, accompanied the letters.

Suspicion as to Williams infidelity was first created in the mind of hips boarding house keeper, by the latter seeing a letter written by Williams addressed to wife No. one in Connecticut; these suspicions were endorsed by letters received here as above noted. Williams who got $30 a week at the carpet works, suddenly left with wife No. 2. The letters sent to Peterborough enquiring about Williams alleged that he used to get $40 a week in Thompsonville, and, when taking up with wife No. 2, drew all his savings and left his legitimate wife and family destitute and has never helped them since.

Mr. John Robertson's Funeral Today

Early Saturday morning one of Peterborough's most respected citizens, Mr. John Robertson passed away, at the age of 82 years, the cause being bronchitis. It seems that the late Mr. Robertson has failed since the death of his son, Wm. H. Robertson some few months ago.

The late Mr. Robertson was born in Scotland, and moved from Ireland 55 years ago, settling in South Monaghan. He moved to the city nine years ago.

The deceased who was a widower, was a member of the congregation of St. Paul's and a Liberal in politics.

His only surviving relatives are Misses Sarah Jane and Mary Ann, who live at the family residence, 397 Reid street.

The funeral will take place this morning at 11 o'clock from the family residence to the G.T.R. station, where the remains will be conveyed to Fraserville, and thence to the cemetery of the Centerville Presbyterian church for interment.

Mr. James Weyer Weds in Rochester

A wedding of local interest was celebrated last week in Rochester, when Mr. James Weyer, son of Mr. Wm. Weyer, 24 Weller street, entered the grand army of benedicts. Mr. Weyer who is a member of St. Peter's cathedral choir, was presented by that body with a very handsome clock.

The happy couple arrive in the city Saturday morning and have taken up their residence on Weller street.

The Rochester Post-Express of Thursday had the following:—

"Miss Agnes Majeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Majeau, of 9 Waverely place, was married to James Weyer of Peterborough, yesterday morning at Immaculate Conception church, by Rev. A. M. O'Neil. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Brabant, and the groomsman was Harry Majeau. The gift of the groom to the bridesmaid was a pearl set scarf pin and the bride gave her a crescent brooch set with pearls. The couple left yesterday for Toronto, where they will spend their honeymoon and then go on to Peterborough, where their home has been prepared."

OBJECTION IS TAKEN

To the Resolution Regarding Closing of Bars.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—A letter to the Review of the 9th, signed by Rev. J. G. Lewis, on behalf of the Ministerial Association eulogises License Inspector Stewart, and expresses the Association's satisfaction as to the efficient way in which the law is being enforced in regard to the closing of the bar-rooms in the city. It looks to me as if Mr. Stewart himself must have supplied the information to the Association. The public, I think, fail to see where he has done anything but furnish hot air. Look at the police court proceedings lately! Ask Mr. George Cochrane to give his views as to how the law is being enforced. What about election day, Saturday nights and Sundays? Joseph is evidently short-sighted in at least one way.

Yours faithfully,
A LAW OBSERVER.

The Newfoundland Trouble.

London, Jan. 12.—Prof. Goldwin Smith, writing in the Manchester Guardian, says that Newfoundland's quarrel with the British Government is serious, and arises from the continuance of a false relation between the Mother Country and her adult offspring. Indifference or carelessness with regard to this matter, he states, cannot, with any show of justice, be imputed to the British Government.

GUN-A-NOOT IS DEFIANT NOW

His Squaw Has Died, and He Says He Will Not be Taken Alive

MURDERER OF SKEENA

With Iron in His Soul, Warrior Will Give Police a Great Chase.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 13. — The pretty wife of Simon Gun-a-Noot, the Indian murderer of the Skeena, is dead. Gun-a-Noot says he will never be taken alive.

This is the latest story from the northern wilds, where Simon has been hiding for months. After killing two men on the trail near Hazelton last year, Simon took his wife and led the police a merry and an ineffectual chase across the northern land for hundreds of miles. The chase has been postponed to spring. Then it will again be taken up, but it is not so certain that Simon will ever be captured.

Of all the hunters of the northern tribes of the interior, Simon is easily the master. He knows the country for hundreds of miles to the north and east of Hazelton, as well as a Vancouver real estate agent knows the topography of Grandview. Then, by his wife, he is related to the Stickine Indians, and they, as well as his own people, help him. Last year, burdened by the care of a sick wife and his every move hampered, he did not appear to have much trouble to dodge the police.

Everyone in the North sympathises with Gun-a-Noot. People of Hazelton declare that a white man would have killed the two ruffians who debauched his wife Kag before Simon did the job.

Only the day before the killing the two openly boasted of having kidnapped Simon's wife from his tepee during his absence and carried her, unwilling and fighting to their house. Suffering from the hardships of the trail, the woman became consumptive, and a few days ago she died.

With the iron in his soul, this Indian hunter now declares that he will give the police the greatest chase in the history of the North. There is little prospect of him being arrested this winter, although he is said to be living openly with his tribesmen. But in the winter he could disappear at a moment's notice as completely as if the earth had swallowed him up.

Rev. W. R. Tandy Has Passed Away

During the evening service in St. John's church last night, Rev. Canon Davidson announced the sad intelligence that the Rev. W. R. Tandy, once curate of St. John's, had passed away Saturday night at his mother's home in Kingston, the cause being tuberculelosis.

The late Mr. Tandy who was unmarried, grew up as a member of the Methodist Church, but some years ago joined the Church of England, and studied for the ministry. Previous to coming to Peterborough the deceased had been rector at Havelock, but was compelled by ill-health to give up his parish.

For four weeks he occupied the position of curate at St. John's church, but failing health again intervened.

POLICE NEWS

Daily Happenings in Court Room and Station.

One lonely tug aged 52 years occupied the Hotel des Cops over Sunday. He will face the magisterial music this morning.

Percy Stubbs, who at Friday's police court pleaded guilty to having dallied with the foolish water, and was warned to go hence to Lindsay, whence he came to test Peterborough corn-juice, with disastrous results, got a job on Saturday morning with a farmer. Percy celebrated his job by getting on another tootlet, and was once more gathered in. As he had got a job, however, the magistrate allowed him to go. Percy can now dip his bill into the salt pond, instead of tackling hard stuff.

Grand Trunk Pacific Rushing Work, and Expect to Reach Town This Year.

Winnipeg, Jan. 12.—The officials of the Grand Trunk Pacific in the West are now busily engaged in arranging the details of work which is to be accomplished next season, and even at the present time the work in some of the cuts is in progress. Every detail necessary for the successful carrying out of a record year's building in 1907 is being made, and the contractors say they will gather if Winnipeg 20,000 good strong men to be distributed at various points along the line of survey. The first section west from Winnipeg, which extends from Portage la Prairie to Edmonton, the first 100 miles of grade, has been completed, and 35 miles of steel has been laid. The extremely cold weather and deep snow has necessarily put a stop to this section of the work, but everything is in readiness to take it up at the earliest possible date, and it is confidently asserted by the company that the steel will be at Saskatoon early next summer. The necessary material, with the exception of ties, is now on the ground in the Portage yards, which comprise five miles of track; requisitions have been sent in for three times the present equipment of motive power, boarding cars, office and telegraph cars and flat and dump cars. Work is also in progress on some of the branch lines.

West from Saskatchewan grading is in progress as far as Edmonton, and even yet good progress is being made. The same applies in the rock country east of Winnipeg, where every available man is being kept hard at work. Good workmen are scarce, and this has delayed operations to a considerable extent, but the progress is considered to be most satisfactory.

No Decision as to Grain Conspiracy

Magistrate Daly Makes No Finding But Sends Defendants on for Trial.

Winnipeg, Jan. 12.—One of the most interesting and important cases that has ever been tried in the courts of this Province, and certainly one that has been far-reaching in its effects, was passed upon yesterday.

The case is that brought by D. W. McQuaig, president of the Grain Growers' Association, against C. North-West Grain Dealers' Association, and represented the elevator interests during the time that their pooling arrangements were in force. J. McHugh and John Love, president of the Grain Exchange. The complaint, which charged them with conspiracy to restrain trade and combining to lessen competition in the grain business, arose out of evidence taken by the Royal Grain Commission.

Hon. T. Mayne Daly, stipendiary magistrate for the city of Winnipeg, last night delivered a careful summing up and finding in the case. Under section 501 of the Criminal Code, Mr. Daly announced that he did not find the defendants either guilty or innocent of conspiracy to restrain or injured trade and commerce, but referred the case to a higher court for further reference, and admitted them to bail in their own recognizances of $1,000 each and two securities of $500.

His worship made this decision on account of the high standing in the community of both the informant and the accused, and also realizing the tremendous interests each had at stake in the matter namely, the grain producers of the west on the one side, and the most important grain market in Canada on the other.

Pilgrimage of Peace

Rome, Jan. 14.—William T. Stead, in his international peace propaganda, proposes an international pilgrimage of peace, in which notabilities from all over the world would take part, to start from the United States for the Hague, by way of London, Paris and Rome, and to arrive at the Netherlands capital at the time the second peace conference assembles there.

Mr. Stead says he believes that such a pilgrimage would exercise the greatest moral influence ever known.

FOOD OF ACTRESS

Knew How to Get Well

A young lady well known to the theater-goers of the land, gives an interesting experience. Writing from Chicago, she says;

"In December 1902, I was laid up with a sick spell, at the expiration I was very weak, nervous and extremely delicate, so much so that when I attempted to resume rehearsals such a faintness seized me that I was compelled to stop.

"My strength returned very slowly and I spent my time in lying down and worrying, till my mother persuaded me to try Grape-Nuts food for my breakfast. I confess I had but little hope that it would do me any good, but made up my mind to give it a good fair trial.

"I am more than glad that I did. It quickly brought back my lost strength, made my nerves strong and healthy again, and gave me increased health and weight. I always carry it with me now, as I find that some hotels do not keep it. Grape-Nuts food has emphatically demonstrated itself a blessing for health, strength, brain and nerves, in my case." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason."

Secretary of State Root to Visit Ottawa

Will Be the Guest of Earl Grey on Saturday and Sunday Next---Purely Social, is the Announcement.

Washington, Jan. 13. — Secretary of State Root announced yesterday that he will leave on Jan. 17 for Ottawa, Canada, where he will be the guest of Earl Grey, governor-general of Canada. Mr. Root will be accompanied by Mrs. Root and will arrive in Ottawa on Saturday, Jan. 19, and remain over Sunday.

Secretary Root said that his visit is purely social and has nothing whatever to do with the international treaty now pending between Great Britain and the United States.

PLEASES BRITAIN.

London, Jan. 13.—The news that Secretary Root is about to visit the Governor-General of Canada, Earl Grey at Ottawa, has elicited the most favorable comment from officials and the British press.

The opinion expressed is that the visit foreshadows better relations between the United States and Canada, which were considerably improved as the result of the governor-general's tour of the United States last year.

Great Britain is anxious for a final settlement of all outstanding questions, most of which permit of an early agreement, but the sealing and the Newfoundland fisheries questions

White it is stated that Mr. Root's visit is purely one of courtesy, the impression here is that it will afford an opportunity to go over these and other long-pending controversies between Canada and the United States, and perhaps smooth the way for a general agreement.

OFFICIALLY ANNOUCED.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—It is officially announced from government house that Secretary of State Elihu Root and his wife and daughter will be the guests of their excellencies from Jan. 19 to 22. Mr. Root, being in charge of the foreign affairs of the United States, it is believed not unlikely that he may use his time in Ottawa to bring about a final settlement of the various points of difference between the two countries, including the question of waterways now practically agreed upon by the international commission.

A HINT.

London, Jan. 13.—The Globe, referring to the coming visit of Secretary Root to Earl Grey, says if Earl Grey can convince Mr. Root that the time has come when the British government will no bow in graceful assent to every American demand, as a token of brotherly love, things are likely to get settled with more regard for justice and with fewer falsetto congratulations than before.

Separation Agreement Between the Marlboro's

Duke Will Have Sufficient Funds Left to Live in a Flat.

New York, Jan. 14.—The World correspondent hears that under the separation agreement reached between the Marlboroughs the duke settles on their children the $100,000 settled on him by the duchess' father, W. K. Vanderbilt at the marriage. This will accumulate for them during their minority, less the cost of their living and education.

The duke, after maintaining Blenheim, which he determined to do as a matter of pride, in order to prove that his maintenance was not dependent on the duchess' fortune, will have about $40,000 income left, and he is now looking for a good but not costly flat in Mayfair for a town residence.

King Edward, through the Marquess of Lansdowne, when the duchess visited the Lansdownes at Bowood before Christmas, pressed the duchess to avoid any open separation, but to follow the example of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, and agree merely to live apart and divide the children's time between the parents.

The duke had already agreed, and it was after the duchess left Bowood that he and the duchess met in Paris in the presence of her mother. The idea then was that in a few days the children were to join the duchess in Paris and go with her cruising on the Valiant, her father's yacht, but the duke informed her that Lord Ivor, their younger son, was ill with measles and influenza at Blenheim, whereupon she returned immediately to London. Though she did not go to Blenheim to see the child, she receives constant information of his condition.

Sunderland House, which she had dismantled before her departure, has now been re-opened and the children will join her for a trip abroad when the younger boy is convalescent.

The duchess has been mum about more since her return from Paris, it having been impressed upon her that she was damaging her position by withdrawing from the public gaze. Her landaulet is now seen in Bond street every day.

Wealthy Philadelphian Mysteriously Missing

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 13.—Frank X. Delone, a wealthy clubman and former financial manager for a big cloth ing house in this city, disappeared after a ride through Fairmount Park on horse-back on Wednesday, and has not been found.

Delone, who is a son of Louis Delone, a director of the Merchants' National Bank of Harrisburg, is a member of the Merion Cricket and Philadelphia Art clubs, and a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He has a summer home at Haverford, but lived at the Maryland apartments, from where he started on Wednesday afternoon for a ride in the park.

About eight o'clock his horse was found on Wissahickon drive on the extreme border of the city. There was nothing to indicate that the horse had thrown his rider, or that he had been ridden hard. His brother Louis waited in vain for tidings of him, and to-night asked the police to search Fairmount Park and the entire city.

The missing man was a good horseman, and his brother will not believe he was thrown from his mount. He always carried a large sum of money, and it is feared he may have been waylaid.

Hindoos in the West Feel Cold Weather

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 14.—The present cold snap has struck the poor Hindus about the city with even greater force than the ordinary residents. As a result, they have been driven to begging for food and clothing, and several are now the unwilling guests of Chief Chisholm at the city jail.

Chief Chisholm reported the other morning that pleas of the begging by the Hindus were coming in from numerous quarters, and it was his intention to take firm measures, and arrest any who were unable to provide themselves with support. On a case being made out in police court, the end of the immigration authorities will be sought to deport the parties, the immigration Act stating that if at any time within two years after their arrival immigrants become a charge on the community, their deportation may be effected.

Mount Pleasant was swarming yesterday with a band of Hindus who did their work methodically. House-to-house visitation was their plan, and hardly a residence was missed. Usually the firm deputation asked for clothing and the more for money. In general the public responded to their appeals.

Canadian Actor Weds a Divorced Woman

St. Thomas, Jan. 14.—The following refers to the well-known St. Thomas actor, son of Thomas Robertson, M.C.R. train-despatcher;

Miss Josephine Lovett, who appears as Shirley Rossmore in "The Lion and the Mouse" road company, and John Stuart Robertson who impersonates the Hon. Ewarrow Hagley in the same play, were married at the home of the Rev. H. R. Shipman, in Atlanta, Ga., just before midnight New Year's Eve. The couple had intended to wait until they returned to New York, but just before the curtain rose on Tuesday night, decided to get married immediately after the performance. The actress was divorced from her first husband in Manhattan, a week ago. She formerly appeared with Andrew Mack as his leading woman.

Home Happy Until Typhoid Marred It

Windsor, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Bertie Little of Walkerville and her husband, John Little, appeared before Magistrate Bartlett the other morning to try to settle a difference existing between them. Mrs. Little, who is a very attractive young woman, charges her husband with non-support of herself and child.

Little is employed on the construction gang of the bridge works in Walkerville, making good wages, although his employment is not steady. About two months ago he was taken ill with typhoid fever, and hovered between life and death for some time. It is alleged that at this critical period the wife would not do anything to help her sick husband, but went across the river.

The husband recovered from his illness but a short time ago, and owed a large hospital and board bill.

In court the other morning it was said that he is willing to pay his wife $4 per week as soon as he is able, but not at once, as he is nearly $200 in debt at the present time.

G. J. Leggatt, who appeared for Mrs. Little, wanted the husband to make provision at once for his wife. As an agreement could not be reached by the parties, a Summons will be issued in the near future, at which case called, and the case further probed.

About Female Ailments

Not Hard to Cure if Properly and Promptly Treated.

Ask any intelligent physician what causes nine-tenths of all female disease, even including anaemia, nervousness and consumption.

Back comes the answer quick and sharp "Constipated Bowels."

There is scarcely a single female ailment that had not in its earlier stages symptoms of constipation.

How much better off the system is without the poisonous accummulations caused by constipation. How much clearer the complexion, how much fresher one feels when the system is pure and clean.

Think it over yourself.

Isn't it apparent that a bowel regulator and liver stimulant like Dr. Hamilton's Pills is sure to do good?

Gay spirits, good looks and happy health have returned to many a sick woman through Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Better get a few boxes today; purely vegetable, free from injurious ingredients, healthful and antiseptic. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will assist you in a thousand ways.

As delay is always dangerous, your plain duty is to follow the example of Mrs. F. Rowe, who sends the following letter from Gravels, Port Au Port, Newfoundland; "Four years ago I got kidney and bladder trouble. I thought it was 'female trouble' and treated it accordingly. Even my doctor in St. John said it was so.

"In reading about Dr. Hamilton's Pills I noticed symptoms like mine and I bought six boxes. These pills went right to work on my sick condition and helped me from the first. My supposed female trouble, which was bladder disease, was cured. My weight increased eight pounds and never before was I as well as today. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 14, 1907

"PAY 'EM!

Pay what? Those little bills. Money is tight. Loosen it. Don't make it any tighter by hanging on to what belongs to the people whom you owe. Everybody who is in business wants and needs money the first of the year. They all have bills to pay then. Even a little money will go a great way toward settling up accounts. In a minstrel show once one of the end men said to the man next to him, "I believe I owe you half a dollar, don't I?" The man next graciously and gratefully admitted that he believed he did. He paid him, and the half dollar was passed in payment from one man to another all round the semicircle, and then passed by the other end man to the end man who originally started it. So everybody was paid, and the first man who paid got his money back.

That's the way the money goes when it is started right and used right. Start your part of it, and let your breast swell proudly with the consciousness that you are an honest man and a general benefactor.

GIANT LOCOMOTIVES

Breaking records in building heavy locomotives has recently become almost a mania. For more than two years the Mallet compound of the Baltimore and Ohio was the undisputed giant, but it was displaced by the locomotives of the same type for the Great Northern built last summer. These in turn give way to the Erie compounds to be turned out next spring. Almost simultaneously with the announcement of the contract for building the Erie locomotives comes the news that the Pennsylvania has designed a new class of consolidation freight locomotives which will be heavier by 20,000 pounds than any other engines on that road of heavy motive power. The heaviest Prairie type locomotives yet built was delivered to the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe a few weeks ago.

This trend toward heavy locomotives is not the result of competition by the builders to hold the record for heavy engines. They would prefer to turn out smaller locomotives and more of them, for their shops are not as well adapted to the heavier work. The railroads are making the demands; the builders are simply carrying out the wishes of their customers. The saving in time and in wages by doubling the number of cars in a train is a strong incentive for using the heavier power.

What is going to be the result in other ways of using the heaviest types of locomotives now being turned out? Not a single railroad in the country has shops or roundhouses big enough to hold them. They cannot be turned on any turntable in existence. Many, if not most, of the bridges are overloaded when they run over them—perhaps not at an immediately dangerous point, but certainly beyond the assumed loads for which they were designed. When they exert their maximum power, the cars and draft attachments in the train are strained to the breaking point. In case of a wreck or derailment no wrecking equipment could put them on the track or clear them off the track possibly for days after the accident. The present track structure was not designed for carrying such loads; it is with difficulty that it can be made to stand up under much less severe conditions. Yards and terminal facilities are inadequate to care for the trains these heavy engines can and should haul.

Officially Dead—Yet Writing.

The Scotsman publishes the following amusing letter, signed "W. A. C." "On the monument of the Scottish Horse my full name and regimental number appear as having died of disease in South Africa. When I observed my name among the fallen in the papers at the time I wrote to the regiment's headquarters for particulars anent my demise as if a friend of mine. By return I received my birth-place, age, date of enlistment, etc., and that I had died of disease at Carlonia, South Africa, on the 13th of January, 1902. I immediately replied, making myself known, but I suppose it is against military rules to write to men who are officially dead, as I have never received any reply. Like Brady, I can decorate my own monument both in Edinburgh and Johannesburg, but have also been unable to get either compensation or pension, though invalided home at the end of the war, and discharged as 'unfit for further service,' after nearly two years in the field. The most amusing part of the whole thing is that I am both officially alive and dead. Previous to joining the Scottish Horse, I served sixteen months in the Scottish Sharpshooters. Being born in Wales, on joining the Scottish Horse, rather than lose an old hand (the rule being that you must be born in Scotland) the lie was put into my mouth to that effect. Hence I am very much alive as an old Sharpshooter, but dead and buried in South Africa at a place I never was at as a Scottish Horse trooper."

Last Senior Wrangler.

The Senior Wrangler will soon be an institution of the past. There is to be a senior wrangler and a "wooden spoon" for one more year, and then they will be known no more at Cambridge, except as a tradition.

Such was the outcome of the voting which took place in the Senate House at Cambridge the other afternoon upon the twelve resolutions embodying the salient changes proposed by the special board for mathematics to be made in the mathematical tripos. There was a big muster of members of the Senate. In the gallery ladies and undergraduates were both well represented, and looked down on a scene which was decidedly exciting.

The cards having been counted, amid a sudden hush the figures were declared as follows:—Placet, 201; non-placet, 187. There was much more voting to be done, but the placets had won, and their numbers increased, while those of their opponents diminished.

The order of merit was abolished by 206 to 169, great cheering attending the announcement.

Exception.

Myer—Most people consider young Pyker rather fast, do they not?

Gyer—Well, his tailor thinks he's the slowest ever.

Not Noiseless.

"Is his noiseless powder a success?"
"Not from the reports I've heard."

Didn't Need to Tell.

"Bobbie, I hope you didn't tell you mother that you saw me kissing Alsie last night."

"Nope. I didn't have to. Sis woked us all up at midnight when you sat home and told it herself."

If you wish to remove avarice, you must remove its mother, luxury.—Clergy.

CATARRH

To prove my confidence in my remedy I make my positive guarantee that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured. I am furnishing patients through druggists a small size Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical test of any article of real, genuine merit. But that article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn. Rather than advertise it, Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white, healing antiseptic balm, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 50c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like Potroleum, imported for Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means also use internally, Dr Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a bloating, belching, biliousness, bad taste, generally call for Dr Shoop's Restorative.

For uncomplicated catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however need be used but

CHAPTER IV.

It was the morning after the guardsman had returned to his duties. Eight o'clock had struck on the great clock of Versailles, and it was almost time for the monarch to rise. Servants, with clothes thrown over their arms, hustled down the passage which led to the antechamber. The young officer, who had been looking wistfully out of the window at some courtiers who were laughing and chatting on the terraces, turned sharply upon his heel and strode over to the white and gold door of the royal bedroom.

He had hardly taken his stand there before the handle was very gently turned from within, the door revolved noiselessly upon its hinges and a man slid silently through the aperture, closing it again behind him.

"Hush!" said he, with his finger to his thin, precise lips, while his whole clean shaven face and high arched brows were an entreaty and a warning. "The king still sleeps."

The words were whispered from one to another among the group who had assembled outside the door. The speaker, who was M. Bontems, head valet-de-chambre, gave a sign to the officer of the guard and led him into the window alcove from which he had lately come.

"Good morning, Captain de Catinat. Who commands at the main guard?"

"Major de Brissac."

"And you will be here?"

"For four hours I attend the king."

"Very good. He gave me some instruction for the officer of the guard. He bade me to say that M. de Vivonne was not to be admitted to the grand lever. You are to tell him so."

"I shall do so."

"Then, should a note come from her—you understand me, the new one"—

"Mme. de Maintenon?"

"Precisely. But it is more discreet not to mention names. Should she send a note, you will take it and deliver it quietly when the king gives you an opportunity."

"It shall be done."

"But if the other should come, as is possible enough—the other, you understand me, the former"—

"Mme. de Montespan."

"Ah, that soldierly tongue of yours, captain! Should she come, I say, you will gently bar her way, with courteous words, you understand, but on no account is she to be permitted to enter the royal room."

"Very good, Bontems."

"And now we have but three minutes." He strode through the rapidly increasing group of people in the corridor with an air of proud humility, as befitted a man who, if he was a valet, was at least the king of valets by being the valet of the king. Close by the door stood a line of footmen resplendent in their powdered wigs, red plush coats and silver shoulder knots. He turned the handle once more and slipped into the darkened room.

It was a large, square apartment, with two high windows upon the further side, curtained across with priceless velvet hangings. In one corner a narrow couch with a rug thrown across it showed where the faithful Bontems had spent the night.

In the very center of the chamber there stood a large four post bed, with curtains of Gobelin tapestry looped back from the pillow. A square of polished rails surrounded it, leaving a space some five feet in width all round between the inclosure and the bedside.

As Bontems passed noiselessly across the room, his feet sinking into the mosslike carpet, there was the heavy, close smell of sleep in the air, and he could hear the long, thin breathing of the sleeper. He passed through the opening in the rails and stood, watch in hand, waiting for the exact instant when the iron routine of the court demanded that the monarch should be roused. Beneath him, from under the costly green coverlet of oriental silk, half buried in the fluffy valenciennes lace which edged the pillow, there protruded a round black bristle of close cropped hair, with the profile of a curving nose and petulant lip outlined against the white background. The valet snapped his watch and bent over the sleeper.

"I have the honor to inform your majesty that it is half past 8," said he.

"Ah!" The king slowly opened his large dark brown eyes, made the sign of the cross and kissed a little dark reliquary which he drew from under his nightdress. Then he sat up in bed.

"Did you give my orders to the officer of the guard, Bontems?" he asked.

"Yes, sire."

"Who is on duty?"

"Major de Brissac at the main guard and Captain de Catinat in the corridor."

"De Catinat! Ah, the young man who stopped my horse at Fontainebleau. I remember him. You may give the signal, Bontems."

The chief valet walked swiftly across to the door and threw it open. In rushed the officer of the ovens and the four red coated, white wigged footmen, ready handed, silent footed, each intent upon his own duties. The one seised upon Bontems' rug and couch and in an instant had whipped them off into an antechamber, another had carried away the silver taper stand, while a third drew back the great curtains of stamped velvet and let a flood of light into the apartment.

They were hardly gone before a more august group entered the bedchamber. Two walked together in front, the one a youthful little over twenty years of age, middle sized, inclining to stoutness, with a slow, pompous bearing, a well turned leg and a face which was comely enough in a masklike fashion, but which was devoid of any shadow of expression except perhaps of an occasional lurking gleam of mischievous humor. His companion was a man of forty, swarthy, dignified and solemn As the pair faced the king there was sufficient resemblance between the three faces to show that they were of one blood and to enable a stranger to guess that the older was monsieur, the younger brother of the king, while the other was Louis the Dauphin, his only legitimate child.

Behind the king's son and the king's brother there entered a little group of notables and of officials whom duty had called to this daily ceremony. There were the grand master of the robes, the first lord of the bedchamber, the Duc du Maine, a pale youth clad in black velvet, limping heavily with his left leg, and his little brother, the young Comte de Toulouse, both of them the illegitimate sons of Mme. de Montespan and the king. Such were the partakers in the family entry, the highest honor which the court of France could aspire to.

Bontems had poured on the king's hands a few drops of spirits of wine, catching them again in a silver dish; and the first lord of the bedchamber had presented the bowl of holy water, with which he made the sign of the cross, muttering to himself the short office of the Holy Ghost. Then, with a nod to his brother and a short word of greeting to the Dauphin and to the Duc du Maine, he swung his legs over the side of the bed and sat, in his long silken nightdress, his little white feet dangling from beneath it, a perilous position for any man to assume were it not that he had so heartfelt a sense of his own dignity that he could not realize that under any circumstances it might be compromised in the eyes of others. So he sat, the master of France and yet the slave to every puff of wind, for a wandering draft had set him shivering and shaking. M. de St. Quentin, the noble barber, flung a purple dressing gown over the royal shoulders and placed a long, many curled court wig upon his head, while Bontems drew on his red stockings and laid before him his slippers of embroidered velvet. The monarch thrust his feet into them, tied his dressing gown and passed out to the fireplace, where he settled himself down in his easy chair, holding out his thin, delicate hands toward the blazing logs, while the others stood round in a semicircle, waiting for the grand lever which was to follow.

M. de St. Quentin, is this not our shaving morning?" said the king.

"Yes, sire; all is ready."

"Then why not proceed? It is three minutes after the accustomed time. To work, sir; and you, Bontems, give word for the grand lever."

It was obvious that the king was not in a very good humor that morning. He darted little quick questioning glances at his brother and at his sons, but whatever complaint or sarcasm may have trembled upon his lips was effectually stifled by De St. Quentin's ministrations. With the nonchalance born of long custom, the official covered the royal chin with soap, drew the razor swiftly round it and sponged over the surface with spirits of wine. A nobleman then helped to draw on the king's black velvet haut-de-chausses, a second assisted in arranging them, while a third drew the nightgown over the shoulders and banded the royal shirt, which had been warming before the fire. His diamond buckled shoes, his gaiters and his scarlet inner vest were successively fastened by noble courtiers, each keenly jealous of his own privilege, and over the vest was placed the blue ribbon with the cross of the Holy Ghost in diamonds, and that of St. Louis tied with red. The black undercoat was drawn on, the cravat of rich lace adjusted, the loose overcoat secured, two handkerchiefs of costly point carried forward upon an enameled saucer and thrust by separate officials into each side pocket, the silver and ebony cane laid to hand, and the monarch was ready for the labors of the day.
